In all cases of service by publication, the notice therefor is given by the plaintiff or his attorney after having filed a proper affidavit with the proper clerk. After the petition has been filed, third persons are charged with notice of the pendency of the action, so that no interest can be acquired as against the plaintiff's title, providing that there shall be actual service, or the first publication is made within sixty days after the filing of the petition. This notice, however, does not extend to cases affecting real property without the county where the action is pending, until a certified copy of the judgment in such action has been recorded in the office of the register of deeds of such other county.

If the adverse party have no actual notice, he may, upon motion and notice to the successful plaintiff, be let in to answer and defend within three years; but the title to any property affected by the judgment sought to be opened shall not after six months be affected in the hands of a purchaser in good faith.

Stay of Execution. — There is practically no stay of execution in the district court except where a bond (for supersedeas) is filed. After rendition of judgment or decree, court may stay execution or sale to allow party to file proceeding in supreme court to reverse or modify. (7490.) In justice's court, by filing bond, stays of execution are graduated as follows: On twenty dollars and under, thirty days, over twenty and under fifty dollars, sixty days, over fifty and not exceeding one hundred dollars, ninety days, over one hundred dollars, one hundred and twenty days. No stay is granted in the following cases: On judgments against justices for refusing to pay over money collected or received, or for not reporting thereon; on judgments against constables for making false returns, for failing to make returns, or for failing to pay over money collected. On judgments against bail for stay of execution. On judgments in favor of bail who have been compelled by judgment to pay money on account of their principal. On judgments obtained by constables on replevin bonds. (7835)

Supplementary Proceedings.—When an execution has been returned unsatisfied, plaintiff is entitled to an order for the appearance and examination of debtor, or it may be obtained at any time after the issuing of execution upon proof by the affidavit of the judgment creditor, his agent or attorney, that the judgment debtor has property which he unjustly refuses to apply toward the satisfaction of the judgment. If any property not exempt by law is thus discovered, it may be levied upon, and if in the hands of others, the court may order it delivered up and applied toward the satisfaction of the judgment, and may appoint a receiver of the debtor's property, forbid the transfer or other disposition of the same, and may order equitable interests in real estate to be sold. See Executions.

Tax Law.—Lands sold for taxes are redeemable for three years from the day of sale, and no tax deed can be made before that time. Suits to avoid the sale or conveyance of land for taxes (except where the taxes have been paid or the land redeemed, as provided by law) must be commenced within five years from the time of recording the tax deed. The tax deed, if in proper form and duly acknowledged, is prima facie evidence of the regularity of all proceedings, from the valuation of the land up to the execution of the deed.

A lien attaches to all real property subject to taxation on the first day of November in the year for which such tax is levied. (11149 et seq.)

If the holder of tax deed, or any one claiming under him by virtue of such tax deed, be defeated in an action by or against him for the recovery of the land sold, the successful claimant shall be adjudged to pay to the holder of the tax deed in the party claiming under him by virtue of such deed, before such claimant shall be let into possession, the full amount of all taxes paid on such lands, with all interest and costs as allowed by law, up to the date of such deed, including the costs of such deed and the recording of the same with interest on such amount at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum, and the further amount of taxes paid after the date of such deed, and interest thereon at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum. The supreme court, in Wilder v. Cochshutt, 25 Kan. 504, decided that where land has been sold for taxes, regardless of the irregularities in the same, redemption can only be made by paying statutory interest on all legal taxes.

As between grantor and grantee of any land, where there is no express agreement as to which shall pay the taxes that may be assessed thereon, if such land is conveyed between the first day of March and the first day of November, then the grantee shall pay the taxes; but if conveyed between the first day of November and the first day of March, the grantor shall pay them. Personal property is assessed for taxation each year as of March first, and real estate in even numbered years. Assessors' returns of personal property must be made to county clerk on or before May 10 of each year, and on real estate on or before the same date of even numbered years. Taxes on real and personal property become due November first. One half may be paid on or before December 20, and the remaining half on or before June 20 next ensuing, and all taxes due and unpaid on the twenty-first day of December are subject to a penalty of five per cent., and if still remaining due until June 20, an additional penalty of five per cent. Any person paying full amount on or before December 20 is entitled to a rebate of five per cent. on the amount becoming due June 20. If taxes are not paid on or before 20th of June, the property is then subject to sale. It is advertised for four consecutive weeks prior to sale, and sold for taxes the first Tuesday in September following. After sale it may be redeemed within three years from day of sale, by payment of the amount for which it was sold and all subsequent taxes and charges thereon, paid by the purchaser or his assignee, with interest at the rate of fifteen per cent. per annum from day of sale, etc. The interest of a minor may be redeemed at any time before the second year of majority, and of idiots and insane persons within five years. If the mortgagor of lands fails to pay the taxes, the mortgagee may pay them and have them included in the mortgage, with interest at ten per cent. per annum upon payment or foreclosure of the same. A mortgagee may also become the legal holder of a tax sale certificate upon the mortgaged premises. (18 Kan. 228.) The statutes also confer power upon county commissioners to compromise delinquent taxes, and power to issue tax certificates and deeds for less than taxes after three years. And they provide for a foreclosure of tax liens in court.

Testimony.—No person is disqualified as a witness, in either civil or criminal cases, on reason of his being a party to, or interested in, the event of the action, or on account of any religious belief, or by reason of his conviction of a crime. The admissions of the parties to a divorce suit are received.

In criminal cases the failure of the accused to testify cannot be alledged to in argument or construed as any evidence of guilt. No party will be allowed to testify in his own behalf as to any transaction or communication had personally by such party with a deceased person, when the adverse party is the executor, administrator, heir at law, next of kin, surviving partner, or assignee of such deceased person, when they have acquired title to the cause of action immediately from such deceased person, or of transactions when the other party thereto is deceased; or of transactions with a deceased partner or joint contractor in the absence of his surviving partner or joint contractor; in all cases, however, when the deceased's deposition has been taken, and is used on the trial, the adverse party may testify.

The following persons are incompetent to testify: persons of unsound mind; children under ten years of age, except in the discretion of the court; husband and wife for or against each other, except in cases of agency or joint interest, but in no case concerning communications made during marriage; nor any attorney, clergyman, or physician, with reference to confidential communications made to them, unless the party offers himself as a witness, in which case the communications to such attorney, clergyman, or physician on the same subject are admissible.

Trusts and Powers. — All trusts concerning lands must be created in writing except such as arise by implication of law, and no trust, whether implied or created, can defeat the title of a purchaser for a valuable consideration without notice. All instruments creating trusts, duly executed and acknowledged, may be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the land is situated, and the record of such trust shall be deemed actual notice to all persons claiming under a conveyance made after the recording of the trust deed. A party paying money to a trustee in good faith is not responsible for the application of the money so paid. Nor can any fraudulent application of the money by the trustee affect the title of such a purchaser. No trust results to one paying the consideration for a conveyance to another except in favor of creditors or in case of fraud. A dry or passive trust passes the title directly to the beneficiary. The over-execution of a power is only void pro tanto. A married woman may be given a power of sale of her fee without the concurrence of her husband. A power of sale in a conveyance as security passes to the one entitled to the money the payment of which is secured. (11674 et seq.)

Wills. — Any person of full age and sound mind and memory, having an interest in real or personal property of any description whatever, may give and devise the same to any person by last will and testament lawfully executed, subject, nevertheless, to the rights of creditors, and to the provisions of this act. Wills must be in writing, signed at the end by the testator, or another in his presence and by his express direction, and attested and subscribed in his presence by two or more competent witnesses who saw him subscribe or heard him acknowledge it. Compliance with these requirements should appear in the witnessing clause. A will executed, proved, and allowed in another State, according to the laws of that State, relative to property in this State, may be admitted to record in the probate court or the county in which such property is situated, by producing an authenticated copy, and thereupon has the same validity as if made in this State.

Every will, when admitted to probate, shall be filed in the office of the probate court, and recorded, together with the testimony, in a book to be kept for that purpose.

Any person may make a will in writing, and inclose the same in a sealed wrapper, with the name of the testator indorsed thereon, and deposit the will so inclosed and indorsed in the office of the judge of the probate court in the county in which such testator lives, subject to the order of the testator only during his life, and after his death to be delivered to the party named on the back of the package as the party to whom it is to be delivered; and if no such party is named then to be publicly opened in the probate court within two months after notice of the death of the testator.

Neither husband nor wife can, without written consent of the other, bequeath away from the other more than one half of his or her property. Any married person having no children may devise one half to other persons than husband or wife. Aside from these restrictions, any person may leave what he pleases to charity and not make any provision for child or children unless he desires.

Verbal will made in last sickness, valid in respect to personal estate, if reduced to writing and subscribed by two competent disinterested witnesses within ten days after speaking the testamentary words, and on proof by such witnesses that testator was of sound mind and called on some person present to bear testimony to said deposition as his will.

No nuncupative will to be recorded unless offered within six months from death of testator. (11752 et seq.)

An order probating or refusing to probate a will must be contested within two years from the making of such order, except that persons under legal disability may contest such order within two years after such disability is removed.

KENTUCKY LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Trabue, Doolan, Helm & Helm, of Louisville.

The next regular session of the legislature convenes January, 1920.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — A civil action is commenced by filing in the office of the clerk or the proper court a petition, and causing a summons to be issued or warrant order made thereon. (Civil Code § 39.)

Non-residents of this State, and private corporations, as distinguished from public corporations (97 Ky 702) other than a bank, created by the laws of this State, before commencing a proceeding in any of the courts, must execute a bond for costs, but action will not be dismissed unless the plaintiff fail to execute bond upon motion therefor by opposing party (Civil Code, §§ 616, 617.) Does not apply when one of several plaintiffs is resident though others are non-residents. (155 Ky 657) Quere. as to right to require bond for cost of national bank located in Kentucky.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Decedents.

Affidavits — May be made in this State before a judge of a court, a justice of the peace, a notary public, examiner, clerk of a court, or master commissioner, out of the State before a commissioner appointed by the governor of this State, or a person specially commissioned, or before a judge of a court, a justice of the peace, mayor of a city, or notary public (Civil Code, §§ 549, 564.) Certificate of officer is proof of time and manner of affidavit being made (§ 551) No proof of officer's commission or qualification is required, except that certificate of notary should state when his commission expires. (Ky Stat. § 372.) See Notaries Public.

Any affidavit which the Code requires or authorizes a party to make may, unless otherwise expressed, be made by his agent or attorney, if he be absent from the county. (Civil Code § 550.) Affidavit of agent or attorney must state absence of principal as a fact and not as a matter of belief (60 S. W. 186.)

Aliens. — Alien not being an enemy, may, after intention declared to become a citizen of the United States recover, inherit, hold, pass by descent, devise, or otherwise any interest in real or personal property, as if he were a citizen See, also, United States treaties with various nations.

Appeals. — See Court Calendar for Kentucky.

Arrest. — A defendant to a civil action can be arrested and held to bail when there is an affidavit of the plaintiff showing: 1st. The nature of the plaintiff's claim 2d That it is just 3d. The amount of value which the affiant believes the plaintiff ought to recover 4th That the affiant believes, either, that the defendant is about to depart from this State, and, with intent to defraud his creditors, has concealed or removed from this State his property, or so much thereof that the process of the court after judgment cannot be executed, or that the defendant has money or securities for money or evidences of debt in the possession of himself, or of others for his use, and is about to depart from this State, without leaving property therein sufficient to satisfy plaintiff's claim To effect this, bond and security must be given. Bail may be given by the defendant to render himself amenable to the process of the court. In default of bail, the defendant is committed to jail where he must remain until he pays the debt, gives bail, or takes the insolvent debtor's oath (Code of Practice, title 8, ch. 1.) See Attachments.

Assignments. — See Insolvent Laws and Assignments. As to assignments of wages see Chattel Mortgages.

Attachments. — The plaintiff may have an attachment, which may be made a writ of garnishment, by indorsement on the attachment, against the property of the defendant or of a garnishee where it is necessary to make the garnishee a defendant, as permitted by § 227 Civ. Code), in an action for the recovery of money, where the action is against

1. a defendant, or several defendants, who, or some one of whom, is a foreign corporation or a non-resident of the State, the attachment being, of course, against the property of the foreign corporation or non-resident; or (2) who has been absent therefrom four months or 3, has departed from the State with intent to defraud his creditors; or (4) has left the county of his residence to avoid the service of summons; or (5) so conceals himself that a summons cannot be served upon him; or (6) is about to remove or has removed his property, or a material part thereof, out of this State, not leaving enough therein to satisfy plaintiff's claims, or the claims of the said defendant's creditors; or (7) has sold, conveyed, or otherwise disposed of his property, or suffered or permitted it to be sold, with the fraudulent intent to cheat, hinder, or delay his creditors; or (8) is about to sell, convey, or otherwise dispose of his property with such intent. But an attachment shall not be granted on the sole ground that the defendant or defendants, or any of them, is a foreign corporation or a non-resident of this State, for any claim other than a debt or demand arising upon contract. (See Bates Machine Co. v. Norton Iron Works, 113 Ky. 372.) To obtain an attachment before judgment and return of "No property found" on execution, the plaintiff must file an affidavit, showing (1) nature of plaintiff's claim; (2) that it is just; (3) the amount which the affiant believes the plaintiff ought to recover; and (4) the existence of some one of the grounds above enumerated. No attachment will issue (except in supplemental proceedings after judgment and a return of no property) unless bond and security are given in double the amount of claim, with probable costs. One surety is sufficient. See Sureties. Must have property in this State subject to execution in double amount of bond. An attachment and garnishment may also be granted against a defendant who has no property in this State subject to execution, where the plaintiff's debts would be endangered by delay, and also in an action to recover personal property, where, after an order for its delivery to plaintiff, it had been concealed or removed or so disposed of that the order cannot be executed. (Civil Code, § 194.) See, as to attachments in divorce cases, Divorce.

Before a debt or liability on contract becomes due, an equitable action may be brought for indemnity, and an attachment against defendant's property or order of arrest obtained by order of court on similar grounds as above stated and after bond given as above provided. (Civil Code, §§ 237, 248.) See, also, Garnishment.

Several orders of attachment against a defendant have precedence according to the time of their delivery to sheriff (Code, § 202); but if the property attached be a fund in court, and several orders be executed on same day, they will be satisfied ratably. (Code, § 207.)

If attachment be discharged as having been wrongfully obtained, the liability of the sureties on the bond is for the damage which defendant may have sustained by reason of the attachment, not exceeding double the amount of the plaintiff's claim. (Code, § 198.)

Chattel Mortgages — May be given by the owner of personal property, and the possession of the property remain in the mortgagor. Must be duly acknowledged and recorded in the county of the mortgagor's residence. (55 S. W. Rep. 424; 107 Ky. 620.) As to mortgage recording tax and importance of paying same as required, see Mortgages. Unless all taxes of every kind required are paid, no action can be maintained. (Acts of 1917, ch. 11.) Chattel mortgages are barred by five years' possession by mortgagee. Except as to purchasers having actual notice (see ch. 41, Acts of 1916), all mortgages take effect only from the time they are lodged for record in the county clerk's office. They are enforced by suit in equity, and as held by a circuit court by sale under express power, but the question has not been distinctly decided by a court of last resort. See, however, distinct intimation to this effect from court of appeals in recent case of White Sewing Machine Company v. Connor, 111 Ky. 827. To same effect, see 48 S. W. 976; 58 S. W. 471; 66 S. W. 815. There is, however, a dictum to the contrary in 91 Ky. 299, based upon a statute which applies now exclusively to real estate. Mortgages of stock in trade are good against all persons as to existing stock, and good between parties as to future additions, if recorded properly where record is required. By ch. 134, Acts of 1918, it is provided that any person fraudulently selling, concealing, or disposing of any personal property, on which there is at the time a mortgage of record, or any lien given under the statute laws of Kentucky, with intent to prevent the enforcement or foreclosure of such lien and sale of the property, shall be fined not less than ten nor more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned for not less than fifteen nor more than ninety days, or both so fined and imprisoned.

An assignment or pledge or mortgage of wages is invalid under ch. 126, Acts of 1912, as amended by ch. 36, Acts of 1918, where the consideration, either wholly or in part, for such assignment, pledge, or mortgage is a sum of money less than two hundred dollars, unless (1) the contract be in writing and terms fully stated, with full name and address of each person interested as creditor or assignee. (2) Written assent of employer is given upon such assignment or pledge. (3) Copy of assignment or pledge must be furnished to wage-earner and all payments made by him must be indorsed on such copy, which shall not be taken away from him. (4) Assignment or pledge not valid except as to fixed or definite amount of wages earned or to be earned within ninety days of date of instrument, which must bear its true date. (5) This is known as the "Loan Shark Law" and does not apply to banks or trust companies. See act for its full terms and provisions.

Claim and Delivery of Personal Property. — In actions for recovery of specific personal property, plaintiff may obtain immediate possession by making proper affidavit, and giving bond, with surety, in double the amount of value of property, but defendant may retain possession by giving similar bond. (Civil Code, §§ 180-193.)

Claims against Estates of Decedents — May be enforced after six months from qualification of personal representative. Before suit, and before payment by representative, demand must be made of him, accompanied by affidavit of claimant, or agent, that the claim is just, has never to his knowledge or belief been paid, and that there is no offset or discount against the same, or any usury embraced therein. If any payment has been made, or there be any offset or discount against the demand, or any usury embraced therein, the affidavit must fully state the payment, offset, discount, or usury. Claims other than a judgment or an obligation signed by the decedent must be proved by affidavit of a witness in addition to claimant's affidavit. (Ky Stat §§ 3847, 3870-3872.) Settlement suit may be brought at any time by a personal representative, but no such suit shall be brought by any one except a personal representative until the expiration of six months after the qualification of such representative (Ch. 155, Acts of 1918.)

If the personal estate is insolvent, suit may be brought by a creditor to sell real estate and settle the accounts of the personal representative. (Code of Practice, § 428.) In such event, the burial expenses of such decedent, and the costs and charges of administration, and the amount of the estate of a dead person, or of a ward, or of a person of unsound mind committed by a court of record to his charge, and remaining in the hands of the decedent shall be paid in full before any pro rata distribution shall be made, but this preference shall not extend to a demand foreign to this State.

All other debts and liabilities are of equal dignity, except bona fide liens. (§3868.) The same proof required of non-residents as of residents. The affidavit may be made before any officer authorized to administer oaths. See Affidavits.

Non-residents cannot act as executors or administrators; and if, after qualification they become non-residents, they shall be removed. (§ 3846.)

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales — Of personal property are good as between the parties, but do not affect purchasers from vendee without notice (10 Bush 339.) But where it appears that a condition in the sale or a reservation of title to the chattel sold is in fact intended as a security for money, the courts will treat the transaction as an absolute sale and a mortgage back, and in such case the mortgage should be recorded. (13 Bush, 430; 86 Ky 471.)

Consignments. — Factor has no right to pledge goods of principal, but pledgee may set off against consignor amount due to factor (78 Ky 42.)

Corporations. — Three or more persons may associate themselves (except in case of banks, railroads, trust companies, insurance companies, etc., where a larger number is required) and form a corporation, but except in case of banks (Acts of 1906, ch. 44) cannot acquire powers or privileges not possessed by natural persons, except perpetual succession, possession of common seal, transferability of shares, exemption of private property of members from liability for corporate debts, establishing by-laws, rules, and regulations. The articles of incorporation are executed and recorded as deeds are. Corporations are required to file copy of articles in the office of secretary of state, and also in office of county clerk of county where principal office is to be, and such articles must be recorded in both the county clerk's office and the office of secretary of state at Frankfort. (Acts of 1906, ch. 44.) Consolidation of corporations, generally, is permitted by Ky Stat §§ 555-58, as amended by ch. 46, Acts of 1916. Consolidation of railroad corporations is permitted by Ky Stat § 774, as amended by ch. 46, Acts of 1916. Consolidation of trust companies is permitted by Ky Stat § 603a (Acts of 1912, ch. 41).

By Ch. 15, Acts of 1918, any corporation of Kentucky or of any other State or Territory is permitted to sell, and any other such corporation to buy, all or any of its property, rights, privileges, franchises, easements, rights of way, and all other property and property rights it may use or possess, provided that such sale shall not be valid unless consented to by three-fourths in amount of the capital stock of the vendor, corporation, and provision is further made for paying to a dissenting stockholder the market value of his stock, not less than its par value.

Statement required. — All corporations (except foreign insurance companies) doing an intra-state business in the State are required to file with the secretary of state a statement designating principal place of business in Kentucky and an agent thereof to receive service of process. Contracts made by corporations violating this requirement are void. (Oliver Co. v. Louisville Realty Co., 156 Ky. 628.) As to what is intra-state business as distinguished from inter-state business, see Bondurant v. Dahnke, etc., Co., 175 Ky 774 also 246 S.W. 498. 500. Joint-stock associations are not included in this law. (Com. v. Adams Exp. Co., 15 Ky 751.) But see ch. 69, Acts of 1904 (Ky Stat. 1913, § 4720 d,) which provides that non-resident individuals, partnerships, or joint-stock associations, engaged in business in Kentucky under any law of Kentucky requiring them to execute bonds for performance of contracts in Kentucky, shall file a similar statement designating an agent to receive service of process in any action on such bonds.

There is a general incorporation law in Kentucky for all purposes. "Private banks" and the conduct of a bank by unincorporated individuals, is now prohibited. (Acts of 1906, ch. 44.) Stockholders are liable only to the extent of unpaid subscription except in banks, trust companies, guaranty companies, investment companies, and insurance companies, where there is "double liability." One half of capital stock must be subscribed in good faith before corporation is authorized to commence business, to be paid as called. Board of directors, three or more, need not be residents. By ch. 31, Acts of 1912, the rights of one corporation to buy the assets, franchises, etc., of another corporation is preserved and the right to sell such assets, etc., is given to corporations whose charter may expire within two years. See act for its terms and provisions. Corporations not of public character are not restricted on franchises, but on other property only (Ky. Stat. ch. 32, § 538, etc.) Both foreign and domestic corporations may hold title to land with the limitation that no corporation shall Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Kentucky.

Curtesy. — See Dower.

Deeds. — Deeds executed by corporations must have seal attached, or the corporation may adopt a scroll instead of a seal, if it have no seal. (6 Dana, 39.) No seal or scroll is required upon deeds of individuals, being dispensed with by Ky. Stat. § 471. Executed out of the United States deeds of married women or other persons may be certified by any foreign minister, or consul, or secretary of legation of the United States, or by the secretary of foreign affairs, certified under his seal of office, or the judge of a superior court of the nation where the deed shall be executed, to have been acknowledged or proved before him as required by law. (Acts of 1910, ch. 82.)

Deeds executed out of this State, and within the United States, by married women or other persons, may be admitted to record when the same shall be certified under his seal of office, by the clerk of a court, his deputy, or a notary public, mayor of a city, or secretary of state, or commissioner to take the acknowledgment of deeds, or by a judge under the seal of his court, to have been acknowledged or proved before him in the manner required by law. Proof by witnesses not required when deed is acknowledged before proper officer. (Acts of 1910, ch. 82.)

Deeds executed in the State by married women or other persons may be acknowledged before the clerk of a county court or notary public; or may be proved by two subscribing witnesses, or by one who shall also prove the attestation of the other, or by proof of two witnesses that the subscribing witnesses are both dead, or out of this State, or one so absent and the other dead, and like proof of the signature of one witness and of the grantor.

By ch. 82, Acts of 1910, married women are put on exactly the same footing as other persons with respect to the execution and acknowledgment of deeds.

Certificate must be attached to the instrument or be written upon it. A notary public must certify the date of expiration of his commission. (Ky. Stat. § 3721.)

Corporations execute instruments as individuals, and the acknowledgment and certificate are in the same form, except that the corporation must sign and acknowledge by its principal officer or other officer designated by charter or by-laws, or by board of directors, and with seal.

County clerk certifies as to notary public being commissioned, secretary of state as to commissioners of deeds.

Deeds and mortgages are not valid as to purchasers without notice, or "all creditors" of the grantor, until acknowledged or proven and recorded as provided by law. (Acts of 1916, ch. 41, amending Ky. Stat. § 496.)

All deeds conveying any interest in real estate equal to or greater than a life estate must plainly specify and refer to the next immediate source from which the grantor derived title, and in referring to former conveyance must state the office, book, and page, when recorded and the date thereof, e. g. (following the description) "being the same property conveyed to the grantors by A. B. by deed dated January 1, 1900, and recorded in the office of the clerk of the Jefferson county court in Deed Book 500, page 100." (Stat. Ky. § 495, as amended by Act of 1904.)

By the new revenue act (Acts of 1906, ch. 22), as construed in Shrader v. Remonin, 96 S. W. 904, the county clerk is forbidden to receive for record any deed, mortgage, or other writing which creates a lien unless the name, residence, and post-office address of the person or corporation owing the debt thereby secured and liable for the taxes thereon are stated therein. In like manner any assignment of record of such debt must give the same information as to this assignee, and unless such information is given by record assignment the original owner continues liable for the taxes to accrue thereon. (Acts of 1906, ch. 22, art. 2, § 10.) The validity of instruments executed before the passage of this act is not affected by it.

Depositions — Taken in this State, to be used in its courts, shall be taken before an examiner, a judge or clerk of a court, a justice of the peace, or a notary public, and the laws relating to examiners apply to each of these officers. (Code of Practice, § 562.)

There are two methods of taking depositions to be used in Kentucky: upon interrogatories filed with the proper clerk, and by him copied and certified; and upon notice to the opposite party. Depositions taken out of this State shall be taken before a commissioner appointed by the governor of said State, a judge of a court, justice of the peace, mayor of a city, notary public, or any other person empowered by a commission directed to him. (Code of Practice, § 564.) See Affidavits.

Commission to take depositions upon interrogatories in or out of Kentucky may be issued by the clerk of the court (Civil Code, § 577), but in courts of continuous session no commission is required for taking depositions upon interrogatories in the county where the court sits. (Ky. Stat. § 1009.)

Manner of taking Depositions upon Interrogatories. — The following section must be strictly observed: — (Civil Code, § 581.) When a deposition is taken upon interrogatories, neither party, nor his agent or attorney, shall be present at the examination of the witness.

The officer taking the deposition should be careful to see that each interrogatory is fully and particularly answered, before propounding to the witness the succeeding question.

The interrogatories should be copied into the first deposition, but after that it will be sufficient to say in the other depositions that the witness, in answer to the first interrogatory, says, etc., and so on of the others.

The officer may adjourn the taking of a deposition from time to time, or place to place, noting such adjournments in the deposition and stating them in his certificate.

The attested copy of the interrogatories should be annexed to and returned with the depositions.

The officer should be particularly careful to see that interrogatories propounded by the clerk are answered.

The following forms should be substantially followed: —

The depositions of John Doe and Richard Roe, taken on behalf of the plaintiff, in an action now pending in the Jefferson Circuit Court, wherein John Jones is plaintiff and Richard Smith is defendant. The said Richard Roe having been first duly sworn, deposes as follows: —

(Here follows the deposition, which after having been read to the witness must be subscribed by him.)

When all the depositions are taken and signed, let the officer taking them add the following certificate, varying it to suit names and facts: —

THE STATE OF OHIO, } ss.
COUNTY OF HAMILTON, }

I, John Smith, a notary public in and for the county and State aforesaid, do certify that the above and foregoing depositions of John Doe and Richard Roe were taken before me, at my office in the city of Cincinnati, county of Hamilton, and State of Ohio, on the tenth day of November, 19 , upon the interrogatories hereto annexed, that said witnesses were each first sworn by me that the evidence they should give in the action should be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, before giving their testimony that the testimony of each of said witnesses was written by me in their presence (or if either of the witnesses wrote his own testimony, state the fact, and that it was so written in the presence of the officer), read to and subscribed by him in my presence. I further certify that at the taking of said deposition neither party was present in person, nor represented by agent or attorney (or if both or either party attended, state the fact). My commission expires on the day of 19 .

JOHN SMITH, Notary Public [Seal]

The deposition must be written wholly by either the officer or witness, and by no other person. If written by the officer it must be written wholly in the presence of the witness and read to and subscribed by the witness in the presence of the officer.

When the depositions are completed, they should be sealed up in an envelope by the officer and directed to the clerk of the proper court, with an indorsement showing them to be depositions, and the style of the case in which they are taken, and either delivered by him to the clerk, or mailed by him in person, care being taken to see that the postage is prepaid.

Depositions upon Notice. — Although depositions upon notice may be taken in narrative form, the officer or witness simply writing out the statement of the witness, yet the better practice is for the interrogatories propounded to the witness to be written out at length in the deposition, each question being followed by its answer. The questions may be written by the party or his attorney, but the answers must be written by the officer or witness. Either party is of course privileged to attend and propound any proper question to the witness. If objection is made to the question, the objection should be noted by the officer, but the question should be answered, unless it is grossly improper, such as requiring an attorney to divulge the secrets of his clients, or the witness to criminate himself.

The form of caption and certificate should be the same as above, substituting the word "notice" for interrogatories wherever it occurs, and particularly stating in the certificate which of the parties attended at the examination.

If the notice specifies the hours between which the depositions are to be taken, the certificate should state them likewise.

The continuances from day to day, if any, should be noted by the officer as they occur, and should not be longer than from one day to the next, Sundays excepted.

The notice must be annexed to and returned with the depositions, which should be enveloped and delivered, or mailed in the manner above prescribed for depositions taken on interrogatories.

The utmost particularity should be observed by the officer in strictly complying with the above instructions, otherwise the deposition will be useless to the party taking it.

The officer should not forget to tax his own fees and the fees of the witnesses at the foot of the deposition. (Code of Practice, title XIII, ch. 111, subdiv. iii, §§ 565-584.)

Descent and Distribution of Property. — Real Estate. — 1. To his children and their descendants. 2. To his father and mother, if both are living, one moiety each; but if the father be dead, then to the mother, if living. If the mother be dead, to the father, if living. 3. If no father or mother, then to his brothers and sisters and their descendants. 4. If none, one moiety of the estate shall pass to the paternal and the other to the maternal kindred, in the following order: 5. First, to the grandfather and grandmother equally if both be living; but if one be dead, then the entire moiety shall go to the survivor; if no grandfather or grandmother, then 6. To the uncles and aunts and their descendants; if none, then 7. To the great-grandfathers and great-grandmothers, in the same manner prescribed for grandfather and grandmother above; if none, then 8. To the brothers and sisters of the grandfathers and grandmothers and their descendants; and so on in other cases without end, passing to the nearest lineal ancestors and their descendants as above prescribed. 9. If there is no such kindred to one of the parents, the whole shall go to the kindred of the other. If there is neither paternal nor maternal kindred, the whole shall go to the husband or wife of the intestate; or if the husband or wife is dead, to his or her kindred, as if he or she had survived the intestate and died entitled to the estate. Collaterals of the half blood inherit only half as much as those of the whole blood.

Descendants of a person who if living would be entitled to inherit, take per stirpes the share of a deceased ancestor.

When a person dies intestate without issue, having real estate of inheritance, the gift of either of his parents, such parent, if living, inherits it. If he is an infant and dies without issue, leaving real estate derived by gift, devise, or descent from one of his parents (Ky. Stat. §§ 1400, 1401), the whole descends to that parent, and his or her kindred, as hereinbefore directed; if none, then in like manner to the other parent and his or her kindred; but the kindred of one shall not be so excluded by the kindred of the other parent; if the latter is more remote than the grandfather, grandmother, uncles and aunts of intestate and their descendants.

This statute is strictly construed and does not apply where the parent gives money or personalty of any kind which is invested by the infant in the land. (Gwier v. Bridges, 70 S. W. 288.)

In making title by descent, it shall be no bar to a party that any ancestor through whom he derives his descent from the intestate is, or has been, an alien. (Ky. Stat. ch. 39, § 1393, etc.)

Personal Estates. — (1) The personal estate of an infant shall be distributed as if he had died of age, (2) an alien may be a distributee, (3) the same as real estate, except (4) husband has one half surplus of wife's personal estate; (5) widow has one half of such surplus; (6) there are exemptions of seven hundred and fifty dollars allowed to widow and infant children. (Ch. 72, Acts 1912.) These exemptions are allowed against both heirs and creditors and are in addition to the widow's share of personalty. (32 S. W. 609.)

Divorce. — Both husband and wife may obtain a divorce for (1) such impotency or malformation as prevents sexual intercourse; (2) living separate without cohabitation for five years next before the application.

Divorce may be granted to party not in fault, for (1) abandonment by one party of the other for one year; (2) living in adultery with another man or woman; (3) condemnation for felony, in or out of this State; (4) concealment from the other party of any loathsome disease, existing at the time of marriage, or contracting such afterwards; (5) force, duress, or fraud in obtaining the marriage; (6) uniting with any religious society requiring a renunciation of the marriage covenant or forbidding cohabitation.

Also to the wife when not in like fault, for (1) confirmed habit of drunkenness on the part of the husband, of not less than one year's duration, accompanied with a wasting of his estate, and without any suitable provision for the maintenance of his wife and children (2) habitually behaving towards her by the husband, for not less than six months in such cruel and inhuman manner as to indicate a settled aversion to her and to destroy permanently her peace and happiness; (3) such cruel beating, or injury or attempted injury of the wife by the husband as indicates an outrageous and ungovernable temper, and a probable danger to her life, or great bodily injury from her remaining with him.

Also to the husband for (1) where wife is pregnant by another man without husband's knowledge, at time of marriage; (2) adultery, or such lewd, lascivious behavior on wife's part as proves her to be unchaste, without actual proof of an act of adultery; (3) habitual drunkenness of the wife of not less than one year's duration, when husband is not in like fault. (Ky. Stat. ch. 66, art. 11, § 2117, etc.)

Suit must be brought in the county where the wife usually resides, if she has a residence in this State; if not, then in the county of the husband's residence, and no such suit can be brought until after a year's continuous residence in this State, next before the institution, but must be brought within five years from act complained of, nor, unless the party complaining had an actual residence in this State at the time of the doing of the act complained of, shall a divorce be granted for anything done out of the State, unless it was also a cause for divorce by the law of the country where the act was done.

Judgment of absolute divorce authorizes either party to marry again. Courts having general jurisdiction equitable may grant divorces. No jury trial is permitted. In a divorce case the court may order an attachment, or direct the arrest of a defendant, with or requiring a bond, where the case seems to require it for the protection of plaintiff's rights. (180 Ky. 696.)

Upon decrees of divorce, parties are restored to such property as either obtained from the other before or during marriage, in consideration or by reason thereof. If no sufficient estate of her own, wife is entitled to such allowance out of her husband's estate pendente lite as is equitable.

The foregoing rules apply to absolute divorces, i. e. a vinculo matrimonii. A partial divorce, i. e. a mensae et thoro, may be granted for the same causes or for any other cause which the court in its discretion may deem sufficient. (Ky. Stat. § 2121.)

An action for alimony may be maintained without joining a prayer for either an absolute or a partial divorce, and in a proper case without waiting the statutory period of one year's abandonment. (80 Ky. 364, 98 Ky. 382.)

Dower and Curtesy.—After death of either husband or wife, survivors shall have estate for life in one third of all real estate, of which deceased consort was seized during the coverture, of an estate in fee simple, unless right to such interest has been barred or forfeited, or relinquished (Ky. Stat. § 2132), but wife shall not be endowed in lands which she mortgaged before marriage (though not conveyed) or sold after marriage, or which she joined or sold after marriage to satisfy lien for purchase money of land sold before marriage, but her right to dower shall attach to the surplus of the land if the proceeds of such proceeds have not been disposed of by the husband in his lifetime. (Ky. Stat. § 2133. See Married Women.) Widow shall hold mansion house, yard, garden, stable and barn and orchard, without charge, and be entitled to one third of the rents and profits of any waste real estate until dower is assigned her (§ 2138.) Dower is not barred by sale of husband's land under execution. A woman is of age at twenty-one.

A widow may, within one year from the probate of her husband's will, claim her share of his provisions, and claim her dowerable and distributable share of his estate, if there has been no will. (§ 1404.) Court of equity may extend this period for election. (See Widow's Election.) (9 Bush, 230.)

The surviving husband (whether there be issue of the marriage or not) under Act of 1894, Ky. Stat. § 2132, entitled to an estate for life in one third of his deceased wife's real estate held by her in fee simple unless his claim has been barred by an absolute divorce or forfeited by living in adultery (Ky. Stat. §§ 2133-2144), or otherwise released by an act of the legislature.

Evidence.—See Testimony.

Executions.—Issue from inferior courts and circuit courts in ten days after judgment returnable on a rule day, not under thirty nor over seventy days from the date of judgment, and the estate of the defendant only from the time they are delivered to the sheriff for execution. May issue at once for cause shown, by order of court. From judgments of circuit courts are against personality only. (Ky. Stat. ch. 45, § 1050, etc.) See Execution.

Exemptions.—As to exemptions in favor of widow and children of deceased see ch. 7, Acts of 1912, noted under heading Descent and Distribution. See, also, Exemptions. The following personal property shall be exempt from execution, attaching and garnishment against a person with a family resident in this State: two work benches, one work horse and one yoke of oxen, two plows and gear, one wagon and one set of gear, one or two axes, three hoes, one spade, one shovel, two cows and calves, beds, bedding, furniture sufficient for family use; one loom and spinning-wheel and pair of cards, one or two yards and manufactured cloth manufactured by the family, necessary for family use; carpeting for all family rooms in use; one cooking stove and all cooking utensils, not to exceed twenty-five dollars in value; one table, all books, not to exceed fifty dollars in value; two saddles and their appendages, two bridles, six chairs, or so many as shall not exceed ten dollars in value; one cradle; all the poultry on hand; ten head of sheep, not to exceed two dollars and fifty cents in value for each sheep; all wearing apparel; sufficient provisions, including bread-stuffs and animal food, to sustain the family one year; provender suitable for live stock, if there is any live stock, not to exceed seventy dollars in value; if none, then other property not to exceed seventy dollars in value in lieu thereof; all washing apparatus not to exceed fifty dollars in value; one sewing-machine and all family portraits and pictures. And also on all debts and liabilities created after the 1st day of June, 1866, so much land, including the dwelling-house and appurtenances owned by a debtor, who is a bona fide housekeeper with a family resident in Kentucky, and living on or claiming the land as a homestead, as shall not exceed in value one thousand dollars; and on all liabilities, the libraries of preachers, the professional libraries of lawyers, physicians and surgeons and their instruments, to the amount of five hundred dollars, and tools, not exceeding one hundred dollars in value, of a mechanic. (Ky. Stat. ch. 46, art. 15, sub. 1 and 11, § 1697, etc.)

By ch. 120, Acts of 1910, ninety per cent. of wages or salaries of persons earning seventy-five dollars per month or less is exempt, the remaining ten per cent. being subject to debts. As to persons earning more than seventy-five dollars per month the law exempts sixty-seven dollars and fifty cents per month and holds the balance subject to debts. As to exemption of household goods, etc., from sale for taxes or from taxation, see ch. 96, Acts of 1918.

Garnishment. — Whenever an execution is returned "No property found," the plaintiff may bring suit in equity for a discovery by the defendant under oath of all legal and equitable interests, choses in action, money, and all other property to which heirs are entitled and for subjecting the same to the satisfaction of the judgment; and in such actions persons indebted to the defendant in the execution, or holding money or property in which he has an interest, or holding evidences or securities for same, may also be made defendants. (Code of Practice, § 439.) Plaintiff in such cases may have an attachment against the property of defendant without bond or affidavit. (Ibid. § 441.) The court may enforce the surrender of money, or other property discovered, and may commit to jail any defendant or garnishee failing or refusing to make such surrender until it be done, or the court is satisfied it is out of his power to do so. (Ibid. § 443.) Wages earned out of this State, and payable out of this State, shall be exempt from attachment or garnishment in all cases where the cause of action arose out of this State, and it shall be the duty of garnishee in such cases to plead such exemption unless the defendant is actually served with process. (Acts 1902, p. 52.) As to garnishments before judgment, see Attachments. As to exemptions see further under head of Exemptions.

Holidays. — The following are legal holidays in Kentucky in each year: January 1; February 12 (beginning in 1917 — ch. 107, Acts of 1916); February 22; May 30; July 4; first Monday in September (Labor Day — Act of 1902); October 12 (Columbus Day — Act of 1910); December 25, and all days appointed by the President or by the Governor as days for fasting or thanksgiving.

All such legal holidays shall be treated as Sunday for all purposes regarding maturity, payment, protest, etc., of commercial paper. If any of the days named shall occur on Sunday, the next day thereafter shall be observed as a holiday.

Inheritance Taxes. — By Act of 1906 (Ky. Stat. § 4281a) a collateral inheritance tax was imposed, but this law has been amended by ch. 26, Acts of 1916, so as to provide for a progressive tax on both direct and collateral inheritances. The inheritance tax imposed by the Act of 1916 varies (1) according to relationship, and (2) according to amount of inheritance.

There are five degrees of relationship, designated as classes A, B, C, D, and E, respectively, and taxed, respectively, one, one and one half, three, four, and five per cent. on the basis of primary rates which are applied to inheritances not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars. Class A embraces husband and wife, lineal descendants or ancestors (adopted children having the same rights as lineal issue); class B embraces daughter-in-law and son-in-law, brothers and sisters and their descendants; class C embraces uncles and aunts and their descendants; class D embraces great-uncles and great-aunts and their descendants; class E includes the more remote degrees of relationship, strangers in blood, corporations, etc.

The primary rates of taxation above fixed are augmented according to amount of inheritance, to be thus ascertained. Exemptions are first allowed as follows: ten thousand dollars each to a widow and to each minor child of decedent; to every other person in class A five thousand dollars each; to each person in class B two thousand dollars; to each person in class C fifteen hundred dollars; to each person in class D one thousand dollars; to each person in class E five hundred dollars.

After deducting exemptions, the rate of taxation upon an inheritance up to twenty-five thousand dollars is based upon the primary rates above stated; above twenty-five thousand dollars and up to fifty thousand dollars the rate is one and one half times the primary rate; above fifty thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars the rate is twice the primary rate; above one hundred thousand dollars and up to five hundred thousand dollars the rate is two and one half times the primary rate; above five hundred thousand dollars the rate is three times the primary rate.

Property shall be exempt from the inheritance tax if bequeathed or transferred to any municipal corporation in Kentucky for public purposes; or to institutions of purely public charity; or to institutions of education not used or employed for gain, where the income is devoted solely to the cause of education; or to public libraries; or to any one in trust for any of the purposes above named. (Ch. 26, Acts of 1916.)

act shall fail, and the original Act of 1906 shall remain in force. Except as modified the Act of 1906 stands unrepealed. Act of 1906 construed in Booth v. Com., 130 Ky. 134, 189 Ky. 169, Bosworth v. Batterton, 159 Ky. 771.

§ 56. Acts of 1918, it is provided that when property is transferred in trust or otherwise the rights of the transferees are dependent upon contingencies or conditions affecting the person to whom it may pass, the State shall have the right to collect an inheritance tax based upon that contingency which would give it the highest rate of tax. In the event the contingencies should be so resolved as to call for the lower rate of tax, the State will refund the excess tax collected by it to the persons entitled thereto. The Act of 1918 does not apply to estates of persons dying prior to January 1, 1916, but it applies to estates of all persons dying after the effective date of this act and also to estates of persons dying since January 1, 1916, which have not been distributed under the will. If any part of this Act of 1918 be held unconstitutional, such ruling shall not affect the validity of other parts of the act.

A lien is made a lien upon the property of the decedent subject thereto, and any person, representative or trustee having same in charge is directed to pay the tax which is due at the death of the decedent, and if not paid within eighteen months bears interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the death of the decedent. Delay in payment increases the further risk of twenty per cent penalty if default is discovered and suit brought, and payment, by revenue agent. Hence care should be used in communications on this subject. A discount of five per cent is allowed if the tax is paid within nine months from the death of the decedent. In the event the payment of the tax is obstructed by litigation only the interest accrues thereon. Any foreign executor or administrator transferring property in Kentucky belonging to his decedent and liable to this inheritance tax shall pay the tax due to the sheriff or proper officer at the time of such transfer. Unless such tax is paid, the corporation permitting such transfer shall become liable to pay the tax. A defect in the law as applied to cases where decedent left no real estate in Kentucky (as in Com. v. Cumberland Telephone Co., 146 Ky. 142) has been cured by ch. 56, Acts of 1918, pp. 143-145.

Kentucky corporations are required to furnish a list of all such transfers of stock made during the five years before demand made.

The county court of the county in which the decedent resided at the time of his death, or, if non-resident, in which any of his "property of any nature or kind" was situated, has the jurisdiction to determine all questions relating to the inheritance tax upon his estate. The judge of the county court assesses the tax and certifies it to the sheriff for collection.

The county clerk of each county is directed to keep a public record showing the inheritance tax subject to the tax.

Insolvent Laws and Assignments. — There is no State Insolvency Law in Kentucky. A creditor may charge a debtor from his debts, according to the usual acceptance of such laws. The provisions of the National Bankruptcy Law, and except as thereby affected, the laws of this State are in force.

§ 1910-1917, Ky. Stat., a sale, mortgage, or assignment, or judgment suffered, or any other proceeding resorted to by a debtor, in contemplation of insolvency, and with the design to defraud one or more creditors to the exclusion in whole or in part, of others, shall operate as a lien in favor of all the debtor's property less his statutory exemptions for the benefit of his creditors generally, and a receiver may be appointed to administer such property. However, that suit must be filed attacking the preference and summons issued thereon within six months after the mortgage or transfer is legally lodged for record, or the property sold, or effects transferred. § 1911. This law remains in force notwithstanding the provisions of the Bankruptcy Law and its provisions will be enforced where no attack has been made upon the preference in the bankruptcy court, within the four months allowed by the Bankruptcy Law. (Louisville Dry Goods Co. v. Lanman, 135 Ky. 163.)

Deeds of assignment are acknowledged, filed and recorded as other deeds are. Assignee is appointed by debtor and is removable as other trustees for cause. He must execute sufficient bond with surety approved by the county court and take oath to faithfully perform duty, within seven days from the recording of the deed of assignment. Unless so ordered, the county court shall appoint another assignee, who must qualify within five days thereafter. (Ky. Stat. § 76.) He must return inventory, under oath, within fifteen days to the county court, and make a distribution within nine months from the time of his appointment. The administration of the assigned estate is under the control of the county court and courts of equity, and settlements may be made or compelled in said courts.

To prove claims is given by publication in a newspaper. Claims may be proved in the same manner as against estate of decedent at any time until final distribution, except that an affidavit of the claimant alone is sufficient, whereas claim against a decedent's estate must be based on a writing signed by the decedent or a judgment must be proved by affidavit of a disinterested witness. Property exempt from execution is also exempt from distribution. Dividends should be made as the estate is converted into money. When a preference is attempted and suit is brought to set it aside for the benefit of the creditors generally, in the distribution of such estate, and in the distribution of the estate of a decedent, debts due as guardian, or administrator, or executor, or trustee under a will, duly recorded, have preference. If preference be given by deed, transfer, or mortgage to a creditor, or judgment be suffered, or any act or device done, or resorted to, with the design to prefer, in contemplation of insolvency, a court of equity will set the same aside if suit be brought by another creditor within six months, and same will operate as a general assignment for benefit of creditors. After a voluntary assignment, the assignee may sue to set aside fraudulent preferences. (Ky. Stat. ch. 7, § 74, etc.)

Attachments levied prior to voluntary assignment give priority if sustained by judgment of court, unless there is collusion between parties to give preference.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest is six per cent. Insurance companies lending money on life insurance policies may require payment of premiums thereon without offending usury laws. (Ch. 16, Acts of 1918.) Contracts for a greater rate are void for the excess only. If lender refuse before suit a legal tender of principal with legal interest, he shall pay costs of suit. (Ch. 72, § 2218, etc.) Ten per cent. was legal interest from September 1, 1871, to September 1, 1876. (Gen. Stat. ch. 60, art. II.) Eight per cent. was legal interest from September 1, 1876, to April 1, 1878. (Act March 14, 1878.) Installments of interest may be made payable at a fixed time, and if not then paid, they bear interest just as the principal, if the contract expressly so provides. (90 Ky. 340; 76 S. W. 343.) Vendor's lien notes may bear any agreed rate of interest up to maturity; after maturity they bear only six per cent. (Tousey v. Robinson, 1 Met. 664.)

Judgments bear interest at the rate of six per cent., but same rate as contract when agreement is to pay rate greater than six per cent. until debt is paid, the rate being lawful at the time of contract. (Crosthwaite v. Misener, 13 Bush, 533.) In absence of contract, debts bear interest at the rate of six per cent. after maturity; judgments thereon, same rate.

Interest may be recovered upon open account by proper pleading of the maturity of debt and default of defendant.

Judgments. — Foreign judgments must be proved according to the provisions of act of Congress, by certificate of judge and clerk, etc. (Ky. Stat. § 1635.)

Personal judgments are not liens upon the estate of the defendant.

Attorney's fee of plaintiff, for which stipulation is made in contract, cannot be recovered in the State courts. (100 Ky. 275-295.) A recent case (Oman v. American Nat. Bank, 32 Ky. L. R. 502; 106 S. W. 277) holds that such a contract, if made outside of Kentucky and valid where made, will be enforced in Kentucky, thus upholding the logic of the case, but disregarding 100 Ky. 275.

However, in the federal courts in Kentucky it has been held that a contract made in another State to pay an attorney's fee in the event of non-payment of a note, payable in that State, must be enforced, if valid by the law of the State where made and payable. As tending to support this, see 113 Fed. 27-39.

Licenses. — Commercial travelers are not required to take out a State license; but cities regulate sales by merchants and their agents when power is given by charters. (Ky. Stat. § 4218.) Peddlers and itinerant vendors are required to pay license taxes, also corporations not paying franchise taxes. (Acts of 1906, ch. 22.) A stringent license law regulating transient or temporary merchants was enacted in ch. 91, Acts of 1914, pp. 470-477. See its provisions relating to "fire sales," etc.

Liens. — See Judgments; Mechanics' Liens.

Limitations. — Contract limitations are not enforced except in cases arising under Interstate Commerce Law. For general rule, see 119 Ky. 268, and 150 Ky. 239. Civil actions shall be commenced within the following periods after the cause of action has accrued: —

Actions upon contracts in writing, official bonds, or upon a judgment or decree of any court, must be brought within fifteen years, the time dating as to judgments from rendition or from last issue of execution; also all actions for the recovery of real estate; and no disability whatever can extend the time longer than thirty years. Actions upon contracts, express or implied, not in writing, for trespass on real or personal property, bills of exchange, drafts, or upon accounts between merchants or their agents, or from relief on the ground of fraud, must be brought within five years.

By ch. 132, Acts of 1918, it is provided that the statutory period of limitation upon actions (required to be brought within fifteen years) on any bond or obligation for the payment of money secured by a lien, shall not be prolonged or extended as against purchasers or creditors, unless the promisor and the holder of the lien before fifteen years after maturity of the debt shall enter a memorandum on the margin of the record of the deed or mortgage, attested by the clerk, showing that the debt is extended, and for what time it is extended, and the amount still due thereon.

It was held by Court of Appeals in Southern Nat. Bank v. Schimpeler, 160 Ky. 813, modifying its opinion in same case, 159 Ky. 372, that since enactment in Kentucky of Negotiable Instruments Law in 1904 the limitation upon negotiable promissory notes is fifteen years when not actually negotiated and five years when actually negotiated.

Actions for personal damages, libel or slander, or breach of promise, shall be brought within one year. Actions upon a merchant's account for goods sold and delivered, or any article charged in such store account, shall be commenced within two years from the first day of January next succeeding the respective dates of the delivery of the articles charged. (Ky. Stat. ch. 80, § 2505, etc.)

Actions against sureties barred in seven years. See Sureties.

If debt be barred suit will lie on new promise, or recognition of debt as an existing liability after bar. (18 B. Mon. 649. See also 104 Ky. 810, on rehearing.)

limitation in case of mineral rights severed from land itself, see Acts of 1906, ch. 7 48, Acts of 1912, a limitation of five years is placed upon proceedings to enforce a taxes or to recover possession of property sold for taxes

116, Acts of 1912, a short period of limitation (in some cases ninety days) is pre-the prosecution of proceedings to retrospectively assess property claimed to have tated from assessment.

of Women.—A married woman has power, if her husband abandons her withing sufficient provision for her maintenance, or if he is confined in the penitentiary expired term of more than one year, or when he becomes permanently deranged nd, to sell and convey, under judgment of a court of equity, her real estate. She s contracts in her own name, buy goods, or give notes in settlement of purchases, her property, real and personal. Her estate is not bound for her husband's debts, acquired before or after marriage, by deed, will, or otherwise. Upon the death of and she is entitled to dower of one third of the real estate, which was owned by the in fee simple during the marriage, during her lifetime, unless such dower be barred, or relinquished (see Dower), and to one half of his personalty absolutely after payments. An absolute divorce bars all claim to dower. Likewise, a conviction of bigamy and abandonment of the husband and living in adultery will bar all claim to dower, unless r offense be condoned. Ky. Stat. §§ 1217-2133.) A married woman's real estate rents and profits thereof are not subject to the debts of or executions against the but are liable for her debts or responsibilities, contracted or incurred before mar-after marriage. She has power to rent her real estate and receive the rents. Husband interest in her real estate, or in her personalty, during marriage. She is not permitted e surety or guarantor, except by writing, pledging, or mortgaging her estate. Ky.
66, art. III.)

82, Acts of 1910, married women are placed on same footing as other persons with o execution and acknowledgment of deeds. See Deeds.

Auto Mechanics' Liens. By ch. 75, Acts of 1918, persons or corporations in the business of repairing motor vehicles or furnishing accessories or supplies therefor, shall have on such motor vehicles for the reasonable or agreed charges for repairs, or work done, ories, or supplies furnished therefor, and for storing or keeping such motor vehicles, have the right to retain such vehicles in their possession until such charges are paid.
shall not be lost by the removal of the vehicles from the possession of the person, to the lien, provided such person shall, within six months thereafter, file a state-fice of the county clerk showing the amount of materials furnished or labor peron the car and the cost thereof. The terms of the act are rather confused and contra-n regard to the enforcement of the lien and the extent of time therefor. Provision for selling a motor vehicle left in custody in order to pay charges.

134, Acts of 1918, it is provided that any person fraudulently selling, concealing, ing of any personal property, on which there is at the time a mortgage of record, en given under the statute laws of Kentucky, with intent to prevent the enforce-foreclosure of such lien and sale of the property, shall be fined not less than ten nor a one thousand dollars, or imprisoned for not less than fifteen nor more than ninety both so fined and imprisoned.

General law exists (Ky. Stat. §§ 2463-2478, as amended by ch. 15, Acts of 1912) givanics and material-men, upon conditions therein stated, a lien, dating from the cement of work, upon the improvements and the interest of the contracting owner and for work done and material furnished. Where the work done is by contract ence for term of years, in making additions or improvements to the leased estate, claimant may remove such additions or improvements if he can do so without injury to previous improvements. (Schaefer-Meyer Co. v. Meyer, 19 Ky. L. R.
3, W. 685; Ky. Stat. § 2466.) Sub-contractors and laborers also have liens under ute not to exceed in the aggregate the original contract price agreed on between er and the original contractor. Provision is made for the protection of purchasers tgagees. Provision is also made by ch. 115, Acts of 1912, for protection of owners -holders or other persons in interest by requiring the material-man or mechanic not contracted directly with the owner or his agent to give notice to the owner authorized agent within thirty-five days after the last item of work or material is
d. It may be enforced by a suit in equity by any one holding such lien, and all ay file and prove their claims without pleading. The lien is lost unless a statement of lien is filed in the county clerk's office within six months from the time claimant work or furnishes material and suit brought thereon in twelve months after filing in the county clerk's office. (Ky. Stat. §§ 2469-2470.)

is another general lien law (Ky. Stat. §§ 2492-2495) giving persons who perform e., for construction of public improvements, railroads, and canals a superior lien.
n must be claimed within sixty days after last day of last month in which work or material furnished and such claim made of record in county clerk's office. There er provision (Ky. Stat. §§ 2487-2491, as amended by ch. 49, p. 135, Acts 1914) givn for six months' wages to employees of any mine, turnpike, canal, or other public ment company, or any rolling-mill, foundry, or other manufacturing establishment, erty of which in any wise comes by contract or by operation of law to be distrib-ong creditors. In case of railroads in this situation, a lien for six months' wages is given to employees, and also a lien for supplies or materials furnished within six months is given to those furnishing such supplies or materials. Old law, which gave liens to persons furnishing supplies or materials to manufactories, is changed by Act of 1914.

Mortgages — Are executed and acknowledged in the same manner as deeds. Except as to purchasers with notice, they must be acknowledged and recorded, as provided by law; else they are effectual only between the parties. (Acts of 1916, ch. 14.) An instrument in form an absolute conveyance, if intended merely as a security for debt, will be held to be a mortgage; and this may be shown by parol, without any allegation of fraud or mistake. (See Hobbs v. Rowland, 136 Ky. 197; Liebel v. Tandy, 146 Ky. 102; Vaughn v. Smith, 148 Ky. 531.) All mortgages of any interest in real estate equal to or greater than a life estate must plainly specify and refer to the next immediate source from which the grantor derived title, and in referring to former conveyance must state the office, book, and page when recorded and the date thereof, e. g. (following the description) "being the same property conveyed to the grantor by A. B. by deed dated January 1, 1900, and recorded in the office of the clerk of the Jefferson County Court in Deed Book 500, page 100." (Ky. Stat. § 495, as amended by Act of 1904.) See, also, Deeds for provisions of Revenue Act of 1906, as to placing on record names of all holders of liens so that debts secured thereby may be listed for taxation. A mortgage recording tax of twenty cents per one hundred dollars of debt secured by the mortgage is required by ch. 11, Acts of 1917. Allowance is made for proportion of mortgaged property outside the State. In case of mortgages to a trustee to secure bonds to be thereafter issued, provision is made for payment of tax upon basis of bonds as they are issued, and heavy penalties are imposed upon the mortgagor and the trustee for issuing or certifying bonds without paying the tax. Mortgages can be enforced and foreclosed only by a decree of a court of equity. They may be discharged by entry by mortgagee upon the margin of deed book in which recorded of satisfaction and release of lien, or by reconveyance of property. The wife must join in the mortgage to bar dower, and homestead should be waived. Barred in fifteen years, unless extended by partial payments. (106 Ky. 803, but see in this connection ch. 132, Acts of 1918, noted under Limitations, supra.) Failure to list for taxation any note or bond secured by any mortgage and subject to taxation may be pleaded as a complete defense to any action thereon, but this defense is taken away by payment of the required tax with penalties and interest. (Acts of 1917, ch. 11.) See Chatt. Mortgages.

Non-residents. — Corporations, partnerships, and joint-stock associations, composed of non-residents and engaged in business under a law of Kentucky requiring them to give bond for performance of contracts must designate agents to receive service of process in actions upon such bonds. (Ky. Stat. § 3720d.)

Notaries Public — Are appointed by the Governor, for a term of four years upon written indorsement by certain designated officials. No confirmation by Senate required (ch. 11, Acts of 1916). Their jurisdiction is limited to the county in which they reside. They must qualify by taking an oath of office and giving bond with good surety, to be approved by the county court. Their bond and commission must be recorded in the county clerk's office. Their official character is certified by the county clerk of the county. They have important powers and responsibilities with respect to protest of commercial paper. They may administer oaths and take acknowledgments of deeds, mortgages, etc. Instruments acknowledged out of State to be recorded must be under seal, but certificates on affidavits made in the State, for use within the State, need not be certified under seal. The certificate must state the date of the expiration of the maker's commission, and ought to show venue of the act certified. Failure to state date of expiration of commission is not fatal to the instrument or the certificate. (22 Ky. L. R. 1169; 60 S. W. 186.) Nor does the failure in the certificate to show venue invalidate it. (113 Fed. 443.)

A woman may be appointed and act as notary public in Kentucky. (22 Ky. L. R. 1169; 60 S. W. 186.)

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — By act approved March 24, 1904, and effective June 13, 1904, as to negotiable instruments, thereafter executed (Acts of 1904, ch. 102, pp. 213-252), what is known as the "Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law" was adopted in Kentucky. It has been construed by the Court of Appeals (Alexander v. Haselrigg, 97 S. W. 353) to provide a complete system of laws on the subject, excepting in those special cases where the instrument violates some declared policy of the general law, e. g. in case of the gaming statutes. (See also 143 Ky. 781; 159 Ky. 372.)

The principal point of difference between the Kentucky act and the acts adopted by other States is to be found in section 19 of the Kentucky act, which provides as follows: —

"The signature of any party may be made by an agent duly authorized in writing." The words "in writing" are added to the act as passed in other States.

This new law, by its terms, applies only to notes, etc., payable in money. As to obligations payable in property other than money, Ky. Stat. § 474, is still in force, and it provides as follows: —

"All bonds, bills, or notes for money or property shall be assignable so as to vest the right of action in the assignee; but, except in case of bills of exchange, not to impair the right to any defense, discount, or offset that the defendant has and might have used against the original obligee, or any intermediate assignor before notice of the assignment." (§ 474.)

Ky. Stat. § 4224, in force for many years past and reenacted, Acts of 1906, ch. 22, p. 193, provides that all peddlers' notes shall have the words "Peddler's Note" written or printed face, and that all defenses that would be good as against the original payee shall be good against the holder, even though the note be placed on the footing of a bill of exchange.

This statute allows a defense to a negotiable note. (See 97 S. W. 353.)

Provisions of the Negotiable Instruments Law are too long for review in an article of this character, and, moreover they are generally understood in the different States.

Partnerships. — Individuals are forbidden by ch. 83, Acts 1906 (§ 199b, Ky Stat.) to do business under an assumed or fictitious name without causing to be recorded in the clerk's office of the county a statement showing names and post-office addresses of the partners. Contracts made in violation of this law are void. (Hunter v. Big Four Auto Co., 178 Ky. 100, 17 S. W. 2d 100.)

Partnerships composed of non-residents engaged in business in Kentucky under a law of this State requiring them to give bonds for performance of their contracts must designate a resident agent. (Ky Stat. § 3720d.) See Non-residents.

Law. — Law is practiced in Kentucky under the "Code of Practice," which first went into effect July 1, 1854. The New Code went into effect January 1, 1877.

Claims. — Parties sending claims to Kentucky for suit should furnish full name of the party in whose name suit is to be instituted. If a partnership, full name of each member of the firm should be furnished. If an open account, it should be so stated.

No proof is required against solvent debtors before suit. See, also, Actions, and Estates of Decedents.

Deeds. — No deed conveying any title to or interest in land, for a longer time than life, or any agreement in consideration of marriage, nor deed of trust or mortgage, shall be valid against a purchaser for a valuable consideration without notice, or any creditor of the grantor, unless such deed shall be acknowledged or proved according to law and lodged for record.

(§§ 494-496, Wicks v. McConnell, 102 Ky. 434.) By ch. 41, Acts 1916, amending § 496, it is provided that the term "creditors," as used above, shall include all persons who have acquired liens.

Now made a recordable instrument (ch. 89, Acts 1910), and likewise an agreement for the sale of farm products (ch. 7, Acts 1910), so that a record of same is made notice to the world.

Deeds, mortgages, and other instruments concerning land required by law to be recorded. — Deeds must plainly specify and refer to the next immediate source from which the grantor acquired title, and in referring to former conveyances must state the office, book, and page where recorded and the date thereof, e. g., (following the description) "being the same property conveyed to the grantor by A. B. by deed dated January 1, 1900, and recorded in the clerk of the Jefferson County Court in Deed Book 500, p. 100" (Ky Stat. § 495, amended by Act of 1904). Otherwise the instrument cannot be legally recorded.

The county clerk is the recorder of deeds.

Copies of all instruments legally recorded are prima facie evidence in all courts of this State.

Recording instruments creating or retaining lien or assigning same, see Deeds.

Recording names of persons doing business under assumed name, see Acts of 1906.

Redemption. — Real estate sold under execution or decree for less than two thirds of its appraised value may be redeemed in twelve months by the payment to purchaser of the purchase money and ten per cent. per annum interest thereon. (§§ 1684, 2362.) In certain decretal sales for taxes and special assessments there is an absolute right of redemption for two years, regardless of amount brought at the sale.

Claims. — See Claim and Delivery of Personal Property.

Books, Judicial. — Hughes, 1 vol.; Hardin, 1 vol.; Bibb, 4 vols.; A. K. Marshall, 3 vols.; Bell, 6 vols.; T. B. Monroe, 7 vols.; J. J. Marshall, 7 vols.; Dana, 9 vols.; Ben. L. Harrison, 10 vols.; Metcalf, 4 vols.; Duvall, 2 vols.; Bush, 14 vols.; 78 to 184 Kentucky.

Statutes. — The General Statutes went into effect December 1, 1873. Kentucky Statutes, 1894, Second edition, 1899. Third edition, 1903, adopted as "official" by Act of 1904, ch. 4, p. 4. Fourth edition, 1909. Fifth edition, 1915. Latest acts of legislature took effect June 10, or 20, 1918.

— Attention is called to ch. 147, Acts of 1918, which prohibits, under severe penalties, fraudulent advertising with intent to sell goods, wares, merchandise, or stocks or bonds, or property of any description, and also to stringent law regulating and licensing "peddlers and transient merchants" conducting "fire sales," etc. Ch. 91, Acts of 1914, relating to Licenses.

Constitutionality. — This law (Ky. Stat. ch. 85a) has been held constitutional (Dwiggins v. Co. v. Patterson, 160 Ky. 278). See also as to Connecticut law Lemicux v. State, 11 U. S. 489.

Summons. — Unless otherwise provided, summons is served by delivery, or, if acceptance is refused, by offering to deliver a copy of it to the person to be summoned. (Civil Code, § 10.)

Time for answer. — In courts having continuous session, the defendant has twenty days from service of summons in the county (thirty days if out of the county), within which to plead, answer, or demur.

In circuit courts having terms, the defendant must plead, answer, or demur at the first day which does not come within ten days from date of service of summons in the county (or twenty days if out of the county), or at the first day of the first term of court.

court which does not begin within the same period of time after service of summons. The first Monday in each month is rule day unless the circuit court be in session. Common law actions stand for trial at first term of court at which answer is due, and default judgments may be then taken. Equity actions are called on third day of term for default judgments.

Summons must be served ten days before judgment in justices' courts in actions involving over fifty dollars; five days in other actions.

Service on non-residents is constructive, by warning order to defendant to appear and defend within sixty days, and an attorney is appointed to notify them of the suit. Bond to non-residents is required before judgment subjecting their property, and they may appear and make defense within five years from judgment.

Stay of Execution. — An execution may be replevied for three months, at any time before sale, by the defendant giving to the officer an obligation to the plaintiff, with good security for the amount thereof, including interest, costs, and half commissions. If replevin bond is not paid at maturity, execution may issue against the estate of defendant and surety, upon which no security can be taken, and sale must be for cash. No other stay of execution is provided for by law. Similar bond to stay execution of judgment may be executed in clerk's office, before execution issues, for debt, interest, and costs. (§§ 1667, 1669.)

Supplementary Proceedings. — See Garnishment.

Sureties. — On bonds in judicial proceedings, sureties must have property in Kentucky, subject to execution, worth double the amount of estate involved. At a sale of real estate under § 493, Civil Code, two sureties are required. However, under § 723, Ky. Stat., a guaranty or surety company duly licensed or qualified to do business in the State, under the laws governing insurance companies, is authorized to act as sole surety in all cases where an official bond or a bond in judicial proceedings is required.

By recent act (ch. 49, p. 125, Acts of 1908) all public or judicial or fiducial or administrative bonds shall be limited in a definite penal sum as to the surety, this sum to be fixed by the court or officer approving the bond.

Sureties in judgments, bonds, and obligations generally are released under a seven years' statute of limitations, and this period is not prolonged by payments made. (Ky. Stat. §§ 2548-2553; 56 S. W. 722.)

Tax Law. — An elaborate revision of the tax laws of the State was made at the special session of 1917; classifying property for taxation; providing for a State Tax Commission with larger powers of supervision and correction; fixing rates of taxation on various classes of property, etc. Reference is made to the Session Acts for particulars too numerous for mention here. Taxes are due on the 1st of March annually, unless otherwise provided. Assessments are made by the State and counties as of July 1 in each year (and at a different time by municipalities) for taxes for the following year. (Ch. 11, Acts of 1918.) Sheriff is collector of State, county, and school district taxes unless disqualified for some reason. Municipalities choose their own tax collectors.

Provision is made for the retrospective assessment of omitted property by certain designated officers, including a revenue agent, authorized to proceed in county courts. Penalty of twenty per cent. added to taxes in case of omission to list before suit.

All taxes on real estate are a lien thereon (Ky. Stat. § 4021) from date of assessment. By ch. 162, Acts of 1918, the holder of the legal title, the holder of the equitable title, and the claimant or bailee in possession of property on July 1 shall all be responsible for the taxes for the ensuing year, though sale may be made before year expires.

Any person or persons failing to pay taxes by the first day of December in the year following the assessment shall pay six per cent. additional on the unpaid tax, and heavy penalties are provided for further delays. See new Revenue Law, ch. 22, Acts of 1906, as amended by ch. 35, p. 92, Acts of 1908.

The sheriff may levy on personal property and sell same for taxes. If there be no personal property, and taxes be not paid, sheriff may levy on real estate of delinquent taxpayer and sell same for taxes and costs. If no other purchaser, State may purchase. One may redeem within two years by paying purchase money with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, fifteen per cent. damages, and costs. One year after removal of disability given to person under disability. But committee of persons of unsound mind and married women have five years after notice of sale to redeem, when sale has been made to purchaser other than State. See Corporations for reports for taxes paid by corporations. For inheritance tax, see Descent and Distribution of Property.

Testimony. — The following persons are incompetent to testify: —

1. Persons found by the court to be unable to understand the facts concerning which their testimony is offered. (Civil Code, § 602.)

2. Neither husband nor wife shall testify concerning any communication between them during marriage, nor shall either of them testify against the other; nor shall either of them testify for the other, except in an action for lost baggage, or its value, against a common carrier, an innkeeper, or a wrongdoer, and in such action either or both of them may testify. To this general rule there are the following exceptions: (a) In actions which might have been brought by or against the wife if she had been unmarried, either the husband or wife may testify, but both of them cannot testify. (b) When a husband or wife is acting as agent for his or her consort, either of them may testify as to any matter connected with such agency. (c) In an action by the wife for divorce on ground of cruel treatment or injury either husband or wife or both of them may testify. (Ch. 104, Acts of 1912.)

person shall testify for himself in chief after introducing or taking other testimony in chief.

party in interest cannot testify for himself concerning any verbal statement of, or transaction with, or any act done or omitted to be done by, an infant under fourteen years of age, or by one who is of unsound mind, or dead, when the testimony is offered to prove the truth of such statement or was present when such transaction took place, or such act was done or omitted.

Exceptions to this rule are as follows: (a) Where the infant or his guardian shall have testified against such person with reference to such statement, transaction, or act. (b) Where the person of unsound mind shall, when of sound mind, have testified against such person with reference thereto. (c) Where the decedent or some representative shall have testified against such person in reference thereto. (d) Where an agent of the decedent or person of unsound mind with reference to such act or transaction shall have testified in regard thereto, or shall be living when such person offers to testify for himself with reference thereto. (e) If the right of a person to testify be founded upon the fact that adverse testimony has been given by one who is then dead or of unsound mind, his testimony shall be admissible to the facts or transactions to which the adverse testimony related. (f) A person may testify for himself as to the correctness of original entries in certain cases, provided he produces the book containing the original entries, or make it subject to the order of the court for the purposes of the action, if required to do so by the adverse party.

Assignment of a claim does not render competent a person who would otherwise be incompetent to testify.

Party may be examined as if under cross-examination, at the instance of the adverse party, if his testimony is not concluded by his testimony.

Provisions above stated do not apply to affidavits for provisional remedies, or to affidavits of claims against estate, nor do they affect the competency of witnesses to introduce evidence required to be executed in the presence of witnesses. (Civil Code, § 607, ch. 1, § 608, amendment to Civil Code, § 606.)

Other objections go to the credibility and not to the competency of witnesses. (Civil Code, § 607.)

In all criminal and penal prosecutions, the defendant may testify in his own behalf, and his failure to do so shall not be commented upon, or create any presumption against him. He must testify before introducing other witnesses. In indictments for conspiracy the defendant may testify in his own behalf. (Ky. Stat. §§ 1643, 1648.)

Deeds — As real estate security for loans, with power of sale, can be enforced by the grantor joining in the conveyance to purchaser, or by decree of court of equity. (Ky. Stat. § 2356.)

In case of assignment for the benefit of creditors generally, the rule is different, and the assignee has power to pass title to land as fully as the assignor could have had at the date of the assignment. (Ky. Stat. § 87, as amended by Act of 1898.) As to assignment of trust to personalty, see Chattel Mortgages.

Pools and Conspiracies. — In ch. 17, Acts of 1916, there is an elaborate act for the regulation of pools, trusts, conspiracies, and combinations in restraint of trade, defining and prescribing penalties and methods for the infliction thereof. This act is much more extensive than any heretofore in this country. It contains provisions for the ouster of corporations violating the act, or heavy fines or imprisonment for officers, stockholders, or other persons interested who shall aid or assist corporations in violating the act. There is also a provision for "interlocking stockholders" in competing corporations.

It is intended to clear up the confusion resulting from the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the International Harvester Case, 234 U. S. 216, and the Tobacco Case, 234 U. S. 634, which held the former law in Kentucky to be unconstitutional. Persons interested are urged to consult the terms of the act itself.

— Every person of sound mind, not being under twenty-one years of age, may dispose of his real or personal estate to which he may be entitled at his death, may bequeath part of his or her estate to charity, and may will all estate away with the limitations in the last paragraph herein. Children may be disinherited. An unmarried woman may by will dispose of her estate, if of sound mind and twenty-one years of age. (Ky. Stat. § 2147.)

A will shall be valid unless it is in writing, with the name of the testator subscribed thereon by himself or by some other person in his presence and by his direction, moreover, the will shall be signed wholly by the testator, the subscription shall be made and the will acknowledged in the presence of at least two credible witnesses, who shall subscribe their names to the will in the presence of the testator. It is not absolutely required that both witnesses be present at the same time. The Court of Appeals has not passed upon the question whether or not a typewritten will is a compliance with the statute, but such wills are not probated in the inferior courts.

court which does not begin within the same period of time after service of summons. The first Monday in each month is rule day unless the circuit court be in session. Stay of Execution. — An execution may be replevied for three months, at any time before sale, by the defendant giving to the officer an obligation to the plaintiff, with good security for the amount thereof, including interest, costs, and half commissions. If replevin bond is not paid at maturity, execution may issue against the estate of defendant and surety, upon which no security can be taken, and sale must be for cash. No other stay of execution is provided for by law. Similar bond to stay execution of judgment may be executed in clerk's office, before execution issues, for debt, interest, and costs. (§§ 1667, 1669.)

Supplementary Proceedings. — See Garnishment.

Sureties. — On bonds in judicial proceedings, sureties must have property in Kentucky, subject to execution, worth double the amount of estate involved. By recent act (ch. 49, p. 125, Acts of 1908) all public or judicial or fiducial or administrative bonds shall be limited in a definite penal sum as to the surety, this sum to be fixed by the court or officer approving the bond.

Sureties in judgments, bonds, and obligations generally are released under a seven years' statute of limitations, and this period is not prolonged by payments made. (Ky. Stat. §§ 2548-2553; 56 S. W. 722.)

Tax Law. — An elaborate revision of the tax laws of the State was made at the special session of 1917; classifying property for taxation; providing for a State Tax Commission with larger powers of supervision and correction; fixing rates of taxation on various classes of property, etc. Reference is made to the Session Acts for particulars too numerous for mention here. Any person or persons failing to pay taxes by the first day of December in the year following the assessment shall pay six per cent. additional on the unpaid tax, and heavy penalties are provided for further delays. See new Revenue Law, ch. 22, Acts of 1906, as amended by ch. 35, p. 92, Acts of 1908.

The sheriff may levy on personal property and sell same for taxes. If there be no personal property, and taxes be not paid, sheriff may levy on real estate of delinquent taxpayer and sell same for taxes and costs. If no other purchaser, State may purchase. One may redeem within two years by paying purchase money with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, fifteen per cent. damages, and costs. One year after removal of disability given to person under disability. But committee of persons of unsound mind and married women have five years after notice of sale to redeem, when sale has been made to purchaser other than State. See Corporations for reports for taxes paid by corporations. For inheritance tax, see Descent and Distribution of Property.

Testimony. — The following persons are incompetent to testify: —

1. Persons found by the court to be unable to understand the facts concerning which their testimony is offered. (Civil Code, § 602.)

2. Neither husband nor wife shall testify concerning any communication between them during marriage, nor shall either of them testify against the other; nor shall either of them testify for the other, except in an action for lost baggage, or its value, against a common carrier, an innkeeper, or a wrongdoer, and in such action either or both of them may testify. To this general rule there are the following exceptions: (a) In actions which might have been brought by or against the wife if she had been unmarried, either the husband or wife may testify, but both of them cannot testify. (b) When a husband or wife is acting as agent for his or her consort, either of them may testify as to any matter connected with such agency. (c) In an action by the wife for divorce on ground of cruel treatment or injury either husband or wife or both of them may testify. (Ch. 104, Acts of 1912.)

person shall testify for himself in chief after introducing or taking other testimony in chief.

party in interest cannot testify for himself concerning any verbal statement of, or transaction with, or any act done or omitted to be done by, an infant under fourteen years of age, or by one who is of unsound mind, or dead, when the testimony is offered to prove the truth of such statement or transaction (see I. C. R. R. Co. v. Martin, 110 S. W. 815), except for the purpose and to the extent of affecting one who is living, and who, when over fourteen years of age and of sound mind, heard such statement or was present when such transaction took place, or such act was done or omitted.

Exceptions to this rule are as follows: (a) Where the infant or his guardian shall have testified against such person with reference to such statement, transaction, or act. (b) Where the person of unsound mind shall, when of sound mind, have testified against such person with reference thereto. (c) Where the decedent or some representative shall have testified against such person in reference thereto. (d) Where an agent of the decedent or person of unsound mind with reference to such act or transaction shall have testified in regard thereto, or shall be living when such person offers to testify for himself with reference thereto.

(e) If the right of a person to testify be founded upon the fact that adverse testimony has been given by one who is then dead or of unsound mind, his testimony shall be limited to the facts or transactions to which the adverse testimony related. (f) A person may testify for himself as to the correctness of original entries in certain cases, provided he can produce the book containing the original entries, or make it subject to the order of the court for the purposes of the action, if required to do so by the adverse party.

The admission of a claim does not render competent a person who would otherwise be incompetent to testify.

A party may be examined as if under cross-examination, at the instance of the adverse party, who is not concluded by his testimony.

The provisions above stated do not apply to affidavits for provisional remedies, or to the proof of claims against estate, nor do they affect the competency of witnesses to testify in cases required to be executed in the presence of witnesses. (Civil Code, § 607, ch. 1, 1898, amendment to Civil Code, § 606.)

Other objections go to the credibility and not to the competency of witnesses. (Civil Code, § 607.)

In all criminal and penal prosecutions, the defendant may testify in his own behalf, and failure to do so shall not be commented upon, or create any presumption against him. He must testify before introducing other witnesses. In indictments for conspiracy the defendant may testify in his own behalf. (Ky. Stat. §§ 1645, 1648.)

Deeds — As real estate security for loans, with power of sale, can be enforced by the grantor joining in the conveyance to purchaser, or by decree of court of equity. (Ky. Stat. § 2356.)

In case of assignment for the benefit of creditors generally, the rule is different, and the assignee has power to pass title to land as fully as the assignor could have done at the date of the assignment. (Ky. Stat. § 87, as amended by Act of 1898.) As to assignment of trust to personalty, see Chattel Mortgages.

Pools and Conspiracies. — In ch. 17, Acts of 1916, there is an elaborate act for the regulation of pools, trusts, conspiracies, and combinations in restraint of trade, defining and prescribing penalties and methods for the infliction thereof. This act is much more complete than any heretofore. It contains provisions for the ouster of corporations violating the act, or heavy fines or imprisonment for officers, stockholders, or other persons interested who shall aid or assist corporations in violating the act. There is also a provision for "interlocking stockholders" in competing corporations.

It is intended to clear up the confusion resulting from the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the International Harvester Case, 234 U. S. 216, and the Tobacco Case, 234 U. S. 634, which held the former law in Kentucky to be unconstitutional. Persons interested are urged to consult the terms of the act itself.

— Every person of sound mind, not being under twenty-one years of age, may dispose of his real or personal estate to which he may be entitled at his death, may give part of his or her estate to charity, and may will all estate away with the limitations in the last paragraph herein. Children may be disinherited.

A married woman may by will dispose of her estate, if of sound mind and twenty-one years of age. (Ky. Stat. § 2147.)

All wills shall be valid unless it is in writing, with the name of the testator subscribed by himself or by some other person in his presence and by his direction, moreover, if written wholly by the testator, the subscription shall be made and the will acknowledged in the presence of at least two credible witnesses, who shall subscribe their names to the will in the presence of the testator. It is not absolutely required that both witnesses be present at the same time. The Court of Appeals has not passed upon the question whether or not a typewritten will is a compliance with the statute, but such wills are not probated in the inferior courts.

Personal estate of parties domiciled out of the State may be disposed of by will executed according to the law of the State in which the testator is domiciled.

No person shall, on account of being an executor of a will, be incompetent as a witness for or against it. If, however, a legatee or devisee is a witness to the will, and it cannot be established without his testimony in court, he may be called to testify, but must in that event surrender any advantage accruing to him under the will. The same rule applies as to husband or wife of a legatee or devisee. (Ky. Stat. § 4836.)

Wills shall be proved before, and admitted to record by, the county court of the county of the testator's residence; if he had no known place of residence in this State, and land is devised, then in the county where the land lies; if no land is devised, then in the county where he died or that wherein his estate or the greater part thereof shall be, or where there may be any debt or demand owing to him. When a will of a non-resident of this State, relating to estate in Kentucky, has been proved in the State of the testator's domicile, an authenticated copy and certificate of probate may be offered for probate in this State as a will of personalty; and if so executed as to be a valid will of land in this State, then such copy may be admitted to probate as a will of real estate. (Ky. Stat. § 4854.) Wills are proved before the county court and recorded and deposited in the office of the clerk of the county court.

A wife may renounce her husband's will, as already pointed out. In like manner, a husband may renounce his wife's will. (Brand v. Brand, 109 Ky. 721.)

LOUISIANA LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Merrick, Gonser & Schwarz, of New Orleans.

Next legislature convenes May, 1920.

Acknowledgments. — See Affidavits; Deeds.

Actions. — Actions are commenced by petition sworn to, stating in numbered paragraphs the nature of the action and asking for citation and relief, addressed to court having jurisdiction. The petition must also set forth residence and names of both plaintiff and defendant. Citation by clerk of court, under seal, is served by sheriff. Ten days after service allowed for answer or compliance with demand. One additional day allowed for every additional ten miles if defendant's residence is distant from court-house. The answer must deny under oath the allegations of plaintiff's petition. In district courts certified copy of petition is served with citation. Service by publication is not allowed, except in proceedings for summary judgment. When court is in session default can be entered if no appearance within delay provided. After two judicial days thereafter, if still no appearance, judgment may be entered by default. All dilatory exceptions must be filed before judgment by default. Judgments by default on accounts can be confirmed by affidavits. In New Orleans claims not exceeding $100 exclusive of interest go to city court, where default can be taken three days after service of citation, judgment being confirmed the same day.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Successions.

Affidavits. — Or acknowledgments may be taken before any judge, justice of the peace, notary or commissioner for Louisiana, or other officer authorized to administer oaths. If taken before a notary or commissioner for Louisiana and certified under hand and official seal of said officer, no further proof of the signature, seal, and official character of the officer necessary. (Act 140 of 1898.) If before other officer, capacity, etc., must be proved by secretary of state. All acknowledgments must be witnessed by two witnesses of legal age of fourteen years. The officer cannot act as one of the witnesses. This is not the case for affidavits. It is considered better practice for the witnesses to sign both the petition itself and the acknowledgment. Usual form of affidavit, not statutory.

STATE OF AMERICA. }

I, _____, of _____, do hereby certify that _____, of _____, the undersigned authority, personally came and appeared before me, to me personally known, who being duly sworn, deposes and says that _____, of _____, did on this _____ day of _____, 19____, execute and subscribe before me this _____ day of _____, 19____, the foregoing instrument, the contents of which are set forth in the foregoing document, and that the same is a true and correct copy of the original thereof.

(Signature)

Designate character of officer taking affidavit.

Form of acknowledgment, not statutory: —

STATE OF AMERICA. }

I, _____, of _____, do hereby certify that _____, of _____, the undersigned authority, personally came and appeared before me, to me personally known, who signed the foregoing document before me and in the presence of the undersigned legal witnesses, and acknowledged in the presence of said witnesses that he executed the above and foregoing as his voluntary act and deed, and for the uses and purposes therein set forth.

Witness my hand and seal of office this _____ day of _____, 19____.

(Signature.)

Designate character of officer taking acknowledgment.

(Signatures of same two witnesses.)

Acknowledgments in foreign countries can be certified before a minister, chargé de affaires, consul-general, vice-consul, or commercial agent. The officer taking the affidavits and acknowledgments should satisfy himself as to the identity of the person appearing before him. Officials should always attach their seals. Individuals need neither seal nor scroll. It is better to have the acknowledgment pasted on the instrument, if arranged so as to be legible therefrom, but such practice is deprecated.

Allens. — No restrictions upon them.

Appeals. — Appeals are either suspensive or devolutive. The first suspends execution; latter does not. Suspensive from district court must be applied for within ten days with bond exceeding by one half amount of judgment and interest, if for specific sum. If judgment decrees delivery of perishable object, security to an amount exceeding by one half estimated value thereof. If judgment for real estate or object not perishable, security to an amount exceeding by one half estimated value of the revenue to be derived therefrom pending the suit, and such further security as judge may determine for injury or deterioration. In devolutive appeal, bond for costs only, and fixed by judge. See, further, Courts. (See Act 229 of 1910 for contents of transcript.)

Arrest. — See Conservatory Writs.

Assignments of Future Salaries. — Not binding upon employer unless he consents thereto in writing.

Assignments. — State law superseded by the United States Bankruptcy Law.

Attachment. — See Conservatory Writs.

Bills of Lading. — Uniform Bill of Lading Law. (Act 94 of 1912.)

Bonds. — Act 112 of 1916 provides that all bonds required by law or by order of court may be made in favor of the clerk of court. Surety must swear that he is solvent to the extent of sum named in bond over and above his liabilities. Party furnishing bond must take oath that he is informed and believes that such is the case.

Chattel Mortgages. — Under Act 198 of 1918, any kind of movable property may be mortgaged for debts, for money loaned, future advances, or to guarantee contractual obligations. To affect third persons without notice, the act of mortgage must be passed before a notary public and two witnesses and must be recorded in parish where property is situated and in parish where mortgagor resides. Movables so mortgaged cannot be transferred from one parish in State to another without written consent of mortgagee. See Liens or Privileges; also Pledge and Mortgages.

Claims against Estates. — See Successions.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — Conditional sales of movable property are lawful, but do not affect innocent third persons. Act 119 of 1918 makes lawful a conditional sale of tank cars providing for retaking of car by conditional vendor without right of redemption being given to vendee, all payments to such date of retaking being forfeited. Possession of a movable is a presumption of ownership, and if purchased from one in possession, in good faith, it carries title, notwithstanding possession may have been under conditional agreement or even fraudulent. The landlord has privilege for rent on nearly all property placed in building, notwithstanding it belongs to third persons. If the contract is a Louisiana contract, or one to take effect in Louisiana, the law grants a privilege for unpaid price. See Liens or Privileges. No special statute. Louisiana courts do not sustain sales where vendor retains the title in himself.

Conservatory Writs. — Conservatory writs are provisional orders obtained in certain cases, provided by law, in order to give effect to the suit brought or to be brought. They are: arrest of the debtor, attachment in hands of third persons, sequestration, provisional seizure, and injunction.

Arrest of Debtor. (Seldom used.) — Any creditor whose debtor is about to leave the State, even for a limited time, without leaving in it sufficient property to satisfy the judgment which he expects to obtain in the suit he intends to bring against him, may have the person of such debtor arrested and confined until he shall give sufficient security that he will not depart from the State without the leave of the court. Can be used for liquidated or unliquidated debt. Cannot be used against citizens of another State unless such debtor absconded from his own State. Creditor using this writ must present petition accompanied by oath (C. P. art. 214) and bond exceeding by one half amount claimed, with good surety residing in parish where suit is brought.

Attachment. — Writs of attachment can be issued in following cases: 1. When debtor is about leaving permanently the State, without there being a possibility in the ordinary course of judicial proceedings of obtaining or executing judgment against him previous to his departure, or when such debtor has already left the State permanently. 2. When such debtor resides out of the State. 3. When he conceals himself to avoid being cited and forced to answer to the suit intended to be brought against him. 4. When he has mortgaged, assigned, or disposed of, or is about to mortgage, assign, or dispose of, his property, rights, or credits, or some part thereof, with intent to defraud his creditors or give an unfair preference to some of them. 5. When he has converted, or is about to convert, his property into money or evidences of debt, with intent to place it beyond the reach of his creditors.

In attachments of non-resident's property, judgment extends to property seized only, and there can be no personal judgment rendered. A creditor may in like manner obtain a seizure against all species of property belonging to the debtor, real or personal, credits, rights of action, etc., whether same be in debtor's possession or in that of third persons. Petition for attachment must be accompanied by affidavit (art. 243, C. P.), and bond for amount equal to that claimed, including costs and interest, with surety residing in parish where writ issued. Provided that in cases where the attachment is prayed for upon the sole ground that the defendant resides out of the State, the bond primarily shall not exceed the of the demand and in no event exceed the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, the right reserved to the court issuing the writ on proper showing to increase bond in excess amount of debt. (Act 119 of 1916.) If creditor is absent, affidavit may be by agent or attorney in fact or attorney at law. In such cases agent or attorney can on best of his knowledge, information, and belief. Sureties need not own real estate. Plaintiff can issue whether debt due or not due. Attaching creditors are paid in the date of service of their attachments. Non-residents are entitled to obtain writs of attachment. Defendant can obtain damages for illegal issuance of writ. Writ can issue on or holidays. If creditor believes a third person has money or property belonging to defendant, or is indebted to him, or has rights or credits belonging to him or under his control, such creditor may issue interrogatories to such third person and seize such property, if garnishee answers that he has nothing belonging to debtor, creditor may by proper proceedings traverse said answers and prove their falsity. Defendant may have property released by giving sheriff bond for sum exceeding by one half the value of the property attached, with surety residing at place where action is brought.

Sequestration.—Writ of sequestration will issue: 1. When one, who had possessed for more than one year, has been evicted through violence, and sues to be restored to his possession. 2. When one sues for the possession of movable property, and fears that the party in possession may send the property in dispute out of the jurisdiction of the court during the pendency of the suit. 3. When one claims the ownership or the possession of real property, and has good ground to apprehend that the defendant may make use of his possession to dilapidate or to waste the fruits or revenues produced by such property, or convert them to his own use. 4. When a woman sues for a separation from bed and board, or for a separation of property from her husband, and has reason to apprehend that he will waste her dotal property, or waste the fruits or revenues produced by the same, during the pendency of the action. 5. When one has petitioned for a stay of proceedings and a judgment against him, and his creditors fear that he may avail himself of such stay of proceedings to place the whole or a part of his property out of their reach. 6. A creditor of a mortgagor shall have the power of sequestering the mortgaged property, when he apprehends that it will be removed out of the State before he can have the benefit of his mortgage, and will make oath of the facts which induced his apprehension. 7. The plaintiff may obtain a sequestration in all cases where he has a lien or privilege on property, upon complying with the requisites provided by law. 8. A sequestration may be ordered during the pendency of the suit, when one party fears that the other will conceal, part with, or dispose of the property in his possession, during the pendency of the suit, upon complying with the requisites of the law. Petition must be accompanied by affidavit (art. 276, C. P.) and bond for the sum as the court shall fix, with surety residing in parish where writ issues. Defendant may release on furnishing sheriff bond with surety residing in parish where writ issues for such sum as judge shall determine as being equal to value of property to be left in possession. If defendant fails to bond within ten days after seizure, plaintiff may have property sequestered into his own possession upon executing such bond as would release defendant to release. In a few cases the judge before whom a suit is pending may order sequestration. In such cases no bond is required.

Writs of Seizure.—Writs of provisional seizure will issue in following cases: 1. In proceedings when the plaintiff sues on a title importing confession of judgment. 2. When a lessor prays for the seizure of furniture or property used in the house or attached to real estate which he has leased. 3. When a seaman, or another person, employed on board of a ship or water craft navigating within the State, or persons having furnished labor for or made repairs to such ship or water craft, prays that the same may be seized and prevented from departing until he has been paid the amount of his claim. 4. When proceedings are in rem; that is to say, against the thing itself which stands pledged for a debt, when the property is abandoned, or in cases where the owner of the thing is unknown or absent. 5. Laborers on farms or plantations, whether they are employed by the month, or year, when they sue for their wages, shall have the right provisionally to seize the crop or other thing on which they have a privilege for such employment, by making oath that they verily believe that the crop or other thing on which they may have a privilege is about to be removed from the farm or plantation or place where it was raised, and verily belongs; or, if it has already been removed, that they verily believe the thing is about to be sold, or disposed of, so as to deprive them of their privilege. Petition must be accompanied by affidavit. No bond is required. Defendant can bond with surety residing in parish where writ issued for value of the property or amount of claim. Interfering with ownership can bond after ten days, if defendant fails to do so. Lessors are, even in hands of third persons, such furniture as was in the leased house, if the same has been removed by lessee, provided he declares on oath that same has been removed without his consent, within fifteen days previous to his suit being brought.

Injunction.—Writs of injunction must be granted in following cases: 1. When the defendant is in the act of building or constructing some work tending to obstruct a place of public use. 2. When the defendant is constructing, either within the bed of a navigable river or on its banks, works which may prevent the navigation of such river, or make it more difficult, or prevent ships or other crafts from easily landing and unloading on the bank of such river. 3. When the defendant has commenced some building or work on real estate the ownership or possession of which is contested by the plaintiff.

tiff, or if he pretends that such building or works would be injurious to his interest. 4. When defendant opposes the execution of work necessary for the repairs of public levees, dikes, roads, bridges, canals, drains, and the like. 5. When the defendant disturbs the plaintiff in the actual and real possession which such plaintiff has had for more than one year, either of real estate or of a real right, of which he claims either the ownership, the possession, or the enjoyment. 6. When a woman has sued her husband for a separation of property or for a separation from bed and board, and fears that he will, during the pendency of the suit, dispose, to her prejudice, of the property either held in the community or on which she has a privilege for her dotal rights. 7. When the sheriff, in execution of a judgment, has seized property not belonging to the defendant and insists on selling the same, disregarding the opposition of him who alleges that he is the real owner, or is guilty of any other illegal act in the execution of his office. 8. When the ownership of an estate, real or personal, is in dispute, and the plaintiff fears that the defendant, who is in possession of such property, may take advantage of his possession to sell or dispose of such property in any other manner during the pendency of the suit. 9. On the application of any purchaser whose property is seized for the payment of the price of a thing sold to him, whenever suit has been instituted against him for the recovery of the property. 10. To stay execution when payment is alleged to have been made after judgment rendered, when compensation is pleaded against the judgment, or where the sheriff is proceeding on the execution contrary to some provision of law; provided that no judgment or execution shall be enjoined on an allegation of compensation, set-off, or subsequent payment, except for the amount of such sum plead in compensation, set-off, or payment as shall be established by the defendant, according to law; and such judgment, for any surplus that may exist, shall be executed in all respects as if no such injunction had been granted; and provided further, that whenever an injunction is granted on an allegation of compensation, set-off, or payment, it shall be the duty of the judge to require from the person claiming such injunction a bond and security in double the amount of the sum alleged to have been paid conditioned for the payment of damages in case the injunction shall have been wrongfully sued out.

Injunctions may issue against third persons not parties to a suit as follows: 1. The sheriff may be enjoined from paying to the plaintiff the proceeds of the property seized, if a third person opposes such payment, alleging that he is entitled to be paid out of such proceeds in preference to the plaintiff, having a previous hypothecation or privilege, or any other right by which he claims to be paid in preference to the plaintiff. 2. The sheriff may be enjoined from paying the claim of the plaintiff out of the proceeds of the sale of the property seized, if a third person opposes such payment, alleging that the defendant had no other property to pay his debts except that which had been seized, and praying that the proceeds of the sale may be brought into court, to be distributed among all the creditors of the defendant, according to the order of their respective privilege or hypothecation. 3. If one be in possession of property, of whatever nature it may be, whether the same was placed in his hands as a deposit or otherwise, and a third person claims the ownership of such property by a suit, such third person may obtain an injunction directed against the possessor of such property, prohibiting him from disposing of the same until the further order of the court. 4. Besides the cases above mentioned, courts of justice may grant injunctions in all other cases when it is necessary to preserve the property in dispute during the pendency of the action, and to prevent one of the parties, during the continuance of the suit, from dilapidating the same, or from doing some other act injurious to the other party. 5. In addition to the cases mentioned above, the judge may grant an injunction, on the application of any purchaser whose property is seized for the payment of the price of a thing sold to him, whenever a suit has been instituted against him for the said property.

Petition must be accompanied by affidavit (C. P. art. 304) and bond with surety residing in parish for such amount as judge shall determine. When act prohibited is not such as may work irreparable injury to plaintiff, court may in its discretion dissolve same upon defendant giving bond. If injunction is violated, the court may cause to be destroyed whatever has been done in contravention thereof or punish for contempt.

Consignments. — No special statute.

Corporations of this class shall file their report between January 1 and April 1 of each year. Failure to do so two hundred and fifty dollars fine and twenty-five dollars and costs.

for every day it fails to file report after expiration of month of March. Attorney-General or District Attorney may sue to recover penalty with attorney's fees.

Foreign corporations entitled to certificate from Secretary of State authorizing it to do business as a domestic corporation in this State, upon filing with Secretary of State certified copy of its certificate of incorporation; provided, that no certificate shall be granted to any foreign corporation having the same name or one so nearly resembling it as to be likely to conflict with the name of any other corporation in the State, but a foreign corporation so circumstanced may add to its name some term which would distinguish it.

Any foreign corporation, or the agent of any corporation that shall establish any office or appoint a resident agent within the limits of this State without having complied with the provisions of this act, as well as the provisions of existing laws relative to the designation of domicile and of agents for service of process, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense, recoverable in a civil action against the agent or corporation, or both; provided, that nothing in this act contained shall apply to any foreign corporation engaged only in interstate or foreign commerce.

Whenever, in the judgment of the board of directors it shall be deemed advisable and for the benefit of such corporation that it should be dissolved, the board, within ten days after the adoption of a resolution to that effect by a majority of the whole board at any meeting called for that purpose, of which meeting each director shall have received at least three days' notice, shall cause notice of the adoption of such resolution to be mailed to each stockholder, together with a notice of a meeting of the stockholders, to be held at the office of the corporation, to take action upon the resolution so adopted by the board of directors.

At any meeting, original or adjourned, two thirds in interest of all the stockholders of the corporation shall vote that a dissolution shall take place. A certified copy of such resolution, signed by the presiding officer and secretary of the meeting, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, together with a list of the names and residences of the directors and officers, certified to by the president and secretary of the corporation. Thereupon, the secretary of state shall issue a certificate that the foregoing documents have been filed. The corporation shall then stand dissolved, and the board shall publish a notice of such dissolution not less than three times in a paper published in the parish of the corporation's domicile, and the corporation shall proceed to settle up and adjust its business and affairs.

Whenever all the stockholders shall consent in writing to a dissolution, no meeting or notice thereof shall be necessary; but on filing such consent in the office of the secretary of state, he shall forthwith issue his certificate and thereupon the matter shall be proceeded with as if the dissolution had taken place at a meeting called for the purpose.

Corporations dissolved under this act shall be extinct in all respects as if corporate existence had expired by limitation of charter.

All corporations, whether they expire by limitation or otherwise, shall be continued as bodies corporate for the purpose of prosecuting and defending suits by or against them and of enabling them to liquidate their affairs, etc. Liquidators elected by stockholders with full power to settle affairs, etc.

The expression, "Transact any business within the limits of this State," includes every transaction in this State by the agents of a corporation which does not involve matters of interstate or foreign commerce.

(For further details, see Act 267 of 1914 covering trading corporations; see Act 254 of 1914 covering non-trading corporations.)

By Act 246 of 1910 corporations engaged exclusively in buying and selling real estate can with their surplus funds buy and retire their stock.

Whenever a person residing permanently out of the State shall die, his stock may be transferred or sold, or dividends collected by his heirs, executors, administrators, or representatives, without the necessity of having themselves recognized as such by or obtaining from any court in this State any order or decree for the sale or transfer of said stock or dividend, except that it is usually necessary to judicially determine the amount of inheritance tax due thereon.

Administrators, executors, tutors, and syndics may sell at private sale at market price bonds and shares of stock when necessary and when ordered by court. If minors are interested, the advice of a family meeting must be obtained. For taxes, see Tax Law.

The Uniform Stock Transfer Act was adopted (Act 180 of 1910).

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Louisiana.

Deeds. — All instruments affecting real estate must be in writing, and to affect third persons must be registered in conveyance office in parish where property situated. A deed of sale of real estate must be signed by the vendor and should be signed by vendee. Vendee's signature is not essential, and any act of ownership is sufficient to act as acceptance of deed. Act should contain: 1. Date and place where passed. 2. Names, surnames, and qualities of the contracting parties. 3. A description of the immovable property which has been transferred, with all necessary details. 4. The price of the transfer, whether paid in ready money or on time, and in the latter case what the terms and conditions are. Deeds must be passed out before a notary and two witnesses, or properly acknowledged out. For form and requirements of acknowledgment, see Affidavits. Married woman need not join husband in act affecting his real estate unless she has a privilege or mortgage registered against it, but husband must join wife in deed of property standing in her name. Subject to Act 94 of 1916, see Married Women.

Depositions. — A litigant wishing to take the testimony of a witness residing out of the State may file written interrogatories stating under oath the materiality of the case. A copy of these interrogatories is served upon the opposite party or his attorney, who is allowed three days to cross. Commission is then issued addressed to any officer authorized to administer oaths. The commission can be executed any time within limit fixed by the commission. The officer executing commission should cause witnesses to appear before him, after swearing them to tell the truth and answer truly all the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories should propound them to the witness and reduce the answers to writing. Under the statute the writing must be by the officer himself, or a disinterested person in his presence. In our opinion, however, answers can be taken stenographically in the presence of the commissioner and subsequently transcribed on typewriter, if the officer's return certifies that it was read over to the witness and signed by him. If witness resides in the parish, two days' previous notice of the time and place of taking the deposition must be given to the witness or his counsel; if the witness or his counsel reside out of the parish, then ten days' notice shall be given. No questions beyond those in the written interrogatories can be propounded (except in case of cross-examination), and the witness should not be assisted in testifying. The parties litigant can be present if they desire. The officer should prepare a procès-verbal reciting the taking of the deposition, etc. The depositions, commission, and procès-verbal should be fastened together, and the envelope indorsed with the title and number of the case, and forwarded to the clerk of court from which the commission issued. This can be sent by mail, express, or other safe means. The form of procès-verbal usually used (not statutory) is as follows. — commission has been addressed to a commissioner or officer by name, or if executed by a Louisiana commissioner, no evidence of his capacity is necessary. Otherwise his authority should be certified by the secretary of state or a commissioner for the State of Louisiana. In all cases the officer should attach his official seal. No seal or scroll is necessary for the witnesses. Witnesses should sign in officer's presence. All charges should be paid by the party desiring the depositions. When depositions are returned to court the party desiring to use them must take a rule on the opposite party to show cause why the depositions should be received on the trial. On the trial of such rule, only objections founded on irregularity in taking the commission can be urged.

Depositions may also be taken de bene esse where witness resides out of the parish, under the act of 1910.

Intestates and Distribution of Property. — Legitimate children inherit from their parents without distinction of sex or primogeniture, and though they be from different marriages. They receive equal portions when in the same degree, and inherit by their own right if they receive by roots when they inherit by representation, which is recognized in intestate succession. In the collateral line the estate leaves no descendants, but a father and mother and brothers and sisters, or descendants of these last the estate is divided in two equal portions, one of which goes to the father and mother, the other to the brothers and sisters of the deceased, or their descendants. If the father or mother of the person who has died without issue has died before him, the portion which would have been inherited by such deceased parent goes to the brothers and sisters of the deceased, or their descendants. If the deceased has left neither descendants, brothers, nor sisters, nor descendants from them, nor father nor mother, but only other ascendants, these ascendants inherit to the exclusion of all collaterals, as follows: If there are ascendants in the paternal and maternal line in the same degree, the estate is divided in equal shares, one of which goes to the ascendants on the paternal and the other to the ascendants on the maternal side, whether the number of ascendants on each side be equal or not.
 If the ascendants in each line inherit by heads. But if there is in the nearest degree an ascendant in the two lines, such ascendant excludes those of a more remote degree.
 If there are no ascendants, to the exclusion of all others, inherit the immovables given by them to their descendants who die without posterity, but they must take them subject to the incumbranches which the donee has imposed. If a person dies leaving no descendants, nor father nor mother, his brothers and sisters, or their descendants, inherit, to the exclusion of the ascendants and other collaterals. When the deceased has died without issue leaving neither brothers nor sisters, nor descendants from them, nor ascendants, nor surviving spouse (as to community property), his succession passes to his collateral relations, and among them the nearest in degree excludes the others.

Every marriage superinduces of right partnership, or community of acquets and gains, if there be no stipulation to the contrary. The community consists of the profits of all the effects administered by the husband, of the produce of the reciprocal industry and labor of both husband and wife, of property acquired during marriage by donations made to them jointly or by purchase in the name of either. When either husband or wife dies leaving no ascendants or descendants, and without having disposed by last will of his or her share (one half) in the community property, such share is inherited by the survivor. The other half of the community belongs to the survivor in his or her own right as owner. But if deceased leave no descendant, but a father or mother, or both, the estate is divided into two equal portions, one of which will go to the father and mother, or the survivor of them, and the other portion to the surviving spouse. (Act 80 of 1916.) Where the predeceased spouse leaves issue of the marriage, and does not dispose by last will of his or her share in the community, the survivor takes in usufruct the share of the deceased in the community inherited by such issue. This usufruct ceases if the survivor enters into a second marriage. When the deceased has left neither lawful descendants nor lawful ascendants, the community estate descends to the surviving husband or wife or his or her natural (illegitimate) children, or the State, as hereafter stated. The separate property under these conditions would descend to his collaterals. In the absence of collaterals the husband or wife surviving would take the separate property also.

Natural children are called to the succession of their natural mother, when they have been duly acknowledged by her, if she has left no lawful children or descendants, to the exclusion of her mother and father and other ascendants or collaterals of lawful kindred. In case the natural mother has lawful children or descendants, the rights of the natural children are reduced to a moderate alimony. They are called to the inheritance of their natural father when they have been duly acknowledged, when he has left no descendants or ascendants, nor collateral relations, nor surviving wife, and to the exclusion only of the State. In other cases they are entitled to alimony only. Bastard, adulterous, or incestuous children shall not enjoy the right of inheriting the estates of their natural father or mother. They are allowed alimony only. The law does not grant any right of inheritance to natural children to the estate of the legitimate relations of their father or mother. The estate of a natural child deceased without posterity belongs to the father or mother who has acknowledged him, or in equal portions to the father and mother when acknowledged by both. If the father and mother of the natural child die before him, the estate of such natural child shall pass to his natural brothers and sisters or their descendants. If a married man has left no lawful descendants nor ascendants, nor any collateral relations, but surviving wife not separated, the wife shall inherit from him, to the exclusion of any natural child or children duly acknowledged. If, on the contrary, it is the wife who died without leaving any lawful descendants, ascendants, or collateral relations, her surviving husband, not separated, shall not inherit from her, except in case she shall have no natural child or children by her duly acknowledged. Prior to 1916 a man or woman who contracted a subsequent marriage, having children by a former one, could give to his wife or she to her husband, either by donation or by last will in full property, or in usufruct, not exceeding one third of his or her property. But by Act 116 of 1916 a husband or wife in such case is permitted to give to the other the same amount in full property or in usufruct which he or she might give to a stranger.

Divorce. — Separation from bed and board may be claimed reciprocally: 1. For adultery. 2. When the other spouse has been condemned to an infamous punishment. 3. For habitual intemperance or excesses, cruel treatment, or outrages of one of them towards the other, if such habitual intemperance or such ill-treatment is of such a nature as to render their living together insupportable. 4. For public defamation on the part of one spouse towards the other. 5. For abandonment of one by the other. 6. For an attempt of one of the married persons against the life of the other. 7. When one spouse has been charged with an infamous offense and shall actually have fled from justice, the other may claim a separation on producing proofs to the judge before whom the action for separation is brought that such spouse has actually been guilty of such infamous offense and has fled from justice. Except for the 1st and 2d causes no divorce can be granted, unless a judgment of separation shall have been rendered and one year shall have expired from the date of the judgment of separation without reconciliation having taken place. Act 269 of 1916 provides that an absolute divorce will be granted upon proof of the continuous living separate and apart of spouses for the period of seven years. Alimony will be allowed the spouse obtaining the separation upon a proper showing. A judgment of divorce operates a dissolution of the community of acquets and gains, each spouse taking back the separate property brought into the marriage and one half of the community property after payment of the community debts.

Donations — Are either inter vivos or mortis causa. Donations inter vivos of immovable property or incorporeal things must be by public act. Movable property must be either by public act or by manual gift (if property is susceptible thereof) accompanied by a real de:

Donations inter vivos can be revoked or dissolved on account of the following causes: 1. Ingratitude of the donee. 2. The non-fulfillment of the eventual conditions which attend their consummation. 3. The non-performance of the conditions imposed on the donee. 4. The legal or conventional return. For what constitutes ingratitude, see art. 1569.

If the donor leaves at his death three or more legitimate children and the value of the property donated by him exceeds one third of his property, his children can cause a sufficient amount of such property to be returned to reduce that disposed of to one third. The same rule prevails if deceased leaves a less number of children, except that if only one child survives he can dispose of two thirds, and if two children of one half of his property. For donations mortis causa, see Wills.

See — See Testimony.

Employer's Liability Act. — There is a general Employer's Liability Act in the State which provides defenses such as assumption of risk and fellow servants in cases against those who are exempted from the provision of the act, and setting forth special compensation for various injuries.

Executions. — Executions are made under writs of fi fa issued upon application of the creditor to the court rendering the judgment, directed to sheriff or constable as case may be, ordering him to seize and sell sufficient property to satisfy the judgment, costs, etc. Property seized thereunder must be appraised by two appraisers, one appointed by each party. If then advertised, if personal property for ten days, if real property for thirty days. If it brings two thirds of appraised value it cannot be sold, but must be re-advertised for ten days, if real property, and if personal, ten days, and then sold in a twelve months period. That is, the purchaser is required to give a bond with good surety bearing the same interest as the original debt that he will pay the purchase price within twelve months. In case of non-payment on the bond, the vendor's privilege on the thing sold is reserved.

Homesteads. — Homesteads are exempt from seizure. They consist of not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres of land, buildings, and appurtenances, whether rural or urban, actually occupied by the head of a family, or person dependent upon him or her for support, and exist without registration. The homestead includes certain farm implements, tools, and animals, together with a certain quantity of household furniture. Homesteads cannot be sold for less than two thousand dollars in value. If a homestead is sold, the proceeds shall be retained by the court only in case of a sale of the homestead under legal process. No husband shall have a homestead in a property whose wife owns or is in actual possession of property to the value of two thousand dollars. The homestead privilege can be waived. For benefit of homestead exemption may be claimed by the surviving spouse or minor child or children of a deceased person. Laborers' wages, the clothes belonging to the debtor or his wife, his tools and instruments of trade, the books and sewing-machine necessary for the exercise of one's trade, or profession by which the owner makes a living, the salary of an officer, cook, and utensils, plates, forks, etc., dining table and chairs, wash-tubs, something-linen, ironing furnaces, family portraits, and musical instruments played on by any member of the family, are exempt from seizure. When the widow or minor children of a deceased person are left in necessitous circumstances they shall be entitled to a sum of money from the succession of their deceased husband or father a sum which will make up the value of the property owned by them or either of them in their own right will make up the value of two thousand dollars, which shall be paid in preference to all other debts except funeral expenses and expenses incurred in selling the property.

Interrogatories. — Under judgment, interrogatories can be propounded to third person to answer under oath what property or rights he has in his possession or control belonging to the debtor and seizing such property. If he declares he has property, etc., in his possession, the court can order that it be delivered to the sheriff or constable. If the third person answers that he has no property of the debtor the creditor may sue him for perjury and if possible prove their falsity. This must be done within twenty days after they are served on party issuing garnishment. Under some circumstances this can be used before judgment. See "Attorneys" under Conveyancing and Wills.

See — See Notes and Bills

Inheritance Taxes. — An inheritance tax of two per cent is assessed on direct inheritances to ascendants and descendants, and to surviving wife or husband of the deceased, and one per cent for collateral inheritances. This is not applied to bequests, and religious or charitable bequests, nor on property which has borne its just proportion of taxes prior to the death of the donor or testator. Inheritance tax on any as calculated below ten dollars is exempt. Inheritance tax is fixed by the attorney appointed to represent the estate and the inheritance tax collector.

Interest Laws. — Abrogated by United States bankruptcy law.

Interest. — The legal rate is five per cent, but can be increased by written agreement to ten per cent. Parol proof of this not allowed. Persons other than pawn brokers or loan associations, are prohibited from charging more than five per cent per annum interest or more than twenty per cent by way of discount. Such excessive charges are a misdemeanor. (Act 204 of 1914.) Stipulation for greater rate forfeits all interest.

above eight per cent. If larger rate has been collected it may be sued for within two years and recovered.

Larger interest can be collected by way of discount, or if embodied in the face of a note payable to bearer or order. This does not apply to banks of this State. After maturity obligations cannot bear more than eight per cent. Judgments can bear the same rate as the obligations upon which they are founded.

Judgments. — A judgment, to operate as a mortgage, must be recorded in the parish where the real estate is situated. In Orleans Parish (embracing New Orleans), judgments should be recorded in mortgage office. In other parishes, with clerk of court, in mortgage book kept in his office. Judgments rendered in United States courts operate as mortgage on property in parish where court sits, without being recorded. Judgments are good for ten years from date of signing; their recordation, for ten years from date of recording. Foreign judgments and those from other States can be sued on and judgment recovered if citation has been properly served in original suit and court rendering judgment had jurisdiction. Attorney's fee can be allowed in the judgment if stipulated, and in some other exceptional cases. They are not generally allowed. In an uncontested case judgment can be obtained in city courts (in New Orleans) in about eight days. In justices' courts, in county parishes, in about fifteen days. In district courts for Orleans Parish, in about fifteen days, when court is in session.

License — Varies according to the character and amount of the business. The laws and classification upon this subject are too lengthy to be quoted. Commercial travelers selling by sample cannot be compelled to pay any license. The State Constitution exempts from license clerks, laborers, clergymen, school-teachers, those engaged in mechanical, agricultural, horticultural, and mining pursuits, and manufacturers other than those of distilled alcoholic or malt liquors, tobacco and cigars, and cotton-seed oil.

Lien or Privileges. — A lien or privilege is a right which the nature of the debt gives to a creditor, and which entitles him to be preferred before other creditors. The creditors who are in the same rank of privileges are paid in concurrence. Privileges or liens exist on movables or immovables. Debts privileged on all the movables generally are: (1) Funeral charges; (2) law charges; (3) those of the last sickness; (4) wages of servants for the year past and so much as is due for the current year; (5) supplies and provisions made to the debtor or his family during the last six months by retail dealers, and during the last year by keepers of boarding-houses and taverns; (6) salaries of clerks; (7) dotal rights due to wives by their husbands. The following debts are privileges on certain movables: (1) Salary of the overseer for current year, on crops of the year and proceeds; (2) debts for necessary supplies and expenses of the farms or plantations, on the crop of such year; (3) debt of workman for repairs of movable, if still in his possession; (4) rent of movables and wages of laborers, on crops of the year and on the furniture in the house let and things which serve for the working of the farm; (5) the debt on pledge in creditor's possession; (6) that of a depositor on the price of the sale of the thing by him deposited; (7) money laid out in preserving the thing; (8) price due on movables, if still in purchaser's possession; (9) vendor's lien; (10) privilege of innkeeper on traveler's effects in inn; (11) carrier's charges and necessary expenses on thing carried as long as in carrier's possession. This privilege also extends to insurance on the object. Above privileges on growing crops shall be concurrent except privilege in favor of laborer. There are also numerous privileges on ships. (C. C. art. 3237.) Act 82 of 1916 grants owners of garages or places where automobiles are repaired a privilege on all machines repaired for repairs or labor performed. Consignees and commercial agents who have made advances on goods consigned or placed with them to be sold have a privilege for amount of advances and charges on the value of the goods, if they are at such agent's disposal in his store, etc., or if before their arrival he can show bill of lading or letter that they have been dispatched to him. This extends to unpaid price of goods received and sold. Such agent has a privilege preferred to any attaching creditor on the goods consigned to him for balance due him: provided such privilege shall not have preference over a privilege preëxisting on the goods in behalf of a resident creditor of this State. In event of failure of agent the consignor has not only a right to reclaim the goods if unsold, but has also a privilege for unpaid price if sold. Creditors having privileges on immovables are: (1) Vendor, for payment of price of estate sold; (2) architects, undertakers, bricklayers, painters, master builders, contractors, sub-contracting journeymen, laborers, cartmen, and other workmen employed in constructing, rebuilding, or repairing houses or making other works; (3) furnishers of materials of any kind used for the construction or repair of an edifice or other work. Above privileges extend to building and lot, not exceeding one acre, upon which the improvement is erected, provided such lot belongs to owner of building. If erected upon leased ground, then only against the lease and shall not affect the owner; (4) those who have worked by the job in manner directed by law in making and repairing levees, bridges, etc. The vendor's privilege on an immovable extends to the beasts and agricultural implements attached. Privileges extending alike to movables and immovables are: (1) funeral charges; (2) judicial charges; (3) expenses of last illness; (4) wages of servants; (5) salaries of clerks. When the widow or minor children are left in necessitous circumstances, they shall be entitled to receive from the husband or father's succession one thousand dollars, which shall be paid in preference to other debts, except the vendor's privilege, conventional mortgage, and expenses incurred in selling the property; provided that any such conventional mortgage or mortgages shall represent money actually not less than one year on the property described therein at not exceeding six per annum for interest, discount, and charges. Privileges on immovables to affect third must be recorded in the parish where situated. All contracts for repairing, building, and five hundred dollars must be reduced to writing. All such contracts must be within seven days of the date of the act or obligation of indebtedness, if recorded in same parish, and within fifteen days if the registry is required in any other parish. Act 221 of 1914 requires all persons contracting for building or repairs over five hundred dollars to receive of the builder a bond, which must be recorded with the contract in the office. Vendors of agricultural products of the United States in the city of New Orleans have a lien thereon for their price for five days after delivery in whatsoever hands or may be found. The vendor of sugar cane selling to a manufacturer has a lien on whether manufactured or not, so long as in hands of manufacturer. Laborers, etc., in the city, have privilege on articles manufactured for thirty days from maturity of such liens, however, have no effect against bona fide purchasers. Laborers deadweight, etc., timber and logs, and persons cooking for such laborers, have a lien on such articles. Furnishers of money and supplies also have lien on such logs. Furnishers of money to enable others to gather and prepare moss grown in this State, and persons performing services thereon, have a privilege thereon. Liens are generally coexistent with the mortgage, unless lost by some of the methods provided for their extinction. If property is sold, suit need not as a general rule be brought except within time to avoid prescription. However, some liens are limited (see above) and some must be enforced before the sale on which they bear is sold. No more definite rule can be given in limited space.

Prescription. — Actions by notaries, constables, etc., for fees, instructors of sciences for lessons given by the month, innkeepers for lodging and board, requotes who sell in less quantities than one quart, laborers and servants for wages, out of freight of ships and vessels, the wages of the crew and officers, for supplies for constructing and provisioning of ships, and actions for damages ex delicto prescribed by one year. All actions by or against common carriers for the collection of erroneous freight charges, and all actions for loss of or damage to shipments of goods, will be prescribed by two years, said prescription to run from the date of shipment. (Act 223, 1914.) Action for damages done owner of land by its expropriation and by debtor in attachment whose residence is unknown, to obtain reversal of judgment, two years. Arrearages of rent, annuities, and alimony, or for hire of movables, for payment of money loaned, for salary of overseers, clerks, secretaries, etc., of sciences who give lessons by year or quarter, physicians, apothecaries, for drugs, parish recorder, sheriffs, clerks of court, and attorneys for fees, accountants, whether selling for wholesale or retail, retailers of liquors who do not sell in less than one quart, and all other accounts, are prescribed by three years. Actions against tutors are prescribed by four years. Actions on bills of exchange payable to bearer or order (except bank notes), those on all effects negotiable or transferable by endorsement or delivery, and on all promissory notes, whether negotiable or otherwise, are prescribed by five years to reduce excessive donations, beginning from death of donor, of minor partition, beginning from majority or full emancipation, to annul a probate, nullity or rescission of contract, for irregularities connected with any public sale, are prescribed by five years. In general all personal actions except above are prescribed by five years. Actions against an undertaker or architect for defective construction of building or stone are prescribed by ten years. Judgments are prescribed by ten years and may be renewed before prescription. Rights of usufruct, habitation, and servitudes are prescribed by ten years. All actions for immovable property or a succession are prescribed by thirty years. Immovables can be acquired without title by physical and public possession for thirty years. Immovables are prescribed for by ten years, when the possessor has been in good faith and has held by a title apparently translatif of property. Prescription of movables is prescribed for after lapse of three years if in good faith. Prescriptions against all persons absent or present unless they are included in some of the prescriptions established by law such as minors, interdicts, etc.

Lost Instruments. — Suit may be brought on lost instruments, but their loss must be proved. Judge may require security against their reappearance. If lost instrument is proved, its loss must have been advertised as a condition precedent to introduction of evidence.

Married Women. — Under Louisiana law, unless otherwise stipulated, community property and gains exists between husband and wife. The husband is the head of the community and administers the property, etc. He can sell or mortgage without wife's consent. If community is dissolved by death or otherwise, wife or her heirs are entitled to one undivided half of the community property. All earnings of both husband and wife go into the community. Before 1916 a married woman could not bind herself by contract without authority of the husband, except when she was a public merchant. She was considered a public merchant if she carried on a separate trade, but not if she retailed only the merchandise belonging to the commerce carried on by her husband. A married woman, even with husband's authority, could not bind herself or her property for her husband's debts. Act 133 of 1913 provides that a married woman of this State shall be competent to contract and obligate herself personally and with reference to her separate and paraphernal property and to appear in court and to sue and be sued to the same extent and in the same manner as though she were a femme sole. The wife has a mortgage against real estate of husband to secure payment for all sums received by him for her during marriage. She may renounce mortgage if she so desires. This mortgage must be recorded to operate against third persons. Husband cannot sell separate property of wife. She may administer it herself unless there is an ante-nuptial contract to the contrary. Wife may lawfully contract without authority for necessities for herself and family when husband fails to provide. Wife having administration of paraphernal property should bear a proportion of the household expenses. Wife may petition for separation of property whenever her separate property is in danger owing to the mismanagement of her husband, or the disorder of his affairs renders it necessary. Wife obtaining separation of property must contribute proportionally with husband to support, education of children, and household expenses. Married woman can open bank account in savings bank and withdraw funds without husband's authorization. There is no dowry under our laws, but see Liens or Privileges for wife's rights.

Mechanics' Liens. — See Liens or Privileges and Act 221 of 1914.

Minors. — All persons (males and females) are considered as minors until twenty-one years of age. They cannot bind themselves except for necessities. They may, however, subscribe for, withdraw, or transfer stock of building, homestead, or loan associations, deposit funds with and withdraw same from such associations and from savings banks without assistance of tutor or guardian. When over the age of eighteen years they can (with consent of tutor, and under some circumstances without it) be relieved of all disabilities which attach to minority. This is granted by proper judge after examination as to their fitness for emancipation. Minors over fifteen years may be emancipated, with power to administer their revenues only. This emancipation is granted by the father, or mother if father be dead, and consists of a mere declaration before notary and witnesses. This can be revoked. Emancipation also takes place by marriage of minor. This emancipation is fuller than that at fifteen, but does not relieve entirely from all disabilities of minority. But a minor emancipated by marriage on reaching the age of eighteen years is relieved of all disabilities just as if he were of age. (Act 224 of 1908.)

Mortgages. — Mortgages must be recorded to affect third persons. Can be canceled in mortgage office when paid by surrender of mortgage note. If they contain a confession of judgment (which is usual) the mortgagee can obtain from competent judge order of seizure and sale of the mortgaged property. Demand of payment must first be made by sheriff, and three days thereafter property is seized, and after a thirty days' advertisement is sold. Acknowledgments of mortgages are usually executed before notary, and notes identified by the "ne varietur" of the notary given to represent the indebtedness. If mortgagor absent, curator can be appointed and served with notice, but in this event personal judgment cannot be obtained, the judgment being limited to the property. Separate or "lis pendens" docket is kept wherein notice of suits affecting real estates are recorded. Mortgages executed within the State must be passed before a notary and two competent witnesses. Without the State a mortgage should be passed before a Louisiana commissioner and two witnesses. Act 105 of 1916 permits mortgages of sailing vessels, pull boats, dredges plying on navigable waters wholly within State and not affected by laws of United States in the same manner as mortgages of immovables. Machinery for a manufacturing or industrial establishment may be made immovable and subject to mortgage by the owner filing with the register of conveyances and recorder of mortgages a declaration to that effect. Leases and buildings erected on leased premises may be mortgaged. (See Acts of 1910, No. 232; Act of 1908, No. 21.) See Executions. Mortgages are exempt from taxation by constitutional amendment adopted in November, 1908. (Act 62 of 1908.) For proof of authority to execute corporation mortgages, see Act 148 of 1910. See Chattel Mortgages.

Notaries Public — Are appointed by the governor of the State. In Orleans Parish they cannot practice until they pass a public examination before the supreme court of the State and furnish a solvent bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars. They can act in their own parish (county) only. A seal is not necessary, but is customary and should be used. Official character of a notary public must be certified to by the clerk of the district court of his parish.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The Negotiable Instruments Law has been adopted by the legislature of 1904. No days of grace. When maturity falls upon Sunday or a holiday, the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day. Instruments falling due on Saturday are to be presented for payment on the next succeeding business day, except that instruments payable on demand may, at the option of the holder, be presented for payment before twelve o'clock noon on Saturday when that entire day is not a holiday. To hold an indorser the note must be presented on the proper day and payment demanded at the place of payment, or if no specified place, then to the drawer, and the indorser notified of the dishonor. This protest must be made by a notary public. In computing the delay allowed for giving notice of non-acceptance or non-payment of a bill of exchange or promissory note or other commercial paper, the days of public rest or legal holidays shall not be counted, and if the day or two days next succeeding the protest for non-acceptance or non-payment shall be days of public rest or legal holidays, then the next day following shall be computed as the first day after the protest. The legal holidays are Sundays, January 1st and 8th, February 22d, Good Friday, June 3d, July 4th, October 12th, November 1st, December 25th, Thanksgiving Day, all general election days, and in parish of Orleans Mardi Gras and 1st Monday of September, and in towns and cities whose population exceeds fifteen thousand aturday from twelve noon until twelve midnight. In all cities where the population is fifty thousand, whenever the 1st of January, the 8th of January, the 22d of February, the 1st of June, 4th of July, 1st of November, and the 25th of December, shall fall on a Sunday, the succeeding day shall be a legal holiday.

Pledge or Pawn. — Is a contract by which debtor gives something to his creditor as security for his debt. All corporeal things susceptible of alienation, and incorporeal movables such as credits and claims, can be pawned. It is essential to the contract of pledge that the creditor be put in possession of the thing by actual delivery unless already in his possession. As to incorporeal rights delivery is merely fictitious. When debtor pawns claim he must make a transfer of it in the act of pledge and deliver the instrument representing the claim properly indorsed. All acts of pledge must mention amount of debt, species, and nature of thing given in pledge. Pawn gives creditor privilege on object pawned, if not recorded. Creditor cannot upon failure of payment dispose of pledge, but must wait for judgment thereon. In pledges of movable property or rights or credits, stocks, bonds, and other movable property, pledge can lawfully authorize sale or other disposition of pledged property without intervention of courts. Agreements authorizing creditor to appropriate to himself are null. See Bills of Lading.

Practice. — In civil matters practice is governed by a code. No criminal code.

Description. — See Limitations.

Form of Claims. — All claims sent to Louisiana for collection should contain full name, address, and residence of both debtor and creditor. If for or against a corporation, the full name of the corporation, of its president, its domicile, and under laws of what State created. If against a firm, the full name and residence of each member and the domicile of the firm. All claims should be detailed, giving items and dates. If claim based upon contract for more than five hundred dollars, and not supported by written evidence, it must be proved by two witnesses, or one witness and corroborating evidence. Entering of a default in our courts is held corroborating evidence. All accounts should be sworn to. If testimony is taken out of the State, the county wherein the witness is domiciled should be given. No charges are required to be paid in advance, and resident security can be required as a condition for future costs before pleading. About twenty dollars should be repaid in advance in suit for five hundred dollars or more, and about fifteen dollars for smaller claims. Security of money or certain securities can be made in lieu of cost bond. Special authority given to agent (except when he is an attorney at law) to make affidavit for attachment and other conservatory writs.

Judicial Seizure. — See Conservatory Writs.

Notaries. — Notaries in Orleans Parish are required to record all deeds requiring recordation within forty-eight hours after passage. However, deeds can be recorded at any time but only for persons only from date of their recordation. See Lien; Practices; Judgments.

Redemption. — Property sold on execution, or foreclosure of mortgage, or under decree of court, is subject to redemption. Equity of redemption unknown to our law except in tax sales. Property sold for taxes can be redeemed within one year from date deed registered upon payment of tax, costs, and twenty per cent.

Retention. — Where acts under private signature are filed in conveyance or mortgage, it is made unlawful to withdraw them.

Sequestration. — No such writ known to Louisiana law, but see "Sequestration" under Conservatory Writs.

Reports, Judicial. — Martin, 20 volumes, old and new series; Louisiana, 13 volumes; Annual Reports, 52 volumes. Under recent order of supreme court the reports are hereafter to be termed Louisiana Reports and are to begin with volume 104.

Revision. — The revision of the Statutes, Civil Code, and Code of Practice were adopted at regular session of the legislature, May, 1916.

Sale in Bulk. — A law has been passed by the legislature (Act 94 of 1896), and amended by Act 114 of 1912. This act provides how such sales shall be made, and how to prevent their evasion.

Sequestration. — See Conservatory Writs.

Service of Summons. — Is made by the sheriff, and can be either personal or domiciliary. In certain cases where defendant resides out of State, by any one who makes return by affidavit and by posting on court-house door. Corporations, by service on their agent in person, or at their office, if they hold such in permanency, by delivery to some agent. Service on foreign corporation is made either upon designated agent in person or by leaving summons at his domicile. See Actions.

Time of Execution. — Execution upon final judgment can issue any time after delay for appeal has expired. See Appeals.

Successions. — Successions are opened in the parish where the deceased was domiciled, or had no domicile, then where he had immovable property or where his principal effects were. If he had no fixed domicile, nor effects within the State, at the place of his death. If deceased leaves no will or fails to appoint an executor, the judge can appoint an administrator to take charge of the estate. In Orleans Parish the public administrator is appointed in the absence of relatives or agents. In such cases if there are absent heirs an executor is appointed to represent them. Accounts of administration must be rendered every twelve months. Administrators are allowed two and a half per cent commission on property administered. Movable property must be sold within ten days after the opening of the succession. Immovable property can be sold after thirty days when necessary. The surviving spouse has the enjoyment of the interest of the deceased in the community property during natural life or until a second marriage. In some cases bond can be required of spouse claiming this privilege. All successions can be accepted with benefit of inventory, that is, heir can limit liability for the debts of the succession to amount received from the succession. Minors can accept with benefit of inventory only. Special and cheap method of administering succession under five hundred dollars. (Act 153 of 1900.) Creditors can demand that presumptive heir announce whether he intends to accept or reject succession unless, within ten days after death of "de cuius," such heir commence legal proceedings to settle succession. If no heirs appear, creditors may petition court for appointment of curator ad hoc to settle the estate.

The administrator can pay no debts without the order of court. An account or tableau of distribution setting forth the payments and disbursements he proposes to make is presented to the court by the administrator or executor. Notification is then given to parties interested to show cause within ten days why the account so filed should not be approved. The account may be opposed by any party interested by filing a written opposition at any time during the said ten days. Upon production of satisfactory evidence, in the absence of opposition the account is homologated and the funds ordered distributed in accordance therewith. Claims against estates should be presented in writing to the administrator or executor. Should he approve the same in writing, no further action is required, except to see that the claim is placed upon his account when filed. Should he decline to recognize the claim, creditor may file suit against representative of succession and obtain a judgment to be paid in ordinary course of administration. Unless there is danger of prescription, creditor may await filing of account and then oppose same if claim not included. See, also, Descent and Distribution of Property; Liens or Privileges; Wills.

Supplemental Proceedings. — Either plaintiff or defendant can at any time, with leave of court, amend petition or answer, provided same does not alter the substance of petition or answer.

Tax Law. — All taxable property shall be listed and assessed each year at its actual cash value. The city taxes in New Orleans become delinquent after the 31st of August, State taxes after December 31. Taxes become due when rolls are completed. Personal taxes become delinquent on the first of the next succeeding month. Execution for their collection can issue on October 1. City taxes bear ten per cent. per annum penalties, State taxes twenty-four per cent. Where owner is known, all real property must be assessed in owner's name. Separate list is made of property belonging to unknown owners. The property must be properly described. In city of New Orleans the tax rolls are exposed to public inspection between March 16 and 31. They are made by the board of assessors. City taxes are payable to the city treasurer, State taxes to the State tax collector. Property holders must make return to the assessor of values, in the country parishes before May 1, and in New Orleans twenty days after lists are furnished them by assessor. It must give the cash value at date of return. Persons believing their assessments too high if they have made returns can file affidavits with assessors asking for reduction. If not granted they can make application between April 1 and April 10 to a committee of the city council, and if then refused can apply to the courts. Courts will not entertain suits unless filed before November 1, and unless these applications have been made. In Orleans Parish, tax rolls must be completed on or before March 15. In other parishes must be completed before June 1. As soon as assessment rolls are completed they must be filed with recorder of mortgages. The taxes act as first lien from date of recordation. Property on which the taxes are delinquent can be sold by tax collectors after proper advertisement without intervention of court proceedings. Taxes on movable property are due on the first of the month succeeding the filing of the tax rolls. All public property, places of religious worship or burial, all charitable institutions, all buildings and property used exclusively for public monuments, historical collections, or for school purposes, property of public libraries, etc., provided same are not used or leased for purposes of private profit, are exempt from taxation. Also exempt, household furniture to the value of five hundred dollars. There shall also be exempt from taxation from the date of its completion any railroad or part of such railroad which may have been completed subsequently to January 1, 1905, but prior to January 1, 1909, provided this does not apply to any railroad having received aid from any parish, ward, or municipality, nor to betterments by railroads now in operation within the State; nor to any railroad, the construction of which has begun, and the roadbed of which was substantially completed at the date of the adoption of the Constitution of 1898. Property of military organizations and State National Guard also exempt.

Officers of banks are required to furnish the assessor list of shareholders. Taxes are to be paid by the bank and collected from the shareholders, except on real estate, which is paid entirely by bank. All other corporations are assessed directly. Report as to taxes must be made for the year ending December 31. The tax is on the cash value of property owned. Mortgage notes are exempted from taxation by constitutional provision. Holdings of national, state, or municipal bonds or stock owned continuously for six months are excepted from taxation. Officers of corporations are required to make sworn reports upon blanks furnished by assessors before January 20 of each year. Penalty for failure is fine or imprisonment or both, at discretion of court. See Inheritance Taxes. For taxes against corporations, see Corporations.

Testaments. — See Wills.

Testimony. — No oral testimony can be introduced in matters relating to sale or transmission of immovable property. Neither husband nor wife can be witness for or against one another, except where one has acted as agent of the other, and then only as to such acts, or where they are joined as plaintiffs or defendants and have a separate interest, they shall be competent witnesses for or against their separate interests. Attorney, except with permission of his client, cannot give evidence of anything confided to him by his client. This does not, however, disqualify him in other respects. Except as above, relationship or interest does not disqualify. Any person of competent understanding is competent to testify as a witness. In all cases subject to appeal, except in city and justices' courts, testimony is taken by deposition.

Test Deeds. — Not in use. See Mortgages.

Tutorship. — Father and mother are of right tutors of their minor children, nor can they be removed from the charge. Minors cannot act without assistance of tutors. If no tutor exists a tutor can be appointed. See Minors.

Wills. — Any will valid in the place where made, whether made by a Louisiana citizen or foreigner, provided it is in writing and signed by the testator, is recognized in Louisiana. All persons over sixteen years, of sound mind, can dispose of their property by will. Minors cannot dispose of their property in favor of their tutors or preceptors while under their authority. A minor, even when he becomes of age, cannot dispose of his property in favor of his tutor, unless final account of tutorship has previously been rendered. Those who have lived in open concubinage are incapable of making to each other any donation of immovable property. They can only donate movables not exceeding one tenth of the value of their estate. Those who afterwards marry are excepted from the rule. Mothers and fathers can leave by will their illegitimate or incestuous children nothing more than an amount necessary for their maintenance or to procure them an occupation. Doctors who have professionally attended a patient during the sickness of which he dies cannot receive donations made during that sickness. This, subject to exceptions of universal dispositions in case of consanguinity, applies to testamentary dispositions on a particular account. Same rules are observed with regard to legacies. Except in the case of mystic testaments, no disposition or institution of heir can be made in favor of any of the witnesses to the will. Testaments are divided into three classes; 1, nuncupative; 2, mystic, and 3, holographic. Nuncupative testaments are made by a notary in presence of three witnesses residing in the place where will is made, or five witnesses not residing in the place, at the dictation of testator. In the case of a mystic will this will can be under private signature if passed in presence of three witnesses residing in the place, or five out of the place, provided a greater number cannot be had. A mystic will is subject to numerous formalities unnecessary to give here. Mystic testament is written and signed by testator. It is closed and sealed and presented by testator to a notary and three witnesses as his last will. The notary writes superscription on envelope and signs it, signed by himself, testator, and all the witnesses. This also subject to formalities. Holographic testament is subject to no further formalities than that it must be entirely written, dated, and signed by the testator. It can be made in or out of the State. Wills of persons employed in armies in the field may be received by a commissioned officer in presence of two witnesses. If testator is sick or wounded they may be received by attending physician and two witnesses. They must be in writing and signed by testator, if he can write, or by the person receiving the testament, and by the witnesses. Such wills are null and void after return of testator to place where he is capable of making it in the ordinary form. Testaments made during a sea voyage may be received by the captain or master in presence of three witnesses taken by preference from among passengers. Such testament is null and void unless no disposition in favor of any persons employed on board vessel, unless relatives of testator be reduced to writing and signed by testator, if he can write, by those receiving it, and by the witnesses. This will valid only if maker dies at sea or within three months after landing where he is able to make it in ordinary form.

Persons under sixteen years, persons insane, deaf, dumb, or blind, and persons whom civil laws declare incapable of exercising civil functions, cannot be witnesses to a testament. A married woman may not be a witness to her husband's will. Erasures in wills not made by the testator are treated as if not made. If erasures render it impossible to read the words covered by them, it shall be left to the discretion of the judge to decide whether he considers them important, and in such case to decree the nullity of the will. A person's father and their descendants are forced heirs. One's father and mother are also forced heirs, if deceased left no descendants. Forced heirs cannot be deprived of a certain portion of the decedent's estate, called their "légitime." Deceased cannot dispose of more than two thirds of his property if he leaves a legitimate child, one half if he leaves two children, and one third if he leaves three or more. Donations cannot exceed two thirds of deceased, having no testament, leaves a father, mother, or both. Donations exceeding the disposable quantum are null, but reducible to amount allowed by law. Impossible conditions, or ones contrary to law or morals, are considered not written. A testament cannot be made by two or more persons by same act. Substitutions and fidei commissum are prohibited. Every disposition which the donee, the heir, or legatee is charged to preserve for or return a thing to a third person is null, even with regard to the donee, the instituted heir, or the legatee. The disposition by which a third person is called to take the gift, the inheritance, or the legacy, if the donee, heir, or legatee does not, shall not be considered a substitution and shall be valid. The same shall be observed as to dispositions by which the usufruct is given to one and the naked ownership to another. The question whether wills can be written in type-writer has never been decided. Holographic wills certainly cannot, and it is doubtful if any others can. Proof is not admitted of dispositions having been made through hatred, anger, suggestion, or captation. Children may be disinherited for ten causes enumerated in art. 1621 of Revised Civil Code. Wills are probated before the district court having jurisdiction.

Testaments made in foreign countries or other States will be recognised here if in accordance with the formalities required by law at place where made, if made in writing and signed by the testator. Foreign wills made according to Louisiana laws will be recognised by Louisiana courts. (Act 176 of 1912.) The form of foreign wills is regulated by law of place where made. Such wills cannot, however, dispose of immovables situated in this State differently from our laws of descent and donations.

Wills are matters of such importance and subject to so many formalities that no one should attempt to make a testament without the advice of a Louisiana lawyer.

MAINE LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Strout & Strout, of Portland.

Legislature convenes on the first Wednesday in January, 1919.
This edition is based on Revised Statutes of 1916, which took effect January 1, 1917, and subsequent amendments.

Writings. — See Deeds.

Writings. — Are commenced by blank writs of attachment, or original summons with or without order to attach, issued from the clerk's office, in which declarations are inserted in triplicate, and which are made returnable to the first day of a term, — in the supreme court, to the next term; in the superior courts, to either of the next three in Cumberland and the next two in Androscoggin and Kennebec Counties; in justice courts, at least within sixty days, leaving time for service. Service is made on natural persons at least ten days before return day (or seven days in justice courts); if property is attached, the summons in hand or left at last and usual place of abode, if original summons with attachment, by copy served in the same way or by reading; on corporations of all kinds at least thirty days before by copy (see, also, Trustee Process) left with the president, cashier, treasurer, general agent, or director, or, if no such officer or agent is found, with any member. If a foreign corporation, it may also be left with any agent or attorney, at its office or place of business. If a domestic corporation, and no officer, general agent, or member is found in the county, it may be filed in the registry of deeds. In case of county commissioners or their clerks; of towns, parishes, religious societies, and trustees, with the clerk or one of the selectmen or assessors; or, if no such officer, member, or agent is found, the writ may be served on the clerk of the court. When property is attached and service is not made or is defective without the plaintiff's fault, the court may order a new service. If defendant is out of the State, service is commonly done by publication. A writ issued from the supreme judicial, or superior, court in any county may be made returnable in another. Non-resident plaintiffs must furnish security for costs, when motion therefor is filed in court at first term. In personal actions returnable in the county where either party resides in the State; in local actions in the county where the subject-matter is situated. Jurisdiction is sustained if service is made within the State, although defendant is not here. Cross actions against non-residents may be served on attorney of record. Actions for liquor violations of law of this State, or knowing it was to be sold by purchaser, cannot be brought, nor on notes given therefor, unless in hands of holder for valuable consideration without notice of illegality it is immaterial whether holder acquired note before or after expiration of term. Appearance by defendant in actions in supreme and superior courts should be made within first three days of the return term. Supreme, plea may be filed at any time before trial, except when otherwise ordered by the court. Superior, within fourteen days before trial of the action. In equity, appearance to be made as above. If process is not returnable at regular term, appearance should be on return day. Answer, plea, or demurrer may be filed within thirty days after time for appearance has elapsed. The court may fix time for answer, plea or demurrer or replication or for hearing of the cause.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Estate of Deceased Persons.

Writings. — Are used to support motions and on hearing on application for, or motions for, writs, injunction, but are not received on trials of causes, except in actions on account of which see Proof of Claims. None required for issue of any process, except writs of arrest for debt.

Writings. — May take, hold, convey, and devise real estate. No distinction as to rights of Writings. — Lie from municipal and police courts and trial justices in civil and criminal cases to the supreme judicial court, except in Cumberland and Kennebec counties, where they lie to the superior court. Appeal must be claimed within twenty-four hours. Also to supreme judicial court from county commissioner's judgments relating to damages for locating canals and railroads. From all decrees of courts of probate except appointment of special administrators, appeals lie to the supreme judicial court as a supreme court of probate, to which also, and bond and reasons of appeal filed, within twenty days. (See Claims against Deceased Persons.) Questions of law are taken from the supreme judicial court at least ten days before trial, and from the superior court, to the law court. (See Court Calendar for Maine.) Writings to statute proceedings not according to the course of common law, and writs of error, issue from supreme judicial court. Reviews may be granted by the same court in actions where judgment has been rendered by any judicial tribunal, where justice has failed by any mistake, accident, fraud, or misfortune, if petition is presented within six years after judgment, and within special periods for special causes provided by statute. Execution may be stayed or superseded by filing with the petition a bond in double the damages and costs.

Arrest. — On meane process for all actions of tort, on contract only when more than ten dollars is due exclusive of interest and the defendant is about to leave the State with property exceeding amount required for immediate support, and the creditor, his agent or attorney, makes oath, certified on the writ, that he has reason to believe, and does believe, the necessary facts exist. Defendant may give bail or poor debtor's bond to cite within fifteen days after judgment to disclose in any case, or may disclose at once. On executions issued on judgments founded on tort the body may be arrested and debtor may give bond to disclose within six months, pay the debt, or surrender himself to jail, or may disclose without. Executions issued on judgments founded on contract, or on prior judgment on contract, do not run against the body, unless the debtor was arrested on meane process, as above, or unless in special proceedings for disclosure he fails to appear for examination, or fails to obtain the benefit of disclosure proceedings, or conceals, or allows to be concealed, property disclosed before satisfaction of lien given. If trespass is found to be willful, no bond can be given on execution, and no notice to disclose for thirty days after commitment. No order of court is required for arrest. On any disclosure the disclosed property is applied to the debt and the debtor discharged, but the debt is not discharged thereby, the debtor remaining liable for the balance thereof, if no fraud, and a true disclosure is made on the notice, and in the manner prescribed by the statute.

Assignments. — See Insolvent Laws.

Attachment. — Attachments of any real or personal property of defendant not exempt, are as of course on meane process, upon direction of plaintiff, without affidavit, bond, or order of court. Officer is liable, if the attachment be wrongful, and entitled to indemnity before making the attachment, if any doubt. They are dissolved: 1. By assignment under insolvency of defendant on proceedings begun within four months. (See Insolvency.) 2. By death of defendant, and a commission of insolvency before levy. 3. By judgment for defendant. 4. By lapse of thirty days, or in case of absent defendant one year and thirty days (see Executions) after judgment, without levy. 5. By reference of suit and all demands between the parties, by rule of court, and judgment on report of referees. 6. By amendment of declaration by consent of parties in certain cases. No other creditors share. Personal property may be appraised and sold on the writ (unless a bond is given), and proceeds held. It is an essential to an attachment of real estate that the plaintiff's claim be specified particularly in the declaration. Where property is attached in a suit against one joint owner, any other may have it appraised and give bond and receive it. An attachment of real or personal property is vacated by delivery to the officer of a bond to plaintiff in such sum not less than the ad damnum of the writ, with sufficient sureties, approved by the plaintiff or his attorney, or by any justice or clerk of the supreme judicial, or superior, court, conditioned that within thirty days after rendition of judgment the defendant will pay the plaintiff or his attorney the amount of the judgment with costs. Officer must retain possession of personal property attached by him, except when on account of its bulk or other reason it cannot be immediately removed, in which case attachment can be preserved by filing return within five days in office of clerk of town where attachment is made. Incumbered chattels may be attached by paying incumbrances. Stock in corporation is attached by leaving a copy of writ, with notice of attachment, with clerk, cashier, or treasurer. Corporate property and franchises of toll corporations may be attached and levied on. No attachment can be made until debt is payable. Attachments of real estate expire at the end of five years from date of filing unless they are brought forward. Must be brought forward every five years thereafter. See Records.

Chattel Mortgages — If the mortgagor remains in possession, to be valid against third parties, must be recorded in town clerk's office where mortgagor resides; or, if out of the State, where property is when mortgage is made, or if of a corporation, where its place of business is. No renewal is required. A provision that the mortgagee in possession may sell portions or the whole of the mortgage property, and, with the proceeds thereof, purchase other property, which last shall represent the first and be covered by the mortgage, is valid against the world, as to the subsequent purchases made with the proceeds of the sales of the mortgaged property. A provision covering all additions and future acquisitions is valid between the parties to the mortgage and against the assignee in insolvency of the mortgagor. They are foreclosed by written notice served on the mortgagor by the mortgagee (or published, or copy left at place of last and usual abode, if he is out of the State) and recorded in the same place as the mortgage, and foreclosure is completed in sixty days after the record. It is usual for the mortgagor to retain possession, but he has no right to possession unless so stipulated. Mortgagee concealing mortgaged property, or any one aiding him, is punishable by fine and imprisonment. Rate of interest allowed on chattel mortgages and pledges, under two hundred dollars. See Interest.

Claims against Deceased Persons. — See Estates of Deceased Persons; Limitations; Proof of Claims.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Collateral Inheritance. — See Descent of Property.

Special Sales. — No agreement that personal property bargained and delivered shall remain the property of the seller till paid for is valid unless the same is in writing and signed by the person to be bound thereby. Should be recorded in the office of the clerk of the city, town, or plantation in which purchaser resides at the time of the purchase, if any of the purchasers are not residents of the State or reside in an unorganized territory of the State, then should be recorded in the registry of deeds in the county where the property is situated at the time of the sale. If not so recorded, the agreement is binding only between the parties thereto. Subject to redemption. Foreclosed same as mortgages of personal property.

Warehouse Receipts. — Every person in whose name merchandise is forwarded, factors or commission agents, or a person entrusted with bill of lading, custom-house permit, or warehouse-keeper's receipt for any of such merchandise, and every factor or agent not having documentary evidence of such merchandise, who is intrusted with the possession of merchandise for the purpose of sale, or as security for advances to be made thereon, shall be deemed the true owner thereof, so far as respects the validity to any lien or contract made by such shipper or agent with any other person, in relation to the sale or disposal of the whole or any part of such merchandise, money advanced, or any other obligation in writing, given by such person upon the receipt of such merchandise.

Such merchandise is taken from the agent as security for an antecedent demand, and the agent acquiring no right or interest therein other than what the agent could enforce against the owner, the merchandise may be sold for charges thereon.

Corporations. — Are now created only under general laws, except for municipal purposes where the objects can only be obtained by special legislation (Const art IV). Different methods are provided by statute for different kinds. Their corporate rights and powers are subject to the control of the legislature, unless incorporated by a special act prior to 17, 1831. Corporate existence continues three years after dissolution to prosecute suits and wind up affairs. Meetings are called, when for any reason it cannot be done, by warrant issued by a justice of the peace. Stockholders may be represented at meetings by proxies granted within thirty days of the meeting. Capital stock must be at least one thousand dollars; unlimited above that sum. Certain classes of corporations may issue stock without any par value. May purchase any property necessary for its business, including stock of other corporations, and may issue stock in payment, and may take stock in payment for services, and such stock so issued shall be fully paid and non-assessable. In the absence of actual fraud in the transaction, the judgment of the directors as to the value of the property purchased or services rendered shall be conclusive. Corporations may hold stock, bonds, securities, or evidences of indebtedness of any other corporation, and may exercise all rights of ownership, including right to vote. Delivery of certificate to bona fide purchaser, or pledgee for value, together with written transfer of same, or power of attorney to sell, assign, and transfer the same, signed by the owner of the stock, gives title as against all parties. Pledgee for value not liable as stockholder unless he is registered by the books of the corporation to be the absolute owner of the stock. Transfer of stock does not affect right of corporation to pay dividends to record owner of stock unless transferred or a new certificate is issued to purchaser. Executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees not liable as stockholders, but the estates are. Corporations are bound by parol contracts authorized by legal vote or by law. Stockholders are liable for debts contracted by the corporation so far as such to the amount of stock taken or held by them, which is not paid, in full or its equivalent, or is withdrawn, and in no other way except in banks. Stockholders may dissolve, dissolution may be accomplished by a bill in equity brought by any one or more of them. The supreme judicial court has equity jurisdiction over the settlement of corporations. Bondholders secured by corporation mortgage on foreclosure, and purchasers of such bonds or of right to redeem railroad, may become a corporation with same powers. Corporations under general law may increase stock, and also may reduce it, and return of stock made to secretary of state within ten days. May change par value of stock, number of shares, name of corporation and location, similar return required. Corporation cannot merge, or part with any part of its franchises without the consent of its stockholders voting properly called. Any stockholder voting against such action can, on petition to the supreme judicial court sitting in equity, have the value of his shares ascertained, and the corporation is obliged to purchase the shares at their value as finally decreed by the court. There is no absolute requirement that any part of capital stock must be paid in at the time of incorporation. The directors must be not less than three in number. They are not required to be residents of the State. The directors must be stockholders, and it is considered proper that they should have the directors take and pay for at least one share of stock each at the time of incorporation. Stockholders are liable for debts of corporation only to the par value of stock taken or held for by them. If stock is fully paid for, there is no further liability. In a corporation the fees, organization fees are as follows: For state officers and recording fifteen dollars, and also ten dollars to be paid state treasurer if capital stock does not exceed ten thousand dollars, fifty dollars when capital stock exceeds ten thousand dollars and does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars; ten dollars for each hundred thousand dollars exceeding one hundred thousand dollars. The real and personal property of the corporation, within the State, is taxed to the corporation as other property is taxed. Corporations incorporated under the laws of Maine, with certain exceptions, are required to pay an annual franchise tax of five dollars, if authorized capital of said corporation does not exceed fifty thousand dollars; ten dollars, if it exceeds fifty thousand dollars and does not exceed two hundred thousand dollars; fifty dollars, if it exceeds two hundred thousand and does not exceed five hundred thousand dollars; seventy-five dollars, if it exceeds five hundred thousand dollars and does not exceed one million dollars; and the further sum of fifty dollars per annum per million dollars, or any part thereof in excess of one million dollars.

The following corporations are excepted from franchise tax: Religious, charitable, educational, and benevolent corporations, and such corporations as may be organized under chapter 62 of the Revised Statutes (social, military, literary, or scientific purposes, lodges of the various orders, yacht club, etc.); corporations liable to a franchise tax other than the franchise tax as above; also such corporations as have been or may hereafter be excused from filing annual returns under the provisions of section 33, chapter 51 of the Revised Statutes, so long as the franchises of corporations so excused remain unused.

Every corporation liable to pay such annual franchise tax shall, on or before the first day of June, annually, file in the office of the secretary of state, a return signed by its president or treasurer, verified under oath, containing the names of its directors, president, treasurer, and clerk, with the residences of each, the location of its principal office in the State, and the amount of its capital stock; every corporation failing to comply with the foregoing shall forfeit to the State five hundred dollars.

The state board of assessors shall, on or before the first day of July, annually, assess the annual franchise tax for which each such corporation is liable, and shall report the same to the secretary of state, who shall thereupon notify each of said corporations of the amount of said tax assessed to it, and such tax shall become due and payable from said corporation, into the state treasury, on the first day of September thereafter. After the same has been in arrears for the period of one month, an action of debt may be maintained by the State against any corporation in arrears, to recover amount of such tax. Such tax is a preferred debt in case of insolvency under the laws of the State, or in any process of liquidation in its courts.

If any corporation so liable to taxation shall for one year neglect or refuse to pay to the State any tax or penalty assessed against it, its charter shall be liable to forfeiture. Foreign corporations (that is, existing by law of another State or of a foreign jurisdiction) may sue or be sued in this State and their property in this State attached and set off on execution. Acts of their agents have same effect as acts of agents of foreign private persons, unless prohibited by law.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Maine.

Creditor's Bill. — To apply to debts property which cannot be reached to be attached or is conveyed in fraud of creditors, and recover property that cannot be replevied, a remedy in equity is given.

Deeds. — Any interest in lands, whether grantor is seised or not, passes by deed, which must have a seal; a scroll is not sufficient. One witness is usual, but is not required except for proof of deed for want of acknowledgment. Before they can be recorded they must be acknowledged by the grantor or one of them or by their attorney executing the deed, before a justice of the peace or notary public having a seal, or women appointed for that purpose by the governor, in this State. Before any clerk of a court having a seal, notary public, justice of the peace or commissioner appointed by the governor of Maine, within the United States. Before a minister or consul of the United States or notary public in any foreign country. The seal of said court or the official seal of such notary, if he have one, shall be affixed to the certificate of acknowledgment, but if said acknowledgment is taken outside of the State of Maine, before a justice of the peace or notary not having a seal, a certificate under seal from its secretary of state or clerk of a court of record in the county where the officer resides or took the acknowledgment, authenticating the authority of the officer taking such acknowledgment, and the genuineness of his signature must be annexed to the deed. Notaries must have a seal. Commissioners for this purpose are appointed to act in other jurisdictions. Want of acknowledgment is supplied where grantor refuses, by proof of execution by subscribing witness only before a justice of the peace, on notice to the grantor, a copy of the deed in the registry operating in the mean time as a record for forty days; and when the grantor dies or departs from the State, without acknowledgment, by proof before a court of record by subscribing witness, or, in case of his death, by other testimony. These proceedings must be within the State. No interest in real estate greater than a tenancy at will can be created except in writing.

Wife or husband releases right by descent or otherwise by signature to the deed of the other containing apt words of release, or by separate deed. (See Descent of Property for rights of husband or wife in property of the other.) Husband must join with wife in conveying land directly conveyed to her by her husband. Deeds by an agent may be executed in his name for his principal.

Unless otherwise expressed, conveyances to two or more create a tenancy in common, unless in mortgage or trust, when they create joint tenancy. A conveyance of a greater estate than grantor has passes what he has and works no forfeiture. One seised in tail may convey in fee simple. See Records. The usual form of acknowledgment is: —

STATE OF MAINE,
COUNTY OF CUMBERLAND, } ss.

Before me,

Justice of the Peace.

knowledge by an agent of a corporation, it should be "the free act and deed of the corporation by name)."

Affidavits are usually written or printed on the deed.

Depositions — May be taken out of the State in causes pending on commission directed to a person specially appointed, with interrogatories and cross-interrogatories annexed, to be propounded to the witness by such person, and his answers written and signed, and the answers are annexed to the commission, with a certificate of the person to whom it is directed, showing that he has complied with the instructions contained in the commission. Depositions may also be taken before a justice or notary, on written notice of time and place given to the adverse party, or one of them, by a justice or notary, allowing one day for every twenty miles travel. Depositions of adverse parties may be taken on commission, but not on commission. But if deponent lives in the town where the trial is had, his deposition cannot be taken unless he has died or removed or has become so infirm or sick since taking of deposition as to be unable to attend at the trial, nor in any case if he is produced in court, unless the cause for which the deposition is taken has ceased to exist. Written notice is given by reading or copy; verbal notice by magistrate in person is sufficient. Counsel or attorney may attend at the time and place and examine on verbal or written interrogatories. Dependent may be compelled to appear and testify by summons, and, if recalcitrant, by capias or attachment. Dependent is sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and affirms under the pains and penalties of perjury. The deposition is written by the deponent, or a disinterested person in his presence, read to deponent, and signed by him. The magistrate makes a certificate stating: 1. That deponent was duly sworn. 2. How written, and by whom. 3. Whether the adverse party was notified and attended. 4. Name of parties. 5. Tribunal and time and place of trial. 6. Cause of taking same.

Depositions so taken are sealed up by the magistrate and delivered to the court or persons to whom the case is to be tried. Such depositions may be taken to be used in all civil causes for partition of land, divorce, review, and trials before referees and county commissioners, and in contested elections. They may be taken out of the State in the same manner, and are admitted or rejected in the discretion of the court. Depositions in person may be taken in or out of the State. Stenographers may be appointed to take depositions. Ordinarily taken by consent of parties, by a stenographer under the direction of the magistrate. Then typewritten copy read to or by the deponent and signed by him. Depositions taken stenographically by commissioner appointed by the governor. His notes are admissible without the signature of the deponent, if reading waived in writing by deponent.

Intestate Property. — The real estate of a person deceased intestate, being subject to the payment of debts, including a wood lot or other land used with the farm or dwelling, though not cleared, and also including wild lands of which he dies seized, but excluding wild lands conveyed by him, though afterwards cleared, descends according to the following rules: 1. If he leaves a widow and issue one third to the widow. If no issue, one half to the widow. And if no kindred, the whole to the widow. And to the widower shall descend the same share in his wife's real estate. There shall likewise descend to the widow the same share in all such real estate of which the deceased was seized during his life, and which has not been barred or released by deed, jointure, pecuniary provision, antenuptial settlement. In any event, one third shall descend to the widow or to the issue free from the payment of debts. 2. The remainder of which he dies seized, and if he leaves no widow, the whole shall descend in equal shares to his children, and to the issue of a deceased child by right of representation. If no child living at the time of his death, to all his lineal descendants, equally if all are of the same degree of kindred, if not, according to the right of representation. 3. If no such issue to the father and mother. 4. If no such issue or father, one half to mother. If no such issue or mother, it shall descend one half to his father, and in either case the remainder, or, if no such issue, father, or mother, the whole descends in equal shares to his brothers and sisters, and to children of deceased brothers or sisters by right of representation. 5. If no such issue, father, brother, or sister, to the mother; if no such issue, mother, brother, or sister, to the father. In either case, to the exclusion of issue of deceased brothers or sisters. 6. If no issue, father, mother, brother, or sister, to next of kin claiming through nearest issue. 7. Estate of minor deceased unmarried, inherited from either parent goes to the issue of same parent, and issue per capita, if of same degree, otherwise per stirpes. If intestate leaves no widower, widow, or kindred it escheats to the State. Degrees are determined by civil law. Half blood inherits same as whole. Since March 24, 1864 an illegitimate child is heir to parents who intermarry; is heir of his mother in any case and of a father who adopts child or makes the requisite acknowledgment that he is his father. And in the foregoing cases such child and its issue shall inherit from its parents respectively, and from their lineal and collateral kindred, and these from such child and its issue as if legitimate.

Real Estate descends in the same way, aside from what is allowed to the widow by law, and the court.

Probate Tax. — All property within the jurisdiction of this State, and any interest therein, whether belonging to inhabitants of this State or not, and whether tangible or intangible, which shall pass by will, by the interstate laws of this State, by allowance of a probate to a widow or child by deed, grant, sale, or gift, except in cases of a bona fide purchase for full consideration in money or money's worth, and except as herein otherwise provided made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor, to any person in trust or otherwise, except to or for the use of any educational, charitable, religious, or benevolent institution in this State, the property of which is by law exempt from taxation, shall be subject to an inheritance tax for the use of the State as hereinafter provided. Property which shall so pass to or for the use of (Class A) the husband, wife, lineal ancestor, lineal descendant, adopted child, the adoptive parent, the wife or widow of a son, or the husband of a daughter of a decedent, shall be subject to a tax upon the value of each bequest, devise, or distributive share, in excess of the exemption hereinafter provided, of one per cent. if such value does not exceed fifty thousand dollars, one and one half per cent. if such value exceeds fifty thousand dollars and does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars, and two per cent. if such value exceeds one hundred thousand dollars; the value exempt from taxation to or for the use of a husband, wife, father, mother, child, adopted child, or adoptive parent shall in each case be ten thousand dollars, and the value exempt from taxation to or for the use of any other member of (Class A) shall in each case be five hundred dollars. Property which shall so pass to or for the use of (Class B) a brother, sister, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece or cousin of decedent shall be subject to a tax upon the value of each bequest, devise, or distributive share in excess of five hundred dollars, and the tax of this class shall be four per cent. of its value for the use of the State if such value does not exceed fifty thousand dollars, four and one half per cent. if its value exceeds fifty thousand dollars and does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars and five per cent. if its value exceeds one hundred thousand dollars. Property which shall pass to or for the use of any others than members of Class A, Class B, and the institutions excepted in the first sentence of this section, shall be subject to a tax upon the value of each bequest, devise, or distributive share in excess of five hundred dollars, and the tax of this class shall be five per cent. of its value for the use of the State if such value does not exceed fifty thousand dollars, six per cent. if its value exceeds fifty thousand and does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars and seven per cent. if its value exceeds one hundred thousand dollars. Administrators, executors, and trustees, and any grantees under such conveyances made during the grantor's life shall be liable for such taxes, with interest, until the same have been paid.

Whenever property shall descend by devise, descent, bequest, or grant to a person for life or for a term of years and the remainder to another, except to or for the use of any educational, charitable, religious, or benevolent institution in this State, the value of the prior estate shall be determined by the Actuaries' Compound Experience Tables at four per cent. compound interest and a tax imposed at the rate prescribed in the preceding section for the class to which the devisee, legatee, or grantee of such estate belongs, and a tax shall be imposed at the same time upon the remaining value of such property at the rate prescribed in said section for the class to which the devisee, legatee, or grantee of such remainder belongs, subject to the exemptions provided in the preceding section. When it is impossible to compute the present value of any interest, because contingent, or dependent upon discretion or power of appointment or otherwise, attorney-general may settle tax as he thinks best.

Divorce.— See also Married Women.— Divorces may be granted by supreme judicial court (superior court, Cumberland County; either court in Androscoggin County) for adultery, impotence, extreme cruelty, utter desertion continued for three consecutive years next prior to the filing of the libel, gross and confirmed habits of intoxication from the use of intoxicating liquors, opium, or other drugs, cruel and abusive treatment, or on libel of wife, where the husband, being of sufficient ability or being able to labor and provide for her, grossly or wantonly and cruelly refuses or neglects to provide suitable maintenance for her, if parties were married here, cohabited here after marriage, or libelant resided here when cause accrued, or had resided here in good faith for one year before action was begun, or if the libelee is a resident of the State. Either party may testify. Decrees are absolute. The clerk is to return divorces to the secretary of state. If there is adultery on both sides, or collusion, no divorce shall be granted. Pending suit the court may order husband to pay allowance for the wife's expenses of prosecution or defense, and for support, and on final decree may award alimony, or a specific sum in lieu thereof. If divorce is decreed husband for fault of wife, he is entitled to one third in common of wife's real estate except wild lands, which shall descend to him as if she were dead, and court may allow him so much of her personal estate as seems reasonable. The wife, if decree is for husband's fault, other than impotence, is entitled to same share of husband's real estate, which shall descend other as if he were dead, restoration of her real and personal estate, also such reasonable alimony as the court may decree. When decreed for impotence of husband, wife is entitled to restoration of her property. Divorce is granted on a libel filed in clerk's office, or inserted as a declaration in a writ of attachment. A jury may be called by either party. The court has power to decree custody of minor children and may change the name of the wife at her request. A review may be granted within three years, when parties have not cohabited, nor either married anew, since former trial. Divorce obtained elsewhere for causes happening here while parties live here, which would not be sufficient in this State, are void here; other foreign divorces are valid. Libel may be brought for a decree of nullity of marriage.

Dower.— Dower abolished by act taking effect May 1, 1895, except as to persons then married; took effect as to them January 1, 1897. See Descent of Property.

Estates of Deceased Persons.— Executors and administrators are appointed by the probate court at any time within twenty years after death. Administration of the estate on dying intestate is granted by the judge of probate, having jurisdiction, to the widow, next of kin, or husband of the daughter of deceased, or to two or more of whom he thinks fit, if the applicants are over twenty-one and are in other respects qualified. If these persons are unsuitable, or, being residents in the county where said court is held, they, after due notice, neglect or refuse for thirty days after death of the intestate to take out letters of administration, the judge may appoint any person or persons whom he deems suitable. Residents of other States may be executors or administrators, and may appoint an agent in this State. Bond is required, generally in double the value of the personal property belonging to the estate, except of executors excused by the will. If a surety company furnishes the bond two sureties are necessary, who must be residents of this State. Notice is given by register of probate. Claims should be presented to the administrator or executor, or, if out of the State, to his agent in the State or filed in the court, supported by affidavit of claimant or some other person cognizant thereof. Claims must be presented within fourteen months after executor or administrator is qualified. (See, also, Proofs.)

When suit must be brought on claims against the estate, see Limitation of Actions. Exorbitant claims may be submitted to commissioners. If assets of value of twenty dollars are due to estate after said twenty years, and no administration has been granted, an administration will be granted within two years after said assets accrue. Such administration shall affect no other property, and shall not revive debts due to or by the estate. Executors and administrators dispose of personal property, account to probate court, and, in paying debts, may sell real estate to pay debts, or such as is taken on mortgage. In some other cases, by obtaining license, taking oath, and giving special bond. Real estate is appraised by three appraisers appointed by the court. Special administrators are appointed pending appeals. Persons suspected of concealing, etc., property may be examined, compelled to answer by imprisonment, and are liable to an action for damages to any party injured. Persons interested in probate bonds, having obtained the approval of the probate court, or whose interest has been specifically determined by decree of the court, may bring suit in the name of the judge. Special administrators in old cases may be appointed to prosecute French spoliation claims. If an estate is declared insolvent, two commissioners are appointed to hear and determine claims. (See Proof of Claims.) Six months are allowed for presentation. Time may be extended to eighteen months, and new bonds may be issued. Secured creditors prove only for unsecured balances. Interest is allowed on claims from the date of death to time of commissioners' first report unless otherwise provided in the will. Report is made to probate court, and any party interested may give notice of appeal within twenty days. Appeal is determined by action for money had and received within three months after the report is made. Suits already begun may be prosecuted to determine claim; contingent claims may be proved and receive a dividend if they are not absolute in four years after administration is granted. Debts due from insolvent estate are paid in the following order: 1. Expenses of funeral and administration. 2. The debts due to the widow or widower and children. 3. Expenses of last sickness. 4. Debts due to a preference under laws of United States. 5. Public rates and taxes due. 6. All other debts. The judge of probate may allow to widow whatever he deems just from the personal estate of any intestate estate, or any testate estate which is not provided for when no provision is made for the widow in the will, or when she waives such provision. Widow in all such cases also has same share of the personal property that she would have had in case of intestate estate. When a partner dies the firm property is inventoried, appraised and administered. The survivor may give bond to settle estate, pay debts, and pay administrator his share. If he does not, it is settled by the administrator. Partnership estate may be rendered insolvent and commissioners appointed, and exorbitant claims determined by commissioners as in estates of individuals. The estate of survivors is not affected. Joint claims are severed by death of one debtor. See Testimony.

Writs — Issue after twenty-four hours and within one year, returnable in three days, and may be renewed at any time within ten years from the return day. On judgment by default against absent defendants, no execution issues for one year unless plaintiff gives bond to repay if reversed on review brought within one year. Levy in such case is not valid if the bond is omitted by accident. In cross-actions against foreign plaintiffs defendant may set off his judgment or execution against judgment or execution against Execution may be made on all attachable property. On real estate, by appraisal by three appraisers, chosen one by each party and one by the officer, and describing it by metes and bounds or otherwise so as to identify it as land set off to the creditor. If land is mortgaged it may be taken in the same way, deducting value of the mortgage. If the land is taken as estates in fee simple. All interest of debtor passes unless larger part is levied on. When it cannot be described by metes and bounds, levy is made on the land if it cannot be divided without injury, a part may be set off in common. Levy on real estate may be made by appraisal or on rents and profits. Land fraudulently conveyed to the debtor, or of which he has been disseized, may be levied on as his. Rights in mortgaged property, to redeem from all levies by sale or appraisal (except levies to redeem from levy), to conveyance under contract, interests by possession, and interests in land and estates for life, may be sold. Lands of banks or manufacturing corporations and their titles as mortgagees may also be sold. Levy by appraisal and deeds (where levy is by sale) must be recorded within three months after levy, to be good against intervening title, and levy must be made within thirty days after judgment, or after execution may issue against absent defendant to hold under attachment on mesne process. Real estate levied on in either way may be redeemed in one year thereafter. Absent defendant defaulted without service or other notice than publication may redeem in three months after proceedings for a review are ended, if begun in six months after levy. Franchises of railroad corporations are levied on by sale to bidder, who will take the use for the shortest time to satisfy debt, and real estate which may be levied on by appraisal may be sold in like manner, as rights to redeem mortgaged property.

On Goods and Chattels. — Money, and, if creditor accepts, evidences of indebtedness circulated as money, may be applied at par value. Other goods and chattels are kept four days and sold at public auction after forty-eight hours' notice. Incumbered chattels may be sold by paying incumbrances, or subject to them without paying.

Exemptions. — The following personal property is exempt from attachment and levy: Wearing apparel; household furniture necessary for himself, wife, and children not exceeding one hundred dollars in value, and one bedstead, bed and bedding for each two members, family portraits, bibles, school-books in actual use; copy of state statutes, library worth one hundred and fifty dollars, pew in use, one cooking and all iron warming stoves, charcoal, twelve cords of wood at home for use; five tons of anthracite and fifty bushels of bituminous coal, ten dollars' worth of lumber, wood, or bark, all produce till harvested, one barrel flour, thirty bushels of corn, grain, all potatoes raised or bought and necessary for debtor or his family, half an acre of flax and manufactures therefrom for use of himself or family, tools of trade, fifty dollars' worth of materials and stock procured and necessary for trade or business and intended to be used in same, sewing-machine worth one hundred dollars, one pair of working cattle, or one pair of horses or mules worth three hundred dollars, and hay to keep them through the winter, one harness worth twenty dollars for each horse or mule; a horse sled or ox sled, two swine, one cow, and a heifer under three years, or two cows if no oxen, horse, or mule, ten sheep with their wool and lambs until one year old, hay sufficient to keep them through the winter, fifty dollars' worth of domestic fowl, one plow, one cart or truck wagon or one express wagon, one harrow, one yoke with bows, ring, and staple, two chains, one ox sled, one mowing-machine, one boat of two tons employed in fishing and owned exclusively by an inhabitant of the State, life and accident insurance policies except excess of annual cash premiums for two years above one hundred and fifty dollars. Also two shares in loan and building associations, also the receipts of certain agricultural societies until their expenses, purses, and premiums are paid, provided the same are paid within three months from close of fair.

Real Estate. — Lot of land and buildings worth five hundred dollars, if owner files required certificate in registry of deeds, is exempt as a homestead from all attachments except for liens of mechanics and material-men; also one cemetery lot.

Garnishment. — Known as trustee process in this State. See Trustee Process.

Inheritance Taxes. — See Descent of Property.

Insolvent Estates. — See Estates of Deceased Persons.

Insolvent Laws. — The national bankruptcy act of 1898 has suspended the operation of this law, in cases arising since said act went into effect.

Interest — Is six per cent., if no other rate is agreed on in writing. No usury laws. Judgments and verdicts bear interest at six per cent. Interest not specified in contract runs from date of demand or of suit. On loans for less than three hundred dollars, interest is allowed, at rate not exceeding twelve per cent. per annum. Licenses may be obtained authorizing persons in business of loaning money in sums not exceeding three hundred dollars at three and one half per cent. per month; such loans to expire on succeeding January 1, after loan is made.

Judgment — On verdict, default, or nonsuit, or certificate from law court in term time is rendered by a general order at the end of the term. On such certificate in vacation it goes as of the general order day of preceding term; but attachments and time for disclosures run from the next term. Special judgment is rendered for good cause in any case at any time during the term when the case is in order for it. Judgments bear interest at six per cent. They do not constitute any lien on real estate until levy, except under an attachment on mesne process. (See Attachments.) Judgment in justice courts is rendered on the return day by default, if no appearance. Judgments in other courts, at the end of term unless specially ordered before. Judgments have no priority upon debtor's property unless by virtue of prior attachment on mesne process or prior levy.

License. — Hawkers and Peddlers' Act of 1901, ch 277, held unconstitutional. (State v. Mitchell, 97 Me. 66.) No new act. Itinerant vendors are required to take out licenses under certain conditions. Itinerant vendors act does not apply to sales made to dealers by commercial travelers or selling agents in the usual course of business, nor to bona fide sales of goods, wares, and merchandise by sample for future delivery, or to hawkers on the street, or peddlers from vehicles. Does apply to retail sales of goods, wares, and merchandise made from a car, steamer, or vessel.

Liens. — The following liens are given by statute, to be enforced by attachment or bill in equity within the periods specified for each: On a house, building, or appurtenances, including buildings erected or owned by any city, town, county, school district, or other municipal corporation, and the interest of the owner in the land or enough for Minors and others disabled have the same time in foregoing cases after disability ceases. Actions on bonds, obligations, etc., stolen before February 12, 1875, must be brought within eighteen months after they become payable unless by parties from whom they were stolen. In action failing of service or return, defeated for matter of form, or judgment for plaintiff reversed in error, new actions may be brought within six months thereafter. In case of mutual dealings, time runs from time of last item proved. Suits for penalties accruing to plaintiff, to be brought within one year; if not so done, by indictment within two years. If cause of action is fraudulently concealed time runs from discovery. Making writ with intent to serve is commencement of suit. All limitations apply to set-off. Claims barred may be revived by writing; the effect of part payment is not impaired by the statutes. Actions against executors and administrators on claim against the estate must be commenced and served within twenty months after qualification of executor or administrator, but not until expiration of thirty days after claim is presented. How claim against estate should be presented. See Estates of Deceased Persons. Actions brought within one year after such qualification shall be continued without costs to either party, until the expiration of the year, and may be barred by tender of debt within the year. When assets come into the hands of an executor or administrator after the twenty months, an action may be commenced within six months after the creditor had notice of the receipt of such asset. If action on covenant or contract does not accrue within the eighteen months, claim may be filed in probate office within that time, verified as in case of claims presented to commissioners on insolvent estates. Sufficient assets to pay will be reserved. The supreme judicial court has jurisdiction in equity where creditor's claim is barred at law. Actions against towns for damages by defect of highway are limited to one year; real actions for possession, twenty years after cause accrues; or any disability to sue ceases, to twenty years, and absolutely in forty years; of claimant of property sold by assignee, in sixty days after sale. Married Women — If married since April 21, 1844, retain their property, but may release control to the husband. If since April 26, 1852, the husband is not liable for antenuptial debts. Married women have now the same rights to property, the same power to make contracts, to sue and be sued, that men have. Upon desertion by the husband and his leaving the State, the wife may be authorized by the court to receive and use his personal property. If husband or wife without just cause deserts the other for one year, the fact can be established by decree of probate court, which decree enables the one deserted to convey his or her real estate without joinder of the other and bars the one deserting from all rights by distribution in the estate of the other, also bars right to waive provisions of the will of the one so deserted. Care and custody of minor children may be determined by said decree. Decree may also prohibit deserting husband from exercising restraint over wife. Her estate is liable only for her own contracts. Husband is not liable for her torts. Husband living apart from wife and children may be compelled to support them. Married woman twenty-one or older may be appointed guardian and act without assent of her husband.

Women become of age at twenty-one. Marriage of female ward annuls guardianship. A woman over eighteen years of age may marry without the consent of her parent or guardian.

Mortgages on Real Estate — Are deeds poll, with condition of defeasance, executed and recorded in same manner as deeds. Notes are usually given for the debt; bonds are sometimes used. Entry by written consent of mortgagor. 3. Entry peaceably, if not opposed, with two witnesses who make a sworn certificate of the fact. Abstract of writ of possession and return, written consent, or certificate to be recorded in same place as mortgage within thirty days after entry. Possession must be retained. Foreclosure without taking possession is: 1. By three weeks' notice in a newspaper, describing land, stating that condition is broken, and claiming foreclosure. 2. By service of same on mortgagor, to be recorded within thirty days after last publication or service. Time runs from possession taken, first publication, or service of notice. Bill in equity lies for discharge of mortgage satisfied, and to redeem mortgage after tender or demand for account and refusal or neglect of mortgagee ish it. Mortgages may be foreclosed in equity. Writ of entry may be had for recovery from mortgagee in possession after mortgage is satisfied. Mortgages are discharged by entry in the margin of the record, signed by the mortgagee personally or by his executor, administrator, or assignee, or by an attorney at law authorized in writing, or by a deed. No statute exists in regard to power of sale mortgages, but they are in use and used by the courts. (104 Me. 527.) Mortgaged real estate is taxed, but the loan is exempt from taxation.

Actions may be commenced on a statement of a balance sheet, but items are preferable, and necessary in an attachment of real estate, and in entering suit. Against insolvent estates of deceased persons, or when required by executor or administrator and under assignments, the following form is used for proof (to be annexed to exhibits annexed): —

Sufficiency of bond is determined by officer, who is liable for want thereof. Beasts distrained or impounded to recover a penalty may be replevied before a trial justice. Set-off of Writs. — See Actions.

Set-off. — Counter-claims founded in judgment or contract, liquidated or ascertainable by calculation, may be set off by an account filed at first term by defendant. An account accrued after notice of assignment of a claim sued cannot be set off as against assignee. An execution may be set off against another execution when presented by an officer. Judgments may be set off of record.

Stay of Execution. — Granted on review and writ of error on filing bond and against absent defendants. (See Executions.)

Supplementary Proceedings — Are by application made by a judgment creditor to a commissioner appointed therefor, a judge of probate, register of probate, or a judge of a municipal or police court, in the county in which debtor resides, who cites the debtor to disclose, and the creditor may examine. Property disclosed and not exempt is applied to the debt — money, etc., directly; bills, etc., at par if the creditor accepts. If the parties do not agree as to the value of chattels they may be appraised by the commissioner; if petitioner accepts, the chattels may be assigned by debtor to the creditor. If appraised for more than debt and costs, creditor may take them upon paying or securing payment of the overplus; if chooses in action, to assign to the creditor on his giving bond to account for the proceeds. The creditor has a lien on real estate disclosed by filing within five days a certificate of names of parties, amount of judgment, fact of disclosure, in the registry of deeds; the lien continues thirty days after filing; the same lien on personal property. Others holding debtor's property in trust or by fraud may be subpoenaed and examined. If the commissioner certifies that any property is so held, the creditor has a lien on it for thirty days, to be enforced by bill in equity or trustee process. The commissioner may compel obedience, and penalties are provided for disposing of property by the debtor or any one assisting.

Taxes. — (For succession taxes, see Descent of Property; for corporation taxes, see Corporations.) — Taxes are assessed on polls, real estate, and personal property, by assessors appointed by each town, — county and state taxes being first apportioned to towns. Exempted property is: property of the United States; of this State and the property of any public municipal corporation of this State appropriated to public uses if located within the corporate limits; also pipes, fixtures, hydrants, conduits, etc., of public municipal corporations engaged in supplying water, power, or light, if located outside of the limits of such public municipal corporations; all bonds issued since February 1, 1909, by the state of Maine or any county, municipality, village corporation, or water district therein; property exempted by articles of separation from Massachusetts; the personal property of all literary and scientific institutions, the real and personal property of all benevolent and charitable institutions incorporated by this State; the real estate of all literary and scientific institutions occupied by them for their purposes or by any officer thereof as a residence; and real estate of colleges in this State (under certain conditions) authorized to confer degree of bachelor of arts or bachelor of science; household furniture worth two hundred dollars, wearing apparel, farming utensils, mechanics' tools, musical instruments worth not exceeding fifty dollars in value; houses of religious worship, including vestries and pews, and furniture; parsonage worth six thousand dollars, from which no rent is received, and personal property not exceeding six thousand dollars in value (all other property of religious society is taxable, tax on ministry fund is repaid by State); mules and horses under six months old and neat cattle thirty months old and under and all sheep and swine; hay, grain, potatoes, orchard products, and wool, in possession of producer; mines for ten years; property of water companies; polls and estates of Indians, persons under guardianship or blind, infirm persons, and polls of all soldiers and sailors who receive pensions from this State. Assessors give notice prior to April 1 of each year that inhabitants of their town or city, as case may be, must make and bring into the assessors at time fixed in said notice (generally within fifteen days after April 1) a true and perfect list of their polls and real and personal estate, not exempt from taxation, of which they were possessed on the first day of April of that year. Unless such list is returned, resident taxpayer is barred of his right to apply for abatement, unless he offers such list with his application for abatement and satisfies them that he was unable to offer it at appointed time. Any employer of over twenty-five men, in any one town or city, shall upon written request of chairman of assessors of such town or city, furnish a complete list of the names of all men in his employ. Penalty of fifty dollars for non-compliance. Taxes are assessed as of April 1 (liens imposed by statute thereof attach that day), on real property where situated, and on personal where owner lives; on polls where the party taxed lives. Property owned by non-residents, or where owner is unknown, used in various kinds of business is taxed where it is situated. Guardians of minors are assessed where they live; of others, where the wards live. Towns and cities at their annual meetings determine when their taxes shall be payable and may require payment of interest thereafter. Special provisions are made as to taxation of property in hands of executors, administrators, and trustees. Assessors commit taxes to collector with a warrant for collection, under which he may distrain or arrest. A lien is given on real estate. If tax on real estate is not paid before first Monday in February in year succeeding the year it was assessed, land will be sold to pay the tax. Land of non-residents may be redeemed within one year after sale; of residents, within two years. Special state taxes of railroad, express, telegraph, telephone, and insurance companies. Taxes may be collected by suit directed by municipal officers, but no costs are recoverable unless there has been a previous demand. Collector may bring suit to collect tax on real estate in his own name, and attach the real estate.

Testimony. — Witnesses are not excluded from testifying by reason of interest unless one of the parties to the action is made party as an heir, executor, or administrator, and in such case deposition of a party taken in lifetime of the other may be used, and party may to facts happening since decease of other party, and to those happening before if party does, and generally where representative party is nominal only. Representative must testify as to facts legally admissible, happening before death of person he represents, if requested to do so by opposite party, but this does not make the opposite witness if the representative party objects. Copies of deeds from registry of deeds if party does not claim as grantee or his heir or justify as his servant, of documents or in office of consul, vice-consul, or commercial agent of the United States, of records in-house, are evidence as originals. See Depositions.

Deeds — Are sometimes but not usually used for security, except by corporations and bonds.

Trustee Process. — All personal actions, except detinue, replevin, malicious prosecution, libel, and assault and battery, may be commenced by a writ in which one or more trustees are alleged to have goods, effects, or credits of principal defendant in his hands, the amount demanded is not less than five dollars, and is served by summons. The action is returnable in some county where a trustee lives. Additional trustees may be introduced before service on principal defendant, or after, if service on him is again made. If he is out of the State, notice may be ordered as upon an attachment. All corporations, cities, towns, etc., may be made trustees and disclose by an agent or attorney or person to whom legal service is made. Non-residents may be charged as trustees if found here. Actions may be brought in municipal courts and before trial justices if amount demanded is not less than five nor more than twenty dollars unless otherwise limited in acting such court. If the trustee discloses at the first term he recovers costs out of the property or against the plaintiff, as the case may be; additional costs if out of the county or about to go away, or by consent in any case, may disclose before a Justice of the Peace. Disclosure must be sworn to, is taken prima facie as true, but plaintiff, defendant, or any party may allege or prove any material fact. If property disclosed is claimed by a third party he may become a party and try his title. If a trustee charged does not pay over on return day within thirty days after judgment, scire facias lies. Specific goods are sold by the trustee in other cases. No person is to be charged as trustee by reason of 1. Negotiable instruments; 2. Money collected by him as an officer; 3. Money in his hands as a public officer, or as due only on a contingency; 4. Money due on a judgment while he is liable to an execution; 5. Wages not over twenty dollars, of debtor, earned within a month, unless for services, and ten dollars exempt in all cases; 6. Wages of wife or minor child not trustee; 7. Account of debt of husband or parent; 8. When service was by leaving copy, and no made or negotiable security given before actual knowledge of service; 9. Any money due for board of a member of the legislature during a session; 10. Two shares in building association; 11. Receipts of Maine State Agricultural Society and Eastern Maine Fair and County Agricultural Societies, until expenses, purses, etc., are paid, within three months. Executors and administrators, and also persons receiving real or personal conveyances of personal property, may be held as trustees. Trustees are charged with property not yet payable, but do not pay before the time fixed by the contract. When partnership is made trustee, service of writ on one partner binds the trustee, provided it is subsequently made on the other partners. Plaintiff recovers no costs except officer's entry fee, if any paid, when defendant is defaulted without appearance, when offer of judgment is filed on return day and offer is accepted, or when if not accepted the plaintiff recovers more than the amount of the offer and interest thereon.

Wills. — Property may be disposed of by will in writing, signed by testator or some other person at his request and in his presence, and subscribed in the presence of the testator by three credible attesting witnesses not beneficially interested, which is valid until revoked, altered, or revoked by testator or by some person by his direction and in his presence by a subsequent writing, or by operation of law from change of condition. Children are disinherited. No limit on amount that can be given by testator to charity. Wife's estate in real estate cannot be destroyed by will of husband. (See Descent of Property.) Real estate required afterwards may pass. A posthumous child not provided for, and unless the will appears to be intentional, a living child or issue of deceased child not mentioned takes same share as if the deceased had died intestate. A relative having a devise and no issue, the devise goes to his issue, if any. Devisees of real estate are recorded as deeds if the will has been probated. Wills must be proved and allowed by probate court. Non-resident wills must be made in last sickness, at testator's house, or where he last resided ten days before making it (unless suddenly taken sick and dying before returning) except in case of soldiers and sailors. Must be reduced to writing within six days or they cannot be proved after six months. Cannot dispose of more than one hundred dollars without three witnesses, if requested to be such.

MARYLAND LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Brown, Marshall, Brune & Thomas, of Baltimore.

The next legislature convenes in January, 1920.

All references to the Code are to Bagby's Annotated Code of the Public Civil Laws legalized by Acts 1912, ch. 21, and Acts 1914, ch. 16.

Accounts. — Proof may be made of open accounts by affidavit of party bringing suit of the delivery of goods or doing of work or services, and that no payment, satisfaction, or security has been given, and that amount claimed is due, with the further affidavit of any disinterested credible witness proving the delivery or sale of money or goods, or rendering of services. (Code, vol. 1, art. 35, § 48.)

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — The distinctive nature of actions at common law arising ex contractu remains, though simpler forms are used. Any declaration containing a plain statement of facts necessary to constitute a ground of action is sufficient, and any plea necessary to form a legal defense is sufficient without reference to mere form; the fictions of the action of ejectment at common law are abolished. Amendment is allowed at any time before verdict. (Code, vol. 2, art. 75, §§ 3-35, and Code, vol. 3, art. 75, § 107.)

By Acts 1918, ch. 392, it is provided that in all actions ex contractu there shall be no distinction in the pleadings by reason of presence or absence of the seal, and counts for recovery on sealed instruments may be joined with counts upon unsealed, and there shall be but one form of action arising ex contractu, namely, assumpsit, in which it shall be sufficient for plaintiff to state briefly in his declaration the facts essential to recovery, but nothing shall be construed as abolishing the use of the common counts. And it shall be sufficient for defendant to file a general issue plea that he never was indebted or never promised, under either of which forms all matters of defense and discharge shall be admissible in evidence, except such as could only be availed of by special plea.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates.

Affidavits. — No particular form is required for ordinary affidavits. They may be made outside the State before a notary public or a commissioner of deeds for Maryland. (Code, vol. 1, art. 18.) See Claims against Estates; Proof of Claims.

Aliens. — Not enemies, may take and hold lands, tenements, and hereditaments acquired by purchase, or to which they would, if citizens, be entitled by descent; and they may sell, devise, or dispose of the same, or transmit the same to their heirs as fully and effectually, and in the same manner, as if by birth they were citizens of this State. (Code, vol. 1, art. 3.)

Appeals. — From judgments or determinations of law in the circuit courts for the counties, and in the superior court, court of common pleas, city court, and criminal court of Baltimore city, appeals or writs of error may be taken to the court of appeals of Maryland at any time within two months after the date of such judgments or determinations, but not afterwards. (Rule 27, Court of Appeals.)

Appeals from decrees or orders of courts of equity can be taken to the court of appeals within two months from the date of decree or order appealed from, but not afterwards, unless in case of fraud or mistake in obtaining the decree or order, in which case appeal may be entered within two months from discovery of the fraud or mistake.

Appeals from orders or decrees of orphans' courts to court of appeals may be taken within thirty days from such order or decree appealed from.

Appeals from the judgments or orders of the commissioner of the land office to the court of appeals may be taken within nine months from date of judgment or order appealed from. (Rule 14, Court of Appeals.)

Appeals from the county commissioners to the circuit court of the county may be taken at any time within sixty days from the time of making such decision or order. (Code, vol. 1, art. 5.)

Appeals from justices of the peace in the counties to the circuit courts, and in the city of Baltimore to the city court, may be taken at any time within sixty days from the rendition of the judgment (Code, vol. 1, art. 5); in criminal cases within ten days. (Acts 1894, ch. 338.)

By Acts 1916, ch. 625, it is provided that the bills of exception may be signed at any time within period that parties shall have the right to appeal; and upon filing order for appeal, such time shall be further extended until ten days before period when it is required that re-transmitted to the court of appeals; but that the party appealing shall submit the record to the appellee not less than thirty days prior to the time that the record must be returned to the court of appeals for purpose of amendments or additions, and that the appellee return same to the appellant within fifteen days thereafter with such amendments or additions as may be desired. Upon failure to return, the court shall sign bills of exception as prayed for. If returned in time, the same with such additions or amendments shall forthwith be returned to the court who shall settle the same within five days thereafter.

§ — For civil obligations is abolished. The constitutional provision that "no one shall be imprisoned for debt" applies to obligations civil in their nature, and not to fines or penalties imposed by courts for a breach of the peace or the commission of a crime.

Amendments. — See Insolvency.

Assignment of Choses in Action. — The assignee of any judgment, bond, specialty, or chose in action for the payment of money or any legacy or distributive share of the estate of a deceased person, bona fide entitled thereto by assignment in writing, signed by the assignor, or a person authorized to make the same, may, by virtue of such assignment, maintain an action and issue an execution in his own name against the debtor therein named in the same manner as the assignor might have done before the assignment. Any defendant may make any legal or equitable defense as might or could have been had and maintained against the assignor at the time of such assignment, and before notice thereof, and to the same effect as if the assignment had been made by the assignor. (Code, vol. 1, art. 8.)

Attachments. — Writ may be served by sheriff of jurisdiction whence issued, or in any other county in which the defendant is. Are authorized in this State against any kind of property or credits of the defendant in the hands of the plaintiff, or of any one else, or lands in which the defendant is: 1st. A non-resident of this State (notwithstanding the plaintiff is a non-resident) 2d. Where he absconds, — and one may become an absconding debtor without leaving the State, — and in this case may attach although debt not matured. (Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 50.) By Acts 1916, ch. 596, it is provided that any corporation incorporated by this State, or any corporation chartered by this State, which for a period of six months next preceding is without one resident agent whose name and address is given in its charter or filed with the state tax commission in conformity with sec. 8a, art. 23, may be proceeded against in same manner as non-resident individuals unless incorporated prior to January 1, 1916, and have at least one director who is a citizen of this State actually residing in this State. The above attachments are issued by the clerk of court, on making the affidavit and producing the proofs before the clerk of the court from which such attachment shall issue, or upon presenting to the clerk the affidavit and proofs when said affidavit is made before him. An affidavit that defendant is bona fide indebted, and has absconded, or is a non-resident, accompanied by the evidences of indebtedness, that is, note, bond, etc., is required. The affidavit required may be made before any judge of the peace, or any judge of a court of law in this State, or before any judge of a court of record of the United States, or of any State, District, or Territory of the United States, or before a commissioner appointed by this State to take acknowledgment of deeds, or before a notary public, or, if out of the United States, before a consul or vice-consul of the United States, or the affidavit may be made before the clerk of the court from which the attachment shall issue. The affidavit may be made by the creditor, or one of them, or by more than one, or by the agent of the creditor or creditors, by the president, cashier, or other officer of a corporation, by any executor or administrator, or by guardian of an estate, or by the infant himself, or by the husband of a married woman, or by the committee on lunatics. (Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 7.) 3d. On original process based on account, note, or other evidence of debt, with affidavit made before clerk of court from which attachment shall issue, or other officer authorized to take affidavits (Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 36), that the defendant named in writ is bona fide indebted, and that plaintiff knows or has reason to believe that the debtor is about to abscond from this State, or, second, that the defendant has absconded, disposed of, or concealed, or is about to assign, dispose of, or conceal his property, or some portion thereof, with the intent to defraud his creditors; or, third, that the defendant has fraudulently contracted the debt, or incurred the obligation, respecting which the attachment is brought; or, fourth, that the defendant has removed, or is about to remove his person, or some portion thereof, out of this State with the intent to defraud his creditors, in all those cases under 3d although debt not matured. (Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 50.) Every person issuing an attachment on original process must take from the plaintiff, or some one in his behalf, a bond to the State, with security to be approved by the clerk, in double the amount claimed, for satisfying all costs which may be awarded to such defendant, or to any other person interested, and all damages which may be recovered against the plaintiff by the defendant suing out such attachment. The form of bond is prescribed by Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 39. Code also provides that such attachments may be instituted either in the county in which the defendant resides, or where the property proposed to be attached may be located, or where the proposed garnishee resides. 4th. Attachment on judgment or decree is treated as an execution and governed by like rules. An execution by way of attachment may issue at any time within twelve years from date of judgment. 5th. Where two or more judgments have been returned non est against a defendant, the plaintiff, on proof of his claim by affidavit and the production of the written evidence of the debt, if any, shall be entitled to a writ of attachment, and thereupon the proceedings are the same as against absconding debtors. 6th. Attachment levied on the property of a person who is afterwards declared an insolvent is a lien on such property if levied before the application, and is not dissolved by the proceedings in insolvency. 6th. Article 45 of the Code (vol. 1) authorizes suits, by way of attachment or otherwise, against married women upon their contracts, and for wrongs independent of contract, as fully as if they were unmarried; and upon judgments recovered against them, execution may be issued, as if they were unmarried. See Married Women. 7th. Attachments may be had against non-resident or absconding debtors in cases ex contractu for unliquidated damages, or in actions independent of contract, on filing a declaration with affidavit and bond similar to that in attachment on original process. The practice under this head in other respects conforms to that in attachment in actions ex contractu for liquidated damages. The salary of a public officer, or employee of a municipal corporation, or funds in hands of government due its agents, are not attachable; nor property or funds in custody of law; or under control of a court, in hands of its trustees. Wages, hire, or salary not due at date of attachment, of whatever kind, cannot be attached, and the sum of one hundred dollars, out of what is due, is exempted. (Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 33.) Justices of the peace have jurisdiction in attachments where the claim is under one hundred dollars. See People's Court Law, in Court Calendar, and also Hodge and McLane on "Law of Attachments in Maryland." As to procedure by claimants of property attached or taken in execution, not belonging to defendant, and as to sale of perishable property attached, see Code, vol. 1, art. 9, §§ 27, 47. Section 13 also provides that no judgment or condemnation nisi shall be made absolute where the garnishee has failed to appear or plead, without proof by the plaintiff of his case, in the same manner as in cases of judgments by default ex parte. Subsequent attaching creditors do not share pro rata with first attaching creditors. The assets are distributed according to priority in laying attachments — the first attaching creditors being paid in full, provided there are sufficient assets, then the second, etc.

By Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 18, provisions are made for attaching the interest which any defendant has, at the time of such attachment, in the capital, joint stock, or debts of a corporation standing on its books in his name.

By Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 47, the owner of any personal property taken under attachment or execution against another person may file claim by petition under oath, and clerk will then docket suit and issue summons against both plaintiff and defendant, and the claimant may recover both costs and damages for seizure. By Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 27, the court or judge in vacation may order any attached property to be sold. Attachment proceedings can be amended. (Code, vol. 1, art. 9, § 28.)

Chattel Mortgages — Are in use, and in practice are tantamount to bills of sale. (Code, vol. 1, art. 21, § 48.) A like affidavit of consideration is required to chattel mortgages and bills of sale as is required to mortgages of real estate. See Mortgages. By Code, vol. 1, art. 21, § 45, they may be acknowledged within the State as deeds are. Chattel mortgages and bills of sale must be recorded within twenty days from their date in the county or city where the mortgagor or vendor resides. The fraudulent removal or sale of mortgaged personal property is a misdemeanor. (Code, vol. 3, art. 27, § 184.) A party cannot convey subsequently to be acquired goods so as to give the mortgagee or grantee a legal title or a legal right of action against a party seizing them, but an express conveyance thereof creates in equity a valid lien upon property subsequently acquired. (46 Md. 548.) A chattel mortgage on merchandise does not cover future acquisitions unless expressly stated.

Claims against Estates. — In granting letters of administration preference is given to: (1) surviving husband or widow or child or children; (2) grandchild; (3) father; (4) mother; (5) brothers and sisters; (6) next of kin. Preference when equal degree: (1) male to female; (2) whole blood to half, but half blood to more remote relations; (3) relations descending to those ascending in collateral line; (4) feme sole to married woman; (5) father's relatives to mother's in equal degree. (28 Md. 423.) A married woman shall be entitled to letters testamentary or letters of administration in the same manner as if she were unmarried, and shall give bond as provided by law for other executors and administrators, and the bond of any executrix or administratrix who is unmarried and eighteen years of age or over shall be binding in same manner as if she were twenty-one years of age. (Code, vol. 3, art. 93, § 58.)

Non-residents are not disqualified (64 Md. 360), but they are not entitled to notice. (Code, vol. 2, art. 93, § 32.) Aliens are disqualified to be executors or administrators. (Code, vol. 2, art. 93, § 52, as interpreted by the orphans' court of Baltimore city.)

By Acts of 1910, chapter 580, an executor or administrator is required to execute a bond to the State of Maryland with at least two sureties approved by the court or register, or with a surety company authorized by the laws of this State to qualify upon such bonds, and whenever the surety is a corporation the amount of the penalty of such bond shall not exceed the probable value of the property and assets of the estate; but whenever an executor is excused by the testator from giving bond, then only such bond shall be given as to secure the payment of the debts, taxes, and assessments due by the deceased.

Notice to creditors is provided for by Code, vol. 2, art. 93, § 109, requiring that administrator at least six months before distribution shall have caused to be inserted in as many newspapers as the orphans' court shall direct an advertisement in form therein specified. Usual notice is once a week for four weeks.

Debts are preferred in the following order: (1) Funeral expenses not to exceed $300; (2) taxes (see Acts 1918, ch. 52); (3) charges for medical attendance in last illness not to exceed fifty dollars; (4) rent in arrear for which distress might be levied; (5) judgments and decrees; (6) all other just claims without priority or preference.

Now, in all cases where administration is granted on estate of a married man, is allowed, payment of funeral expenses (this implies whether estate insolvent or not), one hundred dollars in money, or articles of household and kitchen furniture at their appraised value as she may elect, if there be an infant child or children of said widow and decedent, twenty-five dollars similarly if no infant child (Code, vol. 2, art. 93, §§ 308, 309.) No allowance made to widow if estate insolvent. If estate solvent the widow of an intestate her distributive share of personal estate after debts settled, namely, one third if no child, children, or descendants from a child, one half if no child or descendant, but a mother, brother, or sister, or child of a brother or sister; if none of above, widow to the whole.

Code, vol. 2, art. 93, § 83, provides that no administrator shall discharge any claim against decedent (otherwise than at his own risk), unless the same be first passed by the orphans' court granting the administration, or unless the said claims shall be proved. Such proof may be by affidavit of the creditor before any officer having authority to administer an oath, or by a notary public or a commissioner, certified under his official seal, in the form of probate, below, for all amounts up to fifty dollars, all notes or obligations in writing, judgments and decrees exemplified by copy under seal of the court and attested by clerk, and, in the form of double probate below, for all open accounts over fifty dollars

Whenever the judge of the court where action is pending is satisfied by affidavit of either party thereto or otherwise, and it be stated in such commission, that any witness to be examined has in his possession or control any papers, books, or other documents, which, if produced, would be competent and material evidence, and the same be sufficiently described in said commission, said commissioner shall in said notice require the witness to bring same with him; on his failure to do so, or to answer any questions, or refusal to testify or subscribe his deposition, said commissioner, at the request of the court issuing same shall certify such refusal to produce or failure to attend to the circuit court for the county, or to any judge of the supreme bench of Baltimore city, where said commission is to be executed; and the said court or judge shall forthwith issue his order commanding the delinquent witness to appear before him to show cause for his failure or refusal as aforesaid. Such resident agent shall be a citizen actually residing herein, or a corporation of this State. If incorporated prior to June 1, 1916, if it files with the State Tax Commission the location of its principal office and the name and address of at least one resident agent, such corporation need not thereafter have a director who is a citizen or resident of this State. Each stockholder is entitled to one vote for every share standing in his name, but no shares shall be voted if any installment duly called shall be over thirty days unpaid. Stockholders may vote by proxy, but no proxy which is dated more than three months before the meeting at which it is offered shall be accepted unless it shall specify a longer period for which it is to remain in force. Such statement shall at all times be open for inspection during business hours. Likewise stock ledgers and other books of the corporation. Directors shall keep full and accurate accounts of their transactions. President is required to make annual reports, which are to be kept on file, within twenty days after annual meeting. Annual reports must be made to the State Tax Commissioner on or before March 1 in each year and penalties on failure to do so. (Acts 1918, ch. 466.)

For provisions as to dissolution, see Acts 1918, ch. 198.

Foreign Corporations. — Every foreign corporation which has a usual place of business in this State, except insurance companies, must obtain a certificate from the Secretary of State, setting forth that it is entitled to do business in this State, and must file with the Secretary of State, to be renewed annually, a certificate showing among other things the names and addresses of its shareholders in this State, and the number of shares held by each, and the amount of capital stock employed in the State.

All foreign corporations maintaining an office and regularly exercising their franchises in this State, except railroad, telegraph or cable, express or transportation, oil or pipe line, title insurance, electric light or gas, guano, phosphate or fertilizer, electric construction, telephone, parlor-car or sleeping-car, safe deposit, trust, national banks, insurance of all kinds, guaranty or fidelity, or any corporation paying gross receipts tax, shall pay an annual franchise tax on their capital employed in the State, at the rate of fifty cents a thousand dollars up to five hundred thousand dollars, but in no case less than twenty-five dollars; over five hundred thousand dollars and not more than five million dollars, one fortieth of one per cent. on the excess; over five million dollars, at the rate of thirty dollars for every one million dollars over such last-named excess.

An annual state franchise tax is levied on all steam railroads wherever incorporated, graduated from one and one fourth per cent. on first one thousand dollars per mile of gross earnings or less and two per cent. above one thousand dollars and up to two thousand dollars per mile, and two and one half per cent. on all above two thousand dollars per mile; two and one half per cent. on gross receipts of telegraph, cable, express, transportation, parlor-car, sleeping-car, safe deposit, and trust companies; two per cent. on gross receipts of telephone and oil pipe line companies, guaranty and fidelity companies, title insurance companies; one per cent. on electric light companies; one and one half per cent. of gross receipts of electric construction and gas companies incorporated and doing business in Maryland; and one and one half per cent. of gross receipts of guano, phosphate, or fertilizer companies, wherever incorporated. (A. t. o. 1906, ch. 712.) Other corporations pay the ordinary property taxes except as provided in special charter provisions. (See Code, vol. 3, art. 23, §§ 88a to 88b.) Corporations must make annual return of property taxable for that year before the first of March under oath to county commissioners, or to appeal tax court, if in Baltimore, with list of stockholders, their residences, etc. State tax commissioner then fixes value of capital stock, deducting from market value the value of the exempted property held by the corporation and property otherwise taxed. Corporation then pays the taxes for and on account of shareholders. But see above sections. Personal taxes are payable January 1.

[Proof by Subscribing Witness]

For other forms see Code, vol. 1, art. 21, §§ 54 to 70.

Proving of deeds by witnesses before the clerk of the court, as practiced in Virginia, is not in force here. The law allowing proof by subscribing witnesses in certain cases will be found in the Code, vol. 1, art. 35, § 44 (see Records).

Provisions in Equity. — The right to take the testimony of a non-resident witness is preserved by statute. (Code, vol. 1, art. 35, § 18.)

Commissions to take testimony in equity causes are required to be issued and directed to persons, of whom only one shall act on the same day, unless the parties shall require otherwise. With the consent of the parties, a commission may issue to one person. With a view to the speedy execution and return of commissions the equity courts are directed to prescribe such rules as the nature of the case may require.

In several counties, in the absence of any special rule commissions are issued, executed and returned in accordance with established chancery practice. In Baltimore city, the rules of the local equity courts contain extended provisions regulating the execution and return of commissions. These rules provide that after entry of general replication or answer joined on plea, if either party desires to take testimony beyond the limits of the county of Baltimore, and the parties cannot agree upon the selection of a commissioner or commissioners, the judge may appoint a commissioner, or commissioners, to take such testimony, and may give due regard to the recommendations of the respective parties. If the parties agree upon one or more commissioners, the commission shall be issued by the court, without an order of court.

Oath and Instructions. — Before proceeding to act, the commissioner or commissioners, shall qualify by taking the oath, headed on the commission "commissioner's oath," before a person authorized to administer an oath. The officer before whom the oath is taken shall thereupon subscribe at the foot thereof in effect, as follows: The above oath was taken by me this _____ day of _____ 19____ to Joan Doe and Richard Roe the commissioners within named," and sign his name and title. The official character of the persons administering the oath must be certified under seal.

If one of the parties ask for a clerk, one may be appointed by the commissioners; otherwise the commissioner is required to act as clerk without extra compensation.

In case a clerk is appointed as aforesaid, one of the commissioners shall administer to him the oath, headed on the commission "clerk's oath," and certify as follows: "The preceding oath administered to X. Y., by me appointed clerk, before proceeding to execute this commission," signing the same.

One of the commissioners will administer an oath, or, in the case of a witness having conscientious scruples against taking a judicial oath, an affirmation, to the witness about to be examined that "you will true answer make to such interrogatories as shall be propounded to you before us in this case, and that therein you will speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

The parties, their attorneys or agents, have a right to be present at the execution of a commission, and to reasonable notice of the time and place. The testimony must be taken by questions and answers, and the questions may be propounded vis a voce, or in the form of interrogatories annexed to the commission. In the latter case the party asking for the commission, before taking out the same, shall file his interrogatories, and serve a copy of the same on the adverse party, or his solicitor, who shall, within ten days after service of said copy, file his cross-interrogatories to the witness proposed to be examined by the party asking for the commission, and also interrogatories for the witnesses proposed to be examined on his part, to which latter interrogatories the other party shall have five days after service of copy within which to file cross-interrogatories. Copies of all such interrogatories and cross-interrogatories shall be annexed to the commission and the examination shall be limited to the same, and to the witnesses named therein.

The testimony may be taken stenographically by consent, or otherwise; it must be written out as taken. In either case it should, whenever at all practicable, be typewritten.

The ordinary form of return is as follows: —

John Jones, a witness of lawful age, produced on behalf of the plaintiff (or defendant), being by us first sworn, or affirmed in due form of law, deposes and says as follows: —

[Conclusion.]

No other witnesses being named or produced to us, we then, at the request of the solicitors of the respective parties, closed the said commission, and now return it closed under our hands, this day of 19 at the city of in the State of

L. M.,
R. S.,
Commissioners.

Exhibits. — A list of exhibits must be made in the following form: —

There are 18 exhibits to this commission, to wit, plaintiff's exhibits, commission, Nos. 1-12; defendant's exhibits, commission, Nos. 1-6.

L. M.,
R. S.,
Commissioners.

Every exhibit must be marked by the commissioners with the date of the filing.

The witness must subscribe his examination with his name and the acting commissioners must subscribe their names opposite to his signature for the purpose of identifying it. The commissioners are requested distinctly to observe that every question must be answered by the witness, if it be merely to declare that he is ignorant of the matter inquired of, and that an omission to answer every one will be fatal to the whole examination.

The acting commissioners must bind up the depositions and exhibits together with the commission, some tape passing through and connecting the whole, and then make the foling indorsement upon the commission. "The execution of this commission appears in plain schedule hereunto annexed"; to which they will also subscribe their names as commissioners and affix their seals. Thus prepared and executed they will inclose the same in an envelope sealed with their seals, their names written across or by the side of the seal, and the whole addressed to the clerk of the court. The depositions may then be delivered to the agent or forwarded by the most expeditious and safe conveyance to the court whence the commission issued.

Depositions at Law. — Code, vol 11, art. 35, § 16, provides that the several courts of law, satisfied by affidavit, or otherwise, that there are material and competent witnesses in a cause pending before them residing beyond the limits of the State, may direct the clerk of such court to issue a commission for taking the deposition of such witnesses. In such case it is further provided that the commission shall issue, and the commissioners shall be appointed and qualified, interrogatories be proposed or exhibited, the commissions be executed and returned, and the depositions taken in pursuance thereof shall be published in the same manner and form as in the case of a commission from a court of equity.

Testimony of non-resident witnesses may also be taken by either party to any action at law, upon giving notice of not less than five days to the opposite party of the time and place when and where the testimony of such non-resident witnesses is proposed to be taken. The name of the commissioner, notary public, or justice of the peace before whom the deposition is proposed to be taken, together with the names of the witnesses proposed to be examined, and the deposition of any such witnesses taken pursuant to such notice and duly certified by the officer taking the same under his hand and seal shall be admitted as evidence in any action as if taken under a commission. Such depositions must be signed by the witnesses, or their signature is waived by consent of the parties, and returned to the court in which the cause is pending. Parties may dispense with formal notice of time and place and name of officer before whom such depositions are to be taken, and by agreement provide for the taking of such depositions.

Descent. — Inheritance of estates in fee simple, fee simple conditional, and fee tail in Maryland is as follows: —

By Acts 1916, ch. 325, it is provided that if any person seized of lands in this State shall die intestate thereof, the same shall descend to those persons who, according to the laws of this State, would be the distributees if the same were personal property, and such heirs shall inherit in the same proportions as are fixed by the laws relating to personalty. If the intestate leaves a widow or surviving husband, they shall take as heirs the same share as the widow or surviving husband would take under the laws relating to personal property. And said widow or surviving husband shall hold same with other heirs as tenants in common, or should the same be sold under decree, then it shall be unnecessary to secure the consent of widow or surviving husband to sale unless they shall elect to take the estate known as dower as provided in § 4. Acts 1918, ch. 273. The surviving husband or widow shall take as heir the same share of any lands belonging to the testate of such person die testate, which the surviving husband or widow would take in the personal property of such person dying testate, such share shall be subject to be barred by provisions in his or her favor by last will to the same extent as is provided by law with respect to barring dower. Nothing in this act shall be construed as giving a husband or wife any right to convey by deed inter vivos his or her real estate free of any right of dower without joinder, nor shall the said act be construed as abolishing the estate known as dower.

The above are the principal provisions of the Maryland law of inheritance. There are other provisions as to advancement, heirs in res and afterborn, whole blood and half blood, and representation among ascendants and collaterals. For inheritance tax law, see Distribution. By Code, vol. 1, art. 16, § 132, provision is made for binding the unknown heirs of a deceased person in case where property descends and it is to be sold, leased, mortgaged, or otherwise disposed of. (See Distribution.)

Distribution. — Of Personal Property. — 1 If the intestate leave a surviving husband or widow and no child, parent, grandchild, brother or sister, or child of a brother or sister, the surviving husband or widow shall be entitled to the whole of the distributive surplus of the intestate's personal estate. (Code, vol. 2, art. 93, § 120.) 2 If there be a child or children or descendants of a child, the surviving husband or widow shall have one third. 3 If there be no child, or descendants of the intestate, but if he shall leave a father or mother, brother or sister, or child of a brother or sister, the surviving husband or widow shall have one half. 4 The surplus (exclusive of the widow's or surviving husband's share, or whole surplus, if there be no widow or surviving husband) shall be equally divided amongst the children, if there be no other descendant, and the children of the intestate's children, and his descendants, shall share with his children per stirpes. Any advancement made by the intestate, by settlement or portion, shall be taken into account in determining the share of any child or descendant. 5 Next to children and descendants of the intestate, father and mother succeed, if there be a father and mother and no children or descendants, the whole shall be equally divided between the father and mother. If there be either father or mother, the other person having died, and no child or descendants, the father or mother, as the case may be, shall have the whole. If there be a brother or sister, or child or descendant of a brother or sister, and no child, descendant, father, or mother of the intestate, such brother or sister, or child or descendant of a brother or sister, shall have the whole. Every brother and sister of the intestate shall be entitled to an equal share, and a child or children of a deceased brother or sister shall stand in the place of such brother or sister, and a grandchild or grandchildren, and every other descendant or descendants of a deceased brother or sister in existence at the time of the death of the intestate, shall stand in the place of the deceased ancestor. (Acts 1916, ch. 224, § 129.) 6. All collateral relations in equal degree next take; but no representation amongst them is allowed and no distinction observed between the whole and half blood. 7. If there be no collaterals entitled, a grandfather may take, and if there be two grandfathers, they shall both take alike; and a grandmother, in case of the death of her husband (the grandfather), shall take as he might have done. 8. Posthumous children of intestate take as if they had been born before the intestate's decease. But no other posthumous relation is considered as entitled to distribution in his own right. 9. If there be no widow or relations of the intestate within the fifth degree, which degree is reckoned by counting down from the common ancestor to the more remote (of the two, namely, the decedent, and the relation), the whole surplus shall belong to the State, and shall be paid to the board of county school commissioners of the county wherein letters of administration shall be granted upon the estate of the deceased, for the use of the public schools of said county. (51 Md. 470.) 10. If any legal representative shall appear after payment has been made under the preceding section, the board of county school commissioners receiving such payment shall pay the same to such representative; but no collateral more remote than brothers' and sisters' children shall claim under this section. 11. If any person entitled to distribution shall die before it is made, his share shall go to his representatives.

Divorce — Is within the jurisdiction of courts of equity. Marriages are dissolved a vinculo matrimonii for the canonical causes of impediment existing previous to marriage; for adultery; for abandonment for three years; for fornication by wife before marriage, the same being unknown to the husband at the time of marriage. Divorces a mensa et thoro are decreed for vicious conduct, cruelty of treatment, abandonment, and desertion. The court has power to award to the wife the property she had when married, or the value of the same, and also to provide for the custody and guardianship of the children. The court may award alimony when a divorce is decreed. Alimony pendente lite, or apart from divorce, is also allowed. (Code, vol. 2, art. 16.) Where the causes for divorce occurred out of this State, no person is entitled to apply for a divorce, unless the complainant or defendant shall have resided within the State for two years next preceding such application. If non-resident defendant has property within the State, the court has full power to award alimony, and such property shall be liable for the same. (Code, vol. 2, art. 16, § 16.)

Dower — The common law right of the wife prevails in the matter of realty, except that, if wife declared insane, husband may, by Code, vol. 1, art. 45, § 13, convey alone any after-acquired property, and she is entitled to dower in lands held by equitable title in the husband of which he dies seised. As to her rights in husband's personalty, see Distribution: Married Women. As to widow's dower see Code, vol. 3, art. 45, § 7. See Acts 1918, ch. 410 as to husband's dower.

Estates. — See Claims against Estates.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Executions. — On all judgments or decrees in any court of law or equity, and on judgments of justices of the peace recorded in the clerk's office of any court of law, an execution or attachment may issue at any time within twelve years from the date of such judgment or decree. (Code, vol. 1, art. 26, § 20.) See People's Court Law, in Court Calendar.

Execution may be levied on any property of the defendant, the exemptions as stated below excepted. See, also, Attachments.

Exemptions. — In Maryland the sheriff cannot take in execution wearing apparel, mechanical textbooks, or books of professional men, or mechanics' or professional men's tools (except books and tools kept for sale). And, except under executions issued upon judgments for seduction or breach of promise of marriage, he must also leave one hundred dollars' worth of other property, to be selected by the defendants, or, if one hundred dollars' worth cannot be conveniently set aside, pay him one hundred dollars out of the proceeds of sale. (Code, vol. 2, art. 83; 57 Md. 314.) Also money payable in the nature of insurance for accident, death, etc., is exempt. (Code, vol. 2, art. 83, § 8.) A chose in action cannot be taken, nor a lien coupled with possession, nor any intangible property, whether real or personal, except stocks. Equitable interests in personal property cannot be taken in execution. The course is for the creditor to cause his execution to be levied and returned, and then go into equity.

Garnishee Process. — The only process of this sort is that of attachment, as described under that head. See Attachments.

Ground Rents. — Leases for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, whereby irredeemable "ground rents" were formerly created in this State, are prohibited by Code, vol. 1, art. 21, § 92. Section 93 provides that all rents reserved by leases or sub-leases hereafter made for a longer period than fifteen years shall be redeemable at any time, after the expiration of five years from the date of such lease or sub-lease, at the option of the tenant, after a notice of one month to the landlord, for a sum of money equal to the capitalisation of the rent reserved at a rate not to exceed six per centum. Sections 94-95 regulate the renewal of the old leases for ninety-nine years, and recovery of rent. But the foregoing provisions were not intended to apply and do not apply to leases or sub-leases of property leased for business purposes when such leases or sub-leases contain a clause prohibiting ing or sub-letting property leased, without the written consent of landlord, and term including all renewals shall not exceed twenty-five years. (Code, vol 3, art 21,

Inheritance Taxes. — There is no Direct Inheritance Tax Law in this State. There is General Inheritance Tax Law, the same applying to all estates made or created to take effect after the death of the testator or grantor by grant deed, or will, other than to the mother, husband, wife, children or lineal descendants of the grantor or testator, being to five per cent. of every one hundred dollars of value. Executors and administrators must account for same. (Code, vol 2, art 81, §§ 115-117.) Lien for same in favor of the State lasts for four years. (§ 131.) No tax if estate is valued at less than five hundred dollars. (§ 120.) By Acts 1916, ch 359, commissions of executors and administrators are subject to a tax of one per cent. on the first twenty thousand dollars of the value of the estate, and one fifth of one per cent. on the balance.

Insolvency. — As to voluntary insolvency, state laws are superseded by National Bankruptcy Act. As to involuntary insolvency, state law still applies to farmers and to persons and corporations not enumerated in National Bankruptcy Act and to other persons whose liabilities are less than one thousand dollars and more than two hundred and fifty. (For state law see Code, vol 1, art. 47.)

Interest. — The legal rate of interest is six per cent. per annum. The legislature has the power to provide otherwise, but has never done so. (Const. 1867.) Judgments bear six per cent. interest, and all judgments by confession or by default shall be so entered as to carry interest from the time they are rendered, and all judgments on verdict shall be so entered as to carry interest from date of rendering of verdict. (Code, vol 3, art 26, § 18.) A person proved guilty of usury forfeits all the excess above the real sum or value of the loan and chattels actually lent, and legal interest on such sum or value. (Code, vol 1, art 57 Md. 407.) On furniture loans, if statutory charges exceeded loan, forfeited. (Code, vol 1, art 49, § 7. See Acts 1918, ch 88.)

Judgments. — A judgment of a court of record, or a magistrate's judgment if recorded, can be transferred from one county to another to bind the defendant's real estate. Upon recording in such other county a certified copy of the docket entries. (Code, vol 1, art 26, § 18.) From the date of its rendition or recording, as well on after-acquired property as that existing at the date of the judgment. (Code, vol 1, art 26, § 18.) Also on all leasehold interests and interests for years, or chattels real of the defendants in lands except from leases year to year, or for terms of not more than five years, and not renewable. Also upon the equitable interests of defendants in lands. But a judgment is no lien upon personal property, though a writ of execution issued thereupon becomes a lien from the time of the delivery of the writ to the hands of the sheriff. The lien of a judgment continues for twelve years. See Interest. Records, and deeds in another State, or foreign country, may be made evidence of an exemplification of the record under the hand of the keeper of the same, and seal of the court or office where such document may be of record, or a transcript authenticated by the Revised Statutes of the United States will be sufficient. (Code, vol 1, art 18 Md. 504.)

Defense. judgment may be rendered in Baltimore city on claims over one hundred dollars within fifteen days after the rule day to which the action is brought. If a suit be brought to trial term in the city or in the circuit courts for the counties and there be no defense, judgment can be entered up at the following term, or at the following return day in Baltimore County. (Acts 1894, ch 631.) See rule days and terms in Court Calendar for Maryland. Judgments by confession may be entered by clerk when court is not in session.

Suit in courts of Baltimore city with proper affidavit and voucher of claim. Judgment can be had after fifteen days from return day to which defendant is summoned, if defendant has filed under oath a good plea, stating also amount, if any, due, and that he is ready to produce evidence to support his plea, and also a certificate of counsel that he is ready to do so under such oath. (Acts 1894, ch 173.) Similar provision for Baltimore County (Acts 1894, ch 184), except that judgment to be entered at next return day or first day of term. Where judgment is rendered in Baltimore city recovers judgment for any part of such disputed claim, court to award counsel fee from twenty five to one hundred dollars.

Rule of the court. The 50th rule of the common law courts of Baltimore city, all civil cases shall be tried by the court without a jury, unless an election in writing be filed in person or by attorney for trial by jury, if by plaintiff, not later than fifteen days after filing the declaration, or by defendant, at or before the first filing of a plea. In mandamus cases, by plaintiff within five days from filing petition, and by defendant on filing a answer. This not to apply to cases under return day act provided for by Acts 1894, ch 184, in which defendant, on jury trial, must file a motion in writing before the entry of a default for a jury trial, and must state in such motion how much of the plaintiff's demand is disputed, and how much, if any, admitted to be due, whereupon plaintiff may forthwith have judgment for the amount admitted.

Priority. judgments take priority according to date of rendition. In cases before justices of the peace judgment can be rendered a week after return of summons.

Attorney's fees. have no custom or law for taxing attorney's fees in judgments. See Stay of Execution.

Ground Rents. — See Ground Rents.

Licenses. — It is not necessary for non-resident traveling salesmen to take out a license.

Liens. — See Judgments; Mechanics' Liens.

Limitations. — Three years is the period of limitations for actions on open account, simple contract, assumpsit, replevin, rent in arrear, or trespass for injuries to real or personal property; twelve years for specialty, bonds, or judgments. (Code, vol. 2, art. 57.) The right to bring suit in cases where one has been kept in ignorance of his rights by fraud of adverse party accrues from time such fraud is discovered. Persons under twenty-one, or non compos (§ 2), can bring actions within above periods after disabilities removed; also exceptions in case of debtors while absent from the State, or removing from county to county, or absent when cause of action accrues; provided suit be brought after presence of person liable. Twenty years' adverse possession gives title to land. Actions for negligence causing death, one year after death of deceased. By Acts 1914, ch. 846, all foreign corporations and associations are excepted from all benefits of any limitations as to any judgments heretofore or hereafter recovered against them in any courts of this State. Where party has mistaken his cause of action and has thereon recovered judgment or decree, which on appeal to Supreme Court of United States is reversed without procedendo because of such mistake, suit may be brought thereon at any time within two years after date of final decree or judgment. (Acts 1918, ch. 128.)

Married Women. — By act taking effect January 1, 1899, the property, real and personal, belonging to a woman at the time of her marriage, and all property which she may acquire or receive after her marriage in any way or manner, shall be protected from the debts of the husband and not in any way be liable for the payment thereof; provided that no acquisition of property passing to the wife from the husband after coverture shall be valid if the same has been or may be granted to her in prejudice of the rights of subsisting creditors, who, however, must assert their rights (whether or not their claims have matured at the time of said grant) within three years after the acquisition of the property by the wife. But such separate property is liable for her own debts. She may acquire, hold, and manage such property without the intervention of a trustee.

Married women shall hold all their property of every description for their separate use as fully as if they were unmarried, and shall have all the power to dispose of it by deed, mortgage, lease, will, or any other instruments that husbands have to dispose of their property, and no more. (See Acts 1914, ch. 406.) They shall have power to engage in any business, and to contract and also to sue for the recovery, security, or protection of their property and for torts committed against them as fully as if they were unmarried. Contracts may also be made with them and they may also be sued separately upon their contracts, whether made before or during marriage, and for wrongs independent of contract committed by them before or during their marriage, as if they were unmarried; and upon judgments recovered against them execution may be issued as if they were unmarried, nor shall any husband be liable upon any contract made by his wife in her own name and upon her own responsibility, nor for any tort committed separately by her out of his presence without his participation or sanction. Landlord may distrain against them.

A married woman may insure her husband's life for her own benefit and free from the creditors of her husband. She may contract and form a partnership with her husband or other person. (Code, vol. 1, art. 45, § 20.)

A widow is entitled to dower in lands held by equitable as well as legal title in the husband at any time during the coverture, whether held by him at the time of his death or not, and husband is entitled to an estate in all respects similar to dower in lands of wife, being one third for life. (Code, vol. 1, art. 45, § 7. See Acts 1918, ch. 410.) She may release her dower by separate deed or jointly with her husband, or may authorize agent to do so by power of attorney. (Code, vol. 1, art. 45, § 12.) Husband may release his estate in wife's property similar to dower in same manner. These interests in each other's lands can only be released by deed. See Dower.

Mechanics' Liens. — Any building erected, repaired, rebuilt, or improved to the extent of one fourth its value in Baltimore city, and in any of the counties, shall be subject to a lien for the payment of all debts contracted for, work done for or about the same. And in the counties every such building shall also be subject to a lien for the payment of all debts contracted for materials furnished for or about the same. (Code, vol. 2, art. 63.) Acts 1908, ch. 502, abolishes the lien for materials furnished for building in Baltimore city. Section 22, of Code, provides that "every machine, wharf, or bridge constructed or repaired shall be subject to a lien in like manner as buildings are made subject under the provisions of this article." Quare, whether the lien for materials on "machines, wharves, and bridges" in Baltimore city has been taken away by act of 1898, ch. 502. Also all boats or vessels are subject to a lien for materials furnished or work done in building, repairing, or equipping, the same. To secure the lien and lay a foundation for enforcing it, the mechanic or material-man must, within six months after the last work has been done, file a claim in the superior court for the city of Baltimore, or in the circuit court for some county. The claim is to be recorded in a book kept for that purpose. These claims may be enforced by scire facias or by bill in equity. No scire facias must issue within fifteen days of the return day, in the city of Baltimore, nor within thirty days in a county. The lien shall expire at the end of five years from the day on which it was filed, unless renewed by scire facias. In the case of a boat or vessel, the claim must be filed within six months from the commencement of the work, and the lien continues for two years only. Law extended to include garages, motor vehicles. (Acts 1918, ch. 403.)

Mortgages. — Are executed, acknowledged, and recorded as deeds. They are usually not necessarily accompanied by promissory notes. Where the property to be conveyed is the husband and wife make the deed of mortgage, if the property is leasehold, the husband alone makes the deed of mortgage. To make them valid as against third parties without actual notice, an affidavit of the mortgagor or his agent (who must also make affidavit that he is agent of the mortgagor) must be indorsed thereon and recorded thereon, that the consideration in said mortgage is true and bona fide as therein set forth." (Code, vol. 1, art. 21 § 32.) But any railroad or other corporation making a mortgage to secure bonds may covenant to pay the taxes on such mortgage or bonds or interest, and in such case the latter affidavit shall not be required. This affidavit can be made before any person authorized to take acknowledgment of a deed (Code, vol. 1, art. 21.) (The provision that mortgage tax has been abolished in Baltimore and also in some of the counties.) Mortgages are released on the record, at the foot of the recorded mortgage, or by a formal release acknowledged, and recorded as a deed. The mortgages contain a power authorizing the mortgagee on non-fulfillment of conditions. In the city of Baltimore, under a public local law, a trustee for sale is first obtained before sale, from the court of equity, trustee is appointed by the court and gives bond, advertises property for sale, and reports to court after sale for ratification, and an order of court is passed if everything is properly done, finally ratifying and confirming the sale. If proceeds insufficient to pay debt, court may after summons decree foreclosure. (Code, vol. 2, art. 66, § 24.) In the counties, the mortgagee or other person authorized in deed sells under the power in mortgage, after notice by publication, also gives bond before sale, and reports his sale in court of equity for ratification, and an order follows, under the city law. (Code, vol. 2, art. 66, P. L. L. art. 4.) Any evidence of payment of the mortgage is sufficient. The executor or administrator of deceased mortgagor releases a mortgage as to the heir. Mortgage of land alone does not cover growing crops (§ 26.) By Acts of 1894, chapter 719, it is provided that the title to all promissory notes secured by mortgage shall be conclusively presumed to be vested in the person or body corporate holding the record title to such mortgage, when any such mortgage is released of record the notes shall be conclusively presumed to be paid, so far as they are secured upon the property conveyed by said mortgage is concerned. (See Records.)

Notaries Public. — Are appointed by the Governor, confirmed by the State Senate, for a term of two years. They must authenticate official acts, conveyances, affidavits, deeds, and other instruments under their official seal. They can act and take acknowledgments in any county of the State. They have power also to take testimony.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The law of negotiable paper is principally statutory (Code, art. 13) and is substantially uniform with that of New York, Connecticut, Colorado, and Florida. The legal holidays are January 1, February 22, March 25 (Maryland Day), May 30, July 4, September 12 (Labor Day), the first Monday in September, or Labor Day, May 30, July 4, September 12 (known as Defender's Day), October 12 (known as Columbus Day), December 25, and all other days of general and congressional elections and all special days recommended by the government as days of Thanksgiving or for the general cessation of business. Instruments maturing on Sunday or on a holiday are payable on the secular or business day next following such holiday. Whenever January 1, February 22, March 25, May 30, July 4, September 12, October 12, or December 25 shall occur on Sunday, the Monday following shall be treated as a public holiday, and in such cases all instruments shall be deemed to be due on the secular or business day next succeeding such Monday, and such Monday for all purposes whatever as regards such instruments be treated as the first day of the week commonly called Sunday. (Acts 1910, ch. 27.)

Partnership. — By Acts 1916, ch. 175, this State has adopted the Uniform Partnership Law. And by Acts 1918, ch. 280, the Uniform Limited Partnership Law was adopted.

Practice. — Of the courts is based on the common law modified by the Code.

Procedural Rules of Claims. — In the city of Baltimore, under the act of 1886, ch. 184 (for obtaining judgments without delay), the plaintiff is required, at the time of bringing his action, to file with his declaration an affidavit or affirmation stating the true amount that the defendant is indebted to him, over and above all payments, and to file also, the bond, bill of exchange, promissory note, or other writing, upon which the action be founded upon a verbal or implied contract, he shall file a statement of particulars of the defendant's indebtedness thereunder if there are two or more plaintiffs. The affidavit or affirmation may be made by any one of them or if all the plaintiffs consent from the State at the time of the bringing of the suit, or if the plaintiff be a corporation the affidavit or affirmation may be made by any agent of plaintiff or plaintiffs, or by one of them, who will make further oath or affirmation that he has personal knowledge of the matters therein stated; the affidavit or affirmation may be made before any of the justices of the peace who may take an affidavit or affirmation to authorize the issuing of a foreign attachment, and may be certified in the same manner. (See Attachments.)

In the counties, except Baltimore County, in actions brought under the act of 1894, ch. 173, and in the city of Baltimore, except in actions brought under the act of 1894, ch. 173, an affidavit of claim is required to bring a suit. The attorney should be furnished with the names of members of firms.

Records. — Deeds and mortgages must be recorded within six months from date in the county or city in which the land affected lies, and when acknowledged and so recorded shall have full effect as between the parties from date. (Code, vol. 1, art. 21.) Any deed, except mortgages, may be recorded after the time, and when so recorded shall have, as against the grantor, etc., and against all purchasers with notice, and against creditors of grantor become so after recording, the same validity as if recorded in time. Registration of deed imports notice to all; and actual knowledge of an unrecorded deed is equivalent to registration. (29 Md. 211.)

Redemption. — Whenever real estate shall be sold by a tax collector, the owner thereof, prior to the sale, may redeem the same by paying into court, to be paid to the purchaser, within twelve calendar months from the date of such sale, the amount of the purchase money, with interest thereon at the rate of fifteen per cent. per annum from the date of the sale. (Code, vol. 2, art. 81.) The collectors are required to report their sales to the circuit courts, and if no cause be shown to the contrary, after due notice by publication to parties interested to appear, the same are finally ratified and confirmed. (36 Md. 207; 42 Md. 196; 51 Md. 478.) See Tax Law.

Replevin — Is according to common law. It is an action to recover the possession of specific goods and chattels. It is begun by filing a bond in a penalty double the value of the goods claimed, conditioned for the prosecution of the replevin with effect, the return of the goods if so adjudged, and the performance of the judgment of the court. The sheriff executes the writ of replevin by delivering the goods to the plaintiff. The defendant may move for the return of the goods, which the court in its discretion may grant upon his filing a retorno habendo bond conditioned for their return, if so adjudged, to the plaintiff. Replevin is the remedy against a landlord unlawfully distraining goods. Two sureties are requisite on the bond in such cases.

Reports. — The Maryland reports of decisions in the highest courts from about the year 1660 run from 1st Harris & McHenry's Reports, first published in 1809, and are continued by various reporters to the present time. They now consist of 170 volumes (131 Md. last volume) including the reports of the old court of chancery. There are eight digests: Norris, Brown & Brune; Stockett, Miller & Merrick; Cohen & Lee; Lewis Mayes; W. H. S. Burgwyn; and T. B. Dorsey; an index-digest by J. T. Ringgold, and a new digest by W. T. Brantly. A new edition of the earlier reports, edited and annotated by W. T. Brantly, has been published. William H. Perkins, Jr., has published an annotated edition of the Maryland Reports.

Revislon. — By Acts 1912, ch. 21, and Acts 1914, ch. 16, the Code of Public General Laws as codified by George P. Bagby was legalised and made evidence in all the courts of the State; and by Acts 1918, ch. 144, vol. 4 was so legalised.

Sales in Bulk. — See Code, vol. 2, art. 83, §§ 19 to 21, and Code, vol. 3, art. 83, §§ 100-101. See, also, Uniform Sales Act and Acts 1916, ch. 371.

Service. — The first day of each term, and, in the city of Baltimore and Baltimore County, each rule day, is return day. Publication against non-residents, in equity, is made once a week for four successive weeks, fifteen days before day fixed for appearance. (Code, vol. 1, art. 16.) Code, vol. 1, art. 16, § 135, allows personal service of copy or order outside of State, but within limits of United States in lieu of publication.

Stay of Execution — May be entered on docket at the time of rendition of the judgment, or may be by supersedeas, with security, within sixty days after judgment (for six months in courts of record, and twelve months when judgment is over thirty dollars, before justices of the peace, six months when under thirty), by appeal, writ of error, or injunction. Upon all judgments rendered by the circuit courts for the counties, at the first term after the appearance term, there is a stay of execution till the first Thursday of the ensuing term (Code, vol. 1, art. 26, § 23), except that in Baltimore County, on all judgments under the act of 1894, ch. 631, there is a stay of execution till the return day, or first day of term succeeding, whichever shall first occur, but court may, on motion in writing, for sufficient reason, issue execution before expiration of such stay. But on all judgments rendered by the law courts of Baltimore city, and on all judgments by default in said city, when extended according to law and the course of the court, execution may issue at any time after judgment rendered or extended as aforesaid; and on judgments rendered by justices of the peace execution may issue at any time after judgment, unless it be superseded, or appealed from, or in some cases enjoined. See People's Court Law, in Court Calendar for Maryland.

At the extra session of Legislature of 1917, legislation was enacted providing for suspension or stay, during the war, of proceedings pending or judgments, decrees, etc., recovered against persons in military or naval service of United States. (Chs. 19, 22, 23.)

Supplementary Proceedings. — On affidavit or other proof, by judgment creditor within time for issuing execution or attachment, that it is probable that judgment debtor has property or credits that would be liable, and is concealing or has concealed or disposed of same to evade effect of judgment, court wherein judgment rendered shall issue order requiring debtor to attend and be examined in open court or before a standing commissioner or examiner, and any person or corporation having property of or being indebted to the judgment debtor may be similarly examined, and court may pass such order as will subject property or credits of judgment debtor to effect of the judgment.

Refusal to attend or answer punishable as contempt. No excuse that answers may show fraud, but answers cannot be used as evidence in criminal proceeding, or one based on fraud. (Code, vol. 2, art. 75, § 140.)

Tax Law. — By the Code, all real and personal property, all chattels, real and personal, in fact, every description of property, is liable to assessment and taxation, except as therein exempted. General schedules of all property and things liable to assessment and taxation, of all exemptions, will be found in Code, vol. 2, art. 81. No person who is not liable to the amount of one hundred dollars is required to pay tax, there being no poll tax in the State. By Acts 1916, ch. 393, it is provided that beginning with 1915 and thereafter household furniture and effects held for household use shall be exempt from taxation for State and local purposes to the extent of five hundred dollars. No exemption if held for business, etc. Any county may levy for local purposes in excess of one hundred dollars.

The state comptroller and tax commissioner are charged with the superintendence and enforcement of the prompt collection of all taxes. All certificates of indebtedness or certificates of debts in whatever form made or issued by any State, Territory, county, public corporation, or foreign country are subject to valuation and assessment to the owners thereof, in the county or city in which such owners may respectively reside. Equitable owner of personal property assessed upon same in place of his residence. (Code, vol. 2, art. 81, § 2.1.) In the case of taxes payable at any time before the end of the year. If not paid within the year, interest and costs run thereafter on them. In Baltimore city taxes on personal property are payable on or before May 1 and on real property July 1 of year for which they are levied, and thirty days thereafter a penalty of three per cent is added. In the third year after the taxes have been paid, or at an earlier period, at the option of the collector, the property is sold for the taxes; redeemable by the owner on payment of purchase money, with interest at six per cent and costs and expenses, in the city of Baltimore, at any time within a year and a day and in the counties at any time within twelve months. (See Redemption.) For exemptions in manufacturing industries see Code, vol. 3, art. 81, §§ 4, 162-164. State Taxes are payable on or before September 1, and after September 1 bear interest. By Acts 1916, ch. 629, provision is made for a uniform plan of tax assessment in the counties throughout the State. The validity of the act has recently been upheld by the court of appeals. Taxes shall be collected within six months after levy or this section may be pleaded in bar, but where receivers or trustees are appointed to complete collection, they shall have two years from time of appointment and this section cannot be pleaded within said two years. (Acts 1918, ch. 268.)

Witness. — No witness is incompetent on the ground of religious belief, provided he is a Christian in God and moral accountability in this world, or a world to come nor is any one incompetent on account of race or color. (Constitution, 1867.) No person offered as a witness is excluded by reason of incapacity from crime (except perjury) or interest, either in the case or by deposition, all parties to civil suits, themselves, their wives, or husbands, competent witnesses in their own cases, subject further to important restrictions in cases where the party to a cause of action is dead or insane. (Code, vol. 1, art. 35.) In proceedings instituted in consequence of adultery, or for the purpose of obtaining a divorce, or for breach of promise of marriage, no verdict, judgment, or decree shall be entered on the testimony of one witness alone. In all cases testimony in corroboration shall be necessary in the trial of all indictments, complaints, and other proceedings against persons charged with crimes and offenses in a court or before a justice of the peace or other officer acting in the name of the State, the person so charged shall, at his own request, but not otherwise, be deemed a competent witness, but neglect or refusal to testify shall create no presumption against him. (Code, vol. 1, art. 35.)

Deeds. — In the nature of mortgages are unusual, except in the case of corporations when they issue bonds secured by deeds in trust of their property.

Real Estate Sales Act. — This law was enacted by Acts of 1910, chapter 349, and went into effect June 10, 1910. (Code, vol. 2, art. 83, §§ 22 to 98, and Code, vol. 3, art. 83, § 4.)

Vendor's Lien. — In Acts of 1910, chapter 216, it is provided that when any real property shall be hereafter transferred or conveyed, and the purchase money or part thereof, shall remain unpaid, vendor shall not have a lien on the same for any other sum than that which shall appear to be due on the face of the instrument conveying the same. This provision, however, not to affect in any way any mortgage given to secure the purchase money, or to affect the lien of any landlord upon goods and chattels for rent. By said act vendor has the privilege of inserting a clause authorizing the sale of the property. Such sale shall be reported and confirmed as mortgaged property. It is also made for recording such liens as other instruments are recorded.

Wills. — All devises and bequests of any lands or tenements, or interest therein and all bequests of any goods, chattels, or personal property, shall be in writing, and signed by the testator, or by some other person for him in his presence and by his express direction, and shall be attested and subscribed, in the presence of the testator, by two or more credible witnesses, or else they shall be utterly void and of no effect. This act applies after July 31, 1894. (Code, vol. 2, art. 93.) Typewritten wills admitted by the orphans' court of Baltimore city, the same being sanctioned by virtue of Acts 1900, ch. 598.

To make a valid will of real estate, a party must be, if a male, of the age of twenty-one years, and if a female, eighteen years, and of sound and disposing mind and capable of making a valid deed or contract.

A will made by a soldier in actual military service or a sailor at sea, may dispose of his movables, wages, and personal property as hereinafter provided. Every will or other testamentary instrument executed without this State in mode prescribed by law, either of the place where executed or of testator's domicile, or according to the requirements required by this State, shall be deemed legally executed, and of same force and effect as if executed in mode prescribed by law of this State; provided will is in writing and subscribed by testator; and if testator was originally domiciled in Maryland, although at time of making will or at time of death he may be domiciled elsewhere, said will shall be admitted to probate in any orphans' court of this State, and shall then be construed according to laws of Maryland, without regard to lex domicilii, unless testator declares a contrary intent in said will. (Code, vol. 3, art. 93, § 334.)

Wills are offered for probate before the orphans' courts of the counties and the city of Baltimore, and, in the recess of the courts, before the registers of wills, and when admitted to probate are recorded among the records of the register of wills of such county or city. The register of wills of each county and of said city are authorized to receive for safe-keeping the wills of living persons; fifty cents are paid for keeping them till death of testator or for shorter period. (Code, vol. 2, art. 93.)

Testator can leave by will all his property away from his family except the estates of wife in husband's property and husband in wife's property heretofore mentioned. But bequests and devises or gifts to take effect at death to any "minister, public teacher, or preacher" or to any "religious sect, order, or denomination" must receive the prior or subsequent assent of the legislature to be valid. (Declaration of Rights, art. 38.)

Workmen's Compensation Law. — See Code, vol. 3, art. 101, and amendments, Acts 1916, chs. 368 and 597.

MASSACHUSETTS LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Dunbar, Nutter & McClennen, of Boston.

Next legislature convenes on the first Wednesday of January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. - See Dreda.

Actions. - There are only three classes of personal actions at law, viz. Actions of contract, which include assumpsit, covenant, and debt, except for penalties, actions of tort, which include trespass, trespass on the case, trover, and all actions for penalties, and actions of replevin.

Essentially all transitory actions, including suits in equity, except for damages for injury to highway and actions to which certain corporations are parties, must, if any one of the parties lives in the State, be brought in the county in which some one of the parties has his usual place of business. Actions for injuries received by reason of negligence must be brought in the county in which the plaintiff lives or has his usual place of business, or in which the alleged injury was received. If neither party lives in the State, the action may be brought in any county. Actions begun by trustee process must be brought in the county in which the trustees or one of them lives or has his usual place of business. In inferior courts a person shall not be held to answer as trustee except in the county in which he lives or has a usual place of business. Actions concerning land are local and must be brought in the county in which the land lies, except that actions for rent or breach of contract are considered transitory.

Actions at law are begun by writs issued in blank by the clerks of the several courts, and filled in by the attorney as the case may require. In the superior and supreme judicial courts, except replevin, may be begun by bill or petition with writ or subpoena as may be required. No declaration need be inserted in an original writ except in case of an arrest without process, or of an attachment of a ship or vessel, but the declaration must be filed in the clerk's office on or before the return day of the writ. Where there is an attachment of a ship or vessel, and no declaration is in the writ, a copy must be furnished to the defendant or his attorney within three days after demand in writing, or the action may on motion of the defendant be dismissed. Suits in equity are begun by filing a bill upon which a subpoena may be issued by the clerk of the court, or by inserting a bill or petition in a writ and making service thereon as in an action at law. See also, Claims, Collection and Proof of, Practice.

Amendment. - No action will be defeated by plea or answer in abatement if the defect is capable of amendment, and is amended on terms prescribed by the court. Upon an answer found against a defendant upon a plea in abatement, final judgment will issue, unless leave is given by the court to answer over. At any time before final judgment amendments may be allowed on just and reasonable terms, introducing a necessary party or discontinue as to a party, changing the form of action, or in any other point of form or substance, so as to enable a plaintiff to maintain the cause for which the action was originally intended to be brought, or a defendant to make a legal defense.

Depositions. See Depositions.

Aliens. - Resident or non-resident aliens may hold and convey real estate and sue and be sued as citizens. An alien who has made the primary declaration of an intention to become a citizen of the United States may be admitted to the bar.

Calendar. See Court Calendar for Massachusetts.

Arrest. - On Mesne Process. - Actions of contract may be begun by an arrest of the defendant, unless a woman, if the plaintiff, and, except in actions on negotiable instruments, the defendant is a party to the contract or his executor or administrator, makes affidavit and satisfies the court to which the writ is returnable or a justice thereof, first, that he has a good cause of action and reasonable expectation of recovering a sum amounting to $100 exclusive of all costs in that or any former action; second, that he believes there is a reasonable cause to believe that the defendant has property, not exempt from execution, which he does not intend to apply to the payment of the plaintiff's debt; and third, that he believes and has reasonable cause to believe that the defendant is about to leave the State so that execution, if obtained, cannot be served on him, or instead of the first and third, that the defendant is an attorney at law, and the debt sought to be recovered is for money collected by the defendant for the plaintiff, which the defendant has negligently neglected to pay to the plaintiff.

Actions of tort, except for slander and libel, may be begun by an arrest of the defendant if the plaintiff or some one in his behalf makes oath and proves as above that he believes and has reason to believe that he has a good cause of action against the defendant; that he has reasonable expectation of recovering a sum equal at least to one third the damages claimed in the writ, and that the defendant intends to leave the State, so that if execution be obtained it cannot be served upon him. The affidavit is usually accepted as sufficient proof.

A defendant arrested on meane process may give bail with one or more sufficient sureties, and if the bail fixed is excessive it may be reduced by proceedings in habeas corpus. The defendant, instead of giving bail, may be taken before a court or magistrate and may apply to take an oath that he did not when arrested, and does not then, intend to leave the State, or the poor debtor's oath (see infra); he may be examined by the plaintiff, and relevant evidence may be adduced by either party. If the court or magistrate is satisfied, either oath or both may be administered, and the defendant is then discharged from arrest. The defendant may also recognize with satisfactory surety to appear within thirty days, and before the return day of the writ, for such examination, giving notice to the plaintiff, and may recognise pending the examination. He may apply to take either oath, after giving bail or recognising, and if the oath is administered the sureties are discharged. The poor debtor's oath forever exempts the defendant from arrest on any process founded on the same cause of action. A defendant may be arrested as above provided at any time during the pendency of a suit, upon a special precept issued by the court ex parte upon sufficient cause shown. No arrest can be made upon a writ in the form of the trustee process, or if property of the defendant is attached upon the same writ. The declaration must be inserted in the writ before service by arrest. On application the court may reduce the ad damnum of the writ, or, if the arrest is unreasonable, order the defendant's discharge.

On Execution. — Special provisions exist for the arrest on execution and examination before a police, district, or municipal court or trial justice in the county within which the judgment was recovered of women and debtors on executions in favor of the Commonwealth.

A debtor on an execution for costs alone, or for alimony, or an execution in a criminal case, or an execution issued in an action of tort, may be arrested without preliminary proceedings and may be committed unless he requires the officer to take him before a court or magistrate as hereinafter provided.

In all other cases a debtor cannot be arrested on execution unless the creditor or some one in his behalf, after execution is issued amounting to twenty dollars exclusive of all costs, accrued in the last or any former action on the same original cause of action, and while as much as that amount remains uncollected, makes affidavit and proves to the satisfaction of the proper court or magistrate that he believes and has good reason to believe: first, that the debtor has property not exempt from execution which he does not intend to apply to the payment of the plaintiff's claim; or, second, that since the debt was contracted or the cause of action accrued the debtor has fraudulently conveyed, concealed, or otherwise disposed of some part of his estate with design to secure the same to his own use or defraud his creditors; or, third, that since the debt was contracted or the cause of action accrued the debtor has hazarded or paid money or other property to the value of one hundred dollars or more in some kind of gaming prohibited by the law of this State; or, fourth, that since the debt was contracted the debtor has willfully expended or misused his property, or some part thereof, to enable himself to swear that he has not estate to the amount of twenty dollars not exempt from execution; or, fifth, that the debtor contracted the debt with intent not to pay the same; or, sixth, that the debtor is an attorney at law, and that the debt is for money collected by him for the creditor, which the debtor unreasonably neglects to pay to the creditor.

Upon application for an order of arrest on any of the foregoing grounds the court or magistrate issues a citation to the debtor to appear for examination. If on examination the court or magistrate is satisfied of the truth of the charge, or if the debtor fails to appear within twenty-four hours after any time set for examination, or refuses to obey the lawful orders of the court or magistrate, an order of arrest is issued. The magistrate may proceed with the examination within the twenty-four hours upon motion and proof that the failure of the debtor or creditor to appear at such time was not due to his own fault. If the debtor appears to have property not exempt to the amount of twenty dollars he must produce the excess for levy, or, if it cannot be produced, he may be required to assign it to the creditor. If the debtor appears and obeys all lawful orders, no order of arrest is issued, and he is not liable to arrest or examination on the same charge and cause of action for three years. An arrest may, by special order for satisfactory cause shown, be authorized to be made after sunset. No preliminary citation and examination are required if the creditor or some one in his behalf, in addition to the first charge specified above, makes affidavit and proves to the satisfaction of the court or magistrate that there is good reason to believe that the debtor intends to leave the State.

When a debtor is arrested on execution he may apply to take the oath for the relief of poor debtors, or, in the proper case, that he does not intend to leave the State, or may recognize with satisfactory surety in a sum equal to the amount of the execution for examination within thirty days. If he desires to take either of the oaths mentioned, a time and place is fixed and notice given to the creditor, who may examine him. Pending such examination the debtor may recognise for his appearance thereat. If satisfied of the truth of the reinstated, the court or magistrate may administer the oath for the relief of poor debtors, viz., that the debtor has not estate to the amount of twenty dollars not exempt from execution, and has not any estate fraudulently conveyed or concealed with design to defraud himself or to his own use or to defraud his creditors. Upon taking this oath the debtor is discharged from imprisonment and is forever exempt from arrest on the same execution process founded on the same judgment or cause of action, unless proved to have lied on his examination. In like manner the court or magistrate, if satisfied that the debtor did not when arrested, and does not at the time of examination, intend to leave the State, may administer to him such an oath, and he shall be discharged from arrest. Immediately upon such discharge the debtor may be examined without further notice, on a citation. The creditor may at any time during the proceedings, before the debtor's oath is administered, file either of the last five charges above as a charge of perjury, and if satisfactorily proved the debtor may be imprisoned for a fixed time thereon. The debtor is liable from a judgment on such a charge.

A debtor committed to prison upon an execution may at any time apply to take the poor debtor's oath, but no such application shall be made within seven days after a refusal to take the oath. If the debtor claims support as a pauper, the creditor is charged one penny and seventy-five cents a week therefor, and if the amount is not paid the debtor is liable to imprisonment.

Contempt for the debtor to expend under certain circumstances any of his estate in the proceedings and after the citation for preliminary examination has been served, is punishable, except for necessities.

Sworn affidavits specified are usually accepted as sufficient evidence for the issue of a citation or an order of arrest on the ground that the debtor is about to leave the State. A judgment on a claim for necessities of life, equitable process may issue requiring the debtor to pay in full or by installments on pain of contempt.

Assignments. — The assignee by written assignment of a legal chose in action may sue in his own name, but subject to any defense, counter-claim, recoupment, or set-off which would be available if he had sued in the name of his assignor. See Wages.

Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors. — A voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors made in Massachusetts, although giving preferences and providing for the payment of the debt by creditors participating, if assented to by creditors whose claims amount to the amount of the property assigned, cannot be avoided by a creditor except by showing that it would constitute a fraud at common law. But such assignments were fraudulent within the meaning of the insolvent law, and voidable by an assignee appointed in a bankruptcy begun within six months, and may be avoided by a trustee in bankruptcy if made within four months prior to the filing of the petition. If no creditors have assented, or if the property in excess of the claims of the creditors who have at the time assented, the remainder or the excess in the hands of the assignee can be reached by trustee process (and under some circumstances by attachment). Such an assignment made in another State, but valid by the law of the State where made, is valid as to property in Massachusetts, but cannot be avoided by creditors resident in other States; but creditors resident in Massachusetts may avoid such an assignment if it has not been assented to by the creditors of the debtor, and, probably, whenever they could have done so if it had been made in Massachusetts. Creditors resident in Massachusetts, however, cannot avoid such an assignment except by showing only that it grants a preference, even though such preference cannot otherwise be avoided. A transfer or assignment made in another State, or foreign country, by debt, or otherwise (except under the national bankrupt law), without the act of the debtor, is not valid as to property in Massachusetts as against a creditor resident in Massachusetts. It is valid as against a creditor residing in the State where the assignment was made, or the same is true as to a non-resident creditor residing in a different State is untrue. But see 172 U. S. 239.

Acts passed prior to the national bankruptcy act it was provided that acts done in Massachusetts by an assignee for the benefit of creditors of a resident of Massachusetts under the act of 1842, of all the debtor's property, wherever situated, not by law exempt, providing for the distribution in substantial accordance with the insolvent law, after notice to all known creditors, and after a copy of the assignment has been filed in the town or city clerk's office at the debtor's principal place of business, are valid though the assignment is afterwards set aside in proceedings in insolvency, if the assignment is assented to in writing by a majority of the number and value of the creditors not secured or preferred under the insolvency act.

Attachment. — In all personal civil actions in which a debt or damages are recoverable in suits in equity begun by a bill inserted in a writ, property may be attached by original writ and held as security to satisfy such judgment or decree as the plaintiff may recover, but no attachment of real estate can be made on a writ returnable before a justice of the peace, or municipal court or trial justice, unless the damages demanded (determined by the ad damnum of the writ) exceed twenty dollars. Attachments may be made by writ or against non-residents as well as in suits by or against residents. No bond or security is necessary except as is hereinafter mentioned, to make an attachment, except in cases where the officer making an attachment of personalty may demand a bond of indemnity. The property and personal estate liable to be taken on execution (for exemptions see Execution) except such personal estate as is considered from its nature or situation exempt according to principles of common law, is liable to attachment. Railroad cars and engines and steamboats in use and making regular passages cannot be attached within forty-eight hours of their departure, unless the officer has first demanded of the owners or managers other property to attach equal in value to the ad damnum of the writ, and such demand has not been complied with. Personal property used in printing and publishing a newspaper cannot be attached within forty-eight hours previous to the issue of an edition of the paper, unless the officer makes a like demand not complied with, twenty-four hours at least before the attachment. The attachment takes effect from the demand as against any subsequent conveyance or attachment. In either of the foregoing cases the attachment is void unless the officer in his return certifies that he has made such demand and that it was not complied with. No ship or vessel can be attached unless the declaration is inserted in the writ before service, nor unless the plaintiff, or some person in his behalf, makes affidavit and proves to the satisfaction of a magistrate that he has a good cause of action, and reasonable expectation of recovering a sum amounting, exclusive of all costs, to at least one third the ad damnum of the writ. The affidavit is usually accepted as sufficient evidence.

All the defendant's right, title, and interest in real estate within a county, not exempt by law, may be attached without any further description thereof, and such attachment holds all real estate the record title to which is then in his name, including property conveyed by a deed not recorded before the attachment is recorded. If an incumbrance is removed after the attachment is made, it inures to the benefit of the attaching creditor. Real estate fraudulently conveyed, or which is held in trust for the debtor, whereby he is entitled to a present conveyance, may be attached specially as the property of the grantor, but must be described with sufficient accuracy for identification.

Personal property, which from its bulk or other cause cannot be immediately removed, may be held on attachment by filing a certified copy of the writ and return of attachment in the office of the clerk of the city or town in which the property is situated.

Other personal property must be kept in the possession of the officer, by putting a keeper over it or otherwise. Such property must be removed upon the written request of the defendant, without unreasonable delay. Unless such request is made by the defendant, or by the owner or occupant of the premises, the property may be kept where found. If the defendant requires the property to be left on the premises it cannot be removed until he has had reasonable opportunity to dissolve the attachment by giving bond. Live animals and personal property liable to perish, or that cannot be kept without disproportionate expense, may be sold, and the proceeds held subject to the attachment.

Shares in domestic and foreign corporations cannot be attached, but may be reached in equity and applied to the satisfaction of claims. Choses in action cannot be attached except such as can be reached by trustee process; but choses in action and any property, right, title, or interest, legal or equitable, within or without the State, which cannot be taken on execution in an action at law, may be reached and applied in equity for the satisfaction of a debt.

Personal property subject to a mortgage, pledge, or lien may be attached as if unincumbered, if the creditor pays or tenders to the mortgagee, pawnee, or holder of the property the amount for which it is liable within ten days after demand; if mortgaged, it may also, if in possession of the mortgagor, and if the mortgagee is subject to the jurisdiction of the court on trustee process, be so attached and the mortgagee be summoned as trustee of the mortgagor; in this case the validity of and amount due on the mortgage is determined by the court on hearing, and the amount must be paid if so ordered by the court.

Personal property owned by several jointly may, it seems, be attached on a writ against one of them, but on appraisal and giving of a bond by the others must be surrendered to them. This does not, however, apply to personal property belonging to a partnership; the interest of a partner in property of the partnership can be reached only in equity.

No attachment of property can be made on an original writ, after personal service upon the defendant, but at any time during the pendency of a suit, libel, petition, or other proceeding at law or in equity, the court or a justice thereof in term time or vacation may on good cause shown grant ex parte a special precept directing the attachment of property.

Successive attachments may be made in different suits upon the same property, and take priority according to time. Any person claiming an interest in property attached, by reason of a subsequent attachment or otherwise, may by proper proceeding be admitted to contest the validity of the prior attachment.

On application to a justice of the court to which the process is returnable, an attachment found upon summary hearing of the parties to be excessive or unreasonable may be ordered to be reduced or discharged, or a part of the property may be ordered to be released.

The attaching officer becomes liable to the creditor for the goods attached. He may deliver them to a person receipting to him therefor, who thereby becomes liable to him, but this does not discharge the officer's liability to the creditor.

An attachment may be dissolved by depositing with the attaching officer a sum equal to the ad damnum of the writ, by giving bond with sureties or an authorized surety company satisfactory to the plaintiff, or approved by a magistrate upon examination, with condition to pay the amount the plaintiff may recover within thirty days after final judgment. Each surety must be shown to be worth above all debts the amount for which the attachment is laid, or if more than two sureties they must together be worth double that amount. An attachment may be dissolved as to particular property by giving bond as above to pay the value of such property, which is fixed by appraisal. An attachment is dissolved by proceedings in insolvency or bankruptcy begun within four months, by appointment of a receiver filed within four months, and by final judgment in favor of the defendant, but if judgment is appealed from, the attachment remains in force until the appeal is decided. An attachment is also dissolved, except as to property alienated by him before the death of the defendant, if administration is granted on his estate upon application within six months after the death. Unless dissolved, an attachment remains in force thirty days after final judgment for the plaintiff.

It may be executed by another person in behalf of a party to the suit, if it appears to the magistrate approving it that there is a good cause why it is not executed by such party. Sureties on a bond to dissolve an attachment are released by the principal's discharge in insolvency or bankruptcy in proceedings begun within four months after the attachment, if the original claim would have been discharged if proved in the insolvency or bankruptcy.

Bill of Lading. — The law as to bills of lading is codified, St. 1910, ch. 214.

Bill of Sale. — By the law of Massachusetts, delivery, actual or symbolic, of personal property sold is necessary to pass the title as against subsequent bona fide purchasers attaching creditors of the vendor. A bill of sale is not sufficient to prevent the operation of this rule, and if the possession of property covered by a bill of sale is not transferred to the vendee, it may be attached and taken as the property of the vendor. Notice to a person in whose hands the property is, or an express bona fide agreement by the vendor to deliver the property as bailee of the vendee, constitutes a sufficient transfer of possession. Delivery of part of the property in token of delivery of the whole may operate as a change of possession when the sale is an actual sale and not intended as a pledge or loan. It is impossible to lay down any general rule as to what is a sufficient symbolic evidence is admissible to show that a bill of sale absolute in terms was intended to secure a debt, and if in such a case possession is not taken and retained by the vendee, his title is not good against a subsequent bona fide purchaser from or attaching creditor of the vendor. The statutes make no provision for recording a bill of sale intended for security, and its record will have no effect. The provisions of law applicable to mortgages apply to bills of sale intended for security. If a bill of sale must be recorded as a condition for redemption, whether oral or written, must be set forth on the record (St. ch. 237.)

Chattel Mortgages. — A chattel mortgage need not be under seal, and no acknowledgment is necessary. Such mortgages are not valid except between the parties, until the mortgage is recorded both in the city or town where the mortgagor resides when the mortgage is made, and in the city or town in which he then principally transacts his business or his trade or calling, or, if he resides out of the State and the mortgage is of property in the State, in the city or town where the property then is. Such record must be within ten days of the date written in the mortgage, but if to be recorded in two places the record may be made within ten days of the first. A mortgage of a ship or vessel (which includes, in certain cases at least, small sail-boats not enrolled or licensed), or of goods on sea or abroad, if the mortgagee takes possession of the goods as soon as they arrive at the port, need not be recorded. The record dates from the time the instrument is left for recording in the clerk's office. The clerk's certificate of record, indorsed on the original mortgage, is conclusive evidence. After breach of condition the mortgagor may redeem the mortgage, or of redemption may be foreclosed by the exercise of a power of sale in the mortgage. The mortgagee has the right to redeem for sixty days after the recording of a notice of intention to sell for foreclosure, and affidavit of service of such notice upon the mortgagor personally or by publication. A mortgage given to secure future advances or liabilities is valid as to all advances and liabilities incurred prior to the acquisition of rights in the property by third parties by attachment or otherwise. A general description of the property mortgaged, as in a certain place, is good so far as the property can be identified and made certain. A mortgage including property thereafter to be acquired is valid as to such property if the mortgagee takes possession before and retains possession until rights of third parties accrue. A mortgagee waives his mortgage by attaching the property for the debt secured. Mortgages made to secure loans of less than one thousand dollars are subject to a penalty by which interest cannot be received in excess of eighteen per cent per annum. It is a criminal offense to remove or conceal mortgaged property with intent to place it out of the control of the mortgagee, or to sell or convey it without the written consent of the mortgagee and without informing the purchaser that it is mortgaged. See Bills of Sale, and Sales; Pledges.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — See Executors and Administrators.

Claims, Collection and Proof of. — Persons sending claims to Massachusetts for collection should state the full name, residence, and place of business of the creditor, in case of a partnership, all the partners, together with the firm name. The mere affidavit of a creditor is not evidence in court of a disputed claim, but the creditor must give evidence at a trial if a trial is had. Non-residents may be required to furnish security by having the writ indorsed by some inhabitant of the State. The liability of an indorser is for the taxable costs recoverable by the other party. A suit may be brought without such an indorser. Suits upon open accounts and other non-negotiable choses in action assigned by written instrument, or purchased of assignees in insolvency, or of executors or administrators, may be brought in the name of the assignee, but ordinarily little advantage is gained by assigning claims to citizens of this State for the purpose of recovering judgment.

Collateral Security. — See Bills of Sale; Chattel Mortgages; Pledges.

Conditional Sales. — A conditional sale need not be recorded (15 Gray, 225, 229; 106 Mass. 422), except that conditional sales of personalty which is afterwards wrought into or attached to realty are not valid against a mortgagee, purchaser, or grantee of the realty unless recorded in the clerk's office of the city or town where the realty is situated, within ten days of the contract. A vendee under a sale conditional on payment of the price, from whom the vendor takes the property for failure to fulfill the condition, has a right to redeem the property within fifteen days by paying the unpaid balance of the price with interest and charges and expenses. There are special provisions covering conditional sales of furniture and other household effects. Selling or concealing personal property held under a written and conditional contract of sale before performance of the condition, with intent to defraud, is a criminal offense. Special provision is made for conditional sales and leases of railroad and street railway rolling-stock. A codification of the law of sales took effect January 1, 1909.

Corporations. — Domestic. — Special provisions govern the formation and business of corporations of the following classes: railroads, street railways, savings banks, cooperative banks, banks, trust companies, mortgage and loan investments companies, insurance companies, fraternal beneficiary organizations, gas and electric light, heat and power companies, companies for the transmission of intelligence by electricity, proprietors of wharves, general fields and real estate lying in common, agricultural and horticultural societies, and associations for charitable, educational, religious, and similar purposes.

A revision of the law of business corporations took effect on August 1, 1903, and applies to all corporations carrying on business for profit except those above enumerated and surety or indemnity companies, safe deposit companies, canal, aqueduct, or water companies, cemetery or crematory companies, and corporations having the right to take or condemn land or exercise franchises in public ways.

Under the general law above referred to three or more persons meeting within Massachusetts may associate themselves and form a corporation for carrying on any lawful business not excluded by the above provisions, but the term of corporations organized to hold or deal in real estate shall not exceed fifty years. Such a corporation must have a capital of not less than one thousand dollars; there is no maximum limit. The shares must have a par value of not less than five dollars, and may have restrictions imposed upon their transfer. The stock may be divided into two or more classes, with such preferences, voting powers, restrictions, and qualifications as may be fixed in the agreement of association. Upon the due organization of the associates as a corporation pursuant to law a majority of the directors chosen sign under oath articles of organization, setting forth a copy of the original agreement of association, the date of the first meeting, certain required information as to the capital and property of the corporation, and the names of the officers. This certificate and the record of the first meeting are filed with the commissioner of corporations, who, if he finds them in conformity with the law, certifies his approval; whereupon a certificate of incorporation is issued by the secretary of state and has the effect of a special charter, and is conclusive evidence of the existence of the corporation. Upon filing the certificate of organization a fee of one twentieth of one per cent. of the capital, but not less than twenty-five dollars, is payable. The only other expenses of incorporation are counsel fees.

The capital stock may be issued for cash, property, tangible or intangible, services or expenses. Stock issued for cash may be paid for in full or by installments. In the latter case, the certificate must be stamped so as to show the balance payable. The amount of stock fixed by the articles of organization may be increased.

Every corporation must have not less than three directors, a president, clerk, treasurer, and such other officers as the by-laws may prescribe. The president is chosen annually by and from the board of directors. The directors, treasurer, clerk, and such other officers as the by-laws prescribe, are elected annually by the stockholders, by ballot. Every director must be a stockholder, unless the by-laws otherwise provide. The clerk must be a resident of the Commonwealth, and sworn to the performance of his duties. The directors may be divided into classes, but no class shall be elected for a shorter term than one year, or for a longer term than five years, and the term of office of at least one class must expire each year. A certificate setting forth any change of officers made at any time except at the annual meeting must be signed and sworn to by the clerk, and be filed within thirty days after the change on penalty of a forfeiture not exceeding five hundred dollars.

No corporation can vote, directly or indirectly, on any share of its own stock. Stockholders entitled to vote have one vote for each share, except in certain cooperative corporations and in corporations having two or more classes of stock with different par value, in which case the voting power may be fixed in proportion to the par values. Voting by proxy is permitted, but no proxy dated more than six months before the meeting named is valid, and no proxy is valid after the final adjournment of the meeting named. There is no restriction on the number of proxies that one person may hold or on an officer holding proxies. The meetings of stockholders must be held within the Commonwealth, but directors may meet within or without the Commonwealth.

Title to shares is transferred only by delivery of the certificate indorsed by the person named therein as owner, or delivery accompanied by a written assignment or power of attorney to sell, assign, or transfer, signed by such person. A pledgee of stock is entitled to receive a new certificate if the instrument of transfer substantially describes the obligation secured. Such new certificate must express on its face that it is held as collateral security. The Uniform Stock Transfer Act took effect March 5, 1910.

Any corporation may hold, purchase, convey, mortgage, or lease such real or personal property within or without the Commonwealth as the purposes of its business may require.

Stockholders of a corporation which reduces its capital stock contrary to law are liable for the debts and contracts existing at the time of such reduction to the amount withdrawn and paid to them respectively. Stockholders are liable for all money due operatives for services rendered within six months before demand made upon the corporation and its neglect or refusal to pay. A stockholder paying on a judgment or otherwise more than his proportion of any debt has a claim for contribution.

The president, treasurer, and directors of every corporation are jointly and severally liable for all debts and contracts made while they are officers, if any stock is issued in violation of law, or if any statement or report required by law made by them is and is known, or could on reasonable examination have been known, to them to be false in any material representation, but only those who signed such statement or report are liable. Any one knowingly making a false statement or report required by law from either a domestic or a foreign corporation is criminally liable. Directors are jointly and severally liable for debts and contracts of the corporation: (1) for declaring or assenting to a dividend if the corporation is or is thereby rendered bankrupt or insolvent, to the extent of such dividend; (2) for debts contracted between the making or assenting to a loan to a stockholder or director and the time of its repayment, to the extent of such loan; but directors who vote against such dividend or making such loan are not liable. No stockholder or officer can be held liable unless the corporation has been duly adjudicated bankrupt or unless before suit is brought by a creditor against the officers for their liability after a written demand of the creditor, it has neglected for ten days to pay his claim. The liability is enforced by bill in equity filed by any creditor in behalf of himself and all others against it and all persons who are liable to the plaintiff as stockholders or officers. A suit cannot be discontinued except by order of court after notice to other creditors, and does not abate for nonjoinder of persons liable as defendants, except after notice by plea or answer of their existence, and the suit does not abate by the death of a defendant, but his estate remains liable.

Any corporation may be enjoined from doing business not authorized by its charter.

Every corporation, at a meeting duly called for the purpose, by vote of a majority of all the stock, and a majority of each class outstanding and entitled to vote, if more than one, may increase or reduce its capital, authorize a change of location, change the par value of its shares, or authorize proceedings for a dissolution; and by a vote of two thirds of all its stock, and of each class outstanding and entitled to vote, if more than one, or by a larger vote if the agreement of association so requires, may change its name, the nature of its business, the classes of its stock, and their voting power, or make any other amendment in its agreement of association, or sell, lease, or exchange all its property and assets, including good-will and corporate franchise, upon such terms and conditions as it deems expedient. A stockholder who votes against such a sale, lease, or exchange may within thirty days demand payment of his stock, and if he cannot agree with the corporation as to its value such value shall be ascertained by appraisal of three persons, one named by the stockholder, one by the corporation, and the third by the other two.

Every corporation is required to file annually within thirty days after the date fixed for its annual meeting, or within thirty days after final adjournment of such meeting but within ninety days after such date, a report of its condition, accompanied, if its capital is over one hundred thousand dollars, by a written statement under oath by an auditor who must be some one other than a bookkeeper, treasurer, or other officer of the corporation, who signs the statement; every corporation is required to make a return to the tax commissioner between the 1st and 10th of April in each year: a penalty is provided in each case.

A corporation may, unless otherwise provided in the agreement of association, by vote of a majority of all its stock, and of each class outstanding and entitled to vote, if more than one, authorize a petition for dissolution, to be filed in the supreme judicial court or superior court, and after notice and hearing a decree of dissolution may be entered. Every corporation shall continue in existence for three years after expiration of its charter by limitation, by forfeiture, or otherwise, for the purpose of prosecuting and defending suits and enabling it to settle its affairs. On application to the superior or supreme court receivers may be appointed to wind up the corporation, and the powers of such receivers and the existence of the corporation may be continued as long as the court finds necessary.

Every corporation subject to the general law is taxable locally upon all real estate and machinery owned by it in the Commonwealth, and is subject also to a franchise tax levied upon the aggregate market value of its shares, as determined by the tax commissioner, after deducting therefrom the value, as found by him, of real estate and machinery subject to local taxation as above and of securities which if owned by a natural person resident in the Commonwealth would be exempt from taxation, and the value of any property of the corporation situated in another State or country and subject to taxation there. The rate of the tax is the ratio between the total amount of money to be raised by taxation upon property in the Commonwealth during the year, less the aggregate of poll taxes for the preceding year, and the aggregate valuation of all cities and towns for the preceding year; but such franchise tax shall not exceed the tax levied at the rate above upon an amount, less said deductions, excepting securities which if owned by a natural person resident in this Commonwealth would not be liable to taxation, twenty per cent. in excess of the value, as found by the tax commissioner, of the real estate, machinery, and merchandise, and of securities which would be taxable if owned by an individual, and the total amount of the tax payable by the corporation upon its property locally taxed and upon its corporate franchise shall not be less than one tenth of one per cent. of the market value of its shares, as found by the tax commissioner.

An Act of May 29, 1918, operative for one year only, imposes an additional tax of one per cent. on the net income of the corporation, less certain deductions as shown by its return to the Collector of Internal Revenue. For details see the act.

Service of process in an action against a corporation, except municipal and religious corporations and proprietors, may be made on the clerk, cashier, secretary, or any other officer in charge of its business, and if no such officer is found, on any member.

Foreign. — No corporation organized under laws other than those of the Commonwealth shall engage or continue in any kind of business in this Commonwealth, the transaction of which by domestic corporations is not permitted by the laws of this Commonwealth. Every foreign corporation which has a usual place of business here or is engaged here, permanently or temporarily, in the construction, erection, alteration, or repair of a building, bridge, railroad, or structure of any kind, shall before doing business here in writing appoint the commissioner of corporations its attorney for service of process, such authority to continue as long as any liability remains outstanding against it in this Commonwealth; and shall file with the commissioner of corporations a copy of its charter, and of its by-laws, and a certificate setting forth its name, location, the names and addresses of its officers, date of its annual meeting, amount of its capital, authorized and issued, the number and par value of its shares, the amount paid thereon, and the details of any payment therefor not made in money. Failure to comply with these requirements and the requirement for an annual return renders every officer and every agent of the corporation liable to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars and renders them liable jointly and severally in an action of contract without prior proceedings against the corporation, for all debts and contracts of the corporation, except such as relate to interstate commerce entered into within the Commonwealth, or for the purpose of being performed therein, so long as the failure continues. Such failure does not affect the validity of any contract with the corporation, but debars the corporation from bringing any action in the courts of this Commonwealth. Any corporation having its principal or a usual place of business in the Commonwealth, or which is engaged in or soliciting business in the Commonwealth, may be served with process in the same manner as a domestic corporation.

Foreign corporations organized for any purpose for which domestic corporations may be organized may purchase and hold such real estate in this Commonwealth as may be necessary for conducting their business.

Every foreign corporation is required annually, at the same time fixed for domestic corporations, to file a certificate of its condition, accompanied by a statement under oath of an auditor appointed by the directors. Omission to file such a certificate renders the corporation liable to a forfeiture to the Commonwealth of from five to ten dollars a day for fifteen days, and of from ten to two hundred dollars a day for all subsequent days, or any other sum the court may deem just.

The officers of a foreign corporation are liable for all debts and contracts made while they are such officers, if any statement or report required by law made by them is and is known, or could on reasonable examination have been known by them to be false in any material representation, but only the officers who signed such statement or report are liable. Such liability is enforced in the same manner as in the case of domestic corporations.

If a foreign corporation issues stock, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness, based upon or secured by the property, franchise, or stock of a domestic street railway, gas light, or electric light corporation, of which it owns a majority of the stock, such domestic corporation may, unless such issue is authorized by law, be dissolved.

A foreign corporation is subject to taxation locally on all its real estate, machinery, and merchandise in this Commonwealth where situated, and is subject to an excise tax of one fiftieth of one per cent. of the par value of its authorized capital stock, but the amount of such excise tax shall not in any year exceed two thousand dollars. For the purpose of assessing the excise upon corporations whose stock was issued without a par value, one hundred dollars shall be considered par. Every such corporation must file between April 1 and April 10 of each year with the tax commissioner, a return showing all its property subject to taxation within Massachusetts, and the location and value thereof.

An act of May, 29, 1918 operative for one year only imposes an additional tax of one per cent. on the net income of the corporation, less certain deductions as shown by its return to the Collector of Internal Revenue. For details see the act.

Costs. — Costs are fixed by statute and taxed by the clerks of the several courts. The only costs allowed are small and include never more than two dollars and fifty cents for counsel fees, but do include witness fees and expenses of taking depositions.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Massachusetts.

Deeds. — Voluntary registration of title is provided for.

No estate or interest in land, except an estate at will, can be created except by instrument in writing or by operation of law. Conveyances of land are made by deeds (under seal) executed by the person or persons or attorney having authority therefor. A conveyance in fee simple, fee tail, for life, or a term of years exceeding seven from the making thereof, is not valid except as against the grantor and lessor or his heirs or devisees, and persons having actual notice of it, unless recorded in the county or district in which the real estate to which it relates is situated.

A recent statute requires that every deed presented for record shall contain or have indorsed upon it the full name, residence, and post-office address of the grantee, and shall state whether the grantee is married, but the provisions of the statute do not affect the validity of any deeds, and a register of deeds may record a deed not in conformity with the statute.

Acknowledgments. — No deed, except from the United States, can be recorded unless it is proved as below or acknowledged and a certificate of the officer taking the acknowledgment indorsed thereon or annexed thereto. The acknowledgment may be by the grantors or one of them, or the attorney executing the deed, and if made within the State must be before a justice of the peace, special commissioner, or notary public; if elsewhere in the United States, before a justice of the peace, notary public, magistrate (which includes, probably, the mayor of a city), or commissioner appointed by the governor of Massachusetts for the purpose; or before any officer authorized by the law of such other State to take proofs and acknowledgments of deeds; if in a foreign country, before such a justice, notary, magistrate, or commissioner, or before a minister, consul, vice-consul, chargé d'affaires, or consular agent of the United States resident in such country. Officers outside of Massachusetts, if having a seal, should use it. A certificate under seal from the secretary of state, or clerk of a court of record in the county where the officer resides or took the acknowledgment, authenticating the authority of the officer taking an acknowledgment in another State, and the genuineness of his signature, must be annexed.

[Form of Certificate of Acknowledgment.]

Begin in all cases with a caption showing the place where the acknowledgment is taken.

1. In the case of natural persons acting in their own right: —

On this day of 19 before me personally appeared A. B. (or A. B. and C. D.) to me known to be the person (or persons) described in and who executed the foregoing instrument, and acknowledged that he (or they) executed the same as his (or their) free act and deed.

2. In the case of natural persons acting by attorney: —

On this day of 19 before me personally appeared A. B., to me known to be the person who executed the foregoing instrument in behalf of C. D., and acknowledged that he executed the same as the free act and deed of said C. D.

3. In the case of corporations or joint-stock associations: —

On this day of 19 before me appeared A. B., to me personally known, who, being by me duly sworn (or affirmed), did say that he is the president (or other officer or agent of the corporation or association) of (describing the corporation or association), and that the seal affixed to said instrument is the corporate seal of said corporation (or association), and that said instrument was signed and sealed in behalf of said corporation (or association) by authority of its board of directors (or trustees), and said A. B. acknowledged said instrument to be the free act and deed of said corporation (or association).

(In case the corporation or association has no corporate seal, omit the words, "the seal affixed to said instrument is the corporate seal of said corporation (or association), and that," and add, at the end of the affidavit clause, the words, "and that said corporation (or association) has no corporate seal.") (In all cases add signature and title of the officer taking the acknowledgment.)

The certificate of acknowledgment may be on a separate paper annexed to the instrument.

The acknowledgment of a married woman is taken as if she were sole, and no separate examination or acknowledgment by a wife joining in a deed to release dower is necessary.

The official character of a magistrate acting in this State is certified by the secretary of state, or clerk of the superior court in Suffolk County, or clerk of the courts in any other county.

Proof by Subscribing Witness. — When a grantor dies or departs from the State without acknowledging his deed, or refuses to acknowledge it, its due execution may by proper proceedings be proved by the testimony of one or more of the subscribing witnesses, or, if they are all dead or out of the State, by proof of the handwriting of the grantor and subscribing witness, and a certificate of such proof shall be indorsed upon the deed, which may then be recorded. Before or pending such proceedings a copy compared with the original by the register may be filed in the registry of deeds, and such filing has for thirty days, or until the proceedings for proof are terminated, the same effect as recording the deed. In order to prove the execution of a deed as above provided, there must be at least one attesting witness.

Powers of attorney for the conveyance of real estate are subject to the same rules as to acknowledgment and recording as deeds. No subscribing witness is necessary except to prove the execution (so as to entitle it to record) of an unacknowledged deed.

A deed of quitclaim and release is sufficient to convey all the interest to which the grantor then has a record title; but covenants of warranty may operate by estoppel to transfer a title subsequently acquired.

A scroll is not a sufficient seal.

The record of an instrument duly acknowledged or proved in the manner provided by law and purporting to affect the title to lands is conclusive evidence of delivery in favor of purchasers for value without notice claiming thereunder. The register's certificate indorsed on the deed is conclusive evidence of its having been recorded.

It is common to express in a deed only a nominal consideration, as "one dollar and other valuable considerations."

An act authorizing short forms took effect January 1, 1913.

Depositions.—The deposition of a witness without the State for use in a civil suit pending therein may be taken by a commissioner appointed by the governor in any part of the United States or in a foreign country; or it may be taken under a commission issued by the court in which the cause is pending, to one or more competent persons in another State or country. The deposition may be taken upon written interrogatories to be exhibited to the adverse party or his attorney, if he appears in the suit, and cross-interrogatories to be filed by him if he thinks fit, or upon oral examination if the court so orders. In practice depositions are in most instances taken by written interrogatories.

The filing of interrogatories, issuing of commissions, and the manner of taking depositions are largely regulated by rules of court. By the rules of the supreme judicial and superior courts and the municipal court of Boston a commission may issue to any notary public, justice of the peace, or other officer authorized by the laws of his State to take affidavits or depositions therein, as well as to a commissioner appointed by the governor. The substance of the rules as to the manner of taking depositions is indicated by the following instructions to magistrates and form of return, which are appended to commissions issuing from the courts above named:—

Instructions to Magistrates, and Forms for taking Depositions.—You shall permit neither party to attend at the taking of the deposition, either himself or by any attorney or agent, nor to communicate by interrogatories or suggestions with the deponent whilst giving his deposition in answer to the interrogatories annexed to this commission. And you shall take such deposition in a place separate and apart from all other persons, and permit no person to be present during such examination except the deponent and yourself, and such disinterested person (if any) as you may think fit to appoint as a clerk to assist you in reducing the deposition to writing. And you shall put the several interrogatories and cross-interrogatories to the deponent in their order, and take the answer of the deponent to each, fully and clearly, before proceeding to the next, and not read to the deponent, nor permit the deponent to read, a succeeding interrogatory until the answer to the preceding has been fully taken down.

"Of this our writ, with your doings by warrant of the same, you will make return under seal into our said court with all convenient expedition. . . .

"The commissioner is requested in making his return to write upon the envelope the names of the parties to the suit and the title of the court.

"STATE OF

ss. }

"Pursuant to the foregoing commission I caused the said to come before me, on the day of A. D. 19 and having sworn the said to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, relating to the cause for which the deposition is taken, I examined the said and reduced his testimony to writing. Neither of said parties was present by himself, or by an agent or by an attorney, nor did either of them communicate in any manner with the deponent whilst giving his deposition; and I took said deposition separate and apart from all other persons, no person being present except myself and and in taking the deposition I put the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories to the deponent as directed in the foregoing commission, and in all respects fully and exactly complied with the directions in said commission in taking the same. And after the said deposition was taken I carefully read the same to the said and he subscribed it in my presence."

It is believed that under these instructions testimony may be taken stenographically and afterwards typewritten; but it is safer to stipulate that the deposition be so taken.

Depositions taken in accordance with these requirements may be used at the trial subject to any objections to the competency or credibility of the witness, or the admissibility of his testimony, which could be made if he were present; but objections to the form of a written interrogatory must be made before the commission is issued, and objections to the form of an oral interrogatory probably must be taken at the taking of the deposition.

Depositions and affidavits taken without the State in any other manner, if before a notary public or other person authorized by the law of the State or country where taken to take depositions, may, if sufficient notice and an opportunity to cross-examine is given to the adverse party, or if such notice is impossible, be admitted or rejected, in the discretion of the court. This discretion is given mainly to meet cases where there has been an attempt to comply with the legal requirements, but some of the prescribed formalities have been omitted. Depositions taken upon oral examination after notice to the adverse party, as provided in the United States statutes, are seldom if ever admitted.

Depositions may be taken within the State under certain circumstances for use in civil cases pending therein. Such depositions are taken upon either oral or written interrogatories before a justice of the peace. Notice and an opportunity to cross-examine must be given to the adverse party if he appears in the suit. A non-resident witness temporarily in the State may be compelled to attend to give his deposition.

The deposition of a witness present in the State, for use in a cause pending in another State or country, may be taken before a justice of the peace, or before commissioners appointed by authority of the State or country where the suit is pending, in the same manner as if it were for use in a cause pending in this State. A magistrate taking a deposition in this State has authority to compel a witness to attend, and may apply to a justice of the supreme judicial or superior court to compel him to testify.

Depositions to perpetuate Testimony. — A person desiring to perpetuate the testimony of a witness living without the State upon any subject may, upon filing with the supreme judicial or superior court a statement of the subject and the persons interested, and after notice to such persons, and cause shown at a hearing, obtain a commission to take the deposition of the witness in the same manner as if it were for use in a pending cause, upon written interrogatories and cross-interrogatories filed by any person adversely interested.

The applicant for the deposition and those claiming under him may use it against any persons named and notified as above and their successors in interest in any future suit relating to the same subject. The deposition may be made evidence against all persons if certain further steps provided by law are taken for notifying persons interested, and if the deposition is recorded in the registry of deeds for the proper county.

Similar provisions are made for perpetuating the testimony of witnesses within the State. Depositions to perpetuate testimony are admissible in evidence only when all the legal requirements have been strictly complied with.

Depositions of parties may be taken for the same cases as those of other witnesses and in like manner.

Descent and Distribution. — Since January 1, 1902, the following provisions have been in force: —

Real Estate. — Undivided real estate or any right or interest therein held in fee (including a term for one hundred years or more as long as fifty years remain unexpired), or for the life of another, descends subject to debts and to the rights of the husband or wife and minor children of the deceased, if any, as follows: 1st. In equal shares to the children and issue of any deceased child by right of representation; if there is no surviving child, to the other lineal descendants in equal shares, if all are in the same degree of kindred, otherwise by right of representation. 2d. If there are no issue, in equal shares to the father and mother. 3d. If there are no issue nor mother, to the father. 4th. If there are no issue nor father, to the mother. 5th. If there are no issue and no father or mother, to brothers and sisters and issue of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation; and if there is no surviving brother or sister, then to all the issue of deceased brothers and sisters, in equal shares, if all such issue are in the same degree of kindred; otherwise by right of representation. 6th. If there are no issue, father, mother, brother, sister, or issue of any deceased brother or sister, to the next of kin in equal degree, except that, of several collateral kindred of equal degree claiming through different ancestors, those through the nearest ancestor are preferred. 7th. If there are no kindred and no husband or widow, to the Commonwealth by escheat. See Dower and Curtesy.

Degrees of kindred are computed according to the rules of the civil law. Kindred of the half blood inherit equally with those of the whole blood in the same degree.

An illegitimate child is the heir of his mother and of any maternal ancestor. The lawful issue of an illegitimate person may take by representation any estate which such person would have taken if living. The estate of an illegitimate person who dies intestate and without issue who may lawfully inherit descends to his or her mother, or, if she is dead, to persons who would have been entitled as heirs through her. An illegitimate child whose parents have intermarried, if acknowledged by his or her father, is considered legitimate.

If a marriage is declared void by reason of a prior marriage of one party, and the other contracted the marriage in full belief that there was no impediment, children begotten before the second marriage is declared void are legitimate issue of the party capable of contracting the marriage.

Posthumous children are considered as living at the death of their parent.

Personal Estate. — Articles of apparel and ornaments of the widow and minor children belong to them respectively. Such parts of the personal estate as the probate court may allow as necessities for the widow for herself and the family of the deceased under her care, or, if no widow, to the minor children (not exceeding one hundred dollars to any child), such provisions and other articles as are necessary for reasonable sustenance of the family, and the use of the house and furniture for six months after death, are not assets. Real estate may within one year after approval of the executor's or administrator's bond be sold to make up the allowance. The widow's allowance should be asked for in an early stage in the proceedings for settlement of the estate, but a delay of two years and eight months will not as matter of law preclude its allowance. (155 Mass. 153.) The amount of the allowance is matter of judicial discretion, but it should not exceed a sum sufficient to provide her with temporary support until she can adapt herself to her new situation. (155 Mass. 141.)

Rights of Husband or Widow. — In case of intestacy personal estate, after the allowances to the widow and children above specified, is applied to the payment of debts, funeral charges, and expenses of administration; if insufficient, the real estate may be sold to

are allowed: 1st, the necessary wearing apparel of the debtor and of his wife and children, and household necessities to a limited amount; 2d, other household furniture necessary for him and his family, not exceeding three hundred dollars in value; 3d, the bibles, school-books, and library used by him or his family, not exceeding fifty dollars in value; 4th, one cow, six sheep, one swine, and two tons of hay; 5th, the tools, implements, and fixtures necessary for carrying on his trade or business, not exceeding one hundred dollars in value; 6th, materials and stock for carrying on his trade or business, and intended to be used or wrought therein, not exceeding one hundred dollars in value; 7th, the provisions necessary for the use of the family, not exceeding fifty dollars in value; 8th, one pew occupied by him or his family in a house of public worship; but this does not prevent the sale of a pew for the non-payment of a tax legally laid thereon; 9th, the boat, fishing tackle, and nets of fishermen, actually used by them in the prosecution of their business, to the value of one hundred dollars; 10th, the uniform of an officer or soldier in the militia, and the arms and accoutrements required by law to be kept by him; 11th, rights of burial and tombs while in use as repositories for the dead; 12th, one sewing-machine, not exceeding one hundred dollars in value, in actual use by the debtor or by his family; 13th, shares in co-operative associations formed under Revised Laws, ch. 110, not exceeding twenty dollars in value in the aggregate. Also funds of railroad relief societies, assessment insurance benefits, uniforms, arms, and equipments of commissioned militia officers. Except as above, all chattels real and personal, and all other goods liable at common law to be taken on execution, may be levied on; and current gold and silver coin, and bank-notes and other bills or evidence of debt, issued by a moneyed corporation and circulated as money, may be levied on. Special provision is made for levying on the shares of corporations organized under the authority of this State or of the United States, and located or having a general office here; but choses in action generally and shares in foreign corporations cannot be seized on execution. Personal property is levied upon by seizure and sale.

Every householder having a family is entitled to an estate of homestead to the value of eight hundred dollars exempt from levy on execution, if proper steps have been taken, by deed recorded in the registry of deeds of the county where it is situated, to declare it a homestead. Such homestead is not exempt from execution to enforce a probate court decree that a husband pay a weekly sum for the support of wife or minor child. All other lands of a debtor in possession, remainder, or reversion, all his rights of entry in lands and of redeeming mortgaged lands, and all such lands and rights fraudulently conveyed with intent to defeat, delay, or defraud his creditors, and lands directly or indirectly paid for by him, the record title to which has been fraudulently retained by the vendor with like intent, or on a trust expressed or implied whereby the debtor is entitled to a present conveyance, may be taken on execution against him. Estates for years having as much as fifty years to run can be levied on as real estate. An execution may be levied on real estate either by setting off the real estate at a value fixed by appraisal, or by public sale and conveyance by the officer. If real estate levied on was not attached on meane process, the officer must file a notice of his levy in the registry of deeds at the time of making it. The execution and return in case of set-off and the officer's deed in case of sale must be recorded in the registry of deeds within three months. If land is levied on of which the record title is in another who is in possession claiming title, the judgment creditor or purchaser must bring a suit to recover possession within one year. An execution returned wholly or in part satisfied by property which did not belong to the debtor may be restored. Real estate of a deceased person may be taken on execution against the executor or administrator in a suit upon the proper debt of the deceased.

The judgment debtor may within one year redeem real estate levied upon, by paying or tendering to the creditor or purchaser the sum for which it was set off or sold with interest thereon, and all sums paid for lawful taxes or assessments, a reasonable sum for expenses in repairing and improving the premises, and any sum lawfully paid for a prior mortgage or other lien not allowed for in the appraisal, deducting the rents and profits received by the creditor or justly chargeable to him. Upon payment or tender by the debtor within the time limited, the creditor or purchaser is required to release the premises. If the creditor or purchaser has redeemed a prior mortgage, the debtor may redeem such mortgage from him in like manner. The right to redeem lands taken on execution may itself be levied on. A debtor's right of redemption may be exercised by his heirs, assignees, executors, or administrators, or by any person lawfully claiming under him or them. See Arrest.

Executors and Administrators. — Any trust company approved by the commissioner of savings banks, and any person of sufficient capacity, may be appointed an executor or administrator, but if one of several executors named is a minor the others shall administer until he comes of age.

Every executor or administrator is required to give a bond before entering on his duties; the bond is usually about double the value of the estate, except in case of large estates (of several hundred thousand dollars). Two or more sureties resident in the State are required unless the court grants exemption. A surety company authorized to do business in this State may be accepted as sole surety. An executor or administrator may be exempted from giving sureties if the testator so directs, or if all persons of full age interested, except creditors, consent, and all creditors and guardians of minors are notified (by publication). The court, however, may in any case order sureties to be given. Failure for thirty days to file a bond may be deemed a declination. If one of several executors named does not accept, letters may be issued to the others alone. A non-resident, or a resident removing from the State after his appointment, must appoint an agent resident here upon whom, until the estate is finally settled, process may be served in any proceeding founded on his official acts. The executor of an executor is not as such entitled to administer the estate of the first testator.

Administration is granted to one or more of the following persons, who are preferred in the order named: the widow or widower, if competent and willing, unless it is necessary or proper to appoint some other person; the next of kin, unless it is necessary or proper to appoint some other person; or any suitable person upon written consent of the widow and all the next of kin of full age and legal capacity resident in the State; the principal creditor, if none of the other persons seek the appointment; or, if there is no creditor competent and willing, such person as the court deems fit; if there is no known widow, husband, or next of kin in the State, a public administrator, of whom there are one or more in each county, is preferred to creditors of an intestate.

Original administration may for good cause shown be granted after twenty years from the death, when any property or claim then remains undistributed or thereafter accrues, but only as to such property. A will may be proved after any lapse of time. Petitions for letters testamentary or of administration must be signed and sworn to by the petitioners personally. On a petition for probate and letters testamentary, publication of a citation once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper selected by the petitioner and approved by the court is required unless all the heirs and next of kin assent in writing, and the executor gives bond with sureties. On a petition for administration, such publication may be dispensed with if the widow and all the next of kin of full age and legal capacity resident in the Commonwealth assent in writing. A temporary special administrator may be appointed when the court deems it expedient owing to delay in granting letters testamentary or of administration, or for other causes, and after notice may by authority from the court continue the deceased's business, pay debts, and do any acts that an administrator might do.

Administration may be granted on the estate of a person who has disappeared and is believed to be dead.

Every executor and administrator must, within three months after giving bond, give notice of his appointment by posting such notice in two or more public places in the city or town in which the deceased last dwelt, or by publishing it in some newspaper, or in such other manner as directed by the court. An affidavit that such notice has been given must be filed in the probate court. An inventory must be returned within three months, and the estate in the inventory must be appraised by three disinterested persons, or by one if the court thinks fit, appointed by the court and sworn to the faithful discharge of their duties. Notice of a debt and demand for its payment should be given to the executor or administrator within six months after his appointment, and, if the estate is not represented insolvent, the debts should be paid after six months, and within one year of the appointment. Every executor and administrator must render an account at least once a year, and at such other times as shall be required by the court, but may be excused in any year if the court is satisfied that it is not necessary or expedient. He is allowed reasonable expenses, and such compensation as the court may deem just and reasonable. He may be authorized by the court to mortgage the estate for certain purposes. He may obtain an order of court determining to whom he shall pay a legacy or distributive share, and will be protected thereby in making such payment. Sums payable to persons absent or incompetent may by order of court be deposited in a savings bank. Persons interested in the estate who have not been heard from for fourteen years are presumed to be dead. See Descent and Distribution; Dower.

An executor or administrator, including a special or public administrator, may be licensed to sell real estate to pay debts, charges, and legacies, or for purposes of distribution; and an administrator appointed in another State may upon certain conditions be authorized in like manner to sell the real estate. An executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee appointed in another State or country may upon petition and notice be licensed to receive, sell, or otherwise dispose of personal estate.

An executor or administrator may be authorized to continue the deceased's business for not more than one year.

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — No suit can be brought by a creditor against an executor or administrator within six months after his giving bond, except upon a demand that would not be affected by the insolvency of the estate, or unless the estate has been represented insolvent and the suit is brought for the purpose of ascertaining a disputed claim. No suit can be brought against an executor or administrator who has given due notice of his appointment after one year from the time of his giving bond, except to obtain payment from new assets received after the expiration of the one year, and within six months after the creditor has notice of the receipt of such new assets and within one year after their receipt. The court may allow creditors further time for bringing actions, not exceeding two years from the time of the giving of bond, provided that application for such further time be made before the expiration of one year. The supreme judicial court may, upon a bill in equity by a creditor, if justice and equity require, give judgment against the estate on a claim barred by the one-year statute of limitations, but such judgment will not affect any payment or distribution made before filing the bill. If an action brought within the one year fails or is defeated for certain defects, the plaintiff may begin a new action within one year.

A creditor whose claim does not accrue within the one year may cause assets to be reserved to answer to his claim. If an executor or administrator dies or resigns or is removed within the one year, and an administrator de bonis non is appointed, suits not already barred may be brought against such administrator de bonis non within one year after his giving bond, less the time during which the preceding executors or administrators were in office, but such new administrator shall for not less than six months from his appointment be liable to a creditor whose claim was not barred at the time of such appointment, and thereafter in case of his receiving new assets. The estate of a deceased person cannot be attached in a suit against his executor or administrator on a debt due from the deceased.

If an executor or administrator does not within six months after giving due notice of his appointment receive notice of demands sufficient to authorize him to represent the estate insolvent, he may pay debts without liability to any creditor afterward giving notice of his demand, and, if the whole estate is so paid away, on subsequent notice of other claims the estate need not be represented insolvent. If an executor or administrator exhausts the whole estate in paying charges of administration and preferred claims, the settlement will be a sufficient bar to common creditors, although the estate was not represented insolvent. A reasonable sum to be determined by the court, if required, may be allowed for a burial lot and monument as part of the funeral expenses.

When the estate is insufficient to pay all claims, the expenses of the funeral and last sickness of the deceased and the charges of administration are first preferred, and other debts in the following order: 1st, debts entitled to preference under the laws of the United States; 2d, public rates, taxes, and excise duties; 3d, wages not exceeding one hundred dollars, for labor of an operative or clerk performed within one year prior to the death; 4th, debts not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars for necessities furnished deceased or his family within six months prior to his death, or for such necessities so furnished for which judgment has been rendered; 5th, all other debts. If the estate is represented insolvent, commissioners are appointed to receive proofs of claims. No especial form of proof is necessary; claimants may be required to answer questions relating to their claims under oath on pain of disallowance. Six months is allowed for proof of claims, but the time may be extended to not over eighteen months from the original appointment. Claims not proved are barred except as to new assets. A debt not barred by any statute of limitations at the time the representation of insolvency is made may be allowed by the commissioners or by the court. Commissioners must give notice to creditors and to the executor or administrator, that their report has been filed in the probate court, within seven days after the return is made. The report of the commissioners is passed on by the probate court, and an appeal may be taken by an executor, administrator, heir, legatee, devisee, or creditor from that court to the superior or supreme judicial court according to the amount involved. Provision is made for reserving assets to meet contingent claims. Actions pending when an estate is represented insolvent may be continued or prosecuted to judgment to ascertain the claim if disputed.

No action can be brought after the estate is represented insolvent unless it is not ascertained, within eighteen months after granting letters, whether the estate is insolvent, and except for demands which would not be affected by the insolvency, or unless the assets prove more than sufficient to pay all debts allowed by the commissioners. Claims for the expenses of the funeral and last sickness and charges of administration are not affected by the insolvency of the estate. Equitable liabilities may be proved like other debts.

Exemptions. — See Executions.

Factors' Acts. — A contract made by an agent entrusted with possession of merchandise or of a bill of lading consigning merchandise to him for sale, for the sale of all or part thereof, is valid in favor of a bona fide purchaser. A consignee of merchandise shipped by one having lawful possession is entitled to a lien for advances to the shipper on account of such consignment, unless he had notice from the bill of lading or otherwise before making such advances that the shipper was not the actual and bona fide owner.

One to whom merchandise is shipped by a person entrusted therewith, with authority to sell or consign, has a lien for advances made, on the faith of such consignment, to or for the use of the person in whose name the consignment or delivery was made, and for money, negotiable security, or merchandise received for the use of the consignee by the shipper, if the consignee had at the time of such advance or receipt probable cause to believe that the shipper was the actual owner, or had an interest equal to the amount of the lien. If a consignee or factor, having possession of merchandise or documents therefor with authority to sell, pledges the merchandise or documents as security for advances, the pledgee, if acting in good faith and with probable cause to believe that the agent had authority to pledge and was not acting fraudulently, shall, notwithstanding his knowledge of such agency, acquire the same rights as if the agent had been the actual owner. But when such merchandise or documents are accepted as security for an antecedent debt from the consignee or factor, the pledgee acquires only the rights which the consignee or factor might have enforced.

The foregoing provisions do not affect the factor's lien for charges, or prevent the true owner from recovering merchandise prior to any pledge thereof, or upon tender of the amount of the advances or of the value of the merchandise, or from recovering any balance of proceeds of sales above advances, remaining in the pledgee's hands.

It is a criminal offense for a factor or consignee fraudulently to pledge merchandise or documents entrusted to him as security for money borrowed, or fraudulently to dispose of or apply to his own use, money or property received from the sale or other disposition of such merchandise or documents.

Frauds, Statute of. — No action can be brought in the following cases unless the contract or a note or memorandum thereof in writing is signed by the party to be charged or some one duly authorized by him, viz.: 1st. To charge an executor, administrator, or assignee in insolvency on a special promise to pay from his own estate. 2d. To charge a person on a special promise for the debt, default, or misdoings of another. 3d. On an agreement upon consideration of marriage. 4th. On a contract for the sale of real estate or an interest therein. 5th. On an agreement not to be performed within one year. The consideration need not be expressed in the writing. A new promise to pay a debt barred by a discharge in bankruptcy or insolvency must be in writing. No action lies on a representation concerning the character or credit of another person unless made in writing. No contract for the sale of goods or choses in action worth five hundred dollars or more shall be enforceable by action, unless the purchaser accepts and receives part, gives something in earnest or part payment, or unless a note or memorandum in writing of the bargain is made and signed by the party to be charged, or some one authorized by him; but if goods are manufactured especially for the buyer and are unsuitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of business, this does not apply. No agreement to make a will or give a legacy or devise is binding unless in writing signed by the party whose executor or administrator is sought to be charged, or by some person by such party duly authorized. Contracts for the sale or transfer of evidences of debt due from the United States, or an individual State, or of stock or a share of interest in the stock of a bank, company, city, or village incorporated by the United States or a State, are void unless the vendor is at the time the owner or assignee thereof, or is authorized by such owner or assignee to sell or transfer the same.

Such returns are not public. The tax is determined by the tax commissioner and payable October 1 on the income of the preceding calendar year.

For special provisions relating to incomes from trust estates see Acts, 1918, ch. 207.

Inheritance Tax. — The provisions of law prior to May 28, 1916, are applicable to estates of persons dying before that date. See former editions.

All property within the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth and every interest therein belonging to inhabitants and all real estate within the Commonwealth and every interest therein belonging to non-residents which passes by will, intestate succession, exercise or failure to exercise a power of appointment, or by deed, grant or gift, except on a bona fide purchase for full consideration in money or money's worth, made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor, to any person absolutely or in trust, except to or for the use of charitable, educational, or religious societies or institutions whose property is exempt by the law of Massachusetts from taxation, or in trust for any charitable purpose to be carried on in Massachusetts, or for the use of a city or town in Massachusetts for public purposes, is taxable as follows: —

(No tax shall reduce the value of the property, or interest, below the amount of the exemption to which the beneficiary is entitled.)

The tax is payable by the executor, administrator or trustee first appointed, one year after the giving of bond, unless the estate vests later and interest runs on the tax at six per cent. from the time it is due. The tax is a lien on all property which was subject to the tax, but the lien does not affect personal property disposed of for value by the decedent's representatives. The tax on a future estate is not payable until the estate vests in possession and then on its value at that time, but the tax may be paid sooner and is then on the value at the time of payment. The value of an annuity or future estate is computed from American Experience Tables at four per cent. The tax is payable out of capital and not out of income unless otherwise provided. (St. 1916, ch. 268.) The tax is discounted at 4 per cent. a year if paid before it is due.

An Act of May 3, 1918, applying only to property passing upon the death of persons dying after this Act and within one year thereafter subjects such property to an additional tax of twenty-five per cent. of the inheritance taxes imposed by Massachusetts statutes.

Insolvent Law. — The National Bankruptcy Law has superseded the insolvent law except as to cases pending prior to July 1, 1898.

Insurance. — The business of insurance, including credit and burglary insurance, insurance of title to real and personal estate, insurance on the health of an individual, and other forms of insurance, is governed by express statutory provisions, and is under the supervision of the insurance commissioner. No company can issue policies not belonging to the classes of insurance provided for. A standard form of fire insurance policy is provided which must be used, but the contract contained therein may be added to or modified by riders, or by writing on the margin or across the face of the policy. Domestic companies are liable to fine for doing business in other States unless authorized by the laws thereof. A non-resident company may be admitted to do business upon depositing a copy of its charter and a statement of its condition, satisfying the commissioner that its condition is equal to the required standard, appointing the commissioner its agent for service of process, appointing as agent a resident of this State, and obtaining from the commissioner a certificate of compliance with the law. The commissioner may for cause revoke the license of any such company to do business. A company organized under the laws of a foreign country must also deposit with the state treasurer or the financial officer of some other State, for the exclusive benefit of its policy-holders in the United States, a sum equal to the capital required here for similar companies. Such deposit may be in securities, except mortgages and loans on personal estate. Domestic companies must file with the commissioner the name and residence of each of their agents. The officers and agents of non-resident companies are required to obtain certificates, renewable annually, from the commissioner, and to make annual returns of business done. Insurance brokers are required to take out an annual license. A contract by a non-resident unlicensed broker or agent is invalid. The beneficiary named in a policy or life insurance may sue thereon in his own name.

An infant may not avoid or repudiate because of infancy any contract of insurance in which he or certain near relatives are beneficiaries, if he was fifteen years of age when the contract was made.

Interest. — In the absence of agreement the rate of interest is six per cent. Any rate may be reserved by special agreement, which if for more than six per cent. must be in writing, except that, (1) on loans of less than one thousand dollars, other than those hereinafter referred to, only eighteen per cent. plus not more than five dollars for the actual and necessary expenses of making and securing the loan may be recovered; (2) on loans of three hundred dollars or less made by any person licensed to engage in the business of making such loans upon which the amount to be paid for interest and expenses exceeds in the aggregate an amount equivalent to twelve per cent. per annum, the rate is regulated by the supervisor of loan agencies, but may not exceed seven per cent. a month; (3) on bonds issued by a corporation, the rate shall not exceed three per cent. Unless money is by express agreement, usage, or understanding payable at a fixed time, interest runs only from a demand for payment. A supervisor of loan agencies has supervision of the business of making small loans, regulations regarding the granting of licenses, rates of interest, etc.

Judgments. — Judgments of the supreme judicial court are entered on motion and those of the superior court are entered in all cases ripe for judgment on the first Monday of each month, and at other times if so ordered by the court (in Suffolk County, on Monday of each week); if a defendant is defaulted, judgment may on application be entered after four days as of course. Judgments bear date as of the day of entry, unless for sufficient cause the court orders entry as of a former day. A judgment is not a lien, and no judgment or decree affecting the title to real estate has effect against third persons not having actual notice unless recorded in the registry of deeds with a description of the land, but such record may be made within sixty days if notice of the pendency of the action was so recorded. A judgment bears interest at six per cent. and may be sued on in an action of contract. A foreign judgment is proved by an authenticated copy of the record.

License. — There are no laws requiring commercial travelers to take out licenses. Peddling is regulated by law and a license is necessary. Dealers in coal or coke are required to obtain licenses from the secretary of the Commonwealth. For loan agencies, see Interest.

Liens. — The provisions of the common law as to liens are in force. There is a statutory lien on real estate for taxes assessed thereon from April 1st until two years from October 1st of the year in which they are assessed; for assessments for local improvements for two years after the last installment is committed to the collector; in favor of a co-tenant on the shares of his co-tenants for taxes paid thereon by him, provided he files a claim in the registry of deeds within thirty days after payment; and on mills for damages by flowage. There are statutory liens on personal property as follows: upon ships, their tackle, apparel, and furniture, for labor and materials furnished for constructing, repairing, and launching, and for provisions, stores, and other articles furnished on account of the vessel (this statutory lien is maritime, and not enforceable in the state courts, 167 U.S. 606); in favor of boarding-house keepers for fare and board, on the baggage and effects brought to the house belonging to guests (except mariners); in favor of persons pasturing, boarding, or keeping horses or other domestic animals placed with them by the owner's consent, upon such animals; in favor of public garage owners upon automobiles placed with them by the owner's consent; and in favor of warehousemen. Provisions are made for enforcing these liens. Attorneys have a lien for their fees and disbursements (limited to the amount taxable as costs) upon executions lawfully in their hands, and upon final judgments recovered by them. An equitable lien may be created upon real estate by an instrument in writing duly recorded. There is no lien in favor of a vendor of real estate, in the absence of an express agreement, or of personal property after delivery. See Mechanics' Liens.

Limitations, Statute of. — Personal Actions. — Actions must be begun within the following times next after the cause of action accrues, viz.: Within twenty years: actions on contracts under seal, on bills, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness issued by a bank, on promissory notes signed in the presence of an attesting witness, if brought by the original payee or his executor or administrator; on contracts not otherwise limited. Within six years: actions on contracts or liabilities express or implied not included above, and except judgments of courts of record of this or any other State or of the United States; actions of tort (except those mentioned below); actions of replevin. Within four years: actions against sheriffs for misconduct or negligence of their deputies. Within two years: actions for assault and battery, false imprisonment, slander, actions against sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, constables, or assignees in insolvency, for taking or conversion of personal property; against executors, administrators, guardians or trustees generally with a few specified exceptions, or against fire insurance companies, and against cities, towns, or counties for personal injuries. Within one year: actions for libel. Actions for penalties or forfeitures under penal statute, if brought by a person to whom the penalty or forfeiture is given in whole or in part, must be brought within one year after the offense is committed; if the penalty of forfeiture is given in whole or in part to the Commonwealth, action by the Commonwealth may be brought within two years. In actions on mutual and open account current, the action is deemed to accrue from the date of the last item proved. Judgments of courts of record within the United States are presumed to be paid or satisfied after twenty years. See Notes and Bills.

If the plaintiff was an infant or disabled by marriage, insanity, or imprisonment when the action accrued, the time runs only from the removal of the disability. If the defendant is out of the State when the action accrues, the statute runs only from his return; if after the action accrues he leaves the State, the period of his absence, if such absence amounts to a change of residence, is deducted. The plaintiff cannot maintain his suit if it has become barred by the laws of any State, Territory, or country while he resided there. If either party dies before the action is barred, or within thirty days thereafter, the time is extended for one year from the granting of letters testamentary or of administration.

If an action is seasonably begun and fails for defect in process, or for certain other reasons not affecting the merits, a new action, if one lies, may be brought within a year, though the period of limitation has elapsed. If the person liable fraudulently conceals the cause of action, the period prior to discovery of his cause of action by the plaintiff is excluded. An acknowledgment of promise, to be evidence of a new or continuing contract, must be in writing, signed by the party chargeable; a part payment of principal or interest, though not evidenced by writing, may renew the contract as to the party making it, but is not sufficiently proved by an indorsement by the party to whom it is made. An acknowledgment or new promise by one does not affect his joint contractor or the latter's executor or administrator. These limitations apply to claims advanced by way of set-off, the time being computed from the beginning of the action, and to actions by or for the benefit of the Commonwealth.

Real Actions. — Actions to recover lands or make entry thereon must be brought within twenty years after the right accrued, or within twenty years after the demandant or those under whom he claims were seized. The right is deemed to accrue, in case of disseisin, at the time thereof; where the claim is by an heir or devisee of one who died seized, at the time of such death, or if there was an intermediate estate, when it expired by its own limitation and not by any forfeiture, except where the right claimed is to enter for such forfeiture; in all other cases, when the claimant or the person under whom he claims first became entitled to possession. If the person entitled when his right first accrues is under twenty-one, or disabled by marriage, insanity, imprisonment, or absence from the United States, he or any one claiming under him may enter within ten years after the disability is removed, but upon his death while such disability continues no further time is allowed for the disability of any other person, and entry must be made within ten years after his death. Entry to constitute possession must be followed by at least one year's open and peaceable possession, or by an action begun upon such entry and seisin within one year. If an action seasonably brought is abated by death, or judgment for the demandant is arrested or reversed, a new action, if one lies, may be begun within a year. The twenty years' bar applies to actions by the State with certain exceptions.

Criminal Cases. — An indictment for murder may be found at any time; other indictments within six years after the commission of the offense, excluding any period during which the accused was not openly and publicly resident within this State.

Married Women. — The real and personal property of a woman upon her marriage remains her separate property, and a married woman may receive, receipt for, hold, manage, and dispose of property, real or personal, as if she were sole, except that she cannot impair her husband's statutory rights in her real estate upon her death, without his written consent, unless she is living apart from her husband for justifiable cause established by decree of court. See Wills. If a woman puts her property into her husband's possession the presumption, in the absence of evidence that he takes it in trust for her and of fraud practiced on her, is that he may use it as his own. In conveying property to a married woman it is not necessary to express that the conveyance is to her sole and separate use. Her property is not liable for her husband's debts, except as hereafter stated; but if she has over two thousand dollars of property she is jointly liable for necessities furnished with her knowledge not exceeding two hundred dollars. A married woman may sue and be sued, and make contracts, written or oral and sealed or unsealed, as if sole, but this does not authorize suits or contracts between husband and wife; either may jointly with the other contract with a third person, or become liable as indorser upon a bill or note made by the other, and a bill or note made by either, valid in its inception, is not extinguished or impaired by passing into the hands of the other, although the right to enforce it by suit is suspended. A wife may still proceed against him in certain cases in equity in reference to her separate property. The statutes do not authorize transfers of property by one to the other, except that a wife may so acquire (but not if in fraud of creditors) wearing apparel and articles of ornament or necessary for personal use to a value not exceeding two thousand dollars. Conveyances of realty between husband and wife may be made directly, except that mortgages must be through a third person; but such conveyances shall have no effect, either in passing title or otherwise, until duly acknowledged and recorded. Work and labor performed by a married woman for persons other than her husband and children is presumed to be for her separate account. A husband is not liable on the individual contracts of his wife, except in the case hereafter stated, but she has the same authority as at common law to pledge his credit for her support. Either husband or wife may act as attorney for the other, and a married woman may act as executrix, administratrix, trustee, or guardian wholly independently of her husband. A woman, married or single, comes of age at twenty-one.

If a married woman does business on her separate account, she, or, if she fails to do so, her husband, may record, in the clerk's office of the city or town where the place of business is, a certificate giving her name and her husband's, the nature of the business, and the place (street and number if possible) where the business is or is to be carried on. A new certificate must be recorded upon a change in the name, nature, or place of business. Unless such certificate is recorded, the property employed in the business is liable for the husband's debts, and the husband is liable on all contracts made in prosecuting the business.

A married woman may make a will as if sole, except that by such will she cannot, without her husband's written consent, deprive him of his right to curtesy in her real estate, or of his statutory rights upon her death in her real and personal property, unless she is living apart for justifiable cause established by decree of court. Acceptance by the husband of an appointment as executor of his wife's will is not per se such an assent. See Wills.

Special provisions exist for procuring releases of dower and of curtesy on conveyances by husband or wife in case the other is at the time insane.

Antenuptial contracts providing for settlements are authorized. The contract and a schedule of the property covered by it must be recorded before or within ninety days after the marriage. A female minor over eighteen years of age may join with her guardian to make such a contract.

A married woman whose husband has absented himself from the Commonwealth, abandoning her, or has been sentenced to state's prison, may, upon petition, be authorized to dispose of her real and personal property as if unmarried; and when a husband fails without just cause to support his wife, or deserts her, or when she is for justifiable cause living apart from him, she may on petition obtain a decree prohibiting him from putting any restraint upon her, and the court may at the same time make such order as it thinks fit as to her support and the custody of the children. A receiver may be appointed with power to sell the estate of one absenting himself from the State without making provision for the support of his wife or minor child dependent on him.

A married woman coming here from another State or country without her husband, he never having lived here, has the same rights and powers given to married women by the law of this State; if a woman and her husband married elsewhere come here, she retains all property theretofore acquired by her under the laws of another State or country; as to future rights and liabilities, they are governed by the laws of this State.

Criminal acts done by a woman in the presence of her husband are presumed to be due to coercion from him, and he is liable therefor, but the presumption may be rebutted.

Mechanics' Liens. — Any person to whom a debt is due for personal labor performed in the erection, alteration, removal, or repair of a building or structure by virtue of an agreement with or by consent of the owner, or person having authority from him, has a lien thereon and on the owner's interest in the lot of land on which it is situated for not more than eighteen days' work performed during the forty days next prior to filing the statement.

One who enters into a written contract with the owner of lands, for all or part of the erection, alteration, repair or removal of a building or structure, or for furnishing material therefor, has a lien upon the interest of the owner of record at the time of filing a notice of the contract in the registry of deeds, the lien being to secure the payment of all labor and material thereafter furnished under the contract, and no such written contract is enforceable unless notice thereof is recorded. Notice of any extension of the contract must be recorded.

A mortgage existing and recorded prior to the recording of the notice of lien shall have priority, except over a lien for labor actually begun before the recording of the mortgage.

The lien is lost unless the claimant within thirty days of the date for performance of the contract files in the registry of deeds a sworn account of the amount due, a brief description of the property and the name of the owner as set forth in the notice of contract.

The lien for labor is lost unless notice is filed, but the limitation of the time for filing appears uncertain.

The lien is enforced by a bill in equity in the Superior Court, which must be brought where the land lies and within sixty days of the filing of the notice of lien. In such suit the owner and all others claiming a lien may appear and contest the claim. The owner's interest in the property may in such suit be sold to satisfy the lien, subject to a right of redemption as on execution sales.

The rights of an attaching creditor do not prevail against a lien for personal labor, nor against a lienor when notice of the contract has been recorded.

Any person in interest may record a bond with sureties, and thereafter no lien for personal labor can attach under the contract as to which the bond is given. If the property is insufficient to satisfy all the liens, the proceeds are distributed pro rata. The lien is not dissolved by the owner's death or conveyance of the property, and subsists in favor of the creditor's personal representatives. Any person interested in the property, or to whom but for the lien a debt would be payable, may dissolve it by giving bond with surety.

One employed to prepare materials for use on particular premises may in some cases claim a lien although the work is not done on the premises.

No lien can be claimed on a public building, railroad, or railway.

Mortgages of Real Estate. — The usual form of mortgage is a warranty deed, executed, acknowledged, and recorded in all respects like an absolute conveyance, containing a condition subsequent and power of sale upon default. Trust deeds are seldom used except to secure issues of bonds. An absolute conveyance with separate instrument of defeasance will also constitute a mortgage, and in equity an absolute conveyance may be shown by parol evidence to have been intended as a mortgage and will be so treated. A mortgage is assigned by instrument in writing and under seal, acknowledged and recorded; an unrecorded assignment is not good against one subsequently taking a release from the mortgagee without notice, but may be good on the ground of laches against a subsequent assignee who does not obtain possession of the note or bond secured by the mortgage. A mortgage is discharged by deed of release or written acknowledgment of satisfaction, duly acknowledged and recorded, or by an entry of satisfaction in the margin of the record, by the mortgagee or one or more of several joint mortgagees. Refusal to discharge a mortgage after full performance of the condition, whether before or after breach, if continued for seven days after request and tender of reasonable charges, creates a liability for all damages caused thereby. Any part of the mortgaged premises may be released without impairing the mortgage as to the balance. Except as against the mortgagee, the mortgagor is still deemed the legal owner of the premises. The mortgagee is in general, however, entitled to damages for injuries permanently affecting the value of the land, although the mortgagor is entitled to collect damages paid upon taking the land by eminent domain, the mortgagee having a right to payment from the proceeds.

A mortgage may be foreclosed after breach of condition by writ of entry in which the court renders a conditional judgment for possession, unless payment of the amount due or performance of the condition is made within two months. Three years' possession under such judgment bars the equity of redemption. This method is seldom used. The mortgagee may also make formal and peaceable entry to foreclose in presence of two witnesses, and the foreclosure will become absolute in three years thereafter if a certificate, sworn to by the two witnesses, or a memorandum on the mortgage deed signed by the mortgagor or person claiming under him, is made and recorded within thirty days. The usual mode of foreclosure is by sale under a power in the mortgage. Such sale must be in conformity with the power, and notice thereof must be published once a week for three weeks in a newspaper published in the city or town where the land is situated, or, if none is so published, in the county, the first publication to be at least twenty-one days before the sale. Within thirty days after the sale the person selling must cause a copy of the notice and affidavit of his acts under the power to be recorded. Any balance of the proceeds after paying the debt and costs is payable to the mortgagor or those claiming under him. Proper execution of a power of sale absolutely bars the equity of redemption, and bars dower if the mortgagor had no wife living when he executed the mortgage, or if she joined therein to release dower. No transfer by a mortgagor impairs a power of sale. A mortgage may be redeemed by the persons entitled to redeem at any time after breach until the foreclosure becomes perfect. A foreclosure, except by sale under a power, may be opened if the mortgagee recovers from the mortgagor judgment for a balance of the debt on the ground that the property was not worth the amount due. A mortgagee who has been in possession may be compelled to account for rents and profits received by him.

An act authorizing short forms took effect January 1, 1913.

Notaries Public. — The governor, by and with the advice and consent of the council, appoints notaries public, who hold office for seven years. Every notary public is authorized to act throughout the Commonwealth. Notaries public are authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds and administer oaths, and are not required to use a seal in doing so. The authority of a notary may be certified to by the secretary of state or by the clerk of the courts for the county in which he lives or has his place of business.

Notes and Bills. — The law as to negotiable instruments is codified with but little change. Acceptance of a bill must be in writing signed by the drawee, but will be inferred from his destroying the bill, or refusing to return it to the holder accepted or not accepted; acceptance may be before the bill is signed; and an unconditional promise in writing to accept, or acceptance on a separate paper, is valid in favor of persons taking the bill on the faith thereof for value. The drawee of a bill has twenty-four hours in which to decide whether or not he will accept it, but the acceptance, if given, dates as of the day of presentation. A bill dishonored by non-acceptance must be protested, and an immediate right of action accrues. Statutory damages on bills drawn or indorsed in this State and duly protested for non-acceptance or non-payment are as follows: if payable out of the United States, the principal at current exchange at the time of demand, damages at five per cent. on the principal and interest on the principal from the date of protest; if payable outside of this State, but within the United States, the principal with interest and costs and two per cent. if payable in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Connecticut, or New York; three per cent. if in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, or Maryland; four per cent. if in Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, or the District of Columbia; and five per cent. if elsewhere in the United States or its territories; if payable in this State at a place not less than seventy-five miles from the place where it was drawn or indorsed, if the bill is for not less than one hundred dollars, the principal with interest and one per cent. Parties secondarily liable are entitled to notice of non-acceptance or non-payment. If the parties reside in the same place, such notice must be given, or mailed so as to arrive in regular course on the day following; if in different places, it must be mailed on the day following, or given within the time in which, if so mailed, it would in regular course be received. A person signing on an instrument otherwise than as maker, drawer, or acceptor is deemed an indorser, unless a contrary intention is clearly shown. The protest of a bill, note, or order duly certified by a notary public under his hand and official seal is prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated and of the giving of notice. On drafts and bills of exchange payable within the State at eight three days of grace are allowed, unless there is an express stipulation to the contrary. All other negotiable instruments are payable at the time fixed therein without grace. When the day of maturity is Saturday, Sunday, or a holiday, the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day not a Saturday, except that instruments payable on demand may be presented by the holder at his option before twelve o'clock on a Saturday not a whole holiday. A bill may be presented for acceptance on any day on which presentments for payments can be made, including before twelve o'clock on a Saturday not a whole holiday. An instrument is payable on demand if no time is specified. An instrument payable on demand to charge parties secondarily liable must be presented within a reasonable time after its issue, or, if a bill, after its last negotiation. It is believed that suit can be brought against the maker of an instrument payable on demand, without previous demand, and that the statute of limitations runs from its issue. Action may, it is believed, be brought immediately upon actual presentment and dishonor of a bill or note on the day of maturity. A preexisting debt is a valuable consideration. An instrument taken for an existing claim is presumed to be absolute payment (or probably, in case of an unaccepted bill, as conditional payment), but the presumption may be rebutted. In any event, unless the instrument was taken as collateral security only, no action lies on the original claim until after maturity and dishonor, even though the party becomes insolvent before maturity. An instrument is negotiable, although the time of payment is uncertain, if the time must certainly come. A check or demand draft may be paid by a depository subject thereto, notwithstanding the drawer's death, upon presentation within ten days after date, and a savings bank order within thirty days after date. If the holder of a check procures it to be certified, the drawer and all indorsers are discharged. A check does not operate as an assignment, and until accepted or certified the bank is not liable to the holder. A bank is discharged from liability for payment on forged, altered, or raised instruments, or instruments bearing unauthorized signatures, unless notified within one year of the return of such instruments to the depositor or drawer.

Pledges. — Delivery and retention of possession are essential to a pledge, and if possession is surrendered or lost the lien is extinguished. A bona fide pledgee, in the usual course of his business, of negotiable instruments received from a wrong-doer acquires a valid lien. In the absence of special agreement a pledgee is not responsible for the safety of the property except for want of reasonable care. Only licensed pawnbrokers can engage in the business of lending money on mortgages or pledges of tangible personal property.

Delivery of a certificate of stock to a bona fide purchaser or pledgee with a written transfer or power of attorney to transfer is a sufficient delivery without surrender of the certificate or transfer on the books of the corporation.

A pledge may be foreclosed by sale after default upon giving written notice of intention to sell as in case of chattel mortgages, but this does not authorize a disposition of the property in violation of the contract under which it is held, nor prevent its disposition pursuant to such a contract. If the loan is less than one thousand dollars, the notice must state where it is to be recorded, and that the right to redeem will be lost after sixty days.

It is a criminal offense to sell or dispose of collateral security before maturity of the debt without the authority of the pledgee.

The pledgor's interest in the property pledged may by proper proceedings be attached.

Practice. — The practice before the courts and pleadings are regulated by statute. All personal actions are divided into three classes, viz., contract, tort, and replevin. The declaration, if an arrest is made or a ship or a vessel attached, must be inserted in the writ, otherwise it need not be filed until the return day. Twenty-one days after the return day of the writ are allowed in the supreme judicial and superior courts for filing an appearance; in the superior court the same period is allowed for filing a motion to dismiss, a demurrer, or an answer; in the supreme judicial court the same period is allowed for filing a motion to dismiss or an answer in abatement, and thirty days from the return day of the writ for a demurrer or an answer to the merits. A claim of jury must be filed within ten days after the time allowed for answer. Amendments are freely permitted. See Actions; Equity, etc.

Recording. — See Chattel Mortgages; Deeds; Mechanics' Liens; Bills of Sale.

Redemption. — See Executions; Mortgages; Taxes, etc.

Replevin. — When goods of a value greater than twenty dollars have been unlawfully taken or detained from the owner or person entitled to their possession, or have been attached or taken on execution and are claimed by a person other than the defendant, such owner or other person may retake them on a replevin writ returnable in the county where the goods are detained. The officer before serving the writ is required to take from the plaintiff or some one in his behalf a bond to the defendant with sufficient sureties, to be approved by the defendant in writing or by a magistrate, in double the value of the goods, conditioned to prosecute the suit to judgment, pay such damages and costs as the defendant may recover against the plaintiff, and return the goods, if such is the final judgment. A valuation of the goods to fix the amount of the bond may be made by the parties, or, if they fail to agree, by appraisal of three disinterested persons appointed by the officer. If the defendant succeeds he takes judgment for damages and costs. Jurisdiction is determined by the actual value of the goods, as to which the appraisal is not evidence against the defendant. One of several part owners cannot maintain replevin without joining the others as plaintiffs. Replevin lies for goods obtained from the plaintiff by fraud, if the rights of third persons have not intervened. Articles carried or worn about the body of the defendant cannot be taken by replevin. A bill in equity may be maintained to secure articles that cannot be taken on replevin, or that cannot be found by the officer.

Reps. vols. 97 to 229, inclusive, now published, 1867-1918. A digest prepared by Messrs. Bennett, Gray, and Swift, with supplement, includes the Reports through 161 Mass.; a digest by M. H. Throop, with supplement, includes the Reports through 180 Mass.; an index digest by W. V. Revision. — Four revisions of the statutes have been made; the latest took effect January 1, 1902, and is now in force under the designation of the Revised Laws. The last volume of laws covers the annual session of 1918.

Sales. — A sale in bulk of all or part of a stock of goods, not made in the ordinary course of trade, is by statute fraudulent as to creditors unless a full inventory is made at least five days before, and the purchaser demands and receives a list of all creditors, and a notice is sent to all creditors. The statute is constitutional. (185 Mass. 18.) This does not apply to sales by executors, administrators, receivers, assignees, or trustees in bankruptcy, or to sales under judicial process.

The Uniform Sales Act (St. 1908, ch. 237) became effective on January 1, 1909.

Seals. — The common law distinctions between sealed and unsealed instruments still exist, and a sealed instrument imports a valuable consideration. A scroll is not valid as a seal; either a wafer or wax must be attached to the paper; but in case of a court, public officer, or corporation, an impression of the official seal only made upon the paper suffices.

Service. — Original writs issuing from the supreme judicial or superior courts must be served at least fourteen days, or, in actions against counties, cities, towns, precincts, religious societies, or proprietors of wharves, general fields, or real estate lying in common, at least thirty days before the day at which they are returnable, and must be returnable within three months from their date. Original writs issued by municipal, police, or district courts or trial justices must be served at least seven days, or if the defendant is summoned out of the county in which he resides or has his usual place of business, or if service is made in a county other than that in which the writ is returnable, fourteen days, or, in actions against the corporations above described, at least thirty days before the day at which they are returnable; but if the corporation is summoned as trustee the service need be only seven days before the return day, and all such writs must be returnable within sixty days, or writs of trustee process thirty days after their date. The first Monday of every month is a return day in the supreme judicial and superior courts, and the first day of the weekly term is a return day in the inferior courts. No personal action can be maintained against a person who is not an inhabitant of the State, unless he has been served with process within the State, or unless an effectual attachment of his property (including attachment by trustee process) is made on the original writ, or an equitable attachment is made; and in case of attachment without personal service the judgment is valid only to secure application of the property attached to satisfaction of the judgment. Where no personal service is made on an absent defendant, an order of notice, by publication or otherwise, must be obtained; but in actions of contract against several defendants, if due service is made on one or more, but, owing to absence from the State or other sufficient cause, not on the others, the action may proceed to judgment against those served. Such judgment if unsatisfied is not a bar to a future action on the same contract against those not served. A cross-action may be brought by a defendant against a non-resident plaintiff and service made on his attorney of record in the original suit, if the respective demands are such that the judgments or executions could be set off against each other. Writs and other processes in which the plaintiff is a non-resident must before entry be indorsed by some sufficient person who is an inhabitant of the State; such indorser is liable for all costs awarded against the plaintiff. It is usual to begin such suits without furnishing an indorser, and to have the writ indorsed after entry if the defendant so requires. The foregoing provisions as to service and indorsement apply to proceedings in equity as well as at law.

Stay of Execution. — See Executions.

Stoppage in Transit. — A codification of the law of sales, including stoppage in transit, became effective on January 1, 1909. A vendor who has sold goods on credit, reserving no lien may stop them in transit upon the insolvency of the vendee at any time before they have reached the destination agreed upon. It is not necessary that the vendee should have been adjudged an insolvent or bankrupt; it is sufficient if he is unable to pay his debts. An attachment of the goods as the property of the vendee is not good against the right of the unpaid vendor to stop in transit. The right ceases when the transit is ended by arrival at the final destination agreed upon. It may be exercised by an agent without special authority if his acts are ratified before the buyer or his assignee has obtained or demanded possession.

Supplementary Proceedings. — See Arrest; Executions.

Taxes. — Taxes upon real estate and tangible personalty are assessed and collected by the several cities and towns in the State independently. The assessment is by a board of assessors usually elected. The amounts of state and county taxes are apportioned by the legislature among the cities and towns in the State and several counties respectively, and the share of each city and town is included by it in the assessment of city or town taxes. There is no penalty for delinquency in payment of such taxes except interest and costs of collection.

All real estate is taxable, except such as is specially exempted by law. Substantially all kinds of tangible personal estate are taxable. Substantially all intangible personal estate which is subject to the Massachusetts income tax is exempt from other taxation in Massachusetts. A surplus of indebtedness is not deducted from other items of personal estate. The property of religious, educational, and certain other societies and corporations, and to a limited extent of women, minors, aged and infirm persons of small means, and disabled soldiers and sailors who served in the Civil War and were honorably discharged, and of their wives and widows, is exempt. Real estate is assessed to the owner of the record title on April 1 in the place where it is situated. Personal property is assessed as a rule to the owner in the place where he is an inhabitant on April 1, but all machinery employed in any branch of manufacture is assessed where it is situated or employed. All persons are called upon to make a return of property held by them subject to taxation on April 1. The return must be filed with the assessors before a date fixed by them, usually in the month of May.

Taxes are payable at the times fixed by the several cities and towns, not later than October 15, and if not paid within a certain period thereafter bear interest from the date when payable. Taxes may be collected, if payment is not made in fourteen days after demand by distress and sale on short notice of goods, certain necessary articles, however, being exempt, or by arrest and imprisonment; a person so imprisoned may apply to take the poor debtor's oath. In certain cases a collector of taxes may bring suit. Taxes assessed on real estate are a lien thereon from April 1; such lien ceases two years from October 1 in the year in which the assessment was made, if the estate has in the mean time been alienated. Taxes on real estate may with all incidental costs and expenses be levied, if not paid within fourteen days after demand made either on the owner or person occupying the estate, by sale of the smallest undivided part of the real estate which will suffice to discharge the taxes and charges, or of the whole, if necessary, or by taking of the whole real estate by the city or town. Before making such sale or taking, the collector must give notice by advertisement three weeks successively in some newspaper published in the city or town where the land is situated, or, if none is there published, in the county, giving a substantially accurate description of the property, the amount of the tax, and the names of all owners known to the collector. The collector upon such sale executes a deed to the purchaser, which must be recorded within thirty days, and if so recorded is prima facie evidence of all facts essential to its validity. The sale may be adjourned. If after one or more adjournments no suitable bid is made, the land may be purchased by the collector for the city or town. The owner of real estate sold or taken for taxes, or his heirs or assigns, may redeem it within two years after the sale by paying or tendering to the purchaser or his heirs or assigns the original sum with intervening taxes paid by him, with interest on the whole at eight per cent., the cost of recording the tax deed, and not exceeding three dollars for examination of title and deed of release, and shall be credited with any rents and profits received by the purchaser, or he may pay the same amount he would have paid to the purchaser, plus one dollar to the collector, who must give him a certificate which when recorded extinguishes the tax title. Land taken or purchased by a city or town may be redeemed by paying or tendering the original tax, and all intervening taxes, charges, and fees, with interest on the whole at eight per cent. In the following cases any person having such title to the real estate sold or taken that he might have recovered it if no sale or taking had been made, may redeem it within two years after actual notice of the sale: first, when the premises are assessed as belonging to a person or persons unknown; second, when they are assessed to a person who is merely tenant or occupant and not the rightful owner; third, where there is a substantial and misleading error in the name of the person to whom they are taxed; fourth, when the person offering to redeem is a mortgagee of record and the tax was not assessed to him. The supreme and superior courts have jurisdiction in equity of all cases of sale or taking of real estate for taxes if relief is sought within five years. See Income Tax; Inheritance Tax.

Testimony. — See Evidence.

Trust Deeds. — Mortgages are commonly used instead of trust deeds except to secure bond issues. The ordinary rules of equity as to trusts are recognized and enforced.

Trustee Process. — All personal actions, except replevin, and tort for malicious prosecution, libel, and assault and battery, may be begun by trustee process, and any person or corporation may be summoned as trustee, excepting non-resident persons and foreign corporations having no usual place of business in this State. The action must be brought in the county in which some one of the trustees resides or has his usual place of business, but in the inferior courts a person shall not be held to answer as trustee except in the county in which he lives or has a usual place of business. The trustee must answer under oath in the supreme judicial and superior courts, and may be interrogated in writing upon oath in all courts. His answers are taken as true, but additional facts not inconsistent therewith may be proved; he is liable for a willfully false answer on oath for the full amount of the judgment recovered in the suit and interest thereon. Cross-demands in favor of the trustee may be set off.

Goods, effects, and credits of the defendant entrusted to or deposited with a third person (including debts due to the defendant, if absolutely due even though not yet payable), or held by any person by a conveyance void as to the creditors of the defendant, may be attached by trustee process and held to satisfy the final judgment. But a person shall not be adjudged a trustee, 1st, by reason of having made, accepted, or indorsed any negotiable instrument payable on time and not overdue; 2d, by reason of money received by him as sheriff or other officer, under an execution or other process in favor of the defendant; 3d, by reason of money in his hands as a public officer; 4th, by reason of any debt unless due absolutely and without any contingency; 5th, by reason of a judgment debt so long as he is liable to an execution; 6th, by reason of money or credits due for wages of the defendant's wife or minor children; 7th, by reason of money or credits due as wages or lay of a seaman except those accruing to a fisherman. Funds payable from charitable and relief societies are exempt. The debtor of a partnership is not chargeable as trustee of one only of the partners. If wages for personal labor are attached on a demand other than for necessities, the sum of twenty dollars is exempt; when the demand is for necessities, if the writ contains a statement so showing, the sum of ten dollars only is exempt. The sum exempt may be paid to the defendant pending the suit.

A person claiming by force of assignment or otherwise may be admitted to the suit and maintain his right. An assignment of future earnings is not valid unless recorded before service on the trustee with the clerk of the city or town where the assignor lives, if a resident, and if not a resident, where he is employed. A claimant or other person having an interest may dissolve an attachment by giving bond with sufficient sureties, and after filing of the bond the trustee is not liable to the plaintiff for effects in his hands.

Wages, Assignment of. — Assignments of future wages must be in a standard form signed by the assignor in person, stating date of execution, value of consideration furnished by assignee, and rate of interest. None is valid one year after its date nor except to secure a debt existing at time of execution. A copy must be delivered to the assignor on execution. No assignment of future wages by a married man is valid unless the written consent of his wife is attached. No assignment of future wages to secure a loan of less than three hundred dollars is valid against the employer until accepted in writing by him and with such acceptance recorded with the clerk of the city or town where the assignor lives, if a resident, and if not a resident, where he is employed. No assignment is valid which does not state on its face that three fourths of the assignor's wages are exempt from assignment.

Wills. — Only a person of full age (twenty-one in all cases) and sound mind can make a will effectual in any way as to real or personal property. A soldier in actual service and a mariner at sea can make a nuncupative will of personal property, but every other will must be in writing, signed by the testator (signature by mark suffices) or some person in his presence and by his express direction, and attested and subscribed at his request in his presence and in the presence of each other by three or more witnesses competent at the time of attestation. A beneficial devise or legacy to an attesting witness, or his or her husband or wife, is void unless there are three other competent subscribing witnesses. A will, provided it is in writing and subscribed by the testator, executed in conformity with law at the time of execution, or according to the law of the country or State where it was made, or of the testator's domicile, is valid. A will can be revoked only by burning, tearing, canceling, or obliterating, with intent to revoke, by the testator or some person in his presence and by his direction, or by some writing executed as required in case of a will; but marriage operates as revocation unless the will itself shows it was made in contemplation thereof, and unless and except so far as it is the execution of a power over property, which would not pass as property of the deceased in case of intestacy.

Provision is made for depositing a will in the custody of the register of probate during the testator's life. Any other person having custody of a will must deliver it within thirty days after notice of the testator's death to the court or to the executors therein named, who must themselves so deliver it. One neglecting without reasonable cause so to deliver a will after being cited so to do may be committed to jail. Persons suspected of concealing wills may be examined. A will proved and allowed in any other State or country may be proved and allowed in any county in which there is estate real or personal on which it can operate, upon production of a copy of the will and probate thereof, duly authenticated, or, if not required to be proved in such other State or country, a copy of the will or the official record thereof duly authenticated. Notice of the presentation for probate of such will must be given by publication once a week for three weeks, the first publication to be thirty days at least before the hearing. A will made in this State by an inhabitant, but not executed according to the laws of this State, cannot be given effect hereunder. A decree admitting a will, or compromise of a will, to probate or adjudicating intestacy is, after one year from its rendition, or final establishment if proceedings are had to reverse it, conclusive in favor of purchasers for value without notice from executors, administrators, guardians, legatees, heirs, and devisees, and in favor of executors, administrators, trustees, and guardians who have settled their accounts in due form, and in good faith disposed of the assets according to law, and of persons who have made payments to them; but not in favor of heirs, devisees, legatees, and distributees as to proceeds or assets of the estate remaining in their hands. Under these provisions the adjudication of the fact of death is not conclusive.

If it appears by satisfactory evidence that no person interested in the estate intends to object to the probate of a will, the court may grant probate on the testimony of one attesting witness, or on the affidavit of such witness taken before the register.

The surviving spouse (except when the other was living apart for justifiable cause as established by decree of court) of a deceased person may within six months after probate of the will, or, in case the validity of the will is in litigation by order of court made on application within the year, within six months after the termination of the litigation, file a written waiver of its provisions, and shall then be entitled to the same share of the real and personal estate as if the testator had died intestate, except that if such share exceeds ten thousand dollars, he or she shall receive in addition only the income of the excess for life; personal estate in excess to be held in trust for and real estate to vest in him or her for life; and except that if the testator leaves no kindred the interest of the surviving spouse shall be the same as if there had been kindred but no issue. The amount of personal estate not exceeding ten thousand dollars taken absolutely shall be paid from the part of the personal estate in which the surviving spouse is interested; or, if that is insufficient, from sale or mortgage of that part of the real estate in which he or she is interested. See Descent and Distribution; Executors and Administrators; Married Women.

A child or issue of a deceased child not provided for by a will or in the testator's lifetime is entitled to the same share in the estate as in case of intestacy, unless the omission appears to have been intentional. A posthumous child for whom no provision is made takes the same share as in case of intestacy. The issue surviving the testator of a child or relation dying before the testator take a devise or legacy to such child or relation unless a contrary intention is shown. Every devise is construed to carry all the testator's interest in the land unless a contrary intention appears. A will operates on all property possessed by the testator at his death, and may pass a right of entry in case of disseisin. There are provisions governing advancements among devisees and legatees.

Excepting the right of a surviving husband or wife to waive the provisions of the will, there is no limitation on the power to give by will to charity or away from his or her family, or on the right to disinherit children.

MICHIGAN LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Campbell, Bulkley & Ledyard, of Detroit.
(Wilson W. Mills.)

The next legislature convenes January, 1919.

C. L. refers to Compiled Laws of 1897, the last official completed compilation. See Statutes.
References are to the sections.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — Actions in this State are substantially the same as at common law, except that all real actions are abolished by statute except actions of ejectment, actions for waste, for trespass on lands, and actions on the case for private nuisances.

The assignee of any bond, note, or other chose in action, not negotiable under existing laws, which has been or may hereafter be assigned, may sue and recover the same in his own name. But the defendant may avail himself of any defense, arising before notice of the assignment, that might have been made to a suit brought by the assignor. (Acts 1915, Part 2, p. 67.)

It shall be lawful for the holder of any bill of exchange or promissory note, instead of bringing separate suits against the drawers, makers, guarantors of the payment thereof, indorsers, and acceptor of such bill or note, to include all or any of the said parties to the bill or note in one action, and to proceed to judgment and execution in the same manner as though all defendants were joint contractors. (Acts 1915, Part 2, p. 89.)

It is also provided that the plaintiff in any such action may declare upon the money counts and any such bill or note may be given in evidence thereunder in all cases where a copy thereof shall have been served with the declaration.

On Accounts. — Our statutes provide that in all actions brought in any of the courts of this State to recover the amount due on an open account or upon an account stated, if the plaintiff, or some one in his behalf, shall make an affidavit of the amount due, as near as he can estimate the same, over and above all legal set-offs, and annex thereto a copy of said account, and cause a copy of said affidavit and account to be served upon the defendant with a copy of the declaration filed in the cause or with the process by which suit is commenced, such affidavit shall be deemed prima facie evidence of such indebtedness, unless the defendant with his plea shall by himself or his agent make an affidavit and serve a copy thereof on the plaintiff or his attorney denying the same.

The statute also provides that the defendant may give notice of any set-off founded on an open account, and serve a copy of the same verified by affidavit showing the amount of the balance claimed by him, and such affidavit shall be regarded prima facie evidence of such set-off, unless the same is denied by affidavit of the plaintiff or his agent, within ten days after such service in the circuit court, and before trial in other cases. If the plaintiff cannot deny the whole of the set-off he may deny a portion, in which case the defendant's affidavit is prima facie evidence only as to the items not denied. (Acts 1915, Part 2, p. 105.)

The form of affidavit below may be readily varied to meet the facts, and the affidavit as to set-off can be prepared without difficulty from the suggestions given. A similar form may be used for proving claims in probate courts by non-residents, and if not contested may be accepted; but there is no statute making it sufficient in the latter court.

being duly sworn, deposes and says that the foregoing and annexed account is correctly made out from the books of original entry of the said ; that the said charges were made in said books at or about the time of their respective dates; that the goods for which said charges were made were sold and delivered by said to ; that the charges are correct, and the account just and true as stated, to the best of deponent's knowledge and belief; that the demand of said against said as shown by the annexed account, is just, due, and unpaid; that there is no just set-off known to deponent, either in law or equity, against said demand; that all just and legal set-offs, payments, and credits have been given to said account; that there is now due to the said from said upon said open account the sum of dollars, as near as this deponent can estimate the same, over and above all legal set-offs, and that interest is due thereon from the day of A. D. 19 at the rate of per cent. per annum. (Signature.)

Taken, subscribed, and sworn to before me at in the county of and State of the day of A. D. 19 (Signature and title.)

Ten days are allowed to intervene between the date of the affidavit and the commencement of suit; and this time applies as well to that of the plaintiff as to that of the defendant if he files an affidavit with a notice of set-off. If the affidavit is sworn to out of the State of Michigan, it must be sworn to before the officer and certified by the clerk as required by C. L. 10144. See Affidavits.

The copy of account should be an itemized statement of the entire account, both debits and credits, with interest computed and added.

The creditors should not be named by the name of the firm, but the full name of each individual member should be given, unless the creditor is a corporation, when the corporate name should be used. If a firm, state that the parties are copartners and give the firm name; the location of the home office of the firm or corporation should be stated. Parties residing out of this State desiring a claim in the nature of an open account collected against a person in this State should send an affidavit and copy of account as above to the attorney. If the account has been stated and a balance agreed on by the parties, while the items might be omitted, the safe way would be to send a statement giving the items, and any written admission by the debtor. If the claim is upon a note, or bill, or other written agreement to pay, the paper itself will of course be sufficient. In all cases send with the claim the name of the creditor firm, and the full name of each member, and, if a corporation, the corporate name.

On Debts as affected by the Liquor Law. — The legislature of 1875 repealed the act of 1855, entitled, "An act to prevent the sale of spirituous and intoxicating drinks as a beverage," and instead thereof a law was passed taxing that business, and a debt contracted on account of the sale of liquors is now collectible the same as if for any other consideration.

Change of Venue. — The circuit courts, upon good cause shown, may change the venue in any cause to the circuit court of another county. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 64.)

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — In cases where by law the affidavit of a person residing in another State or in any foreign country may be used in judicial proceedings in this State, it must be authenticated as follows: (1) It must be certified by the consul-general, deputy consul-general or some consul or deputy consul of the United States resident in such foreign country, to have been taken and subscribed before him, specifying the time and place where taken, and have the consular seal attached. (2) It must be certified by some judge of a court having a seal to have been taken and subscribed before him, specifying the time and place where taken. (3) The genuineness of the signature of such judge, the existence of the court, and the fact that such judge is a member thereof, must be certified by the clerk of the court under the seal thereof; or, (4) If such affidavit be taken in any other of the United States, or in any Territory thereof, it may be taken before a commissioner duly appointed and commissioned by the governor of this State to take affidavits to be used therein, or before any notary public or justice of the peace authorized by the laws of such State to administer oaths therein. The signature of such notary public or justice of the peace, and the fact that at the time of the taking of such affidavit the person before whom the same was taken was such notary public or justice of the peace, shall be certified by the clerk of any court of record in the county where such affidavit shall be taken, under the seal of said court. (C. L. 10144, as amended 1909, Act 191.)

Aliens — Resident and non-resident, may hold and transmit real estate in the same manner as native citizens of this State. See Descent of Property.

Appeals. — Any party may appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace to the circuit court of the county where the same was rendered. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 468.) And provisions are made for removing certain cases to the circuit courts by writ of certiorari. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 472.)

Certain cases at law are removable from the circuit courts to the supreme court of the State on writ of error and certiorari, where only questions of law are considered. Where a party sues out a writ of error to review a judgment of the circuit court, execution does not stay unless he gives to the adverse party a bond in not less than double the amount of the judgment sought to be reversed. Writs of error must be sued out within one year from the date of judgment. (Laws 1915, Act 314, ch. 50.)

Appeals in chancery may be taken to the supreme court from the circuit courts, the whole case being determined on the pleadings and proofs made in the circuit court. Such appeal is made within forty days, and the party appealing must to obtain stay of proceedings file with the register of the circuit court a bond to the adverse party with sufficient sureties conditioned for the diligent prosecution of the appeal, payment of all costs and performance of final decree on appeal. (Laws 1915, Act 314, ch. 50.)

Appeals may be made from the probate courts to the circuit courts of the proper counties within sixty days from the date of the judgment or order appealed from, on filing a bond with penalty and sureties approved by the judge of probate.

Arrest. — Personal actions arising upon contract, express or implied, may be commenced in the circuit court by capias ad respondendum only to recover damages for any breach of promise to marry, or for moneys collected by any public officer, or for any misconduct or neglect in office, or in any professional employment, or in case of fraud or breach of trust, when the plaintiff, or some one in his behalf, shall make and attach to such writ an affidavit, stating therein that the plaintiff has a claim for damages against the defendant for the cause of action stated in the writ, and upon which he believes that the plaintiff is entitled to recover a certain sum, being more than one hundred dollars. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 80.)

Personal actions may be commenced by capias ad respondendum, in cases of claims for damages other than those arising upon contract, express or implied, where an order for bail shall be indorsed on the writ by a judge of the court from which the writ issues, or a circuit court commissioner directing the amount in which bail is to be taken. Such order shall be made only upon the declaration and affidavit of the plaintiff or some person in his behalf showing the nature of the plaintiff's claim. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 80.)

In Justices' Court. — The plaintiff is entitled to a warrant upon more or less the same grounds as in the circuit court. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 427.)

Assignments. — Assignments for the benefit of creditors may be made by following the statute which describes in detail the procedure and the rights of all interested parties. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 302.)

Attachment. — Creditors may proceed in the circuit courts by attachment against the property of their debtors by making and annexing to the writ an affidavit of "the plaintiff or some one in his behalf, stating that the defendant therein is indebted to the plaintiff, and specifying the amount of such indebtedness as near as may be over and above all legal set-offs (which amount must exceed one hundred dollars), and that the same is due upon contract express or implied or upon judgment, and containing a further statement that deponent knows or has good reason to believe either, — 1st. That the defendant has absconded, or is about to abscond from this State, or that he is concealed therein to the injury of his creditors; or 2d. That the defendant has assigned, disposed of, or concealed, or is about to assign, dispose of, or conceal any of his property with intent to defraud his creditors; or 3d. That the defendant has removed or is about to remove any of his property out of this State with intent to defraud his creditors; or 4th. That he fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation respecting which the suit is brought; or 5th. That the defendant is not a resident of this State, and has not resided therein for three months immediately preceding the time of making such affidavit; or 6th. That the defendant is a foreign corporation. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 196.)

A creditor may also proceed by attachment in justice's court in any action founded on a judgment or on a contract, express or implied, if the plaintiff or some one in his behalf shall make and file with the justice an affidavit specifying as near as may be the amount due to him, and that he knows or has good reason to believe either, — 1st. That the defendant has assigned, disposed of, or concealed, or is about to assign, dispose of, or conceal any of his property with the intent to defraud his creditors; or 2d. That he is about to remove any of his property from the county in which such application is made, or from the county where the defendant resides, with the like intent; or that he has removed or is about to remove himself or his property from the county and refuses or neglects to pay or to secure the payment of the debts; or 3d. That he fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation respecting which the suit is brought; or 4th. That the defendant has absconded, to the injury of his creditors, or does not reside in this State, and has not resided therein for one month immediately preceding the time of making the application; or 5th. That the defendant is a foreign corporation.

One day may intervene between the date of the jurat and that of the writ; and when the person making the affidavit lives in any other county in this State, one day may intervene for each thirty miles between his residence and the place where the writ is issued. The effect of attachment in either case is to hold the property until judgment can be obtained and an execution issued and levied. The defendant may have the property returned by executing a bond to pay the judgment. A non-resident may proceed by attachment against another non-resident, if any property can be found here upon which to levy. But in that case, unless the defendant should appear, he would not be bound by the judgment, and the plaintiff's procedure would be one simply in rem against such property as he could reach.

Before the writ issues the plaintiff must file with the justice a bond to the defendant in the penal sum of two hundred dollars, with sufficient sureties to be approved by the justice, conditioned to pay the defendant all damages and costs he shall sustain by reason of the issuing of the writ, if the plaintiff shall fail to recover judgment in the suit; and if the plaintiff's demand shall exceed one hundred dollars, the penalty of the bond must be double the amount of such demand.

In the circuit court the amount over and above all legal set-offs must be one hundred dollars. The property levied upon remains in the hands of the officer unless the defendant, or the person in whose hands he finds the property, shall at some time before judgment give a bond to the officer, with two or more sureties, in a penalty double the amount specified in the affidavit annexed to the writ as due, and conditioned for the payment of the judgment which may be recovered in the suit within sixty days after its rendition, or the bond may be in double the appraised value of the property, and conditioned that the property shall be produced to satisfy any execution that may be issued upon the judgment. Upon delivery of such bond to the officer he surrenders the property, but the progress of the suit is not in any way affected. Other creditors may proceed against the same defendant and levy upon the same property, and the officer shall hold any such successive attachments in the order in which they were received.

After a suit has been commenced and before judgment, the plaintiff shall be entitled to a writ of attachment whenever sufficient cause shall be shown, as pointed out above; and there may be an attachment and also a garnishment in the same proceeding, and they may be issued at the time of commencement of the suit, or at any time afterwards before judgment.

The defendant in any case may apply to a judge of the circuit court or to a circuit court commissioner of the county where the writ issued for a dissolution of the attachment. Upon this hearing proofs may be taken, and the burden is upon the plaintiff to make out a case. The judge or commissioner may order the attachment to be dissolved and the property restored; but he may also require the defendant to enter his appearance in the action prior to the dissolution. Appeal may be taken from the commissioner's order to the circuit court. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 205.)

In practice, the officer usually calls upon the plaintiff to give him a bond before taking possession of property under a writ of attachment. This bond is simply to protect the officer against any suit for damages which may be brought for the taking and the detention in case the levy should not be sustained, or in case the property should prove to belong to a third person. There is no statute requiring such a bond, but the officer is at liberty to demand it before proceeding. See last paragraph in article on Corporations.

By act 149, S. L. 1880, a new section was added. It provides for the commencement of suit by attachment before the debt is due. The plaintiff, or some person in his behalf, must make an affidavit complying with the statute which is stated in the first paragraph of this article, but instead of stating that the debt is due it must state when it will become due, and show reasons for the immediate issuance of the writ to the satisfaction of the circuit judge. An order that a writ of attachment issue and be proceeded with must be obtained from the judge and indorsed on the affidavit. The writ will then be issued. The levy on property will create a lien which shall continue until the final decision in the cause, unless sooner discharged. No judgment shall be rendered until the debt shall have become due.

Actions may also be commenced by attachment arising upon some classes of torts, where the defendant, at the time of the commission of the tort and at the time of the filing of the affidavit for the attachment, was a non-resident of the State.

Automobiles. — See Licenses.

Chattel Mortgages. — Every mortgage, or conveyance intended to operate as a mortgage of goods and chattels, which shall hereafter be made, which shall not be accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by an actual and continued change of possession of the things mortgaged, shall be absolutely void as against the creditors of the mortgagor, and as against subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith, unless the mortgage or a true copy thereof shall be filed in the office of the township clerk of the township, or city clerk of the city, or city recorder of cities having no officer known as city clerk, where the goods or chattels are located; and also where the mortgagor resides, except when the mortgagor is a non-resident of the State, when the mortgage, or a true copy thereof, shall be filed in the office of the township clerk of the township, or city clerk of the city, or city recorder of cities having no officer known as city clerk, where the property is, provided that in the case of corporations engaged in transporting passengers or freight or conveying electricity or gas or telephonic or telegraphic communications, all that shall be required is the filing of a copy of such mortgage with the registers of deeds of each county through which the lines of property thereof passes, and such mortgages shall not require any affidavit of renewal and unless the mortgagor named in such mortgage, or conveyance intended to operate as a mortgage, or some person for him having knowledge of the facts, shall before the filing of the same make and annex thereto an affidavit setting forth that the consideration of said instrument was actual and adequate, and that the same was given in good faith for the purposes in such instrument set forth, no officer shall receive such instrument or file the same in his office until such affidavit is made and annexed thereto. (Laws 1915, Act 163.)

Every such mortgage shall cease to be valid, as against the creditors of the person making the same, or subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith, after the expiration of one year, from the filing of the same, or a copy thereof, unless within thirty days next preceding the expiration of the year, the mortgagee, his agent or attorney, shall make and annex to the instrument or copy on file as aforesaid an affidavit, setting forth the interest which the mortgagee has, by virtue of said mortgage, in the property therein mentioned. Provided, that such affidavit being made and filed before any purchase of such mortgaged property shall be made, or other mortgage received or lien therein obtained in good faith, shall be as valid to continue in effect such mortgage as if the same were made and filed within the period as above provided. (Laws 1915, Act 163.) This must be done each year if the lien would be preserved. The supreme court of this State holds, differing from that of New York and some other States, that the "creditors or subsequent purchasers or mortgagees" referred to includes those who become such at any time after the first filing, and not merely those who become such after the failure to refile.

This class of mortgages generally contains a power of sale, and the kind of notice to be given in case of default before a sale can take place is usually embodied in the instrument; but in case of its omission, or in case the mortgagee so elects, a proceeding to foreclose may be taken in the chancery court.

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — When letters testamentary or of administration are granted, the judge of probate may and generally does appoint two or more commissioners to receive and adjust claims against the deceased. An appeal lies from their decision to the circuit court of the county. They publish notice of their meetings, and the court allows in the first instance not less than six nor more than eighteen months, but may extend the time, not exceeding two years in all.

At any time before the estate is closed, the commission may be revived on application of a creditor who has failed to present his claim.

The probate court allows the executor or administrator eighteen months in which to close estate and pay all debts and legacies; but the time may be extended from time to time, but not so that the whole shall exceed four years.

The executor or administrator has a right to the possession of all the real and personal estate, and the rents, issues, and profits of the real estate, until the estate is finally settled, and he must keep the estate in tenantable repair; but if on application it is made to appear to the probate court at any time that there are no debts, or that the personal property is sufficient to pay them, the court may order the realty delivered to the heirs or devisees. Homestead rights, however, are not affected by the above. (Laws 1915, Act 314, ch. 59.)

If the claim is in the nature of an open account or account stated against the estate of a deceased person, it would be well to attach to such account an affidavit before sending, setting forth fully the amount claimed, the items, and any other facts which would show the justice of the claim. This the attorney may present to the commissioners, or judge of probate, if no commissioners have been appointed, for allowance, and claims so presented are sometimes allowed; but the attorney will be the judge, after receiving the claim, whether it is most safe to obtain a regular commission. See form for affidavits under title Actions.

If the claim shall be disallowed, in whole or in part, by the judge or commissioners, and the amount exceeds twenty dollars, an appeal lies to the circuit court of the same county.

The proof required in support of any such claim is not different in the case of a non-resident from that required by a resident.

Administration shall be granted: 1. To the widow or next of kin, or both, or such person as they shall request, if competent. 2. If widow or next of kin be incompetent or refuse, and do not nominate, then to one or more of the principal creditors. 3. If no creditor be competent or willing to act, then to some person selected by the judge of probate. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 350.)

If the deceased shall leave a will, the person named therein as executor will, if competent, take the administration of the estate.

While there is no statute as to non-residents, the court probably would not grant administration to a person out of its jurisdiction.

Every executor and administrator must give a bond in such sum as the court shall fix, and with sureties approved by the court.

Debts are paid in the following order: 1. Expenses of administration. 2. Funeral expenses. 3. Expenses of last sickness. 4. Debts preferred by laws of the United States. 5. Debts due to other creditors. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 365.)

The statute provides that allowances may be made to widow and minor children as may be adjudged necessary. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 345.)

A recent statute provides that all the debts and obligations contracted by a person during his lifetime, or for which his estate has become liable, shall be barred after ten years from the date of his death, unless presented to the probate court in accordance with its rules of practice, or unless sooner barred by law, notwithstanding that no proceedings shall have been taken to probate such estate. (Act 348, Public Acts of 1917.)

Conditional Sales. — Chattels. — See Sales.

Consignments. — There is no statute on the subject of property rights in goods consigned to another as purchaser, agent, or broker. The consignee generally is presumptively owner. If goods are sold, consigned, and delivered, the simple relation of debtor and creditor exists. The right of stoppage in transitu may be exercised in case of insolvency of consignee. If the consignee should wrongfully convert the property he would be liable to civil action and to arrest therein. A general statute provides that if any officer, agent, clerk, or servant shall fraudulently dispose of or convert to his own use any money or property of his principal, he shall be guilty of larceny. (C. L. 11565.)

Constitution. — The present Constitution is the new and revised constitution which took effect January 1, 1909, prepared by the convention in session October 22, 1907–March 3, 1908, and ratified by the people November, 1908.

Corporations. — The Constitution (of 1909, article xii, § 1) provides that corporations may be formed under general laws, but shall not be created by special act, and that all laws may be amended, altered, or repealed, and (article xii, § 3) that no corporation, except for municipal, railroad, insurance, canals, or cemetery purposes or corporations without capital stock for religious, benevolent, social, or fraternal purposes shall be created for a longer term than thirty years; but the legislature may by general laws provide for one or more extensions of the term of any corporation while such term is running, not exceeding thirty years for each extension, on consent of not less than two thirds of the capital of the corporation, and for the reorganization for a period not exceeding thirty years of corporations whose terms have expired by limitation, on consent of not less than four fifths of the capital.

General laws have been enacted authorizing the formation of corporations for a great variety of purposes. As a rule they require articles of association to be signed by the incorporators, and recorded in the office of the secretary of state and of the clerk of the county in which it is formed or has its home office. Among these there are acts for the incorporation of corporations for banking, railroad, telephone, water-supply, mining, insurance, electric light and power, manufacturing and mercantile, and many other purposes. Each of these acts contains requirements as to the amount of capital stock to be paid in, the number and qualifications of directors, etc. There is no general statute on these subjects. There are also general provisions which apply to all corporations.

The Constitution provides that the stockholders of all corporations and joint stock associations shall be individually liable for all labor performed for such corporation or association. The laws relating to particular corporations also contain similar provisions, and in some cases extend the liability to other than labor debts. The statutes also provide for the enforcement of the individual liability, usually upon judgment against the corporation and execution returned unsatisfied.

There is no limitation respecting the holding of personalty. The Constitution provides that no corporation shall hold any real estate for a longer period than ten years, except such as shall be actually occupied by the corporation in the exercise of its franchise. It also provides that all corporations shall have the right to sue, and be subject to be sued, in all courts in like cases as natural persons.

It is provided that all corporations organized under any general law of the State, other than municipal, insurance, banking, building and loan associations, cooperative savings associations, and summer resort associations, shall elect their directors annually, and that the entire number of directors shall be balloted for at one and the same time, and not separately; that at all elections for directors, every stockholder shall have the right to vote, in person or by proxy, the number of shares of stock owned by him for as many persons as there may be directors to be elected or to cumulate said shares, and give one candidate as many votes as will equal the number of directors multiplied by the number of shares of his stock, or to distribute them on the same principle among as many candidates as he shall think fit. Provided that the by-laws of any such corporations shall not be so amended as to reduce the number of directors in case the votes of a sufficient number of shares are recorded against such amendment, which if cumulatively voted as herein provided would elect one or more directors where the same number of shares, if cumulatively voted would not be sufficient to elect the same number of directors of the reduced board. Associations for social, yachting, hunting, boating, fishing, and rowing purposes may elect a portion of their directors for a longer term than one year as may be provided in their by-laws. (C. L. 8553, as amended 1905, Act 61, p. 85, 1907, Act 141, and Act 268 of 1911.)

Act 225, S. L. 1899 (C. L. 11377-11383), is aimed at the combinations commonly known as "trusts." It declares that all contracts and combinations for the purpose of controlling, limiting, or regulating the production of any article or commodity, or the market price thereof, or to restrict free competition in its production or sale, shall be illegal and void, and shall constitute a criminal conspiracy, and prescribes a punishment by fine and imprisonment. It also declares that every such contract, etc., shall be void, whether made in or out of the State. Also that every corporation which shall enter into such contract, etc., or do any act to carry the same into effect, shall forfeit its charter and all rights thereunder. Law of 1899, Act 255, p. 409, is a further anti-trust law.

Corporations, domestic and foreign, may be proceeded against as garnishees in all courts.

In suits in courts of record brought by a corporation created under the laws of the State, it shall not be necessary, on the trial, to prove the existence of the corporation unless the defendant denies the incorporation by notice under his plea accompanied by affidavit.

In the circuit courts (by rule 3), in all actions brought by corporations, foreign or domestic, the plaintiffs may, at the time of filing declaration, file an affidavit that the plaintiff is a corporation under the laws of some state, territory, or country specified and that the contract in question was made, or the cause of action sued on accrued to it as such corporation, and may serve a copy thereof with the declaration, and the same shall be prima facie evidence of the fact unless denied by counter affidavit.

It is provided by statute that in any suit or proceeding wherein it shall become material or necessary to prove the incorporation of any company or corporation, or the existence of any joint stock company or association, foreign or domestic, evidence that such corporation, company, or association is doing business under a certain name shall be prima facie proof of its due incorporation or existence pursuant to law, and of its name.

By statute it is provided that no life, fire, inland, or marine insurance company not incorporated under the laws of the State shall insure property or do business in this State, until it has filed with the commissioner of insurance a stipulation that any legal process affecting the company served on the commissioner or his deputy shall have the same effect as if personally served on the company or its authorized attorney in this State.

Suits against corporations may be commenced by writs of summons or by declaration in the same manner that personal actions may be commenced against individuals. Service may be made upon the presiding officer, cashier, secretary, or treasurer, or any other officer or agent, or by leaving a copy of the writ or declaration at the office of such corporation. Such service may be made in any county where the plaintiff resides. In any county where the plaintiff resides other than the one wherein the principal office of the corporation is located, suits may be commenced by writ of attachment, except against railroad and navigation companies.

Corporations must file annual reports upon blanks furnished. (Act 142, Public Acts of 1915.)

Capital Stock. — The par value of shares may be either ten dollars or one hundred dollars, and the capital must not be less than one thousand dollars or more than fifty million dollars. Corporations may be formed with common stock alone or with both preferred and common stock. (Laws 1917, p. 52b.)

Franchise Fee. — Act 182, p. 240, Laws of 1891, as amended by act 79, p. 82, Laws of 1893 (C. L. 8574-8577), provides that every corporation or association thereafter incorporated or formed by consolidation or otherwise under any law of this State, and which is required to file articles with the secretary of state, and every foreign corporation or association which shall hereafter be permitted to transact business in this State, shall pay to the secretary of state a franchise fee of one half of one mill upon each dollar of the capital stock, original or increased, and that every corporation theretofore organized which shall thereafter increase its capital stock shall pay the same fee. That no corporation shall pay less than five dollars, and that all contracts by corporations which have not complied with the provisions of the act shall be wholly void. Act 91, p. 199, Laws of 1895 (C. L. 8577), requires corporations renewing their existence to pay the same fee. The supreme court of the State has decided that this franchise fee law does not apply to foreign corporations who send agents into the State to sell goods, and who merely ship goods into the State on sales made and who have no establishment in the State.

Taxes. — Corporations generally pay taxes upon their property the same as individuals. (Act 208 of 1893.) Some pay taxes upon their gross earnings in lieu of all other taxes excepting for local improvements. The property of railroad companies, union depot companies, express companies, and companies loaning or running cars are valued for taxation by a state board. (Act 173 of 1901 as amended.) Property is listed in April. Sworn statements must be filed by all tax-payers and officers of corporations with the local assessing officers on blanks furnished by them in April each year. Taxes are levied in October and payable December 1. (Tax Law of 1893 as amended.) City and village taxes are under some charters due in the summer.

Foreign Corporations. — Act 310 of 1907 amends and supersedes Act 206 of 1901 prescribing the terms and conditions on which foreign corporations may be admitted to do business in Michigan. It provides that it shall be unlawful for any corporation organized under the laws of any other State, or of any foreign country, to carry on its business in this State until it shall have procured from the secretary of state of this State a certificate of authority for that purpose. To procure such certificate, every foreign corporation shall file and record in the office of the secretary of state a certified copy of its charter or articles of incorporation, and file evidence of appointment of an agent in this State to accept service of process on its behalf, and shall pay to the secretary of state the requisite filing, recording, and franchise fees. Such corporation, by its president, secretary, treasurer, and superintendent, or any two of them, shall make and file with the secretary of state a statement, duly sworn to by at least two of such officers, in such form as the secretary of state may prescribe, containing the following facts: (1) the location of its principal office and its principal place or places of business and the names and addresses of its principal officers; (2) the location of its principal office and the principal place of business in Michigan and the name and addresses of the officers, or agent, of the company in charge of its business in Michigan; (3) the total value of the property owned and used by the company in its business, giving its location and general character, and state separately the value of its tangible property, of its cash and credits, its franchises, patents, trade marks and formulas, good will; (4) the value of the property owned and used in Michigan and where situated; (5) the total amount of business transacted during the preceding year and the amount of business, if any, transacted in Michigan; (6) such other facts bearing on the matter as the secretary of state may require, including a statement of the particular purpose or the particular kind of business for which the company desires admission to this State. From the papers so filed, and facts so reported, and any other facts coming to his knowledge, the secretary of state shall determine the proportion of the authorized capital stock of the company represented by its tangible property in Michigan. Any such corporation shall have the right, on application, to be heard by the secretary of state touching the Michigan proportion of its capital stock represented by such property used in Michigan, with the right of appeal within ten days to a board consisting of the auditor-general, state treasurer, and attorney-general, whose decision in the matter shall be final. Such company shall pay to the secretary of state a franchise fee of one half of one mill on each dollar of the proportion of its authorized capital stock represented by the tangible property owned and used in Michigan. In case such corporation was not at the time of admission carrying on any business outside of Michigan at least six months it shall pay a franchise fee on its entire authorized capital stock. Such fee shall in no case be less than twenty-five dollars. (§§ 2 and 3 as amended 1913, act 277, p. 538.) When such corporation has fully complied with the provisions of this act, the secretary of state may issue to it a certificate of authority to carry on such business in this State during the period of its corporate existence, not exceeding thirty years. No foreign corporation shall be permitted to transact business in Michigan unless it be incorporated, in whole or part, for the purpose or object, for which a corporation may be formed under the laws of Michigan, and then only for such purpose or object. The secretary of state shall in his certificate state under which act (in the laws of Michigan) such corporation is to carry on business in this State, and such corporation shall have all the powers, rights, and privileges, and be subject to all the restrictions, requirements, and duties granted to or imposed upon corporations organized under such act, and the officers and directors shall be subject to requirements, duties, and penalties and liabilities for failure to perform any duties imposed by such act as are the officers and directors of corporations organized under such act. The carrying on in this State by such corporation of business for which it has not been so admitted, or failure to fully comply with the requirements of the act under which it has been admitted, shall be sufficient cause for revoking the certificate of authority to do business in this State, and the secretary of state may revoke such certificate and shall promptly notify such corporation of such revocation and the reasons therefor, by notice by mail to the home office. (§ 4 as amended 1911, act 286.) Every corporation which has paid a franchise fee and been admitted to do business in Michigan which shall thereafter increase its authorized capital, or the proportion thereof represented by property used and business done in Michigan, shall within thirty days after such increase file an additional statement with the secretary of state and pay an additional franchise fee of one half of one mill on each dollar of the amount of the increase represented by property owned and business done in Michigan. Any such corporation shall at any time when requested by the secretary of state file an additional statement, under oath of at least two of its officers, showing the proportion of its property used and business transacted in Michigan. Every corporation subject to the provisions of this act which shall neglect or fail to comply with its requirements shall be subject to a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for every month that it continues to transact business in Michigan without complying with the requirements of this act. (§ 5 as amended October 24, 1907, special session.) No foreign corporation subject to the provisions of this act shall be capable of making a valid contract in this State until it shall have fully complied with the requirements of this act and at the time holds an unrevoked certificate from the secretary of state. It shall be unlawful for any person to act as agent for any foreign corporation not authorized to do business in this State, or in any manner to aid in the transaction of the business of such unauthorized foreign corporation in this State, and any person violating this provision shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense, and in default of payment of such fine, be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. Provisions of this act shall not be applicable to such foreign corporations as are permitted to do business in this State by license issued by the commissioner of insurance or by the state treasurer, according to the provisions of law. This act shall not be construed to prohibit any sale of goods or merchandise which would be protected by the rights of interstate commerce. The term "corporations" shall include all associations, partnership associations, and joint stock companies having any of the powers or privileges of corporations not possessed by individuals or partnerships, under whatever term or designation they may be defined and known in the State where organized. (Act 310, P. A. 1907, p. 413.) No corporation having appointed an agent to accept service of process shall revoke such appointment until it shall have filed notice of the appointment of another agent. Service of process may also be made upon any officer or agent of such corporation within this State or upon the secretary of state, who shall immediately notify the corporation by mailing notice and copy of process to its address. (§ 10 added October 24, 1907, special session.)

The filing and recording fees depend upon the length of the papers filed.

Foreign corporations may hold lands in Michigan subject to above provisions and constitutional limitations. There are other special requirements as to certain corporations, insurance companies, etc.

Foreign corporations may bring suits in the courts of this State on filing security for costs. Suits against foreign corporations may be brought in the courts of this State, and service may be made on the appointed agent in the case of corporations which are required to appoint such agent, and it is also provided that in cases where the plaintiff is a resident of Michigan, suits may be commenced at law or in equity in the circuit court for any county where the plaintiff resides or where service of process may be had, and suits at law may be commenced before any justice of the peace in such county against any corporation not organized under the laws of this State, by service of summons, declaration or chancery subpoena within the State, upon any officer or agent of the corporation or the conductor of any railroad train or the master of any vessel belonging to or in the service of the defendant corporation, and that where the plaintiff is a non-resident of Michigan suits may be commenced in like manner against such corporations in all cases where the cause of action accrued within the State; but that no judgment shall be rendered in any case, except before justices of the peace, until after sixty days after the commencement of suit, and that the plaintiff shall, within thirty days after commencement of suit send notice by registered letter to the defendant corporation at its home office. Suit may also be commenced by attachment in action on contract.

In addition to this provision, attachments and garnishments may issue for the seizure of property or debts owing to the corporation within this State, and such suits prosecuted to judgment. See Taxes.

The legislature in 1913, by Act 106, pp. 180-185, enacted "an act to make uniform the law of transfer of shares of stock in corporations," prescribing the methods of making such transfers and their effect.

Affidavits as to the birth, marriage, death, name, residence, identity, and relationship of parties named in deeds, wills, mortgages, and other instruments affecting real estate may be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the said real estate is situated. (Act 123, Public Acts of 1915.)

Depositions. — There are provisions in the statutes and rules of the courts for the taking of depositions on commission and written interrogatories. Ch. 17, act 314, Laws 1915, provides for the taking of depositions upon notice, and repeals former statutes on the same subject, and also provides that parties to actions and parties interested in suits to be begun may have testimony taken and returned in any manner agreed upon by stipulation in writing.

For all practical purposes the provisions in act 180 of 1895, relating to the taking of depositions upon notice, afford the most simple and convenient method, and one which may be adopted in all cases. These provisions are as follows: —

That the testimony of any witness may be taken by depositions de bene esse in any civil cause or matter begun or pending in any court of record at law or in chancery, or before any probate court or commissioners on claims, or arbitrator's referees, or circuit court commissioner or justice of the peace, or in any other civil proceeding, 1, when the witness is, or is about to go, or resides, out of the State of Michigan; 2, or is about to go or reside more than fifty miles from the place of trial, or beyond the jurisdiction of the court; 3, or when the witness is sick, aged, or infirm; 4, or where there is reasonable cause for apprehension that his testimony cannot be had at the trial of the cause; 5, or where it is needed for use on hearing of motions, petitions, proceedings for injunctions, or upon any other interlocutory or other proceeding prior to final hearing of any cause; 6, and in all cases where affidavits are permitted to be used in proceedings before the court; 7, also when it is desired to take conditionally and perpetuate testimony in suits to be begun; 8, and in any other case not above provided for when it shall appear to the court or judge thereof that the purposes of justice will be aided thereby.

The deposition may be taken before any judge of any court of the United States or of any State of the United States, or of any foreign country, or before any commissioner of a circuit court in Michigan or of the United States or of any State, or any commissioner for Michigan, or any consul, or consular officer, justice of the peace, officer, or notary public authorized by the laws of this State or of any other State or of the United States, or by the laws of any foreign country, to administer oaths, not being of counsel or attorney for either of the parties nor interested in the event of the cause, the seal of such court or official, or a certificate of such authority given under the seal of any court of record, shall be prima facie evidence of authority to act.

Reasonable notice must first be given in writing by the party, his attorney or solicitor, proposing to take such deposition to the opposite party or his attorney of record, which notice shall state the name of the witness or witnesses and the time and place of taking his deposition and the name of the official before whom the same will be taken, and whenever there shall be urgent necessity for taking a deposition and notice cannot be given as above provided, on account of absence of the opposite party, or want of an attorney, or other reason, it may be taken upon such notice as the judge shall think reasonable and shall direct. Any person may be compelled to appear and depose by the order or process of any court, and to produce books and papers, in the same manner as witnesses may be compelled to appear and testify in court. (Note, this provision is of force only within this State.)

Each witness shall be sworn or affirmed by the officer or person empowered to take such testimony to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth concerning the matter at issue in the cause. Every witness may be examined, cross-examined, and reexamined orally, and also so examined in addition to written, direct, or cross-interrogatories. Examinations may be adjourned from time to time. Testimony may be written or taken stenographically and transcribed under direction of the officer so taking the same, and shall be signed by the witness and certified as correct by the officer before whom it is taken; but signatures of witnesses may be waived in writing by agreement of parties.

The depositions when taken shall be forthwith inclosed by the official before whom the same is taken, and indorsed with the title of the court and cause, and that the deposition was taken and sealed up by him, and how it is to be sent, and he shall sign the indorsement and the same shall be transmitted, by mail or otherwise, to the court in which the cause is pending, and in case such deposition is taken for use before commissioners on claims appointed by any probate court, to such court, and then be opened by the court or clerk or register, and written notice thereof then given by mail or otherwise to the parties. Objections to notices of, or objections to the manner of taking the testimony, or of certifying or returning the deposition, shall be regarded as waived unless made in writing within three days after knowledge or notice of the return thereof.

Fees for taking depositions shall be for taking, certifying, sealing, and forwarding, two dollars; and for each one hundred words, ten cents; which shall be considered as costs in the case; and for copies of testimony furnished to any party three cents for each one hundred words. Each party may be made to pay for his own examinations or cross-examinations in the first instance.

Descent of Property, Real and Personal. — The Michigan statute of descent of real property provides that when any person shall die seized of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments or of any right thereto, or entitled to any interest therein in fee simple or for the life of another, not having lawfully devised the same, they shall descend subject to his debts in the following manner: 1st. One third to his widow and the remaining two thirds to his issue, and if no widow, the whole to his issue, and if the intestate be a married woman the whole thereof shall descend to her issue and if all said issue are in the same degree of kindred to the intestate they shall share the estate equally, otherwise they shall take according to the right of representation. 2d. If the intestate shall leave a husband or widow and no issue, one half of the estate shall descend to such husband or widow and the remainder to the father and mother of the intestate in equal shares, and if there be but one of the parents living, then to the survivor alone. And if the intestate shall leave no issue, husband, or widow, his or her estate shall descend to the father and mother in equal shares, and if there be but one of the parents living, to the survivor alone. And if the intestate shall leave no issue, father or mother, his or her estate shall descend subject to the provisions herein made for the widow or husband; if a widow or husband survive the deceased, to his or her brothers and sisters and the children of deceased brothers and sisters. And if such persons are in the same degree of kindred to the intestate they shall take equally, otherwise by right of representation. Provided, that if such intestate shall die under the age of twenty-one years, not having married, all the estate that came to such intestate by inheritance from a parent which has not been lawfully disposed of shall descend to the other children and the issue of deceased children of the same parent, if there be such children or issue, and if such persons are in the same degree of kindred to said intestate they shall take equally, otherwise by right of representation. 3d. If the intestate shall leave no issue, husband, widow, father, mother, brother, sister, nor child of brother or sister, his estate shall descend to his next of kin in equal degree, excepting that when there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree but claiming through different ancestors, those who claim through the nearest ancestor shall be preferred to those claiming through an ancestor more remote. 4th. If the intestate shall leave a husband or wife and no issue, nor father, mother, brother, or sister, and there shall be no child of brother or sister, the estate of such intestate shall descend to the husband or wife of such intestate, as the case may be. 5th. The provision herein made for the widow shall be in lieu of her dower and homestead right unless she shall, within one year after letters of administration have been granted upon the estate of her deceased husband, begin proceedings for the assignment to her of such dower and homestead, in which case her interest in the lands of her deceased husband shall be limited to such dower and homestead and the residue of such estate shall then descend as herein provided for the portion thereof not taken by such widow. Provided, that the judge of probate may any time before the estate is closed, upon petition of the widow after notice to all persons interested, permit the widow to begin proceedings and have her dower and homestead right the same as though she had done so within the year herein provided, when on account of litigation connected with the estate, or the establishment of further claims against the deceased, or any other cause, he deems it proper to do so, and said judge shall in such order limit the time within which the widow shall begin such proceedings. Provided, that in case the administrator shall, after the expiration of the year herein provided and before such order of the court permitting the widow to take her dower, have sold and conveyed real estate of the deceased, the widow's dower and homestead shall be set off to her out of the lands not so conveyed but to the amount and value she was entitled to at the death of her husband, if so much remains unsold. 6th. If the intestate shall leave no wife nor husband nor kindred, his or her estate, as the case may be, shall escheat to the people of this State for the use of the primary school fund. (The above are the provisions of Act. 341, Laws 1917.)

Other provisions are as follows: Issue shall include all lawful lineal descendants. (C. L. § 50, par. 8.) Aliens may acquire by descent. Lands of alien shall descend as if he were a citizen. (C. L. 9258.) Illegitimate children shall be considered as heirs of their mother, and shall inherit her estate, but not, as representing their mother, any estate of her kindred. (C. L. 9065.) The estate of an illegitimate child dying intestate without lawful issue shall descend to his mother, and if she be dead to the relatives of the intestate on the part of the mother, as if the intestate were legitimate. (C. L. 9066.) Subsequent marriage of the parents, or written acknowledgment by the father of the child as his, executed and acknowledged the same as deeds, and recorded in the office of the Judge of probate of the county in which the father is a resident, makes the child legitimate for all purposes. (C. L. 9067.) Degrees of kindred shall be computed according to the rules of the civil law. Kindred of the half blood shall inherit equally with those of whole blood in the same degree, unless the inheritance came to the intestate by descent, devise, or gift from his ancestor; and in such case all not of the blood of such ancestor shall be excluded. (C. L. 9068.) Property given by intestate in his lifetime as advancement shall be deducted on distribution. (C. L. 9069-9074.) Inheritance "by right of representation" takes place when the descendants of a deceased heir take the same share that their parent would take if living. Posthumous children are considered as living at the death of their parents. (C. L. 9076.)

C. L. 9077 provides that whenever any person, adopted by another with intent to make such person heir at law of the adopter, shall die intestate leaving no issue, any real estate possessed by such person at the time of his or her decease, which has come from or through the adopting parent, shall descend to the persons and in the same manner as though such person had been the natural child of the person or persons from or through whom such estate shall have come.

The law for distribution of personal estate is as follows: —

Personal estate not disposed of by will shall be distributed: 1. To the widow all apparel, ornaments, and household furniture, and other property not exceeding two hundred dollars. 2. To the widow and children such allowance out of the personal estate and income of the real estate as the court shall judge necessary for their maintenance. 3. To children under ten years of age, in case of the death or insanity of the mother, an allowance for their maintenance until ten years of age. 4. If the estate does not exceed one hundred and fifty dollars over the above allowances, the whole to the family, after paying charges of funeral and administration. 5. If it shall amount to more than one hundred and fifty dollars it shall be applied first to pay debts. 6. The residue, if any, of personal estate, one third to the widow, and the remaining two thirds to the children or issue of any deceased child or children. If but one child, or the issue of such child living, then one half to the widow and one half to such child or its issue. If no widow or child living, the estate shall be distributed to all his lineal descendants, and if such descendants are in the same degree of kindred, they shall share equally, otherwise by right of representation. If the deceased shall leave a widow and no children, or issue of any deceased child living, the residue, if it shall not exceed three thousand dollars, shall go to the widow. If it exceeds three thousand dollars, one half to the widow and the other one half to the father and mother of the deceased in equal shares. If either parent be deceased, such share shall go to the survivor. If both parents be deceased, such share shall be distributed equally to the brothers and sisters and the lineal descendants of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation. If there shall be neither father nor mother, brother nor sister, nor children of such brother or sister surviving, then the residue shall go to the widow. In any other case the residue of the personal estate shall be distributed in the same proportion and to the same persons and for the same purposes as prescribed for the descent of real estate. 7. In case any femme covert shall die possessed of any personal estate not disposed of by will, the same shall, after payment of the debts, expenses of funeral and administration, be distributed, one third to the husband and two thirds to her children, or the issue of any deceased child or children by right of representation, except that if there be but one child, or the issue of a deceased child surviving, then such residue shall be divided between such husband and such child, or issue of deceased child, in equal proportions. If there be no husband or child of the intestate living at her death, her estate shall be distributed to all her lineal descendants, and if said descendants are in the same degree of kindred, they shall share equally, otherwise by right of representation. If there shall be no child or issue of any deceased child surviving, one half of said residue shall go to the husband and the other half to her father and mother, if living, in equal shares. If either parent be deceased such share shall go to the survivor. If both parents are deceased such share shall be distributed equally to the brothers and sisters and lineal descendants of any deceased brother or sister. If there shall be neither mother nor father, brother nor sister, nor children of such brother or sister surviving, such residue shall go to the husband. In any other case, the residue shall be distributed the same as prescribed for the descent of real estate. (C. L. 1897, § 9322, as amended by Act 331 of 1905.)

With the consent of the proper person she may bind herself as an apprentice until she shall arrive at eighteen unless sooner married, but she does not arrive at her full majority so as to dispose of her property until she arrives at twenty-one years, our statute having made no further changes than as above.

If a testator of personal estate leave a wife, she may have the provision under the will, or, at her option, what she might take under the statute of distribution. If no provision is made for her by will she may take under the statute. If the testator give her anything in lieu of some other thing or interest to which she would be entitled in case of intestacy, the taking of any such bequest or refusal to take it, and the taking instead what the law would allow, does not deprive her of the right to have the remaining dispositions of the will left unimpaired and to have the benefit thereof. The wife's election must be in writing, and filed in probate court within one year after probate of the will.

Divorce.—When either party is sentenced to imprisonment for life in any prison, jail, or house of correction, the marriage between them is thereby absolutely dissolved without any decree of divorce or other process, and no subsequent pardon will restore him or her to conjugal rights. (C. L. 8620.)

A divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed by the circuit court of the county in chancery where the parties or one of them resides, on the application by bill or petition of the aggrieved party in the following cases: 1. When adultery has been committed by husband or wife. 2. When one of the parties was physically incompetent at the time of the marriage. 3. When one of the parties has been sentenced to imprisonment in any prison, jail, or house of correction for three years or more, and no pardon granted to the person so sentenced after a divorce for that cause restores such party to his or her conjugal rights. 4. When either party shall desert the other for the term of two years. 5. When the husband or wife has become an habitual drunkard. 6. And the circuit courts may in their discretion upon application, as in other cases, divorce from the bonds of matrimony any party who is a resident of this State and whose husband or wife shall have obtained a divorce in any other State. (C. L. 8621.)

The courts also have power to divorce from bed and board forever, or for a limited time, for the cause of extreme cruelty, whether from personal violence, desertion, or otherwise, and also on complaint of the wife when the husband is of sufficient ability to provide a suitable maintenance for the wife, but shall grossly or wantonly and cruelly refuse or neglect so to do. (C. L. 8622.) A divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed for either of the causes mentioned in sec. 8622 whenever, in the opinion of the court, the circumstances of the case shall be such that it will be discreet and proper so to do, but no divorce from the bonds of matrimony for either of the causes mentioned in sec. 8622 shall be entered in any case where the same is not asked for in the bill or in a cross-bill, or unless the court hearing the evidence shall deem it for the best interests of the parties to grant a divorce from the bonds of matrimony. (C. L. 8623 as amended 1907, Act 324.)

If persons who are under the age of consent marry and separate during such nonage, and do not cohabit together afterwards, or if the consent of one was obtained through force or fraud, and they shall separate and not voluntarily cohabit afterwards, the marriage is void without any decree of proceeding. (C. L. 8617.)

When the marriage is supposed to be void, or its validity is doubted, suits may be instituted for annulling the same, or in such cases either party claiming the marriage to be legal may institute proceedings to have the same decreed valid. (C. L. 8619.)

In all cases the court has power, both during pendency of the suit or by final decree, to make such order as it shall deem proper for the care, custody, and maintenance of the minor children of the marriage. (C. L. 8630.)

In case of divorce or decree of nullity for any cause, except the adultery of the wife or when the husband has been imprisoned for life, and in cases of divorce from bed and board, the wife takes her real estate as upon the death of the husband, and the court has power to restore to the wife in the above cases the personal property which came to the husband by the marriage, or may award the value thereof in money; and in the preceding cases, or where the divorce is on account of adultery by the husband, and the award above referred to is insufficient for her support and that of the children of the marriage committed to her, the husband may be compelled to pay alimony in addition. (C. L. 8633-8638.)

If the marriage is dissolved because the husband is sentenced to imprisonment for life or for three years or more or by a decree for adultery, or for misconduct or habitual drunkenness, the wife takes dower in his lands, but in no other case. (C. L. 8639.)

No divorce shall be granted unless the complainant shall have resided in the State of Michigan one year immediately preceding the time of commencing suit, or unless the marriage was solemnized in the State of Michigan and the complainant shall have resided in the State from the time of marriage until commencement of suit.

And no decree shall be granted in any case unless one of the following facts exist: First, when the defendant is domiciled in this State when the suit is commenced, or, second, when the defendant shall have been domiciled in this State when the cause for divorce occurred, or third, when the defendant shall be brought in by publication, or shall be personally served in this State with process or order for appearance, or shall voluntarily appear in the suit.

It is further provided, that whenever the cause for divorce occurred out of the State, no decree shall be granted unless the parties, or one of them, shall have resided in this State two years preceding the commencement of the suit, and that no proofs shall be taken in any case until two months from the time of commencing suit, except when the cause for divorce is desertion, or the testimony is taken conditionally to be perpetuated, and that when the defendant in any case shall not be domiciled in this State at the time of commencing suit, or when the cause for divorce arises, complainant must prove that he or she has in good faith resided in the State for two years preceding the commencement of suit, or that the parties lived together in the State. (Laws of 1899, act 210, p. 326, amending C. L. 8624.)

Every bill of complaint shall state the names and ages of all children of the marriage; and when there are children under fourteen years of age a copy of the subpoena shall be served on the prosecuting attorney of the county, and it shall be his duty to enter his appearance, and when in his judgment the interest of the children or the public good requires shall oppose the granting of the divorce; and in any case where there are no children under fourteen, the court may order the prosecuting attorney to appear and oppose the granting of a divorce when it shall appear to the court that the public good so requires. (C. L. 8657 as amended 1909, act 284.) The court granting a divorce may provide in the decree that the party against whom the divorce is granted shall not marry again within such time as shall be fixed by the court, not exceeding two years from the date of the decree; and that in case any person shall marry contrary to such prohibition in any decree, said party shall be deemed guilty of bigamy and subject to the penalty therefor. (C. L. 8658.)

A lien on property for the amount of alimony, or of allowance for education and support of children, may be decreed and the property may be sold thereon, or the court may sequester the property, real and personal, of the husband and appoint a receiver, or execution may issue against the property generally. (C. L. 8640.)

Act 259 of 1909 provides, in § 1, that when any decree of divorce is hereafter granted in any of the courts of this State, it shall be the duty of the court granting such decree to include in it a provision in lieu of the dower of the wife in the property of the husband, and such provision shall be in full satisfaction of all claims that the wife may have in any property which the husband owns or may thereafter own, or in which he may have any interest. And in § 2, that every husband and wife owning real estate as joint tenants or as tenants by entireties, shall, upon being divorced, become tenants in common of such real estate, unless the ownership thereof is otherwise determined by the decree of divorce. And in § 3, that the bill, or answer, or cross-bill filed in any divorce suit may ask that the ownership of the lands described therein, and owned by the parties as joint tenants, or as tenants by entireties, shall be determined by the decree of divorce, if granted, and in such case, the court may award such lands to one or the other of the parties, or any part of it to either, or may order such lands to be sold and the proceeds divided between the parties in such proportion as the court shall order, or may appoint commissioners to partition such lands between said parties in the proportion fixed by the decree, and that the proceedings following the appointment of such commissioners shall conform to the law governing the partition of lands between tenants in common.

By act 52 of 1911 alimony decreed in another State, in all cases in which the party was personally present or served with process within the jurisdiction, may be recovered in an action at law in this State.

Dower — In this State is the use by the widow during her natural life of one third part of all the lands whereof her husband was seized of an estate of inheritance at any time during coverture. (C. L. 8918.) By the amendment of § 9064 by art. 286 P. A. of 1909, the widow is given one third of the lands absolutely. (See Descent of Property.) The effect of that amendment upon the dower allowed by § 8918 has not been construed by the courts.

The widow of every deceased person, who at the time of his death was not domiciled without this State, is entitled to dower, unless she is legally barred thereof. In cases where the husband exchanges an estate of inheritance in lands for other lands, the widow is not entitled to dower in both, but must make her election within one year after the death of her husband, and if such election be not evinced by the commencement of proceedings to recover her dower of the lands given in exchange within that time, she is deemed to have elected to take the lands received in exchange. In cases where a mortgage is given by the husband to secure a part of the purchase price of real estate, the wife takes no dower as against the mortgagee and his representatives, even though she may not join in the mortgage. See Mortgages. Any married woman over eighteen years of age may bar her dower in any estate conveyed or mortgaged by her husband by joining in the conveyance or mortgage and acknowledging the same, and do any other act concerning her right in her husband's lands as if she were twenty-one years of age. (1899, act 187, p. 284.) She may also bar her dower by deed executed by the wife alone to one who has theretofore acquired and then holds the husband's title, provided the intent to bar her right of dower shall be expressed in said deed; also by a jointure settled on her before her marriage with her assent, provided such jointure consists of a freehold estate in lands for her life at least.

If any pecuniary provision is made for the widow in the will of her husband in lieu of dower, she shall elect within one year after his death whether she will take such provision or be endowed anew of his lands. A widow is entitled to remain in the dwelling-house of her husband one year after his death without rent, and to her reasonable sustenance out of his estate for the same time. See Descent of Property and Divorce.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Execution. — Upon all judgments in the circuit courts, execution may issue at once upon filing præcipe with the clerk. In justices' courts execution issues at the request of the party entitled thereto after five days from the rendition of the judgment if the same be not stayed or appealed from. If the suit was begun by attachment, execution may issue at once, and it may also issue at once if the plaintiff make it appear that he will be otherwise in danger of losing the sum recovered. This refers to the ordinary judgments in an action ex contractu. There are a number of cases in justices' courts where execution runs against the body and may issue upon rendition of judgment, — among which are judgments in actions of replevin, trespass, trover, and actions on the case for tort; also in case of fraud or breach of trust when the debt arises on contract or is founded on contracts express or implied, also in actions for money collected by public officers or in any professional employment. The writ is returnable in justices' courts sixty days from the time of issuing it, and in the circuit courts it is returnable in not less than twenty nor more than ninety days. (Laws 1915, Act 314, § 23; and see Laws 1917, Act 215.)

Exemptions. — The laws of this State exempt from sale on execution to every householder a homestead not exceeding forty acres of land and the house thereon, if in the country, or a house and lot in any city or village not exceeding in value fifteen hundred dollars. If it exceeds that amount in value it may be sold, and after paying the judgment debtor the above sum the balance may be taken by the creditor. A married householder cannot sell or incumber such homestead without the consent of his wife.

Of personal property, the laws exempt from sale on execution various articles, such as seats in churches, cemeteries, tombs, and rights of burial, all arms and accoutrements, and all wearing apparel of every person and his family, the library and school-books of every individual and family, not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars, and all family pictures. To each householder, ten sheep and their fleeces, two cows, five swine, and provisions and fuel sufficient to keep such householder and family six months. To each householder, all household goods, furniture, and utensils, not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars in value. The tools, implements, material stock, apparatus, team (either one yoke of oxen, a horse, or pair of horses, as the case may be), vehicle, horses, harness, or other things to enable any person to carry on the profession, trade, occupation, or business in which he is wholly or principally engaged, not exceeding in value two hundred and fifty dollars, and also one sewing-machine; and a sufficient quantity of hay, grain, feed, etc., to keep the animals enumerated for six months. By Act 14, p. 11, S. L. 1885, not found in C. L. only household goods, library pictures, rights in cemeteries, and one cow and provisions, and fuel for one month, not exceeding five hundred dollars in value, are exempt from execution issued on judgment for labor. No lien can be created by mortgage or otherwise on any of the above property, except the two hundred and fifty dollars' worth of tools, implements, etc., used in carrying on profession, etc., without the consent of the wife, if he have one, by signing such mortgage or lien.

None of the property above mentioned, except mechanical tools and implements of husbandry, is exempt from execution on a judgment rendered for the same property.

If a person entitled to the benefit of a homestead shall die, his widow or minor children shall have the same benefit during the time they continue to occupy the same.

Garnishment. — Our statute provides for the commencement of proceedings against garnishees in justices' and in circuit courts respectively, and it is substantially provided with regard to the latter (Act 314, ch. 28, Laws 1915) that in all personal actions founded upon contract, or upon judgment or decree, or when any sum is due on a judgment or decree already rendered in this State, however commenced, if the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall file with the clerk of the court in which such action is commenced or such judgment or decree has been rendered, either at the time of the commencement of the suit or at any time during its progress, or after judgment, an affidavit stating that he has good reason to believe and does believe, that any person has property, money, goods, chattels, credits, or effects in his hands or under his control belonging to the defendant, or that such person is indebted to the principal defendant, whether it be due or not; that the defendant is justly indebted to the plaintiff in a given amount over and above all legal set-offs, and that the plaintiff is justly apprehensive of the loss of the same unless a writ of garnishment issue to the aforesaid person, a writ will be issued summoning him to appear before the court on some day not less than fourteen days from the date of issue, and disclose in writing under oath, and file with the clerk of the court, his liability as charged in the affidavit; and the issuing of such writ is declared to be the commencement of a suit against such garnishee. The proceeding in the justice's court is similar, slight differences appearing only in the practice.

If the defendant is a householder having a family, the garnishment statutes are not applicable to any indebtedness of such garnishee to the defendant for the personal labor of such defendant or his family to the amount of sixty per cent. of such indebtedness, but in no case shall be more than thirty dollars of such indebtedness and in all cases at least eight dollars shall be so exempt; but if the defendant is not a householder having a family the exemption is thirty per cent, or not more than fifteen dollars, and at least four dollars is exempt. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 459.)

Proceedings by garnishment may be commenced by any person who already has judgment against the principal defendant.

It is also provided that when the answer of the garnishee shall declare that another person than the defendant claims the indebtedness of property in his hands, or any part thereof, and the name and residence of such claimant, if residing within the county, or in an adjoining county, or without the State, the court may on motion order that such claimant be interpleaded as a defendant to the garnishee proceedings, and that notice thereof in such form as the court shall direct be served upon him, and after such service the garnishee may pay the amount of his indebtedness or deliver the property in his hands to the clerk of the court, and the same shall be a complete discharge from all liability to any party for the amount so paid or the property so delivered. An issue shall thereupon be formed for the trial of the rights of the parties and judgment entered. If the claimant shall fail to answer, judgment shall pass against him by default.

Act 314, ch. 28, Laws 1915, provides that all corporations, foreign, domestic, municipal or otherwise except counties, may be proceeded against as garnishees with certain restrictions as to municipal corporations.

Inheritance Taxes. — The legislature of 1899 imposed the first tax on inheritance in this State. In 1903 the legislature amended every section of the act of 1899 but one, and amendments to the law are still being made by successive legislatures, the last being Acts 195 and 198, Public Acts of 1915. The principal features of the law as it stands to-day are as follows: The law imposes a tax upon the transfer of any property, real or personal, of the value of one hundred dollars or over, or of any interest therein, or income therefrom, in trust or otherwise, to persons or corporations not exempt from taxation by law in the following cases: (1) Where the transfer is by a will or by the intestate laws of this State from any person dying seized or possessed of property while a resident of this State. (2) Where the transfer is of any property within the State when the decedent was a non-resident of the State at the time of his death. (3) Where the transfer is of property by a resident or by a non-resident when such non-resident's property is within this State, by deed, grant, bargain, sale, or gift, made in contemplation of the death of the grantor, vendor, or donor, or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after such death. Such tax is at the rate of five per cent. of the clear market value of such property, except that when the property passes to or for the use of (a) mother, father, grandmother, grandfather; (b) husband; (c) child, wife, or widow of a son, or the husband of a daughter; (d) brother or sister; (e) any person to whom the decedent, grantor, donor, or vendor stood in mutually acknowledged relation of a parent (provided, however, that such relation begun at or before the child's seventeenth birthday, and continued until the death of the decedent, grantor, donor, or vendor); (f) any lineal descendant. Such transfer is not taxable unless it is personal property of a clear market value of two thousand dollars or over, in which case the entire transfer is taxed at the rate of one per cent. upon the clear market value; and when the transfer is to (g) wife, such transfer of property is not taxable unless it is personal property of a clear market value of five thousand dollars or over, in which case the entire transfer is taxed at the rate of one per cent. upon the clear market value thereof. All the exemptions above noted apply and are granted to each beneficiary's interest, and not to the entire estate of a decedent. All taxes thus imposed accrue and become due and payable at the time of the transfer, which is the date of the death, except that when the transfer depends upon the happening of some contingency or future event, by reason of which the clear market value cannot at that time be determined, the tax is payable when the person entitled to the estate comes into actual possession of it. The tax is a lien upon the property transferred until paid, and the person to whom it is transferred, as well as the executor, administrator, or trustee of any such estate so transferred, is personally liable for the tax until its payment. If a foreign executor, administrator, or trustee shall assign or convey any stock or obligation in this State standing in the name of a decedent, or in trust for a decedent, liable to any such tax, the tax shall be paid to the treasurer of the proper county on the transfer thereof. Our statutes allow a discount if the tax is paid within a year. After eighteen months a penalty is charged. The amount of the tax is determined by the probate office, upon petition filed, and the commissioner of insurance is directed, upon the application of any judge of probate or the auditor-general, to determine the value of any future or contingent estate.

Insolvent Laws. — The statutes (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 302) provide for assignments for the benefit of creditors.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest is five per cent. per annum, but it is competent for parties to contract in writing for a higher rate not exceeding seven per cent. (Laws 1899, Act 207, p. 323.)

The penalty for taking usurious interest is a forfeiture of all interest.

A bona fide purchaser of negotiable paper is not affected by its being usurious.

The rate of interest on judgments is the same as that which the instrument upon which such judgment is founded drew. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 160.) In case an installment of interest becomes due and remains unpaid, interest at the same rate as upon the original contract may be computed upon such installment from the date of its maturity until paid.

Judgment and its Effects. — In courts of record suits may be begun by a declaration, and in such case the defendant is required to plead within fifteen days after service, and, in case he fails to do so, his default may be entered, and judgment obtained after four days in term. In justices' courts, if the defendant makes default judgment may be obtained on the return day of the process. In courts of record an attorney fee is included in the judgment as a part of the costs, but in justices' courts this is not permitted except in the single case of a female plaintiff suing to recover for work, labor, or service performed.

Judgments have no effect upon the property of the judgment debtor until execution has been issued thereon, and a levy made by the proper officer. It will therefore be seen that judgments first obtained have no priority unless followed by issue and levy of execution.

In the circuit courts execution may issue at once upon the judgment.

The judgment of a court of record of other States is proved by a transcript of the same with the attestation of the clerk and the seal of the court annexed, and a certificate of the judge that the attestation is in due form.

The official certificate of a justice of the peace of another State, of a judgment in any case before him, with the certificate of the clerk of any court of record in the county where such justice has executed this office, attested by his official seal, setting forth that the signature to the certificate of the justice is genuine, and that he was such justice at the date of such judgment, shall be sufficient evidence of such judgment. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 100.)

License. — It is not necessary for commercial travelers to take out a license. Some years ago there was a law passed compelling non-resident liquor sellers to do so. It still stands unrepealed, but the supreme court of the United States has declared it unconstitutional. (Walling v. Michigan, 116. U. S. 446.)

Act 302, Public Acts of 1915, provides for the registration and licensing of motor vehicles operated upon the public highways of this State. The act provides that the amount paid for the license shall be upon a sliding scale, which in turn is based upon the horse-power of the machine. The act further provides for the registration and licensing of chauffeurs, and, in general, the operation of vehicles. The above act makes exceptions in favor of non-resident owners where such owners shall have complied with the provisions of the law of the State of his residence relating to motor vehicles and the operation thereof; but it is provided further that such non-resident shall not be exempt from the foregoing requirements unless the State of his residence extends similar privileges to motor vehicles registered under the laws of this State, nor, in any case, for a continuous residence in this State for more than ninety days. The exemptions, however, do not extend to non-resident corporations doing business within this State.

Liens. — See Mechanics' Lien Law.

Limitations. — Real Actions. — Actions for the recovery or possession of any lands must be brought as follows: First, within five years where the defendant claims title through some deed made upon a sale by an executor, administrator, or guardian, or by a sheriff or other proper ministerial officer under the order, judgment, decree, or process of a court, or legal tribunal of competent jurisdiction within the State, or by sheriff under statutory foreclosure of mortgage, or through a devise in any will which shall have been probated in this State for fifteen years, during which period no suit in chancery has been brought to test the validity of such devise: provided, that in cases where such fifteen year period has already elapsed, such rights of entry or action shall be barred after two years from the passage hereof. (May 1, 1911.) Or in case such right has not accrued, then after two years from the accruing thereof. Second, within ten years where the defendant claims title under a deed made by some officer of this State or of the United States authorized to make deeds upon the sale of lands for taxes assessed and levied within this State. Third, within fifteen years in other cases. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 57.)

Personal Actions. — All actions in this State shall be commenced within six years next after the causes of action shall accrue except as follows: (a) Actions founded upon judgments or decrees rendered in any court of record of the United States or this State, or some other of the United States, and actions founded upon bonds of public officers, upon covenants in deeds and mortgages of real estate, may be brought at any time within ten years from the rendition of such judgment or the time when the cause of action accrued on such bond or covenant. (b) Actions to recover damages for injury to personal property shall be brought within three years from the time of the accrual of the action. (c) Actions against sheriffs or their deputies, actions for trespass upon lands, for assault and battery, for false imprisonment, for malicious prosecution, for libel or slander, for malpractice of physicians, all actions for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture of any penal statute brought in the name of the people of this State, and actions brought to charge any surety for costs, or on any bond given on appeal from any court in the State, shall be brought within two years from the time the cause of action accrues. (d) Actions brought to charge any surety upon the bond of an executor or administrator or guardian may be brought within four years after the discharge of such executor, administrator, or guardian. It is provided, however, that if any person is entitled to bring any of the above-mentioned actions and, at the time when the action accrues, is within the age of twenty-one years, or insane, such person may bring the action within the times above limited after the disability shall be removed. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 59.)

Between persons having mutual accounts the statute begins to run from the entry of the last item of the account.

The statute of limitation is suspended by the absence of the defendant from the State. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 60.)

A recent statute provides that all the debts and obligations contracted by a person during his lifetime, or for which his estate has become liable, shall be barred after ten years from the date of his death, unless presented to the probate court in accordance with its rules of practice, or unless sooner barred by law, notwithstanding that no proceedings shall have been taken to probate such estate. (Act 256, Public Acts of 1915.)

We have no statute fixing the time within which claims must be filed with an assignee under the insolvent act. It probably, however, may be done at any time before the estate is closed. No acknowledgment or promise shall be evidence of a continuing contract to take a case out of the provisions of the chapter unless in writing signed by the party to be charged. (C. L. § 9740.) Such promise by one joint contractor shall not bind the others. (§§ 9741-9743.) Nothing in the four preceding sections shall lessen the effect of a payment of principal or interest against the party making it. (§ 9744.)

Married Women. — The real and personal estate which may have been acquired by any female before marriage through any source or by any means whatever, and all that she may acquire afterwards of any kind or from any source, shall continue her sole property the same as if unmarried, and shall not be liable for any of her husband's debts or undertakings, and may be sold, conveyed, incumbered, or otherwise disposed of by her the same as if sold.

Under these statutes she may carry on business in her own name, may deal directly with her husband; she may make contracts in her own name, buy goods, give notes in settlement of purchases, etc., binding her own separate property, real and personal; and it would seem that all common law disabilities have been removed, except that in becoming surety for her husband or other third persons she does not bind her separate property.

At common law the wife could contract with her husband in a limited way, and such contracts would be enforced in equity. It has been held that under our statutes the wife's right to contract with the husband is no broader than at common law, but where such contract is legal in form it may now be enforced by or against the wife at law where without the statute a resort must have been had to equity. }

The husband is not liable for the contracts of his wife in relation to her sole property, nor does he hold her lands or any part thereof after her death as tenant by the curtesy or otherwise.

When judgment shall be rendered against husband and wife for a tort or wrong done by the wife, execution shall issue against her property alone, nor shall his property be liable to pay any such judgment, nor can he be imprisoned on any such judgment. (C. L. 10352.)

A wife's separate property would probably not be bound for the husband's debts, even though contracted for the support of herself or family; but she could bind her property for necessities in the support of herself and family, should she choose to contract therefor in her own name.

Though a married woman may contract "with the like effect as if unmarried," and the dealings of an unmarried woman are in the same legal position as those of a man, a married woman has no general capacity to contract, and can only make such contracts as relate to her own property and become personally liable only on account of her own matters; but she may bind herself and become liable with her husband upon any written instrument so as to subject real estate held by entirety to the payment of a judgment rendered thereon. (Laws 1917, p. 287.) She may give a mortgage on her separate property for another's debt, because in that case she expressly pledges it. Therefore when it is desired to fix the responsibility of a married woman for the payment of a debt not contracted by her in respect to her own property, she should be required to give a specific pledge, such as a mortgage or other lien. Her homestead rights are retained, and also her rights of dower in her husband's lands. See Deeds.

The capacity to make contracts (except of marriage) is fixed by the common law, as respects age, — twenty-one years being lawful age.

Every married woman shall be entitled to hold and dispose of all her earnings and to contract respecting the same. (Act 196 of 1911.)

Mechanics' Lien Law. — The statute allows a lien in favor of contractors, sub-contractors, material-men, and laborers furnishing any materials or furnishing or performing any labor for building, altering, improving, repairing, erecting, ornamenting, or putting in any house, building, machinery, wharf or structure, excavation, foundation, cellar or basement or sidewalk, under any contract, express or implied, written or unwritten, with the owner, part owner or lessee of any real estate, upon the building or other structure and upon the interest of the contracting owner, part owner, or lessee in the land upon which the same is constructed. To perfect the lien notice must be given to the owner or lessee within thirty days after the beginning of the work or delivery of materials. (§ 1.) A statement must be filed with the register of deeds in the form prescribed within sixty days from the date on which the last of the materials are furnished or labor performed and copy served on the owner or lessee. (§ 5.) Proceedings to enforce such lien and for the sale of the land to satisfy the same shall be by bill in chancery. (§ 10 as amended 1913, Act 394, p. 751.)

(C. L. §§ 10710-10742 in ch. 296, as amended by Act 17 of 1903 amending § 10738, and Act 121 of 1909 amending § 10710.)

Mortgages. — In this State a mortgage cannot be construed as containing an implied covenant to pay; and when no express covenant to pay is contained in it, and no note or other personal obligation accompanies it, the land mentioned in the mortgage is the only remedy.

A widow takes no dower as against a mortgagee or those claiming under him in lands mortgaged by her husband before marriage, nor as against a mortgagee for the purchase price of the same premises. Mortgages should be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the land lies, and, if not so recorded, are void as against any subsequent purchaser of the same premises for a valuable consideration whose conveyance shall be first duly recorded. Before recording, the mortgage tax of one half of one per cent. of the sum secured must be paid.

The record, or a certified copy thereof, may be read in evidence in any court within this State, without further proof.

A foreclosure may be had either in chancery or by advertisement under the power of sale. By the latter proceeding, a notice of the sale must be published in some paper in the county where the lands are situated for three months before the sale, and the deed obtained on the sale does not become operative until one year from its date, during which time the lands may be redeemed by payment of the sum for which they sold, with interest. If a foreclosure is had in equity, a decree may be had to sell at any time after six months from filing the bill. Such sale takes place after six weeks' published notice. The land may be redeemed within six months after sale. (Laws 1899, Act 200, p. 310, amending C. L. §§ 516 and 523.)

The supreme court has held that no attorney fee agreed upon by the parties in the mortgage is collectible. (C. L. 11152 provides for attorney's fee in case of statutory foreclosures as follows: not over five hundred dollars, fifteen dollars; over five hundred dollars, and not over one thousand dollars, twenty-five dollars; over one thousand dollars, thirty-five dollars.

Mortgages may be discharged by the mortgagee, his personal representative, or his assignee, by a written acknowledgment on the margin of the record, in presence of the register, or by a written certificate by either of the same parties; but the certificate must be executed the same as the mortgage, so as to entitle it to record. This certificate is recorded at length by the register of deeds.

Act 197, Public Acts of 1915, provides for cancellation of certain mortgages by process of law after fifteen years have elapsed since the debt secured by such mortgage became due or payable, or since the last payment has been made thereon.

Taxation of mortgages, see Taxes.

Negotiable Instruments. — By Act 265, of 1905 pp. 389–413, there was enacted into the statutes the "Negotiable Instruments Law" based upon and largely copied from the English Bills of Exchange Act, a codification of the law of England as to bills of exchange, promissory notes, and checks enacted by Parliament in 1882, as drafted by a committee appointed in August, 1895, at a meeting of the National Conference of State Boards of Commissioners for promoting uniformity of legislation, and submitted to the conference in August, 1896, and agreed upon for recommendation to the legislatures of the States. It has been enacted in most of the States, in some cases with modifications. In Brannan's "Negotiable Instruments Law," published by the Harvard Law Review Association 1908, is a copy of the act as recommended by the committee and references to many decisions upon the act and upon the English Bills of Exchange Act. A synopsis of the subjects covered is as follows: Definition of words used in the act (§ 2). Title I. Negotiable Instruments in General, sections 3 to 127. Article i., form and interpretation; article ii., consideration; article iii., negotiation; article iv., rights of the holder; article v., liabilities of parties; article vi., presentment for payment; article vii., notice of dishonor; article viii., discharge of negotiable instruments. Title II. Bills of Exchange, sections 128 to 185. Article i., form and interpretation; article ii., acceptance; article iii., presentment for acceptance; article iv., protest; article v., acceptance for honor; article vi., payment for honor; article vii., bills in a set. Title III. Promissory Notes and Checks, sections 186 to 192. Days of Grace, section 87, provides that every negotiable instrument is payable at the time fixed therein without grace. That when the day of maturity falls upon a Sunday or a holiday, the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day. See Notes and Bills of Exchange.

Notaries Public. — The statute C. L. 2629 provides that the governor may appoint one or more persons notaries public in each county of this State who shall hold office for four years from the date of appointment unless sooner removed by the governor. No person shall be eligible to appointment unless he or she shall at the time be twenty-one years of age and a resident of the county and a citizen of the State. Every person so appointed must before entering upon the duties of the office, and within ninety days after the appointment, file the constitutional oath of office, together with a bond to the people of the State with one or more sureties in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of the office. A notarial seal is not required by law. A notary appointed for one county may perform official acts in any county in State. The county clerk of the county certifies the official character.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — All notes and obligations drawn payable to the order of A. B. or to bearer are negotiable like inland bills of exchange, according to the custom of merchants. No person can be charged with an acceptance of a bill of exchange unless in writing. Days of grace which were formerly allowed by the law are abolished by the negotiable instrument act of 1905 referred to above and all negotiable instruments are payable at the time fixed therein without grace.

The assignee of the note, etc., may sue in his own name. The law with reference to defenses against the note by the maker is the same as laid down in the various American text-writers on notes and bills. By statute the maker, indorser, and guarantor of the payment of a note may be sued jointly. See Actions. There is no special form of note in use.

A statute of this State, which requires all notes given for a patent right to be so indorsed, has been held void; the court saying "any attempt to discriminate against rights regulated by congressional authority is invalid."

All checks, bills of exchange, or drafts drawn on any bank are payable without grace, and it is not necessary to protest the same for non-acceptance. In all other cases demand, protest for non-payment, and the sending notices of protest to the indorser, just as in the law merchant, at his reputed place of business or residence, are necessary to bind the indorser.

Whenever any bill of exchange, drawn or indorsed within this State and payable at any place without this State, but within the United States, is protested for non-acceptance or non-payment, the party liable for the contents of such bill must not only pay the same at the current rate of exchange, together with interest, but must also pay damages upon bills payable in Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and New York of three per cent. on the contents of the bill; if payable in Missouri, Kentucky, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and District of Columbia, five per cent.; and in any other of the United States or Territories, ten per cent.

The guaranty of the payment or collection of any promissory note is negotiable and passes to the holder of the note, whether indorsed thereon or written upon a separate paper, by assignment of the note merely.

Judgment notes are not allowed. See Actions; Negotiable Instruments.

Partnerships. — Act 164 of 1913, p. 285, provides that no persons shall be engaged in carrying on any business as copartners unless they shall first make and file with the county clerk of the county in which the copartnership business is located a certificate in writing signed by each and verified by the affidavit of one of the members setting forth the full name and residence of each person composing the copartnership, the name of the firm, the length of time for which it is to continue, if limited by the partnership contract, and the locality of their place of business, and that if there shall be at any time any change in the name of the firm or in the time of its existence a new certificate so verified shall be filed, and until the same shall be filed the individual members as shown in the first certificate shall be liable for all the debts and obligations of the firm. A penalty of fine not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, or both, is imposed upon any persons carrying on business who shall fail to comply with the act. The Uniform Partnership Act is in force in this State. (Act 72, Laws 1917.)

Practice. — This State is a common-law State, both in all matters of substantive and adjective law. The legislature of 1915, by Act 314, passed a law providing for the present practice, which is based substantially upon the old common-law pleadings, with however many modifications.

Proof of Claims. — See Actions; Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons; Assignments.

Records. — Every conveyance of real estate within this State, which shall not be recorded according to the provisions of the statute, is void as against any subsequent purchaser in good faith and for a valuable consideration of the same premises, or any portion thereof, whose conveyance is first duly recorded. (C. L. 8988.)

Redemption. — After a sale of real estate upon execution one year is given for redemption, and the whole or any distinct lot, tract, or portion that may have been separately sold may be redeemed by a payment to the purchaser, his personal representatives or assigns, or to the officer who made the sale, or to the register of deeds in whose office the certificate of sale is recorded, of the amount for which such lot or parcel was sold, with interest on that sum from the time of sale at the rate borne by the judgment. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 174.)

The above right is confined to the execution debtor, his devisee, if dead, or, if not devised, his executor or administrator, the grantee who has absolute deed, and the grantee of the defendant in execution, in the order named. In case the persons entitled to redeem shall omit to do so within the year, then any subsequent execution creditor under judgment at law or decree who has an actual levy, or a lien without levy, may during three months after the year redeem from the prior execution sale. Any lot or parcel separately sold may be redeemed. If the first creditor should redeem, a second creditor may redeem from the first, and so any subsequent creditor having a levy or lien may redeem from the prior. But of course in making such redemption he must pay not only the original bid, but the amount of all execution levies or liens that precede him.

In case of sale under the power of sale contained in a mortgage by advertisement, one year is given for redemption to the mortgagor, his heirs, executors, or administrators, or any person lawfully claiming from or under him or them, by a payment of the sum bid, with interest at the rate drawn by the mortgage.

Replevin. — Whenever any goods or chattels shall have been unlawfully taken or unlawfully detained, an action of replevin may be brought for the recovery thereof, and for the recovery of the damages sustained by such taking or detention; but no action shall lie for the recovery of any property taken by virtue of any tax, assessment, or fine in pursuance of any statute of this State, nor at the suit of any defendant in execution or attachment to recover goods or chattels seized by virtue thereof, unless such property is exempted by law from such execution or attachment; nor at the suit of any other person, unless he shall at the time have a right to reduce into his possession the goods taken or detained. The action is commenced by original writ, and is based upon affidavit. (Justices' courts, (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 452); circuit courts, Act 314, ch. 27, Laws 1915.)

A writ of replevin is executed by the officer seizing the property and having it appraised, but before delivering it to the plaintiff, the latter, or some one in his behalf, shall execute a bond to the officer to be approved by him in a penalty not less than one hundred dollars and at least double the appraised value of the property, conditioned that the plaintiff will prosecute the suit to effect, and if judgment be rendered against him he will return the property, if adjudged so to do, and will pay the defendant all the damages which may be recovered against him. In case of failure to deliver such bond within twenty-four hours, the officer returns the property to the person from whom he took it. If upon the trial the defendant should be found entitled to the return of the property, he may instead take a judgment for its value, or for the special interest which he had in it, if such interest was less than the ownership.

In justice's court a bond is required to be filed with the justice before the writ issues, with sureties to be approved by him and payable to the defendant in a penalty at least double the value of the property as sworn to in the affidavit for the writ, and not less than one hundred dollars. The condition is the same as that given above. The sureties must justify their responsibility upon oath and indorse the same upon the bond. The justice has no jurisdiction to issue the writ without the bond having been filed. But a defective bond may afterwards be amended. The defendant may give a like bond and have the property returned to him.

Reports, Judicial. — The Reports of the State are of cases decided in the court of chancery and in the supreme court. Harrington's Chancery, 1 vol., Walker's Chancery, 1 vol., are reports of cases decided in the court of chancery from 1836 to 1845. The office of chancellor was abolished by the Constitution of 1850. Reports of cases in the supreme court commenced in 1843, and are contained in the following volumes: Douglass Reports, vols. 1 and 2, 1843-1847; Michigan Reports, vols. 1 to 195. These Reports are being continued. A complete digest of the Reports has been issued, 1908, covering the Reports to 149 Mich., and supplements, to reports handed down January, 1918.

Revision. — See Statutes.

Sales. — Of Chattels. It is provided by statute that no contract for the sale of any goods for fifty dollars or more shall be valid unless the purchaser shall accept and receive part of the goods, or shall pay something, or unless a memorandum of the bargain be made and signed by the party to be charged thereby, or by some person by him duly authorized (C. L. 9514), and that every sale of goods and every assignment of goods by way of security or upon any condition, unless accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by an actual and continued change of possession, shall be presumed to be fraudulent and void as against the creditors of the vendor or assignor or subsequent purchasers in good faith, and shall be conclusive evidence of fraud unless it shall be made to appear that the same was made in good faith and without intent to defraud such creditors or purchasers. (C. L. 9520.)

The owner of a chattel has a right to sell it conditionally, and, though delivering possession, to retain absolute title until condition performed, and a bona fide purchaser from the vendee gets no title. (11 Mich. 65.) On the other hand, a vendee may take possession of property sold upon condition that it will do certain work or stand certain tests, etc., and he will not be chargeable until trial and acceptance. (85 Mich. 202; 50 Mich. 59.) If to be to the buyer's satisfaction, he has the right to reject it peremptorily (68 Mich. 101), but the legislature of 1915, by act 64, provided that whenever any personal property is sold and delivered to any person, firm, or corporation regularly engaged, or about to engage, in the business of buying and selling such personal property, with the condition affixed to the sale that the title thereto is to remain in the vendor of such personal property until the purchase price thereof shall have been paid, with the agreement, expressed or implied, that same may be resold, every such conditional sale, in order for the reservation of title to be valid, except as between the vendor and vendee, shall be evidenced in writing, and the written contract of every such conditional sale, or a true copy thereof, shall be filed and discharged in the same manner as chattel mortgages are filed and discharged.

Act 223 of 1905 declares that a sale or assignment, in bulk, of any part or the whole of a stock of merchandise and fixtures, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade and business, shall be void as against the creditors of the seller or assignor, unless the seller and purchaser shall, at least five days before the sale, make a full inventory giving the cost price to the seller; and unless the purchaser shall demand a list of creditors of the seller and notify them personally or by registered mail at least five days before taking possession of the merchandise sold of the proposed sale, and the price, terms, and conditions thereof. Any purchaser who shall not conform to the act shall, on application of the creditors, become a receiver and be held accountable to the creditors for the goods, wares, merchandise, and fixtures that have come into his possession by virtue of the sale. This act has been sustained by the supreme court, 145 Mich. 721; 151 Mich. 478.

Sales of Goods.— The legislature of 1913, by Act 100, pp. 148-172, enacted "an act to make uniform the law of sales of goods." It prescribes the formalities and terms of the contracts, transfer of the property and title, performance of the contract, rights of unpaid sellers against the goods and their lien, stoppage in transitu, resale, rescission, actions for breach of the contract and interpretation.

Sales of stocks, bonds, and other securities: The legislature of 1915, by Act 46, enacted a so-called "Blue Sky Law," which has been held constitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States. The act creates the Michigan securities commission, which is to consist of the commissioner of the state banking department, the state treasurer, and the attorney-general. Sec. 2: Every person, corporation, or partnership organized in the State which shall, by themselves, or through agents, sell or negotiate for the sale of any stocks, bonds, or other securities issued by them within this State, is known as a domestic investment company. Those of other States are known as foreign investment companies. Sec. 3: "The provisions of this act shall not apply to (a) securities of the United States, or any foreign Government, or of any State or Territory thereof, or of any county, city, township, district, or other public taxing sub-division of any State or Territory of the United States, or any foreign Government; (b) unsecured commercial paper; (c) securities of public or quasi-public corporations, the issue of which securities are regulated by the Michigan railroad commission or by a public service commission or board of equal authority of any State or Territory of the United States or securities senior thereto; (d) securities of State or national banks or trust companies or building and loan associations of this State; (e) securities of any domestic corporation organized without capital stock and not for pecuniary gain, or exclusively for educational, benevolent, charitable, or reformatory purposes; (f) mortgages upon real and personal property situated within this State where the entire mortgage is sold and transferred with the note or notes secured by such mortgages; (g) increase of stock sold and issued to stockholders, also stock dividends; (h) securities which are listed in any standard manual of information approved by said commission: Provided, however, that said commission shall have the power to call for additional and further information than that contained in such manuals with reference to any securities listed therein, and may, pending the filing of such information, suspend the sale of such securities, and also suspend, either temporarily or permanently, the sale of any securities listed in such manuals after a hearing upon notice to the issuer of such securities if said commission shall find that the sale of such securities would work a fraud upon the purchasers thereof; (i) all stocks, bonds, and securities approved by the Michigan securities commission created by act 143 of the Public Acts of 1913." Sec. 4: "Before selling, offering for sale, taking subscriptions for, or negotiating for the sale in any manner whatever in this State, any stocks, bonds, or other securities of its own issue, every investment company, domestic or foreign, shall file in the office of the commission a statement showing in full detail the plan upon which it proposes to transact business; a copy of all contracts, stocks, bonds, or other instruments which it proposes to make with, or sell to, its contributors or customers, together with a copy of its prospectus, and of the proposed advertisements of its sale of stocks, bonds, or other securities, which statement shall also show the name and location and main office of the investment company; the names and addresses of its officers, and an itemized account of its financial condition and the amount of its assets and liabilities, and such other information touching its conditions and affairs as the commission may require. If such investment company shall be a copartnership or an unincorporated association, it shall also file with the commission a copy of its articles of copartnership or association, and all other papers pertaining to its organization. If it be a corporation organized under the laws of Michigan, it shall also file with the commission a copy of its articles of incorporation, constitution, and by-laws, and all other papers pertaining to its organization. If it shall be an investment company organized under the laws of any other State, Territory, or Government, incorporated or unincorporated, it shall also file with the commission a copy of the laws of the State, Territory, or Government under which it exists or is incorporated, and also a copy of its charter and the certificate of the proper officer of such State showing that it is authorized to transact business there; and also copies of its constitution and by-laws, and all amendments of any of the above-mentioned instruments which have been made, and all other papers pertaining to its organization. It shall also pay a filing fee of one tenth of one per cent. upon the face value of the securities for the sale of which application is made: Provided, however, that such filing fee shall not be more than one hundred dollars, nor less than ten dollars." The above papers must be verified by the oath of a member of the company. The commission shall have power to demand of any investment company who comes under the provisions of the act any further information that the said commission shall deem necessary to put itself into possession of all the facts and information necessary to qualify it to properly pass upon all questions that may come before it. The commission may cause an appraisal to be made of the property of any investment company, and the said commission may withhold its license to sell such stock, bonds, or securities, if the corporation has issued its stocks, bonds or securities in payment for property and intangible assets in excess of their value as found by the said commission.

Dealers. — Any person, firm, etc., not the issuer, who shall in this State sell or offer for sale any of the stocks or other securities issued by any foreign or domestic investment company except securities specifically exempted in this act, shall be deemed to be a dealer in such securities within the meaning of this act, and no such dealer shall sell or offer for sale any such securities unless he shall have filed a list of the same in the office of the Michigan securities commission. Such dealer must first register with the securities commission, and shall furnish them, under oath, practically any information the said commission shall desire.

By § 14 it is provided that it shall be unlawful for any investment company or dealer, or representatives, to sell or cause to be sold, or take subscriptions for, any stocks, bonds, or other securities except those exempted by the act, unless and until the said commission has approved thereof and issued a certificate in accordance with the provisions of the act, and no investment company or dealer shall offer for sale within the State any of the stocks, etc., issued by any investment company unless such company or dealer shall have listed such stocks, etc. A penalty is provided for the violation of the act.

Service. — Process in chancery cases requiring the defendant to appear may be served in any part of the State. Summons and other writs in actions at law can be served only in the county. In suits at law in circuit courts against joint defendants service may be made in other counties after service on one in the county. Judgment, except in certain proceedings against property, can be had only after personal service.

Statutes. — The last revision was in 1846. The Constitution now forbids any revision, and provides for the compilation from time to time of general statutes in force. The last compilation is the "Compiled Laws 1897," which includes all general laws to the year 1897 inclusive. Later laws are Public Acts 1899, 1901, 1903, 1905, 1907, 1909, 1911, 1913, 1915, and 1917, and special sessions 1898 (April), 1899-1900 (December and January), 1900 (October), 1907 (October), 1912 (two sessions). There are also local acts. The legislature at its session of (1915), by act 232, provided for the completion, printing, binding, and distribution and sale of a new compilation of laws of this State, to be known as Compiled Laws of 1915. This is now being published.

Stay of Execution. — Execution may be stayed in justices' courts by a party against whom the judgment is rendered, for the space of four months when the amount shall not exceed fifty dollars, exclusive of costs, and for a period of six months when the amount exceeds fifty dollars, exclusive of costs, and the time to be computed from commencement of suit. Judgment is stayed by filing with the justice security with sufficient sureties for the payment of the judgment, costs, and interest at the expiration of the above time. There are, however, a number of cases in which no stay is permitted other than those referred to under title Execution, but they are probably of no interest except in a local way.

A writ of error does not operate as a stay unless a bond be given, as provided by the statute. By ch. 22, Act 314, Laws 1915, it is provided that no stay of proceedings upon any judgment shall be granted by any circuit court for a longer period than twenty days, unless the party in whose favor such stay is granted shall give bond, as provided by the act.

Supplementary Proceedings. — When an execution against the property of a judgment debtor shall be returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, the judgment creditor may obtain an order requiring the judgment debtor to appear and make discovery on oath concerning his property or debts due him at a time and place specified in the order. Witnesses may be required to appear and testify in the same manner as upon a trial in the circuit courts. Upon affidavit showing to the satisfaction of the court that any person has property of the judgment debtor, or is indebted to him, an order may be issued requiring such person to appear and be examined on oath concerning the same. The judge may order any property of the judgment debtor not exempt from execution in the hands of either himself or any other person, or any property, debt, or demand due or to become due to the judgment debtor and not exempt as aforesaid, to be applied on execution towards the satisfaction of the judgment, or he may order any such property to be made liable to and sold on any execution issued or to be issued on the judgment. The judge may also by an order appoint a receiver of the property of the judgment debtor with like powers as receivers in equity. The court may by an order forbid a transfer of the property of the judgment debtor, and any interference therewith, and such order has the effect of an injunction from a court of equity. If it appear that the persons brought before the court by the judgment creditor claim an interest adverse to him in the property of the judgment debtor, such interest shall be recovered only in an action by the receiver, but only on the request of the judgment creditor and at his expense. (Ch. 34, Act 314, Laws 1915.)

Taxes. — Taxes in this State are general and specific. General taxes are levied for the ordinary expenses and obligations of the State and of counties and cities, villages and towns. There are also local assessments for local improvements, such as highways, paving, drains, etc. Specific taxes, upon capital stock or earnings, are paid by certain corporations. General taxes are levied upon the real and personal property in the State, the property of companies paying specific taxes being exempt.

Act 206, Laws of 1893, as amended in 1895-1897, C. L. ch. 98, § 3824 et seq. and amendments in 1899-1903 and 1915, is the general law now in force for the assessment of property and the levy and collection of taxes. The assessor in the spring makes a list of the taxable property in his district and appraises it. The assessment is made on the second Monday in April each year. Statements by owners of property are made of that date to local assessing officers. State, county, and school taxes are payable December 1 in each year. Lands are returned delinquent March 1 the following year. City and village taxes are assessed and are payable and lands returned delinquent under local charters. Lands and personal property are on the same rolls. This assessment roll must be made on or before the third Monday in May. Immediately a board of review meets and hears appeals and may correct the roll. Taxes are levied and spread in the fall except city and village taxes which are under local charters. Taxes are a lien on lands and personal property. Lands upon which taxes remain unpaid are returned and sold.

The provisions in the law of 1891 (Act 200) taxing mortgage interests as real estate are repealed by this law of 1893.

Tax on Inheritances. — See Inheritance Taxes.

Taxation of Foreign Corporations. — There is no tax on foreign corporations especially. Property of such corporations situate within the State may be taxed, and they must pay the franchise fee imposed on all corporations. See Corporations.

Taxation of Mortgages. — Act 91 of 1911 provides that a tax of fifty cents for each one hundred dollars and each remaining major fraction thereof of the principal debt or obligation which is secured by a mortgage upon real property recorded on or after the first day of January, 1912, is imposed on each such mortgage (§ 2), to be paid when the mortgage shall be filed for record and before it can be recorded. (§ 3.) The owner of any mortgage recorded before the act takes effect may present to the county treasurer of the county in which the property is situated an affidavit setting forth the mortgage, the place of record, and the amount of principal secured and unpaid, and pay a like tax of one half of one per cent. upon such amount. Mortgages given prior to January 1, 1912, on which the tax provided for in this act shall not be paid, shall remain under the present ad valorem system of taxation. (§ 6.) The word "mortgage" used herein shall include every mortgage or other instrument by which a lien is created upon real property, including executory contracts for the sale of real property and deeds or other instruments given to secure the payment of debts. For the purposes of this act all indebtedness secured by liens upon real property shall constitute that class of credit upon which this act imposes a specific tax. (1 §.)

Remark. — This act makes a radical change in the taxation of mortgages. Heretofore they have been assessed as credits upon local assessment rolls. The specific tax here provided for will be in lieu of all other taxes.

Taxes on Bonds secured by Mortgage. — Act 139 of 1913, p. 240, provides that in all cases where negotiable bonds are secured by a mortgage or trust deed of real or personal property, to a trustee for the benefit of holders of bonds, recorded in Michigan prior to January 1, 1912, the holder of any bond may pay a specific tax of one half of one per cent. upon the principal of the bond to the county treasurer of the county in which he resides, or in which he may be, and that the bond on which such tax shall be paid shall forever thereafter be exempt from further general taxes in the hands of whomsoever may hold the same. This and the following section have been enlarged by Acts 27 and 173, Laws 1917.

Tax upon Secured Debts. — Act 142 of 1913, p. 242, provides that "secured debts shall include any bond, note, or debt secured by mortgage recorded in any State or country other than Michigan and not recorded in Michigan, and all bonds, notes, or written or printed obligations, part of a series secured by mortgage or deed of trust recorded outside of Michigan and not in Michigan, and all bonds, notes, or written or printed obligations forming part of a series secured by a deposit of any valuable securities as collateral security under a deed of trust or collateral agreement held by a trustee, and that secured debts shall not include securities held as collateral to secure the payment of bonds taxable under this act, and that any person may pay to the treasurer of the county where he resides a tax of one half per centum on the face value thereof, and that secured debts upon which said specific tax shall be paid shall be exempt from further general taxes under the laws of this State."

Testimony. — The statute of this State removes all common law disability, and no person is excluded from giving testimony in any cause or in any court by reason of crime, or on account of any interest which the party may have in the suit or proceeding, or by reason of marital or other relation to any party thereto. But where a suit or proceeding is prosecuted or defended by the representatives of a deceased person, and when any suit or proceeding is prosecuted or defended by any surviving partner or partners, the opposite party, if examined as a witness in his own behalf, shall not be admitted to testify at all in relation to matters which, if true, must have been equally within the knowledge of the deceased party or deceased partner, and not within the knowledge of any one of the surviving partners. (Ch. 17, act 314, Laws 1915.) No person who shall have acted as an agent in the making or continuing of a contract with any person who may have died shall be a competent witness in any suit involving such contract as to matters occurring prior to the death of such decedent on behalf of the principal to such contract against the legal representatives or heirs of the decedent unless he shall be called by them; and when any suit or proceeding is prosecuted or defended by any corporation, the opposite party, if examined as a witness in his own behalf, shall not be allowed to testify at all in relation to matters which, if true, must have been equally within the knowledge of a deceased officer or agent of such corporation and not within the knowledge of any surviving officer or agent; nor when any suit is prosecuted or defended by the heirs, representatives, or assigns, against a corporation or its assigns, shall any person who is or has been an officer or agent of such corporation be allowed to testify at all in relation to matters which, if true, must have been equally within the knowledge of such deceased person. The act applies to assignors and assignees. If the deposition of the deceased person is read, the opposite party may testify on the same subject. When the testimony or deposition of any witness has or shall be once taken and used upon the trial of any cause, the subsequent death of the witness, or of any other person, shall not render such testimony incompetent, but it may be received upon any subsequent trial of such cause. (C. L. 10212, as amended 1903, Act 30, p. 36.) Nor shall a husband be examined as a witness against his wife, nor a wife against her husband, without the other's consent, except in suits for divorce nor can either during or after marriage, without the other's consent, be examined as to any communication made by one to the other during marriage. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 110.)

Trusts and Combines. — See Corporations.

Trust Deeds. — Uses and trusts, except as modified and authorized by statute, are abolished. The disposition of lands must be made direct to the person having the possession and profits and not to another for his use, but this does not extend to trusts arising by implication of law, nor to certain express trusts authorized and defined.

Express trusts may be created for several purposes provided by statute, and also for the beneficial use of any person when the same is fully expressed and clearly defined upon the face of the instrument creating it.

Wills. — Every person of full age and sound mind may dispose of his property by will. No will, except it be a nuncupative, is effectual to pass any estate, whether real or personal; unless it be in writing and signed by the testator or by some person in his presence, and by his express direction, and attested and subscribed in the presence of the testator by two or more competent witnesses. ("Writing" covers manuscript as well as printing by types, typewriter, and other processes.) Nuncupative wills are valid to dispose of an estate not exceeding three hundred dollars, provided the same shall be proved by two competent witnesses; and soldiers being in actual military service, and mariners on shipboard, may dispose of their wages and personal estate by a nuncupative will; devisees and legatees are incompetent subscribing witnesses unless there are two other witnesses who are competent. But in case such witness would have been entitled to a share had there been no will made, he will take such a proportion of the estate as would have descended to him, not exceeding the devise or bequest made to him in the will.

All wills which have been duly proved and allowed in any other of the United States, or in any foreign country, according to the laws of such State or country, may be admitted to probate by the probate court of the county in this State in which property lies.

All wills and the probate thereof are recorded in the probate court. (Laws 1915, § 2, p. 344.) An attested copy of every will devising lands or any interest in lands, and of the probate thereof, shall be recorded in the registry of deeds of the county in which the lands thereby devised are situated. (Laws, 1915 § 2, p. 347.)

The Act No. 25, S. L. 1883, found on page 271, Hubbell's Legal Directory, 1884-85, which provided for probate of a will during the lifetime of the testator, was declared void by the state supreme court in Lloyd v. Wayne, Circuit Judge, decided April 9, 1885.

The law of charitable uses is not in force in Michigan. Lands cannot be entailed. The power of alienation of lands cannot be suspended for a longer period than two lives in being at the creation of the estate (C. L. 8797), excepting the single case that a contingent remainder in fee may be created on a prior remainder to take effect if the first holder shall die under twenty-one years of age or his estate determine before full age. (C. L. 8798.) A man cannot disinherit his wife. She can elect to take her share under the statutes or under the will. Children may be disinherited by either father or mother. Subject to the rights of the wife, a man may leave his entire property to charity.

When any child shall be born after the making of his father's or his mother's will and no provision shall be made therein for such child, he or she shall have the same share in the estate of the testator as if the parent had died intestate. And the share of such child shall be assigned to him as provided by law, in case of intestate estates, unless it shall be apparent from the will that it was the intention of the testator that no provision should be made for such child. (C. L. 9285 as amended 1907, act 80.)

Workmen's Compensation Act. — The legislature at its special session of 1912 passed an act commonly known as the "Workmen's Compensation Act." This law was amended in minor particulars concerning its administration in 1915 and also in 1917. The act is not, in its terms, compulsory upon either the master or the servant, but for practical purposes it is so, for the act provides that assumption of risk, contributory negligence, and negligence of a fellow servant shall be no defense to actions for damages brought by an employee against his employer, unless the negligence of the employee be willful.

The law also provides, in the case of employers and their employees who elect to come under the terms of the act, that for injuries sustained by the servant in the course of his employment, the employer is to pay a certain compensation, the amount of which, for various injuries, is fixed by the terms of the act. The law creates an "Industrial Accident Board," who hear disputed cases. Decisions of the Board are final, except for matters of law, when they may be reviewed in the supreme court by writ of certiorari. This act also provides for insurance under the law and for the administration of the same.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — Only one form of action, called civil action; same forms, process, pleadings, etc., in equitable and legal actions. (§ 7673.) An action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest; except that executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute, may sue without joining with him the person for whose benefit the suit is brought. (§§ 7674, 7676.) Infants must appear by a guardian ad litem appointed by the court. (§§ 7678-7679.) Full name and surname of parties plaintiff to a suit are necessary. When defendant's name is not known he may be sued by any name. In such case it must appear in summons and complaint that defendant is sued by a fictitious name and that real name is not known. (§ 7781.) In case of a firm, when plaintiffs, the full names of all members must appear in title of cause; when defendants, they may be sued by their firm name only. (§ 7689.) Residence of parties need not be alleged, as non-residents are under no disabilities in bringing suit, except that before suit they must file with clerk of court a bond in the penal sum of seventy-five dollars, executed by one or more resident sureties, payable to the clerk of court and conditioned for the payment of all costs and disbursements that may be adjudged against the plaintiff. (§ 7991.) Suits may be commenced without bond, but will be enjoined on motion until bond is given. In all cases where bond is not given as required, the attorney bringing the action is liable for costs. (§ 7992.) An action is commenced by the service of summons. (§ 7728.) The complaint must be filed in the office of the clerk of court before issuing the summons, or be served with it. (§ 7731.)

In bringing suit an account need not be set out in complaint. If demanded, a bill of items in writing, verified by plaintiff's oath, or by some person having knowledge thereof, to the effect that he believes it to be true, must be served on the adverse party within ten days after demand; otherwise evidence of the account will be excluded. (§ 7777.) The account may be established by books of account, but not necessarily so, and may be proved by other competent testimony making a clear preponderance of evidence. If there is no defense, judgment in district court can be obtained in twenty days after service of summons, and in justice's court in six days. See Corporations; Service.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — In this State affidavits may be made before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments. See Deeds.

Out of this State affidavits may be made before any officer authorized to administer oaths, whose official character is certified to by clerk of court of record. Certificate dispensed with in case of notaries public and of commissioners for this State. No particular form required. (§ 8399.) See Divorce.

Aliens. — Persons not citizens, and who have not declared their intention to become such, and corporations not created under the laws of the United States, or of a State, cannot hereafter acquire real estate exceeding ninety thousand square feet except by devise or inheritance. But the act does not apply where the right to hold land is secured by treaty, or to actual settlers upon farms of not more than one hundred and sixty acres, or to land acquired by process of law in collection of debts or by foreclosure of liens, nor to persons engaged in the business of selling land to actual settlers and who hold title not more than ten years. (§§ 6696, 6699.) Save as aforesaid, aliens may take, hold, transmit, and convey real estate, and no title to real estate shall be invalid on account of the alienage of any former owner. (§ 6700.) See Corporations.

Appeals. — Appeals may be taken from justices' courts and courts of probate to district court, and from district court to supreme court. In justice's court it must be taken within ten days after entry of judgment. An appeal upon both questions of law and fact brings the case to district court for trial on the merits, and is not allowed unless the judgment below exceeds fifteen dollars or the amount claimed in complaint exceeds thirty dollars. An appeal upon questions of law alone is allowed without regard to amount in controversy, or amount of judgment. (§§ 7601-7602; Laws 1917, p. 420.) In probate court the appeal must be taken within thirty days after notice of the judgment or order appealed from, and may be upon questions of law or of fact, or both, and without regard to the amount in controversy. (§§ 7490-7499.) In district court a judgment or order may be removed by appeal to supreme court. Appeal from judgment must be taken within six months from its entry, and from an order within thirty days after written notice of the same. (§§ 7993, 8000.) Appeal to supreme court is allowed in following cases: 1st. From all judgments rendered in district court; and upon such appeal the appellate court may review any intermediate order involving the merits or necessarily affecting the judgment. 2d. From order granting or refusing a provisional remedy, or which grants, refuses, dissolves, or refuses to dissolve, an injunction, or an order vacating or sustaining an attachment. 3d. From order involving the merits of the action, or some part thereof. 4th. From order granting or refusing a new trial, or sustaining or overruling a demurrer (with certain limitations). 5th. From order which in effect determines the action, and prevents a judgment from which an appeal might be taken. 6th. From an order in supplementary proceedings. 7th. From a final order affecting a substantial right made in a special proceeding, or upon a summary application in an action after judgment. (§ 8001.)

Arrest — For debt is not allowed in this State.

Assignments. — Except as affected by the National Bankruptcy Act of 1898, the following statute respecting assignments is in force. (Foley Co. v. Sawyer, 76 Minn. 118.)

An assignment for the benefit of creditors must be in writing, subscribed and acknowledged by the assignor, and filed in the office of the clerk of the district court for the county wherein assignor resides, or wherein the business with reference to which the same is made has been principally carried on. The assignee must be a resident freeholder of this State. Unless all these conditions are strictly complied with, the assignment is void. Debtor is required, within ten days after making assignment, to file with the clerk aforesaid a schedule, under oath, containing the names of all creditors, with place of their residence, if known, the amount due to each, nature and consideration of such indebtedness, where it arose, whether secured or not, and if so, how; and also a complete inventory of debtor's property with the value of each item thereof, and all incumbrances according to his best belief. Failure to file inventory within specified time does not defeat the proceedings or avoid the trust. (Swart v. Thomas, 26 Minn. 141.) The assignee, before he can sell or convert to the purposes of the trust any of the trust estate, and not later than five days after filing of schedule as above provided, must execute bond to the State of Minnesota, to be approved by said court, with two or more sureties residents and freeholders of this State, in at least double the value of the property so assigned, for the faithful performance of his duties. Notice of assignment must be published, and also mailed to each creditor. No claim except debts to the United States or State of Minnesota, or for taxes or assessments, can be paid unless it is verified by oath of party making it. All debts must be paid in following order: 1st. Debts due the United States, the State of Minnesota, and all taxes and assessments, must be paid in full before the payment of any other debt. 2d. Debts for wages of servants, laborers, mechanics, and clerks, for services performed for debtor within three months next before date of assignment, must be paid in full to the exclusion of all other indebtedness. If trust property is insufficient, then they are to be paid pro rata. The proof of claim of any such creditor must show character of service and when performed. 3d. All other debts properly proved stand on same footing, except that creditors holding secured claims must first exhaust their security or surrender same to the assignee before they can share in trust property. All proceedings are subject to the order and supervision of said court, to which any creditor may apply, by petition, for distribution or other relief, and such court may for cause remove any assignee and appoint another in his stead. When assignee has performed his trust or been removed, he may be discharged by order of court from further liability, upon application therefor, with notice of three weeks by publication of such intended application. Where the estate is taken by proceedings in bankruptcy, the assignee may be discharged on showing accounting with trustee in bankruptcy, and if said estate is taken out of his hands by any legal proceeding in court, or the assignment is declared void as to creditors, or the further administration of said trust is impracticable, inadvisable, or nugatory, the assignee may be discharged. In all cases of general assignments for benefit of creditors, the assignee shall be considered as representing the rights and interests of creditors as against all transfers of property which would be fraudulent or void as to creditors, and has all the rights of the creditors in avoiding any such transfer. (§§ 8326-8335.) No provision for discharge of debtor from his debts, and personal judgment may be taken against him notwithstanding the assignment, except as provided in insolvent law.

The foregoing embraces the substance of our statutory provisions relating to assignments. In practice, the debtor selects his own assignee. The only notices provided by the statutes are the notice of assignment given in first instance, and notice of application for final discharge. Only effect of failure to prove claim before assignee is to be debarred from participating in dividends. If claim is rejected by assignee, we think application for allowance may be made to the court having supervision. The statute is silent as to exemptions, and as to preferences, except as above noted, and except as provided in the insolvent law above referred to, which must be read in connection with this subject. Whether preferences, other than as above, would be sustained, or by implication are forbidden, is an open question. There is no time limited for paying dividends or closing out the estate, but the matter is under the control of the court, which makes all proper orders. The assignment or proof of debt before assignee does not debar the right of action at once on same claim. There is no statutory provision as to examination of debtor, or as to punishment for fraud. See Insolvent Laws.

Attachments — Are allowed in actions for recovery of money other than for libel, slander, seduction, breach of promise of marriage, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, or assault and battery, against property of defendant, at time of issuing summons, or any time thereafter, and are allowed in favor of residents and non-residents without distinction, on same grounds. They are not allowed unless a cause of action has accrued. Writ obtained from judge of district court, or commissioner of the court where suit is brought, when it appears by affidavit made by the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, that a cause of action exists against the defendant, specifying amount and ground thereof; that defendant is a foreign corporation or non-resident, or has departed from the State, as deponent verily believes, with intent to defraud or delay his creditors, or to avoid service of summons, or keeps himself concealed with like intent; or that he has assigned, secreted, or disposed, or is about to dispose, of his property, with intent to delay or defraud creditors, or that the debt was fraudulently contracted. Before writ issues, bond is required from plaintiff, with sufficient sureties, that if judgment be given for the defendant, or if the writ be vacated, he will pay all costs that may be awarded against him, and all damages caused by the attachment, not exceeding the penalty of the bond. Penalty not less than two hundred and fifty dollars; and sureties, by rule of court, must be residents and freeholders and justify in full amount of bond. (§§ 7845-7848.)

There is no statutory provision as to rights and liabilities of attaching creditors, as among themselves, nor as to measure of damages on bond, except that damages cannot exceed the penalty. Attachments become a lien on property in the order of time of their levy thereon, and subsequent attaching creditors cannot pro rate with earlier ones.

In a justice's court a writ of attachment cannot issue except in case of indebtedness upon a contract express or implied, or upon judgment or decree of some court. The affidavit is similar to that required in courts of record, and the bond is conditioned that, if the plaintiff fails to recover judgment, he will pay all costs that may be adjudged against him and all damages which the defendant may sustain by reason of the attachment, not exceeding one hundred dollars. (§§ 7588-7600.)

Chattel Mortgages — Are void as against creditors and subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers in good faith, unless executed in good faith and accompanied with immediate delivery and followed by actual and continued change of possession of the things mortgaged, or unless attested by two witnesses and duly acknowledged, and filed with the clerk or recorder of the municipality if a city of more than fifty thousand, where the mortgagor resided at time of execution, or, if mortgagor is non-resident, where the property was then situated. They are then valid, but cease to be notice after six years from date of filing, unless the whole debt is not then due by the terms of the mortgage, in which case the lien continues two years after maturity. Except as provided by Laws 1915, p. 496, as amended, they may be filed in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the mortgagor resides, and if a non-resident, then where the property is situated. (§§ 6986, 6993.) Laws 1915, p. 496, as amended by Laws 1917, p. 236, provides that any bill of sale, instrument evidencing a lien on or reserving title to personal property, and satisfaction of liens on personal property shall be filed with the register of deeds in the county in which said personal property is situate, and repeals inconsistent acts, but does not apply to cities of more than fifty thousand, nor to counties where the salary of the register of deeds is fixed by special law. When necessary to file in two or more offices, certified copies or duplicates may be filed. In mortgages of family pictures, books, musical instruments, wearing apparel, household furniture, and sewing-machine, husband and wife should join. Any provision in a mortgage on crops mortgaging or conveying any crop to be planted and grown later than the season commencing May 1 after date of mortgage is void unless given to secure purchase money or rent of lands on which crop is to be grown. On payment, mortgagee must file satisfaction within sixty days, and give duplicate to mortgagor. Mortgagor or any person claiming under him may redeem after condition broken at any time before foreclosure, and two days after foreclosure sale.

Power of sale in chattel mortgage can be exercised only at public sale, upon at least ten days' notice, served and posted. If sale is by sheriff or constable, the mortgagee, his representatives or assigns, may purchase. (§§ 6986-6980.)

A mortgage of chattels coupled with an agreement or understanding that mortgagor may retain possession of property and sell or dispose of same, without applying proceeds in satisfaction of debt, is fraudulent and void as to creditors and subsequent purchasers. (Horton v. Williams, 21 Minn. 187.) See Conditional Sales.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — In granting letters of administration preference is given as follows: 1. To the surviving spouse, or next of kin or both as the court may determine, or some suitable and competent person selected by them or either of them. 2. If no application is made for thirty days after death of the intestate, to one or more of the principal creditors, if competent and willing, or to some other person who may be interested in the administration of the estate. 3. If none of the foregoing persons apply for administration within four months after the death, the same shall be granted to any suitable or competent person interested in the estate, by purchase or otherwise. 4. If the deceased was a native of any foreign country, and no application is made within thirty days, administration may be granted thereafter to the consul or other representative of such country residing in this State who has filed a copy of his appointment with the secretary of state or to such person as he may select, if suitable and competent, or to a creditor or person interested in the estate. (Laws 1917, p. 871.) 5. If any person appointed neglects for thirty days after written notice of his appointment to qualify, the court may appoint without notice such other person or persons as are next entitled to administer the estate. (§ 7287.)

An administrator must give bond in such sum as the probate court may direct (usually twice the amount of the personal property), with sureties to be approved by the court.

If all the estate is exempt from debts and does not exceed six hundred and fifty dollars, the estate may be closed at the first hearing. Otherwise, upon granting letters testamentary or of administration the court makes an order limiting the time in which creditors may present claims. The time limited must be not less than six months nor more than one year, but may be extended for good cause to a date not more than eighteen months after notice given of the order; but on proof by affidavit that there are no debts, the time limited may be three months. Notice of the order is given to creditors by publication thereof once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county. (§§ 7320-7322; Laws 1917, p. 424.)

All claims must be itemised and verified by the claimant, his agent or attorney, stating the balance due, that no payments have been made thereon that are not credited, and that there are no offsets thereto known to the affiant. If the claim be contingent or not due, the particulars thereof must be stated. All claims arising upon contract, except contingent claims which do not become absolute and capable of liquidation before final settlement, must be presented to the court for allowance within the time limited. (§ 7323.)

To the surviving spouse, or if there be none to the minor children, are allowed: (1) all the wearing apparel; (2) household furniture to be selected, not exceeding in value five hundred dollars; (3) other personal property not exceeding the same value. The surviving spouse, together with the children, shall have also such reasonable allowance out of the personal estate as the court deems necessary for their maintenance during the settlement of the estate, according to their circumstances, which in the case of insolvent estates shall not be longer than one year after administration is granted, nor in any case after the share of such spouse in the residue of the personalty has been assigned. (§ 7243.)

An administrator must account within the time allowed for settlement of the estate (not exceeding eighteen months in the first instance, though the time may be extended), and at such other time as the court may direct. (§ 7383.) Cost of administration is first paid; other debts, unless secured, paid pro rata in the following order; (1) funeral expenses; (2) expenses of last sickness; (3) debts preferred by laws of United States; (4) taxes; (5) debts duly proved to be due to other creditors, provided that no claim for which a creditor holds security shall be paid until he has exhausted or surrendered his security. (§ 7338.)

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — Every promissory note or contract of sale, the conditions of which are that the title or ownership to the property for which the same is given shall remain in the vendor, shall be void as to the creditors of the vendee and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith, unless the note, or contract, or, if said contract be oral, then a memorandum expressing the terms and conditions thereof, signed by the purchaser, be filed as in the case of a chattel mortgage. Such filing is made full and sufficient notice of the existence and conditions of such contract until after the expiration of six years from the day on which the last installment of the sum secured thereby became due. (§§ 6981-6983.) Such contracts, though not filed, are not void as to creditors having actual notice at the time of levy. (35 Minn. 534. See Chattel Mortgages; Uniform Sales Act, Laws 1917, c. 465.)

Consignments. — There is no special statute concerning consignments, except of agricultural products. See Licenses.

Corporations. — Any three or more persons may form a corporation under a general law. (§ 6147.) Existence limited to thirty years, with power to renew, except that railway corporations may be formed for any length of time the incorporators may designate in their articles of incorporation. (§ 6156.) Every stockholder in any corporation, except those organized for the purpose of carrying on any mining, manufacturing, or mechanical business, shall be liable to the amount of the stock held or owned by him. (State Const. art. X. § 3, as amended in 1872.)

Corporations may be organized for the construction, acquisition, maintenance, or operation of any internal improvement, including railways, street railways, telegraph and telephone lines, canals, slack-water, or other navigation, dams to create or improve a water supply or to furnish water for public use, and any work for supplying the public, by whatever means, with water, light, heat, or power; also for carrying on any kind of manufacturing or mechanical business not incompatible with an honest purpose; for the mining, smelting, reducing, refining, or working of ores or minerals; for working coal mines or stone quarries, or for buying, working, selling, or dealing in mineral lands; for the purpose of loaning money, either for themselves or as agents for others, upon mortgage or other securities; for the purchase and sale of lands and of money obligations secured upon real or personal property; for constructing, leasing, or operating docks, warehouses, elevators, public halls, or hotels; carrying on any kind of lumbering, agricultural, dairying, mercantile, chemical, transportation, or other lawful business not otherwise provided for; buying, selling, and improving lands and tenements; carrying on the business of banking; estab-

leasing and conducting clearing-houses; transacting business as a trust company; carrying on the business of building, loan, and savings associations; carrying on any one branch of the business of insurance or any two or more branches thereof which are permitted by law to be transacted by one company (§§ 6136-6146); also to loan money on farm mortgages and issue debentures thereon (§ 6454); and to reclaim and develop timber and brush lands. (Laws 1917, p. 842.)

Articles of incorporation must give: 1. Name (which must end with "Company," "Corporation," "Association," "Bank," or "Incorporated"); general nature of its business and the principal place of transacting the same. 2. Period of its duration, if limited. 3. The name and places of residence of the incorporators. 4. The date of the annual meeting at which the board of management shall be elected and the names and addresses of those composing such board until the first election. 5. Amount of capital stock, if any, and how to be paid in; the number of shares into which it is to be divided and the par value of each share. 6. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability. (§ 6147.)

The articles of incorporation must be recorded with the secretary of state and with the register of deeds of the county of the principal place of business, and must be published. (§§ 6148-6149.)

Every corporation, with a few exceptions, prior to its organization must pay into the state treasury fifty dollars for the first fifty thousand dollars of its capital stock and five dollars for each additional ten thousand dollars or fraction thereof. (§ 6188.) The capital stock must not be less than ten thousand dollars. Each share must be not less than one dollar nor more than one hundred dollars. There is no provision as to the amount of the capital stock which must be paid in. The directors must be not less than three in number, elected from the stockholders or members, except in the case of savings banks. (§ 6171.) A corporation when duly organized has succession for the time stated in its articles of incorporation, may sue and be sued in any court, have a corporate seal, and may establish all necessary by-laws for its management and control. (§§ 6151-6154.)

Corporations, except mining, insurance, mortgage loan, telegraph and telephone companies, banks, railroads, freight line companies, and sleeping-car companies are assessed and taxed like individuals and not otherwise. See Taxes. Private property of each stockholder in any corporation is liable for corporate debts in the following cases: 1. For unpaid installments on stock held by him or transferred for the purpose of defrauding creditors. 2. For failure of the corporation to comply substantially with the provisions as to organization and publicity. 3. For personally violating any of such provisions in the transaction of any business of the corporation, as officer, director, or member, or for fraudulent or dishonest conduct in the discharge of any official duty. (§ 6178.)

Corporations more than twenty per cent. of whose stock is owned by persons not citizens of the United States cannot acquire real estate in this State; and no corporation, other than those actually engaged in manufacturing in this State, or organized for the purpose of constructing and operating railways, canals, and turnpikes, or engaged in the business of selling land to actual settlers, can acquire or hold more than five thousand acres in this State, except lands acquired by process of law in collection of debts or foreclosure of liens. No railway, canal, or turnpike corporation can acquire lands except so much as may be necessary for the operation of such railroad, canal, or turnpike, and lands granted to it by the United States or by the State. (§§ 6697-6699.) See Aliens; Deeds.

Foreign Corporations. — Every corporation for pecuniary profit organized elsewhere than in Minnesota, before it can transact or continue business in this State, acquire, hold, or dispose of property, or bring suit in this State, must maintain a public office in this State, and appoint an agent, residing in the county where such office is located, duly authorized to accept service of process, and upon whom service may be had. There must be filed in the office of the secretary of state authenticated copies of such appointment, and of the charter or articles of incorporation, and a verified statement showing the proportion of its capital stock represented by its property or business in this State, and upon that it must pay a fee. This act does not apply to corporations engaged in an exclusively manufacturing business in Minnesota, traveling salesmen soliciting business for entirely non-resident corporations, nor to corporations engaged only in the business of loaning money or investing in securities, nor to those organized to raise and improve live stock, cultivate farms, or can fruits or vegetables, nor to those whose sole business is transportation of freight or passengers by water. (§§ 6206-6208.) [As to foreign insurance companies, see §§ 3591-3595.] Foreign land corporations may deal in lands subject to restrictions as to amount of land which may be acquired, and time for which it may be held. (§ 6696.) Foreign corporations are taxed in the same manner as are domestic corporations.

Service of summons on a foreign corporation doing business in this State may be made by delivering a copy thereof to any of its officers or agents within the State. If such foreign corporation by appointment filed and recorded has appointed a resident agent for such purpose, summons may be served upon such person. (§ 7735.)

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Minnesota.

Deeds. — Deeds must be signed and acknowledged by the grantor and attested by two witnesses and recorded in the office of the register of deeds in the county where the lands are situate. (§§ 6833-6835.)

Short forms of deeds are provided for by § 6828. The use of private seals is abolished. (§ 5704.) The certificate of acknowledgment may be either written, printed, or pasted on the instrument. If acknowledged within this State, the acknowledgment must be made before members of the legislature, judges and clerks or deputy clerks of all courts of record residing within the State, including United States circuit and district courts and resident United States commissioners, notaries public, justices of the peace, clerks or recorders of towns, villages, boroughs, and cities, court commissioners, registers of deeds and county auditors, and their several deputies, and county commissioners. (§ 5743.) And where such officer has a seal of office, he must affix such seal to the certificate of acknowledgment. (§ 5740.)

Acknowledgments out of this State and within the United States or within any territory belonging thereto can be certified by any judge or justice of the supreme, circuit, or district courts of the United States or of a court of record or the clerk of any such court or his deputy, any notary public, justice of the peace, or commissioner appointed by the governor of this State for that purpose; but no such acknowledgment shall be valid unless taken within the place or territory for which such officer was chosen or to which the jurisdiction of the court of which he is an officer shall extend. (§ 5744.)

When deeds are executed outside of the State, unless the acknowledgment is taken before a commissioner appointed by the governor of this State for that purpose or before a notary public or clerk of court or other officer having a seal of office, an impression whereof is affixed, there shall be attached or appended to or indorsed upon such deed a certificate of the clerk or other certifying officer of a court of record of the county or district where taken, under the seal of said court, that the person whose name is subscribed to the certificate of acknowledgment at the date thereof held the office under which he assumed to act, that he is acquainted with the handwriting of such person and believes that the signature subscribed to the certificate of acknowledgment is genuine. (§ 5745.) No separate acknowledgment of the wife is required, but she must acknowledge her deed the same as her husband, and husband and wife must be described as such in each certificate of acknowledgment. (§ 5742.)

The acknowledgment of any soldier or sailor in the service of the United States in territory outside of the jurisdiction of any State may be taken by any commissioned officer in the actual service of the United States army or navy, which officer shall certify thereto under his official signature and shall state that the person so acknowledging at the time thereof was employed in such military or naval service in some capacity therein named.

A deed of land in this State executed in a foreign country may be acknowledged before any notary public therein or any minister, chargé d'affaires, commissioner, consul, or commercial agent or other consular or diplomatic officer of the United States appointed to reside in such country, or their deputies, or other representatives, who shall certify the fact of such acknowledgment under their official signature and seal of office, if there be one. If the deed is executed outside of this State and in accordance with the laws of the place of execution, that fact shall be proved, if within the United States, by a certificate of the clerk or other certifying officer of a court of record of the county or district in which the acknowledgment was taken, under the seal of such court, or by the secretary of the State or Territory, under the seal thereof; if in a foreign country, by the certificate of an officer of the United States authorized to take acknowledgments therein as above stated, under his seal of office, if there be one. A deed signed by two witnesses and executed as above stated is sufficient without further certificate, whether in accordance with the laws of such country or not. (§§ 5746, 5748.)

A married woman may convey her homestead by joining her husband in the deed (§ 6961), and even if a minor, may convey by her separate deed other real estate owned by her, subject to her husband's rights. (§ 6814.) She is liable upon the covenants in her deed, the same as though she were a feme sole. (§ 7144.) Husband or wife of person adjudged insane by a court of this State may convey as though single with the approval of a guardian appointed by such court; when insanity has continued for three years after such adjudication, and no guardian has been appointed, no approval is necessary except to conveyance of homestead. (Laws 1915, pp. 187, 356.) Dower, as such, is abolished in this State; in its place the surviving husband or wife has statutory one third in fee of all lands to the alienation of which he or she has not assented in writing. As between grantor and grantee a deed is valid though not acknowledged; but without acknowledgment in form substantially as above it is not entitled to record.

A corporation authorized to hold real estate may convey the same by an agent appointed by a resolution of its directors for that purpose, a copy of which, certified by the clerk or secretary of such corporation, should be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the land to which such vote relates is situated. (§ 6826.) The corporate seal should always be attached to all deeds so executed.

No other statutory provisions specially applicable to conveyances by corporations. They may convey by their proper officers under their corporate seals, and the general statutory provisions as to witnesses, seals, acknowledgments, etc., apply to such conveyances. The acknowledgment must be made by the officer or agent who executes the deed in behalf of the corporation.

Same form for notaries or commissioners of deeds.

Proof by subscribing witnesses may be made as follows: When a grantor dies, departs from or resides out of this State, not having acknowledged his deed, the execution thereof may be proved by any competent subscribing witness thereto, before any court of record. If all the subscribing witnesses are dead or out of this State, the execution may be proved before any such court by proving handwriting of the grantor and of any subscribing witness. (§ 6834.) See, also, Married Women; Mortgages; Notaries; Records.

Depositions. — Upon Notice. — The deposition of a witness may be taken, by any officer authorized to administer an oath, when the witness is within the State and lives more than thirty miles from the place of trial, or is about to go out of the State, not intending to return in time for the trial, or is so sick, infirm, or aged as to make it probable that he will not be able to attend at the trial; or is without the State and within any State or Territory of the United States. Written notice, stating the reason for taking the deposition, and the time and place of such taking, must be served on the adverse party, giving sufficient time at the rate of one day for every one hundred miles of distance by the usual route between the place of service and the place of taking the deposition, and one day for preparation, exclusive of Sundays and the day of service; provided, that on application the court may fix the time and place of taking, and the time when such order must be served. No notice or order need be served on a party who is in default for want of an answer or other defense. The examination shall commence at the time and place specified, or within one hour thereafter, and if so stated in the notice may be adjourned from day to day until completed. Either party may appear in person, or by agent or attorney, and take part in the examination. (§§ 8381-8383.)

Under a Commission. — The deposition of a witness without the State may be taken under a commission issued by a court of record to any competent person in any State or country: (1) when an issue of fact has been joined in an action pending in such court, or when a controversy has been submitted to arbitrators and the award is required to be filed in such court, on the application of either party, on eight days' notice, if it appears that the testimony of such witness is material; (2) when the time to answer in an action pending in such court has expired, and the defendant has not answered or demurred, on application of the plaintiff, without notice, if it appears that the testimony of such witness is necessary to establish the cause of action alleged. (§ 8384.) Such depositions are taken on written interrogatories, served on the adverse party, and cross-interrogatories to be served and filed by him if he desires; if the defendant has not appeared, the interrogatories are filed by the plaintiff, and attached to the commission. (§§ 8384-8385.)

The parties may stipulate upon any other mode of taking depositions. (§ 8386.)

All depositions shall be written by the officer, or by some disinterested person in his presence and under his direction. The officer must carefully read over to the witness his testimony, and he may thereupon add thereto or qualify the same as he may desire.

When the deposition is completed, the witness shall sign his name or make his mark at the end thereof, as well as upon each piece of paper upon which any portion of his testimony is written. Thereupon the officer shall annex to such deposition the notice, order, or commission, and a certificate under his hand and his official seal, if he have one, substantially in the following form: —

COUNTY OF } ss.

Be it known that I took the annexed deposition pursuant to the annexed notice (or order or commission); that I was then and there (state title of officer); that I exercised the power of that office in taking such deposition; that by virtue thereof I was then and there authorized to administer an oath; that each witness, before testifying, was duly sworn to testify to the whole truth and nothing but the truth relative to the cause specified in said notice

(or order or commission); that the testimony of each witness was carefully read over to him by me before he signed the same (if the examination was oral); that the examination was conducted on behalf of the plaintiff by _____ and on behalf of the defendant by _____ and (if the deposition was taken within the State) that the reason for taking said deposition was (here state the reason).

Witness my hand (and seal) this _____ day of _____ 19____

The officer shall inclose and seal the deposition, and shall deliver or mail it to the court before which the cause is pending or from which the commission issued, or, if the deposition was taken upon notice in a controversy submitted to arbitrators, to one of them.

Every person whose testimony is taken by deposition, before being examined or giving his evidence, shall be sworn to testify the whole truth and nothing but the truth, relative to the cause in or for which the deposition is taken.

Every deposition may be read in evidence at the trial of the action or proceeding; but when the same is offered in evidence, objection may be interposed to the competency of the witness or to any question put to him, or to the whole or any part of his testimony, in like manner, upon the same grounds, and with the like effect as if the witness was then testifying in open court, except that no objection in the form of any question or interrogatory can be made unless such objection was made before and noted by the officer taking such deposition, if taken as notice, or unless the objection was made when the interrogatory was exhibited or filed, if taken under commission.

No informality, error, or defect in any proceeding shall be sufficient ground for excluding a deposition, unless the party making objection thereto shall make it appear to the satisfaction of the court that the officer taking the same was not then and there authorized to administer an oath or that such party was by such informality, error, or defect precluded from appearing and cross-examining the witnesses; and every objection to the sufficiency of the notice, order, or commission, or to the manner of taking or certifying or returning such deposition, shall be deemed to have been waived, unless such objection is taken by motion to suppress the deposition, which motion shall be made within ten days after service of written notice of the return thereof. (§§ 8387-8393.)

Descent. — Homestead descends free from any testamentary or other disposition to which the surviving spouse shall not have consented in writing, and exempt from all debts which were not valid charges thereon at the time of death, as follows: If no surviving child or lawful issue of a deceased child, to the surviving spouse, if any. If there be both a spouse and children, or issue of deceased children, then to spouse for life, remainder to children and issue of deceased children, by right of representation. In all other cases, homestead may be disposed of by will. If not so disposed of, it descends the same as other real estate, but exempt from debts if inherited by children or issue of children deceased. (§ 7237.) The surviving spouse also inherits an undivided one third of all other lands of which decedent at any time during coverture was seized or possessed to the disposition whereof, by will or otherwise, such survivor shall not have consented in writing, except lands divested by judicial partition proceeding, execution, or judicial sale, by general assignment for creditors, or by insolvency or bankruptcy proceedings, and subject to judgment liens, and subject in their just proportion to debts not paid from personal estate. The residue of such other lands, or if there be no surviving spouse, then the whole thereof, shall descend subject to debts as follows: 1. In equal shares to children and lawful issue of deceased children, by right of representation. 2. If no child or lawful issue of deceased child, the whole estate shall descend to surviving spouse, if any. 3. If no issue or spouse, to father and mother in equal shares, or, if but one survive, then to such survivor. 4. If no surviving issue, nor spouse, nor father nor mother, then in equal shares to brothers and sisters, and lawful issue of any such, by right of representation. 5. If no issue, spouse, father, mother, brother, or sister, then to next of kin in equal degree, except that when there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree, but claiming through different ancestors, those who claim through the nearest ancestor shall be preferred to those claiming through an ancestor more remote. 6. Estate inherited by a surviving child who dies under age and unmarried descends to the other children of the same parent, and to the issue of such other children who have died, by right of representation. 7. If all surviving children are dead in the case mentioned in paragraph 6, their issue, if any, take by right of representation. 8. If no spouse nor kindred, his estate shall escheat to the State. (§ 7238; Laws 1917, p. 411.) Degrees of kindred are computed by the rules of the civil law. No distinction, except as to ancestral lands, between half blood and whole blood as to right to inherit. If a deceased parent provides by will for a surviving spouse in lieu of statutory rights, the survivor must renounce such provision by a written instrument filed in the probate court in which the will is proved, within six months after probate, or will be deemed to have elected to take under the will. (§ 7239.)

Personal Property. — Except sundry allowances to widow and minor children, is distributed as follows: One third to the surviving spouse, if any, free from any testamentary disposition thereof to which such survivor shall not have consented in writing; the remainder, or if there be no such survivor, then the whole, except as disposed of by will, in the same proportions, to the same persons, and for the same purposes as provided for the descent of real estate as above. (Laws 1915, p. 480.)

Divorce. — Limited. — Separation from bed and board forever, or for a limited time, may be decreed by district court, on complaint of a married woman, in the following cases:

1. When husband and wife are inhabitants of this State. 2. When the marriage took place in this State, and the wife is an actual resident at the time of exhibiting her complaint. 3. When marriage shall have taken place out of this State, and parties have been inhabitants of State for one year, and the wife is an actual resident at time of filing her complaint. Such separation may be decreed for following causes: 1. Cruel and inhuman treatment. 2. Such conduct on part of husband as may render it unsafe or improper for wife to cohabit with him. 3. Abandonment of wife by the husband, and his refusal or neglect to provide for her. Proceedings same as in absolute divorce. (§§ 7134, 7135.)

Jurisdiction is obtained by personal service of summons and complaint on defendant, and if service is made out of State, it may be proved by affidavit of person making the same with certificate of the clerk of the court of the county, or, if in a foreign country, a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States, to the identity of the officer taking the affidavit. If personal service cannot well be made, the court may order publication of summons as in other cases. (§§ 7112, 7116.)

The court exercises its discretion as to who shall have custody of children, both while suit is pending and after divorce. When granted, wife is entitled to immediate possession of her real property, unless her adultery is cause of divorce; and the court may require husband to restore personal property received from her. Alimony may be decreed to wife when her adultery is not cause of divorce; but the aggregate allowance made to wife shall not exceed one third part of personal and real estate, earnings, and income of the husband. (§ 7121 et seq.) See Actions.

All exempt articles shall be selected by the debtor, his agent, or legal representative. None of the above-described property is exempt from attachment or execution in an action for the purchase price thereof. (§ 7951.)

Homestead — Is exempt as to all debts not lawfully charged thereon in writing, except such as are incurred for work or materials furnished in the construction, repair, or improvement thereof, or for services performed by laborers or servants. Consists of the house occupied by a debtor as his dwelling-place, together with the land on which it is situated. Area limited to eighty acres if outside an incorporated city, village, or borough; if within such an incorporated place of less than five thousand inhabitants, one half acre, of more than five thousand inhabitants, one third acre. (§§ 6957-6958.) Surviving or deserted spouse and minor children are entitled to the exemption. (§ 6962.) As to debts created prior to March 1, 1906, exemption continues as stated in the issue of this book for 1905. (§ 6959.) See Deeds; Descent; Married Women; Mortgages.

Garnishment. — In any action in a court of record or justice's court for the recovery of money, if plaintiff or his attorney, at time of issuing summons, or at any time during pendency of action, or after judgment, files with clerk of court, or, if in justice's court, with the justice, an affidavit stating that he believes any person (naming him) has property or money in his hands or under his control, belonging to defendant, or that such person is indebted to defendant, and that the value of such property or amount of indebtedness exceeds twenty-five dollars if the action is in a court of record, or ten dollars if in a justice's court, a summons may issue against such person. (§ 7859.) To recover judgment against a garnishee in a justice's court, the property or indebtedness attached and the judgment against the defendant must not be less than ten dollars, exclusive of costs; in district court the property or indebtedness attached must not be less than twenty-five dollars. (§ 7883.) The indebtedness referred to must be due absolutely, without depending on any contingency; must not be on a judgment if the garnishee is liable to an execution thereon, and must not be due by reason of any liability incurred as maker, or otherwise upon any draft, bill of exchange, or promissory note. (§ 7864.) If the answer sets up a counter-claim in excess of plaintiff's claim, the defendant may garnish as if he were plaintiff. (§ 7885.)

Defendant may procure dismissal of garnishee proceedings by executing to plaintiff a bond in double the amount claimed in complaint or double the value of the property attached, if less than the amount claimed, approved by the court. (§ 7886.) See Exemptions.

Inheritance Taxes. — A tax is imposed on any transfer of property, by will or intestate laws, or in contemplation of death, or to take effect in possession at or after the death of the grantor or donor: from any resident; of property of a non-resident within the State or its jurisdiction. Persons to whom property passes are classified thus: (1) wife or lineal issue; (2) husband, certain adopted or mutually acknowledged children or lineal issue of any such child; (3) lineal ancestor; (4) brother, sister, or descendant of either, spouse of a son or daughter; (5) brother or sister of father or mother, or descendant of such brother or sister; (6) other persons; (7) public hospitals, certain educational institutions, churches, and institutions of purely public charity within this State.

The primary rates when the clear value of property so transferred exceeds the exemption and does not exceed fifteen thousand dollars are: first class, one per cent.; second and third classes, one and one half per cent.; fourth class, three per cent.; fifth class, four per cent.; sixth class, five per cent.; seventh class, two per cent. On excess of clear value over fifteen thousand dollars and up to thirty thousand dollars, the rate of tax is one and a half times the primary rate; on excess over thirty thousand dollars and up to fifty thousand dollars, two times the primary rate; over fifty thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars, two and a half times the primary rate; over one hundred thousand dollars, three times the primary rate.

Exemptions allowed are: All property transferred to municipal corporations within the State for strictly municipal purposes; property of the clear value of ten thousand dollars transferred to persons named in classes 1 and 2; three thousand dollars to lineal ancestors; one thousand dollars to persons in class 4; two hundred and fifty dollars to persons in class 5; one hundred dollars to persons in class 6; two thousand five hundred dollars to persons in class 7. (§ 2271, et seq.)

Property of a non-resident within the jurisdiction of this State includes: property and money actually within this State; deposits in banks or trust companies in Minnesota; bonds issued and debts owing by debtors domiciled in Minnesota; debts secured by a lien on Minnesota real estate; any interest in any business conducted in this State by a co-partnership or unincorporated association; shares of stock in National Banks situated in this State and in any corporation organized under the laws of Minnesota; real and personal property, over which decedent had the power of appointment.

Communications relative to the assessment and compounding of inheritance taxes should be addressed to the attorney-general at St. Paul, Minnesota. If estates are administered in Minnesota inheritance taxes are assessed by the judge of probate, subject to the approval of the attorney-general and county treasurer, and are collected by the county treasurer; if no administration is had in this state, the taxes are assessed by the attorney-general with the approval of the state auditor, and are collected by the state treasurer.

Insolvent Laws. — When a debtor becomes insolvent, or his property has been attached upon legal process issued against him for collection of money, such debtor may make an assignment for the equal benefit of his creditors who shall file releases of their demands, which assignment, if made within ten days, will operate to vacate any garnishment or levy then pending. Such assignment shall be executed, filed in accordance with and governed by the laws relating to assignments for the benefit of creditors. If he fails to do so within ten days, or confesses judgment, or does anything whereby any creditor shall obtain a preference, or omits anything he might lawfully do to prevent it, or conceals, removes, or disposes of any unexempt property with intent to delay or defraud creditors, then or within sixty days thereafter, upon petition of one or more creditors having claims aggregating two hundred dollars, the district court, upon evidence of such facts, may appoint a receiver to take possession of his property and dispose of same under direction of court for benefit of creditors proving and releasing claims. No assignment shall give any creditor a preference except in cases expressly provided by law. Confessing or suffering judgment to be procured for the purpose of preferring creditors is a misdemeanor.

The court may restrain the debtor from collecting bills, keep him within the State, and compel him at any time to make full disclosure as to any matters pertaining to the estate. Conveyances and payments made and securities given by the debtor within ninety days prior to the assignment, with a view of giving a preference to any creditor, on a preëxisting debt, are void; provided such creditor had reasonable cause to believe the debtor was insolvent. Except in certain cases, before creditors can share in the distribution, they must file with the clerk of the district court a release in full to the debtor, who may thereupon be discharged by the judge from all liability to the creditors so participating. (§§ 8336-8352.) See Assignments.

Interest — Upon every legal indebtedness, including judgments and accounts, is six per cent. per annum. Parties may agree to pay as high as ten per cent. per annum, if so expressed in contract in writing; and contracts bear same interest after maturity as before, when no rate of interest is specified after maturity; and contract for increase of rate of interest after maturity works a forfeiture of entire interest. Taking interest in excess of ten per cent. except on salary loans and chattel mortgage loans in some cases, and compounding interest, is prohibited; but contracts to pay interest not usurious upon overdue interest are valid. Persons paying any greater interest than above allowed may recover back all interest so paid, with costs, if action is brought within two years after such payment. All bonds, bills, notes, mortgages, and all other contracts and securities whatsoever, and all deposits of goods, or any other thing, whereupon or whereby there shall be reserved, secured, or taken any greater sum for a loan than above prescribed, are void except as to bona fide purchases of negotiable paper before maturity for value. Where the original holder of a usurious note sells the same to an innocent purchaser, the maker may recover from the original holder the amount of principal and interest so paid. (§§ 5805-5810.)

Judgments. — Upon being docketed in the office of clerk of a court of record, become a lien upon all real property of judgment debtor in county where docketed, then or thereafter owned by him, for ten years after date of entry. (§ 7904.) See Executions; Interest.

Judgments have priority and are a lien upon real estate in the county where docketed in the order and from time of docketing, and upon personal property from the time the execution is levied thereon by the officer, without reference to whether they are entered at the same or different terms of court or in vacation.

A foreign judgment may be proved by complete exemplification of the records of the suit, authenticated by the attestation of the clerk, or other officer having charge of the records of the court in which such judgment was obtained, with the seal of such court annexed to the officer's certificate. (§ 8412.) See, also, Appeals; Limitations; Notes and Bills; Service.

Judgment notes are not used, but judgments by confession are entered, upon the sworn statement of defendant, for moneys due or to become due, or as a security for a contingent liability. (§ 7918.)

License. — Commercial travelers are not required to take out a license. A license is required of hawkers and peddlers (unless licensed by cities of fifty thousand inhabitants); also of transient merchants, in addition to any license which may be required by ordinance of cities and villages. (§§ 6089, 6098, et seq.) Cities and villages may by ordinance require license of transient merchants. (§ 1795.) A license is required for warehousemen and all persons engaged in the business of selling agricultural products on commission (Laws 1915, p. 503), and for the sale of commercial fertilizer.

Liens. — See Mechanics' Liens.

Limitations. — No title to land registered under the Torrens system can be acquired by possession adverse to the registered owner (§ 6869); in other cases, actions for the recovery of real estate may be brought within fifteen years; to foreclose a mortgage, within fifteen years (see Mortgages); on judgment of a court of the United States or of any State, within ten years; upon a contract or other obligation, express or implied, a liability created by statute other than those arising upon a penalty or forfeiture, trespass upon real estate, taking, detaining, or injuring personal property, crim. con., or other injury not herein enumerated, relief on the ground of fraud after the discovery thereof, to enforce a trust or compel a trustee to account, where trustee has neglected to perform or claims to have performed, or has repudiated, against sureties on the official bond of any public officer after his term of office has expired, within six years; against a sheriff, a coroner, or constable for an act done in his official capacity or an omission of an official duty, upon a statute for a penalty or forfeiture, within three years; for libel, slander, assault, battery, false imprisonment, or other tort resulting in personal injury, within two years. Action upon open account where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties, within six years from the last item on either side.

If, when an action accrues against a person, he is out of the State, the action may be commenced within the times herein stated after his return to the State; if after the cause of action accrues he departs from and resides out of the State, the time of his absence is not part of the time limited for the commencement of the action. If cause of action has arisen out of the State, and cannot be maintained by the laws of the place where accruing, it cannot be maintained here, except in favor of a citizen of this State who has owned the cause of action since it accrued. If plaintiff when a cause of action accrues is a minor, insane, imprisoned on a criminal charge or under sentence of a criminal court for a term less than his natural life, or citizen of a country at war with the United States, or if the action is stayed by injunction or statutory prohibition, the running of the period of limitation is suspended until the ground of disability is removed, but the extension shall not be for more than five years, except in case of infancy, and in no case for more than one year after the disability ceases. (§§ 7694-7710.)

The time between the death of a person and the granting of letters on his estate, not exceeding six months, and six months thereafter, are no part of the time limited for the commencement of actions by executors or administrators; and if the death occur within the last year of the period of limitation, the action may be commenced within one year after the death. If a cause of action survive against a decedent, not required to be presented to the probate court, an action may be brought against his personal representatives within one year after letters are granted. (§ 7711.)

No acknowledgment or promise is evidence of a new or continuing contract sufficient to take the case out of the operation of the statute, unless in writing, signed by the party to be charged thereby, except that this provision does not alter the effect of any payment of principal or interest. (§ 7712.) There is no other provision for reviving a debt or continuing it in force.

Married Women. — All property, real or personal, belonging to a woman at the time of her marriage, continues her separate property, and during coverture she may receive, hold, use, and enjoy property of every description, and all avails of her contracts and industry, free from the control of her husband and from any liability on account of his debts. She is responsible for her torts, her property is liable for her debts, and she is capable of making, and is bound by, her contracts the same as if she were unmarried; except that no conveyance or contract for the sale of her homestead, or of any interest therein, shall be valid unless her husband shall join with her in the conveyance. Her separate property is liable only for her own personal debts arising from her own contracts or torts, and also for necessities furnished to and used by the family. Her husband is not liable for her torts, her debts, or her contracts entered into either before or during coverture, except for necessities furnished after marriage. (§§ 7142-7146.) Contracts between husband and wife, or powers of attorney from one to the other, relating to the real estate of either, are void. In relation to all other subjects, either may be the agent of the other, or contract the one with the other. (§ 7147.) A married woman may sue and be sued in her own name without joining her husband. Women may contract marriage at the full age of fifteen years (§ 7089); they become of age at eighteen years. (§ 7214.) See Deeds.

Mechanics' Liens. — Whoever contributes to the improvement of real estate by performing labor, or furnishing skill, material, or machinery for any of the purposes hereinafter stated, whether under a contract with the owner or at the instance of any agent, trustee, contractor, or sub-contractor of such owner, shall have a lien upon said improvement and upon the land on which it is situated or to which it may be removed, for the price or value of such contribution; that is to say, for the erection, alteration, repair, or removal of any building, fixtures, bridge, wharf, fence, or other structure thereon, or for grading, filling in, or excavating the same, or for clearing or grubbing land, or for digging or repairing any ditch, drain, well, fountain, cistern, reservoir, or vault thereon, or for laying, altering, or repairing any sidewalk, curb, gutter, paving, sewer, pipe, or conduit in or upon the same, or in or upon the adjoining half of any highway, street, or alley upon which the same abuts. If contribution is made under contract with owner for agreed price, the lien shall be for that sum; otherwise for reasonable value. Premises shall not exceed forty acres if outside the limits of an incorporated city or village; one acre if within such limits. Lien for the construction, alteration, or repair of a line of railway or structure or appurtenance thereof, or of a telegraph, telephone, or electric light line, or of any line of pipe, conduit, or subway, or any appliance or fixture pertaining to either, extends to the line so improved and all the rights, franchises, and privileges of the owner appertaining thereto. Improvements, except repairs made by lessees, are deemed to have been authorized by owner, unless within five days after knowledge thereof he gives written notice, personally or by posting on the premises, to the contrary. To secure lien, a statement must be made by the lien claimant and verified, and filed with the register of deeds of the county (or, in case of telegraph and other lines, with the secretary of state) within ninety days from the date of the last item, and shall set forth: a notice of intention to claim and hold a lien, and the amount thereof; that such amount is due and owing to claimant for labor performed, or for skill, material, or machinery furnished, and for what improvement the same was done or supplied; the name of the claimant, and of the person for or to whom performed or furnished; the dates when the first and last items of the claimant's contribution to the improvement were made; a description of the premises to be charged, identifying them with reasonable certainty; the name of the owner thereof at the time of making such statement, according to the best information then had. A lien expires, unless asserted by complaint or answer in a suit brought in the district court within one year after the date of the last item of the claim as recorded. The procedure in such actions is, with much detail, prescribed by statute. (§§ 7020 et seq.; Laws 1917, p. 422.) Homesteads are not exempt.

Mortgages. — Mortgages are executed and acknowledged the same as deeds, except that in purchase-money mortgage husband and wife need not join. A conveyance, absolute in form, if intended as security, must express the fact that it is so intended and the amount of the debt secured; it will then be considered a mortgage. Mortgages are usually given to secure notes; sometimes notes with interest coupons, and occasionally bonds with interest coupons.

Mortgages on land in Minnesota are subject to a tax of fifteen cents upon each hundred dollars, or fraction thereof of the principal debt; if in terms any portion of the debt is due more than five years after its date, the tax on such portion is twenty-five cents on each hundred dollars or fraction thereof. The tax is payable at or before the time of filing the mortgage for record or registration. (§§ 2301-2307; Laws 1917, p. 98.)

Mortgages may be discharged by an entry in the margin of the record thereof, signed by the mortgagee, his personal representative, or assignee, acknowledging the satisfaction of the mortgage. Also, by a satisfaction of mortgage in usual form, duly executed and acknowledged, and recorded where the mortgage has been recorded. Wife need not join in the release unless she is a party to the mortgage. (§§ 6813, 6833, 6853.)

Mortgages usually contain a power of sale authorizing foreclosure by advertisement, in which case, upon six weeks' publication of the notice of sale prescribed by law, the premises may be sold to satisfy the debt, and there is a redemption of one year from day of sale. The party redeeming must pay the amount for which premises were sold, with interest at the rate specified in the mortgage, not exceeding ten per cent. (§§ 8108-8151.) Mortgages may also be foreclosed by action, and a personal judgment obtained in the same action against the mortgagor for any deficiency from the debt and costs arising on the sale of the mortgaged premises. (§§ 8152-8160.) The mortgagee has also an action for a strict foreclosure, but no final decree of foreclosure can be rendered until one year after judgment adjudging the amount due on the mortgage. (§ 8169.) If a mortgage is foreclosed by action and a sale of the premises, the time of redemption expires in one year from date of order of confirmation. (§ 8167.) Mortgages may be foreclosed for any default of principal or interest. Mortgages may be foreclosed within fifteen years after the date thereof, or after the maturity of the whole debt, if such time is clearly stated in such mortgage, and time can be enlarged only by written extension duly recorded. (§ 7698.)

On foreclosure of a mortgage on a homestead and other lands, if required, the other lands must be sold first. (§ 8173.)

A mortgagee cannot recover possession of real property until after foreclosure and the time to redeem has expired. (§ 8077.) If in possession lawfully acquired after default, he cannot be ejected until his mortgage debt is satisfied. (4 Minn. 499.)

For mortgages of personal property, see Chattel Mortgages.

Notaries Public. — Notaries public are appointed by the governor for the term of seven years. Have power throughout the State, while residing in the county for which appointed, to administer oaths, take depositions and acknowledgments, and make and record notarial protests. All official acts must be authenticated by his official seal. His signature must be followed by his official title and the date of expiration of his commission. His official character is certified by the clerk of the district court of the county where he resides.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law took effect July 1, 1913, but does not apply to instruments theretofore made. Persons severally liable upon the same obligation may all or any of them be included in the same action, at the option of the plaintiff. (§ 7683.)

No person, nor the heirs or personal representatives of such person, is liable on any negotiable paper if it is made to appear that his signature to the same was obtained by fraudulent representation, trick, or artifice as to the nature and terms of the contract so signed, and that he did not believe at the time of signing that such contract was negotiable paper under the law merchant, and that he was not guilty of negligence in signing same without knowledge of its terms, such negligence to be a question for a jury. (§ 6015.)

Practice. — Our courts practice under a Code which is drafted mainly after the New York Code, and is similar in most of its provisions. (Rev. Laws, ch. 77.)

Proof of Claims. — Non-residents sending claims for collection should give full names of creditors and their residence, full names of debtors so far as known and their place of business, an itemized statement of account, which, if suit is directed, or if against the estate of a deceased person, should be verified by oath to the effect that the deponent believes the same to be true and justly due above all legal set-offs, and, when convenient, the name of some person resident of this State who will execute a bond for costs. Such a course will often save much delay. See, also, Actions; Claims against Estates; Married Women.

Records. — Every conveyance of real estate must be recorded in the office of the register

No will (except nuncupative) is valid, unless in writing and signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his express direction, and attested and subscribed in his presence by two or more competent witnesses; except that a will is valid if in writing, subscribed by the testator and executed without this State in the mode prescribed by the law either of the place where executed or of the testator's domicile.

No nuncupative will is valid unless made by a soldier in actual military service, or by a mariner while at sea, and then only as to personal estate.

A subscribing witness cannot take under a will, unless there are two other subscribing witnesses who are not beneficiaries thereunder. But if he would have been entitled to a share in the estate in the absence of a will, then so much of such share as will not exceed the value of the devise or bequest to him shall be assigned to him by the court from the part of the estate included in such void bequest.

A will is revoked by subsequent marriage of testator; and provisions in favor of testator's spouse are revoked by divorce.

A will proved and allowed in any other State or country according to the laws thereof may be proved here, so as to operate upon real and personal property of the deceased, by the production of a copy thereof, and of its probate duly authenticated, to the probate court of the country wherein the real estate is situated, by the executor or other person interested in such will. The notice, hearing, and proceedings for probate of such will are substantially the same as in case of an original will proved here in the first instance.

When proved, wills are recorded in the office of the probate court in a book kept for that purpose, and if they affect the title to real estate, a certified copy is recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county where such real estate is situated. (§ 7250 et seq.)

Typewritten wills are admitted to probate.

MISSISSIPPI LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Green & Green, of Jackson.

The next general session of the legislature convenes the first Tuesday after the first Monday in 1920 (Constitution 1890, § 36).

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — For the jurisdiction of special courts, see Court Calendar.

1. Circuit Courts. — Actions are commenced by filing a declaration whereupon a summons is immediately issued (511). The declaration need only contain sufficient matter of substance for the court to proceed upon the merits, in ordinary, concise language, without repetition. Common law forms of action, though customarily employed, have been abolished (512). Subsequent pleadings are substantially as at common law, with statutory elimination of much technicality. Causes are triable on the merits at the first term held thirty days after personal service; however, judgment by default is obtainable after five days' personal service. Venue exists usually in the county where any defendant may be found; the most important exceptions being ejectment, trespass upon land, action for statutory penalty in cutting or boxing timber, and for the actual value thereof, which must be brought in the county where the action originated. Against railroads, express companies, steamboats, telegraph companies and individuals carrying on such business (subject to such federal limitations as may now or hereafter exist), the action may be in any county wherein a part of defendant's route lies (487); against insurance companies, in any county wherein the loss occurred, or, if upon a life policy, where the beneficiary resides (488).

2. Justices of the Peace. — Actions are begun by lodging with the justice the evidence of debt, statement of account, or other written cause of action, whereupon summons is immediately issued, which must be executed upon defendant five days before the return day (2229). If executed personally, the cause is then triable upon the merits without written pleadings. The proceedings are informal.

3. Chancery Courts. — Suits are commenced in equity by filing a bill in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, or prolixity, stating facts upon which complainant seeks relief. All formalities of equity pleadings may be omitted (338). Whereupon summons issues returnable either to rules — second Monday of month following — or to the next term of the court. When returnable to rules, defendant need not file pleading until the rule day next succeeding the return day. Subsequent pleas and proceedings are similar to those of the High Court of Chancery, with many important simplifications, including the taking of evidence orally. Venue is in the county where any necessary defendant may be found (321).

4. Various other statutory actions are expressly provided for and their procedure fixed by law. See, also, Costs; Evidence.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — Domestic Wills. — Where testate, the will must be probated in the chancery court where testator had a fixed place of residence. If none, then in the county where any land devised lies; if neither, and only personalty is disposed of, in the county of the death, or in the county where some portion of the personalty is located (1653). Any interested party may propound a will for probate (1654); special statutory provisions are made for contest; and if not contested, when probated in common form, within two years the will becomes incontestable (1662); if all interested persons are made parties to the application to probate, they are precluded thereafter by the probate of the will (1661). All original wills are to be recorded after probate (1668).

Foreign Wills. — The original of any foreign will or authenticated copies thereof, proved according to the law of the State of the Union, or of the territory, or of any foreign country where made, and affecting or disposing of property within this State, may be admitted to probate in the proper court, and shall be subject to contest just as though the original had been executed in this State (1669).

By statute, unless waived, executors are required to take oath, and letters testamentary are granted to the executor named in the will, if over eighteen years of age (1672); if there be no executor named, or a vacancy occurs, then administration, with the will annexed, ensues (1673); the directions of the will when lawful, are to be followed (1678).

Intestacy. — In case of intestacy, letters of administration are granted by the chancery court of the county where intestate had, at the time of his death, a fixed place of residence; but if none, then where intestate dies, or where some portion of the personalty is situated. The court shall grant letters to the relative who may apply, preferring, first, the husband or wife, and then such others as may next be entitled to distribution (see Descent and Distribution), selecting amongst those who may stand in equal right the person best calculated to manage the estate; or the court may select a stranger, or trust company organized under the laws of this State, if the kindred be incompetent; and if no such person applies within thirty days after the death, the court may grant administration to a creditor, or other suitable person (1689); but not to any person under the age of twenty-one years, of unsound mind, or convicted of any felony (1690). The person to whom administration is granted shall take the statutory oath, and execute a bond in a penalty equal to the value of all the personal estate, with such sureties, or a surety company, as may be approved by the court, or clerk, payable to the State, with the condition that if he "shall faithfully discharge all of the duties required of him by law, then this obligation shall be void."

Executors, unless dispensed with by the will, and administrators shall, within sixty days of the grant of his letters, return verified inventory both to the court and to the State Tax Commission (Laws 1918, 105) of the money belonging to the deceased, and the debts due to the deceased; and he shall, where appraisement is dispensed with, or be not made, embrace in the inventory the value of all personal property which has come into his hands (1714). The personal property, other than money and choses in action, shall be appraised by three or more discreet and disinterested persons, under a warrant issued, which shall command, imperatively (1716), the making of an allowance for one year's board and tuition for those entitled to receive it (1712), and full provision is made for its enforcement (1717).

Proceedings for the sale of property are governed in large measure by the statute, and lands may, under decree, be leased or sold to satisfy debts (1734, 1735, 1738). Decedent's mercantile business may be carried on under decree for nine months, and the purchase of small quantities of goods for replenishment may be authorized by the court or chancellor (Laws 1918, 319). Land, if the interest of the estate demands it, may be sold first (1742). Annual accounts are required, but accounting oftener may be required, and failure therein is a breach of the bond (1789). Final accounts must be filed complying with the statutory requirements, including notice to all parties interested (1794-1795). No final account can be allowed unless it shows and the court finds that all State inheritance taxes have been paid (Laws 1918, 109). See Proof of Claims.

Affidavits. — Any judge of any court of record, clerk of such court, master in chancery, member of the board of supervisors, justice of the peace, notary public, mayor or police justice of any municipality, and any officer of any State, or of the United States, authorized by the laws thereof to administer oaths, the judge of any court of record, the mayor, the chief magistrate of any city, borough, or corporation of a foreign country may administer oaths and certify affidavits wherever the same may be necessary (730). There is no statutory form prescribed, and any person scrupulous of taking an oath may affirm thus: "You do solemnly and truly declare and affirm" (1581).

Aliens. — Resident aliens may acquire and hold lands and dispose of them, and transmit them by descent as citizens of the State may, but non-resident aliens cannot acquire or hold land; although a non-resident alien may have or take a lien on land to secure a debt, and, at any sale thereof to enforce payment, purchase the same, and thereafter hold it not longer than twenty years, with full power during said time to sell to a citizen, or he may retain it by becoming a citizen within that time.

All lands acquired contrary to this section shall escheat to the State; but the title to real estate in the name of a citizen of the United States, or of a person who has declared his intention of becoming such, whether resident or non-resident, if he be a bona fide purchaser and holder, shall not be escheated by reason of the alienage of any former owner (2272).

Appeals. — All writs of error are abolished, and in all cases, civil and criminal, removal to the Supreme Court, is by appeal. Appeals may be taken from final judgments in chancery and circuit courts within one year from their rendition (2476) except as to persons under disability, who have a like period after removal thereof. Special provisions are made for appeals from interlocutory judgments or decrees. Appeals from the justices of the peace to the circuit court must be within ten days (63). Appeal from the court of unlawful entry and detainer, within five days (62); from the board of supervisors or municipal authorities, as to assessment of taxes, within five days (61) if by a taxpayer, but within twenty days, if by the State, county, or municipality (Laws 1918, 119).

As to other matters, appeal must be perfected during the term of the board to the circuit court (60). Writs of certiorari may be granted within six months (72-73).

Arrest. — Arrest for debt is not allowed (Constitution, 30).

Assignments for Creditors. — Except as affected by the National Bankruptcy Act, they may be executed as follows: Assignments with preferences are allowed. Every general assignment, unless the data appears on its face, must have attached two schedules: first, one of creditors, showing (a) the name of each creditor, (b) the post-office of each, (c) the sum due each, (d) how each debt is evidenced, (e) the amount of interest, and usury, if any is disclosed, (f) the consideration for each, and in case of renewals traced back to the original, (g) the securities held by each; second, a schedule of assets, describing the property conveyed, giving location and value. Both schedules (or, if the data appear on face of deed, the assignment) must be under oath of assignor, avowing truth of matters stated. A general assignment which fails to comply with the foregoing is void as to all preferences. But in every case of a general assignment where the property exceeds the value of one thousand dollars, the assignee, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, after having taken possession and within twenty-four hours, must file a petition in the chancery court for the administration of the trust, making the assignor and all creditors parties (107). He thus becomes the court's receiver. He must give bond as such, and file inventories. All creditors must establish their claims to the satisfaction of the court; and any creditor may contest the same. Any creditor may file a cross-petition and show that the assignment is fraudulent, or ought not, for any other reason, to be enforced; or that other property is liable for assignor's debts. In the first case, he has, if successful, priority over other creditors in the distribution of the property in the assignee's hands; in the second, a lien, from the filing of his cross-petition, on the property he seeks to subject. Assignments for the benefit of creditors are regulated by ch. 4, Code. Since the enactment of the Bankruptcy Act, assignments for creditors have practically fallen into disuse.

Attachments. — These are (1) in chancery; or (2) at law, and each is governed by statutory provisions.

Attachments in Chancery. — These are based upon demands founded upon any indebtedness, legal or equitable, for the recovery of damages for the breach of any contract, express or implied, or arising ex delicto, against any non-resident, absent or absconding debtor who has lands and tenements in this State, or against any such debtor and persons in this State who have in their hands effects of, or are indebted to such non-resident, absent, or absconding debtor; and if personal service is had, a decree in personam may be rendered (293). No bond is required of complainant as a condition to the issuance of this attachment. The procedure is statutory, and has become more common than the attachment at law on these grounds (294, 298).

Attachments at law. — Attachments at law are either before the circuit court or a justice of the peace, according to the amount involved. (See Jurisdiction of the Court; Court Calendar.) The remedy at law applies to all actions or demands founded upon any due indebtedness, the recovery of damages for the breach of any contract, express or implied, and to actions founded upon any penal statute (121). The writ of attachment is issued upon making affidavit setting forth the amount and character of the debt, and one or more of these grounds: (1) That the defendant is a foreign corporation; (2) that he has removed, or is about to remove, himself or his property out of the State; (3) that he so absconds or conceals himself that he cannot be served with a summons; (4) that he contracted the debt or incurred the obligation in conducting the business of a steamboat or other water-craft in some of the navigable waters of this State; (5) that he has property or rights in action which he conceals, and unjustly refuses to apply to the payment of his debts; (6) that he has assigned or disposed of, or is about to assign or dispose of, his property or rights in action, or some part thereof, with intent to defraud his creditors; (7) that he has converted, or is about to convert, his property into money, or evidences of debt, with intent to place it beyond the reach of his creditors; (8) that he fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation for which suit has been or is about to be brought; (9) that he is buying, selling, or dealing in, or has, within six months, next before the suing out of the attachment, directly or indirectly bought, sold, or dealt in future contracts, commonly called "Futures"; (10) that he is in default for public money, due from him as a principal, to the State, or some county, city, town, or village thereof; (11) that defendant is a banker, banking company or corporation, and received deposits of money, knowing at the time that he or it was insolvent; or has made or published a false or fraudulent statement as to his or its financial conditions.

Attachments may issue for a debt not due if sued out upon any one or more of the last six grounds (138); or, that the creditor has cause to suspect, and believes, that the debtor will remove himself or his effects out of the State before the debt will become payable, with intent to hinder, delay or defraud his creditors; or that he has removed, with like intent, leaving property in this State; and by giving bond as in other cases.

The Federal Courts have not as yet adopted the ninth, tenth, and eleventh grounds, nor the provision allowing creditors to intervene (125).

The creditor, before the writ can issue, must execute a bond with sufficient sureties, to be approved by the officer issuing the writ, in double the amount of the debt claimed, conditioned to pay such damages as the defendant may sustain by the wrongful suing out of the attachment, and all costs (126); whereupon the officer, approving the bond, issues one or more writs of attachment — which may include garnishments — against the estate of the debtor directed to any proper officer of the county or counties wherein the defendant may have property, or debts, and these writs shall be returnable to the proper court (129). Non-residents may attach. All attachments are triable at the first term. Process may be levied upon any form of property, and garnishments may be served (132). Plaintiff cannot defeat defendant's right to recover damages by dismissing the suit. Attachments, when successive, have priority in the order of their respective levies. Defendant may contest the grounds of attachment, in a preliminary and separate issue. If successful, he may recover actual damages, including attorneys' fees. If he fails, then a trial on the merits follows, and if a personal appearance is had, and plaintiff succeeds, judgment in personam and in rem follows, if no personal appearance, then plaintiff recovers only a judgment in rem. Each attaching creditor is liable for the damage caused by his own attachment and none other.

Automobiles. — Statutory provisions exist as to license. Non-residents, who have complied with the laws of their own States as to registration, may drive their cars in Mississippi for sixty days without payment of the tax. Statutory provisions cover brakes, speed, rules of the road, etc.

Banks. — A State Banking Department exists (Laws 1916, 312; Laws 1918, 177, 179, 181, 303, 306) having jurisdiction over all banks and trust companies and with powers of liquidation of insolvents. (See Bills of Lading.) Banks must be incorporated (3579); with specified articles (3585); they may have savings departments (3180); must have capital stock of at least ten thousand to fifty thousand dollars, according to population of town; use of words, "bank," "banker," "bankers," "banking house," or "trust company," prohibited under penalty, unless the banking statute is complied with (3583, 4). Branch banks prohibited (3521). Those existent permitted with not less than ten thousand dollars capital (3522). Any bank with twenty-five thousand dollars capital may be a "trust company" (3523), with the powers usual to trust companies, including administration of estates as executor or administrator (3524; Laws 1918, 306); must have word "trust" or "trust company" in its name (3526). Deposits under guaranty (3592). Stockholders are liable to depositors for amount of stock at par, in addition to the stock (3619); interlocking directorates and voting trusts forbidden (3625, 6). Cannot hold stock in other banks except in reserve banks. May be held as collateral and to prevent loss may be purchased but cannot be held more than twelve months (3627); cannot be members of unincorporated Clearing House Association; these must incorporate (3628).

Bills of Lading. — Every bill of lading shall be conclusive evidence in the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value, whether by assignment, pledge, or otherwise, as against the person or corporation issuing the same, that the property has been received (7636). This statute does not apply to interstate commerce. (107 Miss. 71.)

A bank, or other person, collecting a draft with bill of lading attached shall retain the money so collected for ninety-six hours after the delivery of the bill of lading to give drawee opportunity to garnish funds if dissatisfied with goods (7637).

Bills and Notes. — This State has adopted the Uniform Negotiable Instrument Act, applicable from July 7, 1916 (2579-2774). See Notes and Bills of Exchange.

Blue Sky Law. — Sections 4127-4150 regulate the issuance of corporate securities and require a permit from the Secretary of State before such securities, foreign or domestic, can be offered to the public in this State. Certain securities, however, are excepted from the operation of the statute, viz.: securities of the United States, any State, or Territory, or municipalities, or other taxing body; securities of any bank, trust company, or building and loan association, foreign or domestic; the securities of any public or quasi-public corporation, the issue of which is regulated by any public board or commission; securities of a corporation organized under the laws of this or any other State or Territory of the United States, or of the Federal Government; provided that under the laws of such State, Territory, or of the Federal Government, no capital stock of a corporation can be legally issued unless the par value of the stock is paid for in full either in cash or in property valued at not more than its actual cash value by some duly appointed officer or commissioner of such State, Territory, or of the Federal Government. While this statute is very broad and applies to securities of all kinds, except those especially excepted by its provisions, it seems to be aimed particularly at the securities of mining, oil, gas, and town-site companies.

Bulk Sales. — A sale of any portion of a stock of merchandise, other than in the ordinary course of trade, or in the regular and usual prosecution of the seller's business, or a sale of an entire stock, in gross, shall be presumed to be fraudulent and void as against creditors of the seller, unless at least five days before the sale: (a) the seller shall have made a full and detailed inventory, showing the quantity, and, so far as can be done by the exercise of reasonable diligence, the cost price to him of each article; and (b) the purchaser shall have in good faith made full and explicit demand of the seller for the name, place of residence, and business and post-office address of each of his creditors, and the sum due each, and to which demand the seller shall have made full and truthful written answers; and (c) the purchaser shall have in good faith notified personally, or by mail, each of the seller's creditors, of whom he has knowledge, of the proposed sale and of the cost price of the merchandise proposed to be sold and of the price to be paid therefor by the proposed purchaser (3129). The Bulk Sales Law is a substantive rule of law, and a sale without compliance, even though in good faith, is void, evidence thereof and of payment of value being inadmissible. In case of a destruction of the stock of goods by fire, within five days after the loss creditors must be notified, and no policy of insurance shall be transferred or assigned for ten days after such notice, nor paid for fifteen days after the fire (3130). This statute is inapplicable to judicial sales.

Chattel Mortgages. — These may be executed as mortgages or deeds of trust are executed, and must be acknowledged by the grantor to admit them to record.

Every writing respecting the title to personal property, which by law ought to be recorded, shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the chancery court of the county in which such property may remain, and if afterward the person, claiming title under such right, shall permit any other person, in whose possession the property may be, to remove the same, or any part thereof, out of the county in which the writing is recorded, and shall not, within twelve months after such removal, cause the writing to be duly certified to the county into which the property may be removed, and delivered to the clerk thereof to be recorded, the writing, for so long as it remains without being recorded or delivered for record in said county, and for so much of the property as may have been removed, shall be void, as to all purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice, as to all creditors (2289).

Transfers of all debts secured by recorded deeds of trust, mortgages, or other lien of record, shall be entered on the margin of the record of the lien, and, in default thereof, any satisfaction by the original creditor shall release the same as to subsequent creditors and purchasers for value without notice, unless the assignment be in writing duly acknowledged and filed for record, and every assignment by any assignee of such lien shall likewise be entered, with like effect in case of failure (2295).

Should there be a failure to enter of record on the margin within thirty days from the date of the assignment, or said assignment be not acknowledged and filed for record, within a like time, then the assignee thereof shall forfeit to the debtor ten per cent. of the amount of the indebtedness (2296).

Valid mortgages may be made of any property acquired or to be acquired, except (1) a mortgage or trust deed executed by a corporation covering its franchises, income, or future earnings shall not be valid as against debts contracted in the carrying on of its business (4076); and (2) a mortgage executed by a railroad company covering its income, future earnings, or rolling stock shall not be valid as against liabilities incurred as a carrier of freight and passengers, nor for damages to persons and property (6696); (3) mortgages upon a running stock of goods, or other property consumable in the use, left in the possession of the mortgagor with the right to dispose of the same in the usual course, or to consume the same, are fraudulent in law in their entirety.

There is no restriction upon the kind of notice required to be given for the foreclosure en pais for sales of personalty.

Claims against Deceased Persons. — The courts are strict in their interpretation of these statutes requiring proof of claims. Payment may be compelled of any debt duly probated, registered, and allowed, even though not due, and after six months from the granting of letters the creditor shall accept payment and give full discharge upon the payment or tender to him of an amount equal to what the debt would have been had it been payable on the day the payment or tender was made (1780).

All claims other than those secured (and secured claims to participate in the general assets) must be probated, registered, and allowed by the clerk of the court wherein letters testamentary or of administration were granted, within one year after the first publication of notice to creditors to probate, have allowed, and register their claims; otherwise the same shall be barred, and suit shall not be maintained thereon in any court, even though the existence of the claim may have been known to the executor or administrator (1775); and even when duly probated, if suit is not brought thereon within four years after the qualification of the executor or administrator the claim will be barred (2469). A creditor who has a lien of any kind on property of the decedent shall not be barred of his right to enforce the lien against the property encumbered by a failure to present his claim and have it probated, allowed, and registered; but by such failure he shall be barred of all claim to be satisfied out of the assets not affected by such lien (1779).

Any person desiring to probate his claim shall present to the clerk of the court the written evidence thereof, if any, or if the claim be a judgment or decree, a duly certified copy thereof, with a certificate of the clerk that the same is unsatisfied; or if there be no written evidence thereof, then an itemized account or statement of the claim in writing, signed by the creditor, and make affidavit to be attached thereto, to the following effect, viz.: That "the claim is just, correct, and owing from the deceased; that it is not usurious, and that neither the affiant nor any person has received payment in whole or in part thereof, except such as is credited thereon, if any, and that security has not been received therefor, except such as stated, if any." Thereupon, if the clerk approve, he shall endorse upon the claim the following words: "Probated and allowed for $. and registered, this the day of . A.D. ," and shall sign his name officially thereto. Such proof, allowance, and registration is a sufficient presentation (1774).

It is the duty of an executor or administrator to speedily pay the probated debts of the estate, if solvent; but he shall not pay any claim against the estate unless the same shall be probated, allowed, and registered (1773). Registration stops the statute of limitations, except that all claims duly probated must be sued on within four years after qualification by the executor and administrator (2469).

Special provisions are made for insolvent estates. If declared insolvent by the court, notice by publication to creditors to probate and register claims, if not already probated and allowed, within six months, is required, and failure so to do, within the time prescribed, bars the claim (1764). No suit can be brought against the executor or administrator until six months after the issuance of letters (1764); nor, at all, after four years from his qualification.

Conditional Sales. — No statutes. Adjudications recognise them, and recordation not necessary to protect rights of vendor, except if vendee shall transact business as a trader or otherwise, with the addition of the words "agent," "factor," "and company" or "& Co.," or other like words, and fail to disclose the name of his principal or partner by a sign in letters easy to be read at the place where such business is transacted, or if any person shall transact business in his own name without any such addition, then the property, stock, money, and choses in action used or acquired in such business, shall, as to the creditors of such person, be liable for his debts, and be in all respects treated in favor of his creditors as his property. This is commonly known as the "Sign Board" Statute (3128).

Consignments. — No special statute. If any person undertaking to act for others and so entrusted with business of any kind, or with money, shall unlawfully convert to his own use any money or other valuable thing which comes to his hand or possession by virtue of his office or employment, and shall not, when lawfully required, pay over such money, or deliver such thing immediately, according to his legal obligation, he shall, on conviction, be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than twenty years, or in the county jail not more than one year, or be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or both. (See, however, limitations under Conditional Sales, supra.)

Corporations. — By the Constitution of 1890, §§ 88, 178, corporations can be formed only under general laws, and the right to alter, amend, or repeal any charter created after November 1, 1890, is expressly reserved to the legislature, whenever in its opinion it may be for the public interest to do so: provided, however, that no injustice shall be done to stockholders. No charter shall be granted for a longer period than ninety-nine years. Should any existing corporation, not subject to the Constitution of 1890, receive any benefit or advantage of any amendment to its charter, under either general or special law, it immediately becomes subject to the provisions of the Constitution of 1890. The general law fixes a fifty-year limit on the life of any corporation, except railroads and insurance companies doing a general business (4069, 4070). No general law exists as to the amount of capital stock to be paid before organization, and none as to the number of directors resident in this State. Non-par stock corporations are not yet expressly authorized to be chartered, and it is questionable whether preferred stock can be issued by any Mississippi corporation. Corporations are required to pay charter fees ranging from twenty dollars, when the capital stock does not exceed ten thousand dollars, to two hundred and fifty dollars, when it equals or exceeds two hundred and fifty thousand dollars (4116).

Every corporation organized under the general laws shall, within thirty days after such organization, make report thereof to the Secretary of State. Failure therein makes the charter granted null and void, and constitutes the persons doing business thereunder partners and liable as such (4104). By the Constitution, organization must be had and business commences within two years from the grant of the charter; otherwise, it is of no validity. (Constitution, § 180.) Cumulative voting for directors is authorized (4074).

Every corporation, unless otherwise provided by law, may hold personal property in any amount necessary and proper for its uses and purposes, and every corporation, except manufacturing corporations, may hold lands necessary for its purposes, to an amount in value not exceeding one million dollars. Manufacturing corporations may hold land to an amount not exceeding two million dollars, but buildings and machinery and other fixtures on such land, shall be excluded in valuing the same.

A corporation offending against these provisions shall forfeit its charter and all real estate held above that which it may lawfully hold; but an increase in the market value of real estate, after it has been acquired, over the limit shall not operate to forfeit either the charter or any part of the real estate; such corporation may take land, or a lien on land, to a greater amount than it may lawfully hold, in payment or as security for a debt, if the same shall not be held for a longer period than ten years (4075). Railroads and insurance companies are not included in the preceding restrictions.

No corporation shall acquire title to, in fee, or for a term of years, or own, land for agricultural purposes in this State outside of an incorporated municipality; nor shall any corporation buy, acquire, trade, or deal in land situated in any incorporated municipality, for agricultural purposes, except as hereinafter provided; provided, that a corporation having the right to do business in this State may be lessor or lessee for not more than twenty years for as much as ten thousand acres of land to be used for agricultural purposes, but such lease shall not be renewed or extended; and, provided, further, that corporations now existing, or hereafter created under the laws of the State of Mississippi, may own or acquire, subject to the present statutory limitations, and may develop and cultivate, wild and uncultivated cut-over pine lands, and sell the same when improved to any person other than a corporation; provided, that such corporation may not so improve and cultivate at any time more than twenty per cent. of their holdings of such land in any one county, unless such twenty per cent. shall be less than one thousand acres, when, in such event, the corporation may improve and cultivate as much as fifty per cent.; and, provided, further, that when sale shall have been made of such improved and cultivated land, the corporation may acquire, improve, and thereafter cultivate other wild and uncultivated lands not to exceed the maximum herein specified. (Laws 1918, ch. 156.)

A corporation shall not engage in business not expressly authorized by its charter, nor fairly and reasonably incidental to the business therein authorized, and the corporation offending against this provision, if domestic, shall forfeit its charter, and if foreign, its right to do business, subject to a fine of not less than twenty nor more than five thousand dollars for every such offense. The penalty is to be recovered on the relation of the Attorney-General or District Attorney (3286-3288).

Corporate property is taxed ad valorem, and to the same extent as the property of individuals. Banks and banking capital are taxed on shares thereof according to the value thereof, augmented by the accumulation of surplus and unpaid dividends, exclusive of real estate, which shall be taxed as other real estate. Exemptions from taxation to which corporations are legally entitled at the adoption of the Constitution of 1890 remain in full force for the time of such exemption as expressed in the respective charters, or by general laws, unless sooner repealed. Special provisions are made for the taxation of domestic insurance companies, railroads, sleeping-car, express, and freight-line companies. Directors of any trade corporation, contracting debts in excess of the amount of the capital stock paid in, become personally liable, and may be sued therefor by any creditor, whether the debt be due at the time suit is brought or not, if such creditor is without notice or knowledge of the excess at the time the debt was made (4098). A loan of money shall not be made by any corporation to a stockholder therein, and in case such loan is made, the officers who made it, or assented thereto, shall be jointly and severally liable for the amount thereof and interest to creditors whose debts were contracted before the repayment of money by the borrower. But this does not apply to banks and building and loan associations. A bank may not lend more than one fifth of its capital to any officer or director, and officers and directors authorizing an excessive loan shall be individually liable to the bank for any loss (4096). Any obligation given by a subscriber for stock shall not be taken as payment of any of the capital stock of the company (4095). In all corporations each stockholder is individually liable for the debts of the corporation contracted during his ownership of stock, for the amount of any balance that may remain unpaid for the stock subscribed for by him, and may be sued by any creditor of the corporation, and such liability shall continue for one year after the sale or transfer of the stock (4081). Any mortgage executed by a corporation on its franchise, future earnings, or income, shall not be valid debts contracted in the carrying on of the business of such corporation (4076); nor is a mortgage executed since November 1, 1880, on income or future earnings or rolling stock of any railroad valid against liability incurred by the railroad as carrier or for damage sustained by persons or property (6696).

Domestication of Foreign Corporations. — Any foreign corporation may, under the statutory scheme (4090, 4091), become domesticated.

Foreign Corporations. — Corporations which exist by the laws of any other State of the Union, doing business in this State, may sue and be sued, and are liable to be proceeded against by attachment or otherwise as individual non-residents, whether the cause of action accrued in this State or not (4093). Every foreign corporation for profit, incorporated under the laws of any Government, either State or foreign, now or hereafter, doing business in this State, shall file in the office of the Secretary of State, a copy of its charter, or articles of incorporation, or in case such company or corporation is incorporated merely by certificate, a copy of such certificate shall be duly filed, certified and authenticated. Such charter, articles, or certificate shall be duly certified by the president and secretary, or other chief executive, of said corporation, and by attaching thereto the corporate seal, and the Secretary of State, on payment of fees hereinafter provided, shall give a certificate that said corporation has filed its charter, certificate, or articles of incorporation, and any foreign corporation which shall not file a copy of its charter or certificate, or articles of incorporation shall be liable to fine of not less than one hundred dollars. This section does not apply to insurance companies (4111). Any contract made by a corporation which has not complied with this section, unless it relates solely to interstate commerce, is void. Foreign corporations cannot do anything contrary to this State's laws or policies. Foreign insurance companies are admitted to do business through the Insurance Department. The Constitution of 1890 provides that no foreign corporation shall, by the legislature, be licensed to build, operate, or purchase a railroad, or any interest therein; and no rights of privileges shall be granted, by either general or special law, to any corporation operating a railroad, unless its stockholders or owners shall become incorporated here, and operate under the domestic charter.

Corporations may surrender their charters under express statutory provisions.

Costs. — Security for costs is demandable by the clerk whenever a suit is instituted by a non-resident or insolvent party, and unless given, the clerk cannot be required to issue process, but if the party will pay the fees for filing and docketing the cause, and for issuing and returning the process, the clerk shall thereupon file and issue process (648).

After suit commenced, the clerk or any party interested, may make a motion for security for costs accrued and to accrue, and thereupon the complainant or plaintiff may be required to give bond for costs within sixty days after the order of court made for that purpose. Such party making such motion shall file an affidavit, if plaintiff is a non-resident of the State, that plaintiff has not, as he believes, sufficient property in this State out of which the costs can be made, if adjudged against him; or, if the plaintiff be a resident of the State, that he has good cause to believe, and does believe, that such plaintiff cannot be made to pay the costs of the suit, in case the same shall be adjudged against him; and when the affidavit is made by defendant that said defendant has, as he believes, a meritorious defense, and that the affidavit is not made for delay; or, when made by one not a defendant, that the affidavit is not made at the instance of the party defendant. If the security be not given, the suit may be dismissed and execution issued (649).

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms Thereof. — See Court Calendar.¹

Days of Grace. — Abolished by statute.

Death. — Action for wrongful death survives, and elaborate provisions are made for enforcing the liability of the party responsible, including the recovery of all damages of every kind and character produced thereby.

Deeds. — An estate of inheritance or a freehold, or for a term of more than one year, in lands shall not be conveyed from one to another unless the conveyance be declared by writing signed and delivered (2267).

Consignments. — No special statute. If any person undertaking to act for others and so entrusted with business of any kind, or with money, shall unlawfully convert to his own use any money or other valuable thing which comes to his hand or possession by virtue of his office or employment, and shall not, when lawfully required, pay over such money, or deliver such thing immediately, according to his legal obligation, he shall, on conviction, be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than twenty years, or in the county jail not more than one year, or be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or both. Days of Grace. — Abolished by statute.

Death. — Action for wrongful death survives, and elaborate provisions are made for enforcing the liability of the party responsible, including the recovery of all damages of every kind and character produced thereby.

Deeds. — An estate of inheritance or a freehold, or for a term of more than one year, in lands shall not be conveyed from one to another unless the conveyance be declared by writing signed and delivered (2267).

Seals, except for corporations, are abolished. Any interest in or claim to land may be conveyed to vest immediately, or in the future, by writing signed and delivered, which writing shall have the effect to transfer, according to its terms, title of the person signing and delivering it as fully as if it were transferred by feoffment with livery of seisin, notwithstanding there may be an adverse possession thereof (2266). Every estate in lands, granted or conveyed, although the words deemed necessary by common law to transfer an estate of inheritance be not added, shall be deemed a fee simple if a less estate be not limited by express words, or unless it clearly appear from the conveyance that a less estate was intended to pass thereby (2268).

Estates in fee tail are prohibited; and every estate which, but for this statute would be an estate in fee tail, shall be an estate in fee simple; but any person may make a conveyance or a devise of lands to a succession of donees, then living, not exceeding two, and to the heirs of the body of the remainder-man, and in default thereof, to the right heirs of the donor, in fee simple (2269).

Corporations convey their lands under their corporate seals, and the signature of an officer, who may acknowledge the same, or proof thereof may be made as in other cases (2270).

A conveyance of quitclaim and release shall be sufficient to pass all the estate or interest the grantor has in the land conveyed, and shall estop him and his heirs from asserting and subsequently acquiring adverse title (2271).

The words "grant, bargain, and sell" operate as an express covenant to the grantee, his heirs, and assigns that the grantor was seized of an estate, free from encumbrance made or suffered by the grantor, and, also, for quiet enjoyment against the grantor, his heirs, and assigns, unless limited by express words contained in the conveyance (2273).

The word "warrant" without restrictive words in a conveyance, shall have the effect of embracing all of the five covenants known at common law, to-wit: seisin, power to sell, freedom from incumbrance, quiet enjoyment and warranty of title (2318).

This form of conveyance of land is valid:

In consideration of (here state amount) I convey and warrant to the land described as (describe it).

"Witness my signature, this the day of A.D. 19 " (2317).

All instruments in relation to land are recordable when properly acknowledged or proved, and when filed for record shall be notice to all creditors and subsequent purchasers of their existence (2293).

A written instrument of or concerning the sale of lands, whether the same be made for passing an estate of freehold or inheritance, or for a term of years, or for any other purpose, except as specially provided by law, shall not be admitted to record in the clerk's office unless the execution thereof be first acknowledged or proved, and the acknowledgment or proof duly certified by an officer competent to take the same in the manner directed, and any such instrument which is admitted to record, without such acknowledgment or proof, shall not be notice to creditors or subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration (2294).

Every instrument shall take effect as to subsequent purchasers, without notice, for a valuable consideration and as to creditors only from the time when delivered to the clerk to be recorded (2292).

All conveyances, mortgages, and trust deeds are void as to all creditors and subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration, unless they are acknowledged or proved and lodged with the clerk of the chancery court of the proper county; but as between the parties and their heirs, and as to subsequent purchasers with notice, or without valuable consideration, they are, nevertheless, binding (2291).

A covenant or agreement made in consideration of marriage shall not be good against a purchaser for a valuable consideration, not having notice thereof, or any creditor, unless the covenant or agreement be acknowledged by the party bound thereby, or it be proved by one or more of the subscribing witnesses that such party signed and delivered the same as his or her voluntary act before some officer authorized to take such acknowledgment or proof, and a certificate of such acknowledgment or proof shall be written upon the conveyance, and be signed by the officer before whom it was made, and shall be lodged with the clerk of the chancery court of the county in which the land is situated.

Acknowledgments or proof of witnessing may be made before any judge of the United States Court, any judge of the Supreme Court, any judge of the circuit court, or any chancellor, or before any clerk of a court of record, deputy clerk of a court of record, or notary public, who shall certify such acknowledgment or proof under the seal of his office, or before any justice of the peace, police justice, or mayor of any municipality, or any member of the board of supervisors, whether the property conveyed be within his county or not. If the party who shall execute any conveyance, or the witnesses thereto reside, or be in some other State or Territory of the Union, then the acknowledgment or proof may be made before and be certified by the Chief Justice of the United States, or an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, or a circuit or district judge of the United States, or any other United States judge, or any judge or justice of the Supreme or Superior Court of any such State or Territory; or any justice of the peace of such State or Territory, whose official character shall be certified under the seal of some court of record in his county, or before any commissioner residing in any State or Territory, who may be appointed by the Governor of this State to take acknowledgments or proof of conveyances, or a notary public, clerk of a court of record, having a seal of office, in such State or Territory (2301). If in a foreign country, then it may be made before any court of record, or the mayor or chief magistrate of any city, borough, or corporation of such foreign country in which the party or witnesses reside, or may be made before any commissioner residing in such country who may be appointed by the Governor of this State, or before any ambassador, minister, secretary of legation, or consul of the United States to the country in which the party or witness shall reside; but the certificate shall show that the party, or the party and witness, were identified before the officer, and that the party acknowledged the execution of the instrument, or that the instrument was duly proved by the witness (2302).

If the grantor of, or witness, or witnesses to any instrument of writing be dead or absent, so that the personal attendance of neither can be had, it may be established upon the oath of any person who, on examination before any officer competent to take acknowledgment, can prove the handwriting of the deceased or absent witness or witnesses, or if such proof cannot be had, then the handwriting of the grantor shall be proved, and the officer before whom such proof is made shall certify accordingly, and such certificate shall be deemed equivalent to an acknowledgment by the grantor or proof by a subscribing witness, and entitle the instrument to be recorded (2303).

The acknowledgment or proof must be certified substantially thus:

STATE OF }
COUNTY OF } ss.

Personally appeared before me (here insert the name and title of the officer), the within named A.B., who acknowledged that he signed and delivered the foregoing instrument on the day and date therein mentioned.

Given under my hand and official seal, this the day of A.D. 19 (2300).

If by a corporation, the sealing as well as the signature and delivery must be inserted.

The word "execute," however, is equivalent to "sign, seal, and deliver."

No separate examination of the wife is required, and in case of an individual, neither a seal nor a scroll is necessary. In case of witnesses, the proof of execution is substantially as follows:

STATE OF }
COUNTY OF } ss.

Personally appeared before me (here insert the name and title of the officer) the within E.F., one of the subscribing witnesses to the foregoing instrument, who, being first duly sworn, deposeth and saith that he saw the within, (or above) named A.B., whose name is subscribed thereto, sign (seal) and deliver the same to the said E.F.; that he, this affiant, subscribed his name as a witness thereto in the presence of said A.B.

Given under my hand (and official seal) this the day of 19 .

In the case of a married woman, she shall be described in the acknowledgment as the wife. For necessity of the wife or husband joining in any instrument, see Homestead.

Conveyances purporting to convey a greater estate than the grantor may lawfully convey operate to the extent that the grantor may lawfully convey (2278).

Conveyances or devises, except mortgages, devises, or conveyances in trust made to two or more persons, or to husband and wife, shall be construed to create tenancies in common, unless it manifestly appears from the tenor of the instrument that it was the intention to create an estate in joint tenancy or entirety, with the right of survivorship (2274).

Depositions. — Depositions may be used in the chancery court, and (Laws 1916, ch. 220) oral evidence may be introduced. Depositions of resident and non-resident witnesses in civil suits in the circuit or chancery courts may be taken: (1) when the person whose testimony is required shall be about to depart from the State, or by reason of age, sickness, or other cause, shall be unable or likely to be unable to attend court; (2) when the claim, or defense, on a material point thereof, depends upon the testimony of a single witness; (3) when the person whose testimony is required shall be a judge of the Supreme Court, circuit court, chancery court, or other officer who, on account of his official duties, cannot conveniently attend the court to give evidence; (4) when the testimony of the clerk of any court of record or of any sheriff or justice of the peace shall be required beyond the limits of his county; (5) when the witness shall be a female; (6) when the witness shall reside within the State and more than sixty miles from the place of trial (1586).

In the justice's court depositions may be taken as in the circuit court, and in addition when the witness resides in a different county from that wherein the justice's court is held (1585).

Depositions of witnesses in this State may be taken before any officer authorized to administer oaths, on ten days' notice to the opposite party or his attorney, of the time and place of taking such deposition. In case of an emergency, to be expressed in the notice, shorter notice shall be sufficient. When any party shall desire to take the deposition of any witness absent from or residing out of the State, he shall file interrogatories in the clerk's office or with the justices of the peace in cases before them, and serve the opposite party, or his attorney, with a copy thereof, ten days before issuing the commission, in which time the opposite party shall file cross-interrogatories, and thereupon the officer shall issue a commission annexed to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories, and the witness shall be examined by the commissioner thereon; but the witness may be orally cross-examined by the adverse party if he sees proper to attend the examination, and the party at whose instance the deposition is taken may, in that event, further examine the witness in rebuttal (1588). A commission to take depositions out of the State may be directed to one of several commissioners, in the alternative, by name or to any judge of a court of record, justice of the peace, mayor, chief magistrate of a municipality, commissioner appointed by the Governor of this State, or other person authorized by law to administer oaths by the law of the place where the deposition is to be taken (1590).

The witness shall be sworn or affirmed by the commissioner to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; the commissioner shall carefully and impartially examine the witness on the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories, or if the deposition be taken within the State, the officer shall so swear and examine the witness upon such interrogatories as may be put verbally or in writing by the parties, and in either event the officer shall cause the testimony to be fairly written down, either by himself or the witness, or some disinterested person, in his presence, and subscribed by the witness, and the testimony so taken down with the commission, if any, and the interrogatories and every exhibit and voucher relating thereto, and, also, a certificate by the commissioner or officer of all his proceedings therein, shall be sealed up and directed to the clerk of the court, or justice, where the action is pending, and transmitted in a safe and convenient manner; and the clerk shall open the same, and having endorsed thereon the time of receipt and opening thereof, shall deposit the same among the papers in the case (1591).

The commissioner shall have power to continue the taking of depositions from day to day and may adjourn the taking of them over from time to time, giving notice to the parties, unless they be present (1592). However, such depositions are usually taken under agreement waiving the issuance of commission, and substantially all other formalities. No special forms are prescribed by statute, and the following may be used:

Descent and Distribution. — Dower and curtesy are abolished.

Realty and personalty of intestates are governed by the same rule of descent, and all personal property in this State shall descend according to the laws of this State, regardless of the marital rights which may have accrued in other States, and notwithstanding the domicile of the deceased may be in another State, and that, too, whether the heirs of persons entitled to distribution be in this State or not, and the widow of such deceased person shall take her share in the personal estate according to the laws of this State (1380). Shares of stock of a bank located in Mississippi, though owned by the estate of decedent who dies in another State, has a situs in Mississippi, and is distributed according to Mississippi law. Choses in action of a non-resident have their situs at his domicile.

Real and personal property, not devised and not exempt, shall descend to his or her children, and, per stirpes, to their descendants in equal parts; if no child or children nor descendants of them, then to the brothers and sisters, and father and mother of the intestate, and, per stirpes, to the descendants of such brothers and sisters in equal parts, the descendants of a brother or sister to have, per stirpes, in equal parts among them, their deceased parent's share; and if there shall not be a child or children of the intestate or descendants of them, or father or mother, then such estate shall descend in equal parts to the next of kin of the intestate, in equal degree, computed by the rules of the civil law, and without representation among collaterals, except among the descendants of brothers and sisters of the intestate (1381).

No distinction is made between the kindred of the whole or half blood, except that the kindred of the whole blood in equal degree are preferred to the kindred of the half blood in the same degree. If the husband die intestate, and do not leave children, his widow inherits his estate after payment of debts. But where the deceased husband shall leave a child or children, by that or a former marriage, or descendants of such child or children, his widow shall have a child's part of his estate, in either case, in fee simple. And, if a married woman die, her property, not devised, shall descend to her husband and her children or other descendants, if she have any surviving her, either by a former husband or by the surviving husband, in equal parts, according to the rule of descent, and if she have children, and there, also, be descendants of other children who have died before the mother, the descendants shall inherit the share to which the parent would have been entitled if living, as co-heirs with the surviving children. If she have no children or descendants of children, the husband shall inherit all of her property (3383). Trust estates descend in the same manner, if not inconsistent with the declaration of trust.

Descent of Exempt Property. — The property, real and personal, exempt by law from sale under execution or attachment, shall, on the death of the husband or wife owning it, descend to the survivor of them, and the children and grandchildren of the deceased, as tenants in common, grandchildren inheriting their deceased parent's share; and if there be no children or grandchildren of the decedent, to the surviving husband or wife; and, if there be no such survivor, to the children or grandchildren of the deceased owner; but where the surviving husband or wife shall own a place of residence equal in value to the homestead of the decedent, and the deceased husband or wife have not surviving children or grandchildren of the last marriage, but have children or grandchildren of a former marriage, the homestead of such decedent shall not descend to the surviving husband or wife, but shall descend to the surviving children and grandchildren of the decedent by such former marriage as other property (1389).

If there shall be neither surviving wife or husband, nor children or grandchildren of the decedent, the exempt property shall be liable to debts of the decedent and be disposed of in all respects as other property of such decedent (1390).

When a decedent leaves a widow to whom his exempt property, real and personal, descends, the same shall not be subject to partition or sale for partition during her widowhood, as long as it is occupied or used by her, unless she consent (1391).

Any person willfully causing or procuring the death of another in any way shall not inherit from him, but the property shall descend as if the person so causing or procuring the death had never been in being (1392).

When any of the children of a person dying intestate, or their descendants, shall have received from such intestate, in his lifetime, any property by way of advancement, and shall choose to come into the partition and distribution of the estate with the other parceners and distributees, such advancement shall be brought into hotchpot with the whole estate, and thereupon such person shall be entitled to his or her proportion of the whole estate descended; but such advancement shall be valued according to its value at the time the distributee received it (1388).

Divorces — May be granted for the following reasons: 1. Natural impotency. 2. Adultery, unless it should appear that it was committed by collusion of the parties for the purpose of procuring divorce, or unless the parties cohabited after a knowledge by complainant of the adultery. 3. Being sentenced to the penitentiary, and not pardoned before being sent there. 4. Willful, continued, and obstinate desertion for the space of two years. 5. Habitual drunkenness. 6. Habitual and excessive use of opium, morphine, or other like drug. 7. Habitually cruel and inhuman treatment. 8. Insanity or idiocy at the time of the marriage, if the party complaining did not know of such infirmity. 9. Marriage to some other person at the time of the pretended marriage between the parties. 10. Pregnancy of the wife by another person at the time of the marriage, if the husband did not know of such pregnancy. 11. Either party may have a divorce if they be related to each other within the degrees of kindred between whom marriage is prohibited (1411).

The proceedings to obtain divorce are by bill in chancery conducted as other suits, except the defendant is not required to answer under oath and the bill cannot be taken as confessed, nor shall admissions in the answer be taken as evidence; and in all cases the bill must be accompanied by an affidavit of the complainant that it is not filed by collusion with the defendant (1418).

The decree does not render the children illegitimate, unless at the time of the pretended marriage it shall adjudge the marriage to have been void from the beginning because of one of the parties being married to another at that time. The decree may provide that the guilty party shall not marry again. All the marital rights cease with the decree (1412).

Decrees of divorce may be revoked by the court granting them upon joint application of the parties (1414). Alimony, with or without divorce, and custody and maintenance of the children, may be decreed (1415).

The jurisdiction of the chancery court in divorce proceedings exists: (a) Where both parties were domiciled within this State when the suit was commenced; or (b) where the complainant was domiciled within this State when the suit was commenced, and the defendant was personally served with process within this State; or (c) where one of the parties was domiciled within this State when the action was commenced, and one or the other of them actually resided within this State for one year next preceding the commencement of the suit.

In any case where the proof shows that a residence or domicile was acquired in this State with a purpose of securing a divorce, the court shall not take jurisdiction thereof, but shall dismiss the bill at the cost of complainant (1412).

Dower and Curtesy. — Tenancy by curtesy and dower were abolished, effective November 1, 1880.

Estates of Decedents. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Evidence. — Parties to the record and interested in the result of the suit are competent witnesses, except (1) that no one is allowed to establish his own claim for or against the estate of a deceased person which originated during the life of such decedent, or any claim he has transferred since the death, or to establish his own claim against a person of unsound mind which originated before the insanity (1577); or (2) any person guilty of willful and corrupt perjury (1051), or of unlawful and corrupt subornation of perjury (1053).

Husband and wife may be introduced for, but not against, each other as witnesses in all cases, civil or criminal, and shall be competent witnesses in their own behalf, as against each other, in all controversies between them (1576); in civil cases a party may be required to testify against himself.

Executions. — In the chancery and circuit courts execution issues on final judgments or decrees within twenty days after the court adjourns, unless otherwise directed by the court or the owner of the judgment, and in justice's courts, not before five days after judgment unless the party recovering judgment files an affidavit averring that he believes he will be in danger of losing his debt by such delay, in which case execution may issue immediately.

Executions are returnable on the first day of the next term, and are issued by the clerk of the circuit or chancery courts, or by the justice of the peace, for their respective courts; and may be taken out at any time within seven years after the date of the judgment or decree (2467).

Equitable interests and undivided interests are vendible under execution, as are, also, bank-notes, bills, or evidences of debt circulating as money, stocks, and any judgment or decree, but not a growing crop (2975-2977). Executions, where there is no judgment lien, bind the property actually levied upon from the time of the levy. (See Stay of Execution; Exemptions; Judgments.)

Exempt Property. — The following personal property shall be exempt to any person from seizure under execution or attachment: 1. The tools of a mechanic necessary for carrying on his trade. 2. The agricultural implements of a farmer necessary for two male laborers. 3. The implements of a laborer necessary in his usual employment. 4. The books of a student required for the completion of his education. 5. The wearing apparel of every person. 6. The libraries of all persons, including pictures, drawings, and paintings, not exceeding five hundred dollars in value; also the instruments of surgeons and dentists, used in their profession, not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars in value. 7. The arms and accoutrements of each person of the militia of the State. 8. All globes and maps used by the teachers of schools, academies and colleges. 9. The following property of each head of a family, to be selected by the debtor, to-wit: (a) Two work-horses or mules, and one yoke of oxen; (b) two head of cows and calves; (c) ten head of hogs; (d) twenty head of sheep and goats, each; (e) all poultry; (f) all colts under three years old raised in this State by the debtor; (g) two hundred and fifty bushels of corn; (h) ten bushels of wheat or rice; (i) five hundred pounds of pork, bacon, or meat; (j) one hundred bushels of cotton seed; (k) one wagon, and one buggy or cart, and one set of harness for each; (l) five hundred bundles of fodder and one thousand pounds of hay; (m) forty gallons of sorghum or molasses or cane syrup; (n) one thousand stalks of sugar cane; (o) one molasses mill and equipments, not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars in value; (p) two bridles and one saddle, and one side-saddle; (q) one sewing machine; (r) household and kitchen furniture not exceeding in value two hundred dollars; (s) all family portraits; (t) one mower and rake for cutting and gathering hay or grain. 10. And the following property shall be exempt from garnishment, or other legal process, to-wit: (a) The wages of every laborer or person working for wages, being the head of a family, to the amount of fifty dollars per month; but this paragraph shall not apply to a debt for board and lodging or a judgment founded on a debt for board or lodging. (b) The proceeds of insurance on property, real and personal, exempt from execution or attachment, and the proceeds of the sale of such property (1812).

The proceeds of a life insurance policy, to an amount not exceeding ten thousand dollars upon any life, shall inure to the party or parties named as beneficiaries thereof, free from all liability for the debts of the person whose life was insured, even though such person paid the premiums thereon (1813).

The proceeds of a life insurance policy not exceeding five thousand dollars, payable to the executor or administrator of the insured, shall inure to the heirs and legatees, free from all liability for the debts of the decedent, except premiums paid on the policy by any one other than the insured for debts due for the last illness and for funeral expenses. But if the life be otherwise insured for the benefit of the heirs and legatees at the time of his death, and they shall collect the same, the sum collected shall be deducted from the five thousand dollars (1814).

The proceeds of any judgment, not exceeding ten thousand dollars, recovered on account of personal injuries, inures to the party or parties in whose favor such judgment may be rendered freed from liability for the debts of the person injured (1815).

Every citizen of this State, being a householder and having a family, is entitled to hold, exempt from seizure or sale under execution or attachment, the lands and buildings owned and occupied as a residence by him or her; but the quantity of land shall not exceed one hundred and sixty acres, nor the value thereof, inclusive of improvements, save as hereinafter provided, the sum of three thousand dollars. Persons over the age of sixty years, who have been exemptionists under this section, shall not be deprived of the exemption because of not having a family, or not occupying the homestead (1821).

Every citizen of this State, being a householder and having a family, residing in any municipality, shall be entitled to hold, exempt from seizure or sale, the lands and buildings owned and occupied as a residence by such person, not to exceed the value, save as herein provided, of three thousand dollars, and personal property, to be selected, not to exceed in value two hundred and fifty dollars; or the articles exempt to the head of a family. Persons over sixty years of age, who have been exemptionists under this section, shall not be deprived of such exemption because of not having a family, or not occupying the homestead (1822).

The exemptions granted are allowed only in favor of residents of this State (1838).

A conveyance, mortgage, or other encumbrance upon the homestead, exempted from execution, shall not be valid or binding unless signed by the wife of the owner, if he be married and living with his wife (1834), and vice versa, where the homestead is owned by the wife (1836).

The title to exempt property vests in the widow and children or husband and children, as tenants in common, by operation of law, on the death of the debtor. It is to be set aside in an inventory of appraisement, but executors or administrators have no title to it. If there be no widow, husband or children surviving, the property is liable to creditors. The debtor may sell his exempt property and convey good title. He may also remove it from the State. No property is exempt from execution when the purchase money forms in whole or in part the debt on which the judgment is founded, nor is any property exempt from sale for the non-payment of taxes or assessments or for materials furnished therefor, or for a debt for labor done thereon, or where the judgment is for labor performed, or upon a recognisance or bail bond.

Exemptions from Taxation. — The power to tax corporations and other property shall not be surrendered or abridged by any contract or grant to which the State, or any political subdivision thereof, may be a party, except that the legislature may grant exemption from taxation in the encouragement of manufactures and other new enterprises of public utility extending for a period not exceeding five years; the time of such exemptions to commence from the date of the charter, if to a corporation, and if to an individual, then from the commencement of work, but such exemption must be by general laws which shall distinctly enumerate the class of manufactures and other enterprises of public utility entitled to such exemption, and shall prescribe the mode and manner in which the right to such exemption shall be determined (Const., 182).

Under the Laws of 1918, ch. 183, all permanent factories or plants of the kind hereinafter named which are now in the course of establishment, or shall hereafter be established in this State, before the first day of January, 1920, shall be exempt from all State, county, and levee taxation for a period of five years, to-wit: all wood distillation plants for the manufacture of wood alcohol, acetate of lime, acetone, and other by-products from wood waste, all shipyards, factories and plants working cotton, cement, cement plaster, and lime, rock and stone, jute and ramie, wool, silk, furs and metals, or for manufacturing machinery, or instruments or articles in a finished state, or for making wagons, automobiles, carriages, buggies, furniture, clothing or shoes; all packing plants and factories engaged in packing farm products into food products for human beings; and all creameries: all State, county, municipal, levee, or school bonds or other government obligations issued after April 1, 1906, all notes and evidences of debt bearing interest at not greater than six per cent. and money loaned at six per cent. or less, are exempt from all taxation whatever.

Garnishments. — Garnishments may be issued (1) on an in personam judgment at law or decree in chancery; (2) as an incident to an attachment writ and as part thereof.

The writ issues on the suggestion of plaintiff that a person named is indebted to the defendant, or has in his possession effects of such defendant (1932). No bond is required, further than the original attachment bond, in attachment proceedings, whereupon the garnishee is required to answer under oath: 1. Whether he is indebted to the defendant or of judgment, or for refusal of court to revoke, modify, or change an interlocutory order appointing a receiver, or dissolving an injunction or interlocutory judgments in partition cases which determine rights of parties, or from any final judgment in a case or from any special order after final judgment.

All appeals from circuit courts must be taken during the term, as above stated, or any judge of the supreme court or courts of appeal, respectively, in cases appealable to said courts, upon inspection of a copy of the record, may grant an appeal by special order, at any time within one year next after final judgment or decision in the cause.

Appeals from probate courts and county courts are taken to the circuit courts within ten days after the close of the term at which the judgment appealed from was rendered, if in probate court, and within ten days after the judgment was rendered, if in the county court, and subject to the same conditions and terms as required of the applicant for an appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace, except that the appeal bond is approved by the probate judge or clerk who allows the appeal, and except that an executor or administrator appealing is not required to give bond when appealing from probate court, but may be required to give such bond when appealing from an order revoking his letters or requiring him to give further security, or otherwise affecting his personal interest.

Judgments of the circuit court may be reviewed by the supreme court or courts of appeal having appellate jurisdiction on writs of error within one year after judgment or in case the person entitled to sue out the writ is under twenty-one years of age, within three years after such disability is removed.

Arrest. — There is no arrest for debt in any case.

Assignments. — The national bankruptcy act of 1898 has practically suspended the operation of this law, but when assignments are made they will be administered by the State courts unless bankruptcy proceedings are filed within four months of the assignment.

Attachment. — An attachment may be obtained at any time, by resident as well as non-resident plaintiffs, when it appears and can be proven that the defendant, 1st, is not a resident of this State; or, 2d, that defendant is a corporation whose office or place of business is out of this State; or, 3d, that defendant conceals himself so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him; or, 4th, that defendant has absconded or absented himself from his usual place of abode in this State, so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him; or, 5th, that defendant is about to remove his property or effects out of this State with intent to defraud, hinder, or delay his creditors; or, 6th, that defendant is about to remove out of this State with the intent to change his domicile; or, 7th, that defendant has fraudulently conveyed or assigned his property or effects so as to hinder or delay his creditors; or, 8th, that defendant has fraudulently concealed, removed, or disposed of his property or effects so as to hinder or delay his creditors; or, 9th, that defendant is about fraudulently to convey or assign his property or effects so as to hinder or delay his creditors; or, 10th, that defendant is about fraudulently to conceal, remove, or dispose of his property or effects so as to hinder or delay his creditors; or, 11th, that the cause of action accrued out of this State, and defendant has absconded or secretly removed his property or effects into this State; or, 12th, that the damages for which the action is brought arose from the commission of some felony, or misdemeanor, or the seduction of a female; or, 13th, that defendant has failed to pay the price or value of the article or thing delivered, which by contract he was bound to pay upon delivery; or, 14th, that the debt sued for was fraudulently contracted on the part of the defendant. Attachments can be had in "any civil action" if one of the above mentioned grounds therefor exists. And such attachment can be had for a debt not yet due except in the cases above specified as the first four grounds for an attachment; but no judgment till the debt matures. To entitle plaintiff to an attachment, he or some one for him must file with the clerk of the court an affidavit stating that he has a just demand against defendant, and that the amount which affiant believes plaintiff ought to recover, after allowing all just credits and set-offs, is dollars, and that affiant has good reason to believe and does believe in the existence of one or more of the foregoing grounds for attachment, specifying them in the language above set out. The plaintiff must also, at the time of filing such affidavit (except when defendant is a non-resident of the State, and except also when plaintiff is the State or a county), file a bond signed by him or some responsible person as principal, and one or more securities, resident householders of the county in which the action is brought, in a sum at least double that sworn to in the affidavit, and conditioned for the prosecution of the action without delay and with effect, to refund all sums that may be adjudged to be refunded to defendant or found to have been received by plaintiff and not justly due him, and also for the payment of all costs and damages that may accrue to defendant or any garnishee, sheriff, or other officer by reason of the attachment, or any process or proceeding in the suit, or any judgment or process thereon. The attachment may be levied on real estate as well as personalty, in cases in circuit court, and against personalty alone in cases in justice courts, and debts may be garnished thereunder. If the ground of the attachment is denied under oath, and upon a trial plaintiff fails to substantiate his affidavit, the attachment will abate, but the suit proceeds to judgment, unless the demand be one not due at the date of the writ. If writ of attachment is obtained by plaintiff against a non-resident without giving any bond, the attachment must be dissolved as of course upon defendant entering his appearance and filing his answer to the merits, but plaintiff may, if he desire, give bond at the time of filing suit, in which event the attachment cannot be dissolved by defendant by entering his appearance.

In all suits by attachment, the court in which said suits are pending may in its discretion permit any person or persons who are creditors of the same defendant to appear in said suits on behalf of the defendant, and make all such defenses as the defendant could make.

If two or more creditors levy an attachment at the same time, which proves insufficient to pay their debts in full, they will share the fund pro rata; and priority in levying the attachment secures priority of right (provided the attachment is sustained) to the entire fund until the debt sued for and costs are paid in full. If an attachment is set aside or dismissed, the attaching creditor, whether prior or subsequent, is liable for such damages on his attachment bond as resulted from his own levy and the proceedings thereunder.

Attachment will also lie for rent due and unpaid after demand therefor.

The wages of servants and laborers, not exceeding one hundred dollars, which accrued within six months prior to an attachment or receivership, are preferred debts.

Chattel Mortgages. — Mortgages and deeds of trust upon personalty are void as to the creditors of the grantor and purchasers without notice thereof, unless the property is delivered to and retained by the mortgagee, or beneficiary in the deed of trust, or trustee, or the instrument is filed or recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds in the county where the grantor resides. In case of non-resident grantors, however, mortgage must be recorded or filed in office of recorder of deeds of the county or city where the property mortgaged was situated at the time of executing such mortgage. If recorded, the lien of the mortgage exists until the notes secured by it are barred. If filed, however, the lien ceases at the expiration of five years, when the mortgage is destroyed by the recorder. No chattel mortgage can be foreclosed after obligation is barred by the statute of limitations. In this State the settled law as declared by the supreme court in a line of decisions is that a mortgage upon stock in trade, which is to remain in the possession of the mortgagor and be dealt with by him, for his own benefit, is fraudulent and void as to creditors and subsequent purchasers.

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — In granting letters of administration, priority in right is given as follows: First, to the husband or wife; second, to one or more of the distributees of the estate according to the discretion of the court, or judge or clerk in vacation. If such distributees should be considered incompetent, some other person may be appointed. Married women cannot be administrators or qualify as executors. Non-residents of this State are not permitted to administer upon the estates of deceased persons, even though appointed by letters testamentary.

Separate administration is necessary in this State where non-resident decedent owned real estate situated in Missouri or stocks in Missouri corporations at the time of his death.

Executors and administrators are required to give bond, with two or more sureties resident in the county where administration is granted, to the State of Missouri, in an amount not less than double the value of the estate, excepting in cases where the testator by his will designating an executor requests that he be not required to give bond; but in such cases the court in its discretion may, at the instance of a creditor or devisee, require such bond to be given. The court, of its own motion, may require a bond to be given when it deems it necessary to protect minor legatees or devisees.

The court, judge, or clerk thereof shall cause to be published in some newspaper in the county where letters have been granted an attested notice signed by the executors and administrators of the grant to them, of the same, stating the date thereof, and requiring all persons having claims against such estate to exhibit the same for allowance to them within six months after the date of such letters, or they may be precluded from the benefits of such estate; and that if such claims be not exhibited within one year from the time of the publication of such notice, they will be forever barred. Demands against the estate of a deceased person are divided into classes, and are paid by the executor or administrator, so far as he has assets, in the order in which they are classified. If there be not sufficient assets to pay the whole of any class, the demands in such class shall be paid pro rata. The classification and priority of demands against deceased persons are as follows: First, funeral expenses; second, expenses of last sickness, wages of servants and claims for medicine and medical attendance during last sickness of deceased; also reasonable cost of tombstone if allowed by the court; third, all debts, including taxes, due this State or any county or incorporated town or city therein situated; fourth, all judgments rendered against deceased in his lifetime, and judgments rendered upon attachments levied during the lifetime of the deceased; fifth, all demands, without regard to quality, which shall be legally exhibited against the estate within six months after the granting of first letters on the estate; sixth, all demands exhibited after the end of six months and within one year after letters have been granted. The period of one year begins to run from the date of the letters where notice is published within ten days after the granting of the same, and in all other cases the year begins to run from the date of the first insertion of the publication of notice.

All claims must be presented for allowance to the probate court. To secure allowance of a demand, notice of the intended presentation must be given in writing to the executor or administrator at least ten days before the commencement of the term of court at which the demand is intended to be presented, but such notice may be waived by the executor or administrator. Claimant must also make an affidavit showing that he has given credit to the estate for all payments and offsets to which it is entitled and that the balance claimed is justly due. Claims allowed bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum.

In addition to dower, the widow is allowed to keep as her absolute property a family Bible and other books, not to exceed in value two hundred dollars; all the wearing apparel of the family, her wheels, looms, and other implements of industry; all yarns, cloth, and clothing made up in the family for their own use; all grain, meat, vegetables, groceries, and other provisions on hand and provided, and necessary for the subsistence of the widow and her family for twelve months; her household, kitchen, and table furniture, including beds, bedsteads, and bedding, not to exceed the value of five hundred dollars; but if the grain, meat, or other provisions allowed the widow, as above specified, are not on hand at the time of the taking of the inventory, the court must make a reasonable appropriation out of the assets of the estate to supply such deficiency. In addition to the above provisions for her benefit, the widow may take such personal property as she may choose, not to exceed the appraised value of four hundred dollars. The provision for her benefit last above named must be applied for by her before the property is sold or distributed, and must be deducted from her dower in the personal estate, if there be any; but the property so delivered can in no case be liable for the payment of the debts of the deceased. If the widow has not received the property thus allowed to her, and the same is sold by the executor or administrator, the court must order the money to be paid to the widow at any time before it has been distributed or used for the payment of debts. If there be no widow, minor children under eighteen years of age are entitled absolutely to the same property and allowances as the mother was entitled to take. If wife dies intestate, owning personal property, in addition to curtesy, husband is allowed to keep as his absolute property all property allowed widow against deceased husband's estate. If a widow leaves minor children under eighteen years of age, they are entitled to the same property and allowances as a mother would be entitled to take at the death of her husband.

Executors and administrators are required by law to make their first settlement at the first term after the end of six months from the date of the letters and the second at the first term after the end of one year from the date of the letters. If the estate is not closed in one year, they are required to make annual settlements.

Executors or administrators are required to publish for four weeks prior to final settlement a notice thereof, in some newspaper published and circulated in the county where such settlement is to be made, or, if none be published in said county, then by ten printed handbills put up in ten public places in said county, informing all creditors and others interested in the estate that they intend to make such final settlement at the next term of the court.

Executors and administrators appointed in other States are not recognized in this State (but see Actions).

Conditional Sales. — In all cases where any personal property shall be sold to any person, to be paid for in whole or in part in installments, or shall be leased, rented, hired, or delivered to another on condition that the same shall belong to the person purchasing, leasing, renting, hiring, or receiving the same whenever the amount paid shall be a certain sum, or the value of such property, the title to the same to remain in the vendor, lessor, renter, hirer, or deliverer of the same until such sum, or the value of such property, or any part thereof, shall have been paid, such condition, in regard to the title so remaining until such payment, shall be void as to all subsequent purchasers in good faith, and creditors, unless such condition shall be evidenced by writing executed, acknowledged, and recorded as provided in cases of mortgages of personal property.

Whenever such property is so sold or leased, rented, hired, or delivered, it shall be unlawful for the vendor, lessor, renter, hirer, or deliverer, or his or their agent or servant, to take possession of said property without tendering or refunding to the purchaser, lessee, renter, or hirer thereof, or any party receiving the same, the sum or sums of money so paid, after deducting therefrom a reasonable compensation for the use of such property, which shall in no case exceed twenty-five per cent. of the amount so paid, anything in the contract to the contrary notwithstanding, and whether such conditions be expressed in such contract or not, unless such property has been broken or actually damaged, and then a reasonable compensation for such breakage or damage shall be allowed. Contracts for furnishing railroads or street railways with equipment or rolling stock may stipulate for a conditional sale thereof, and that title to property sold may be reserved in the original owner until full payment is made, property to be marked with name of owner, lessor, or bailor on each side thereof. Such contracts must be recorded in the office of the secretary of state.

Consignments. — Bills of lading and warehouse receipts are made negotiable by written indorsement and delivery in same manner as bills of exchange and promissory notes, unless words "non-negotiable" are plainly written or stamped on face, and person to whom negotiable bill of lading or warehouse receipt is so transferred is "deemed and held to be the owner of the goods" covered thereby, so far as to give validity to any pledge, lien, or transfer given, made, or created thereby, as on the faith thereof.

It is made a criminal offense for carrier or warehouseman to issue bill of lading or warehouse receipt without actual custody of the property described therein.

Corporations. — Corporations can be created for any lawful purpose for "mutual benefit and profit." All corporations (except municipal corporations) must be formed under a general statute pertaining to the subject. Private charters are prohibited. The several classes of corporations are as follows: First, railroad companies; second, express companies; third, street railroads; fourth, telegraph and telephone companies; fifth, manufacturing and business companies; sixth, mutual savings fund, building and loan associations; seventh, cooperative companies; eighth, benevolent, religious, scientific, educational, and miscellaneous associations; ninth, booming and rafting companies; tenth, bond investment companies; eleventh, exposition companies; and, twelfth, macadamised, graded, and plank road companies. Provision is also made for training schools for minors and police and firemen's relief associations. Stockholders are liable only for the unpaid balance of the par value of the stock subscribed by them. Corporations are prohibited from owning real estate, except such as is necessary and proper for the transaction of their business, for a longer time than six years. Every corporation organized in this State must have a chief office or place of business in this State and at least three resident directors. The amount of the capital stock of a corporation cannot be less than two thousand dollars nor more than fifty million dollars. Fifty per cent. of the authorised capital stock must be in good faith subscribed and actually paid up in lawful money or in property of the full value thereof. If any part of the capital stock is paid in property, the articles must give an itemised description of such property, setting out the cash value of each item thereof, and show, if such property be real estate, the exact description by metes and bounds and location thereof, and the actual cash value of each tract. If such property be personal property, the location of each class and the actual value thereof must be shown. No stock shall be issued except such as is actually paid for at its par value in cash or in property of a cash value equal to the par value. All stock not subscribed and paid for at the time of organisation may be sold at its par value, and the officers of the corporation shall, upon the completion of the sale of each one fourth of the unsubscribed stock, report the amount so sold to the secretary of state and whether the same was sold for cash or for property, giving the value and itemisation thereof, which report shall be sworn to by all of the officers and directors of such corporation. If the officers and directors shall knowingly purchase any property for the corporation and pay therefor more than the actual value thereof, they shall be jointly and severally liable for the debts of the corporation to an amount equal to the difference between the purchase price and the actual value thereof. If it is desired that any portion of the stock shall be preferred, the articles shall set out the amount of such preferred stock, the number of shares, the names of the subscribers therefor, the number of shares of such stock subscribed by each and the preferences, classification, and character as provided by statute.

The costs of incorporation are as follows: Fifty dollars for first fifty thousand or less of capital stock, and five dollars for every additional ten thousand of capital stock. The property of corporations is simply taxed like that of individuals.

On or about July 1st every year the president, secretary, or manager of every corporation is required to file a registration report and also to furnish the secretary of state with an affidavit to the effect that such corporation is in no way interested in any trust or combination.

Belonging to such trust is ground for forfeiture of charter or certificate of incorporation.

Suits against domestic corporations may be commenced either in the county where cause of action accrued, or in the county where such corporations have or usually keep an office or agent for the transaction of their usual and customary business. Service good on president or other chief officer, or, in his absence, by leaving copy at any business office with a person in charge thereof. Suits against corporations, whose chief office or place of business is out of this State, may be commenced by attachment. Suits against foreign corporations may be commenced by service on officer or agent in charge of office or place of business within the State, or if the corporation have no such office or place of business, then by service upon any officer, agent, or employee attending to its business in any county where such service may be obtained.

Every corporation, domestic and foreign, is required to pay an annual franchise tax equal to three fortieths of one per cent. of the par value of its outstanding capital stock and surplus employed in business in this State.

Debts to employees and operatives for wages, for labor and services performed within three months preceding demand therefor, not exceeding one hundred dollars, have preference over all other claims not specifically secured, both before and after insolvency of corporation.

No corporation or association in which more than twenty per centum of its stock is owned by persons, corporations, or associations not citizens of the United States, is permitted to acquire or own any hereafter-acquired real estate in this State; and corporations not created under the laws of the United States, or of some State or Territory thereof, are not permitted to hold or own real estate hereafter acquired, except it be acquired in the ordinary course of justice in the collection of debts, under penalty of forfeiture.

Foreign Corporations. — A foreign corporation is required to maintain a public office for the transaction of its business where legal service may be obtained. It is subject to all the liabilities, restrictions, and duties of a domestic corporation of like character; it cannot mortgage or otherwise dispose of or incumber its property to the prejudice or injury of a citizen of Missouri; it is required to file with the secretary of state a certified copy of charter, or certificate of incorporation, and its agent in Missouri is required to file with the secretary of state, with the above charter or certificate, a sworn statement of the proportion of the capital stock which is represented by its property located and business transacted in this State. Said statement must also set out the location of its principal office in the State where legal service may be obtained upon it, and is required to pay into the state treasury, upon said proportion of its capital stock, incorporating taxes and fees equal to those required of domestic corporations. A fine of one thousand dollars and other severe penalties, including a denial of right to maintain any suit or action in any of the courts of this State, are provided for a violation of this act. The act went into effect April 21, 1891, and does not apply to railroads now doing business in the State, or to traveling salesmen for foreign corporations entirely non-resident.

person whose name is subscribed as a party is the person who executed the same and that the witness subscribed his name to such instrument as a witness thereof. Provisions are made for proof where the grantor and all the witnesses are dead. (Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1909, §§ 2800-2808.)

The form of certificate of acknowledgment by a trustee or person not acting in his own right should be as in the form first above given, modified to show the character of the grantor, and that the act is done in that character. The proper officer to certify to the official character of notaries, commissioners, etc., is the clerk of a court of record within the county where the officer resides, but no such certification is required in case of conveyances.

An acknowledgment may be written or printed, and may be pasted to the instrument.

Depositions. — Depositions are taken in cases pending by procuring a commission, if taken out of the State, and giving notice to the opposite party. Commissioners for this State may take depositions without any commission. Notice of the time and place must be served upon the adverse party three days before the taking of the depositions, and one day additional for every fifty miles for the first three hundred miles, and one day additional for each additional hundred miles' distance from the place of service of notice to the place of taking; the court or judge, however, may shorten the time. If adverse party waives issuance of dedimus, officer taking the depositions will proceed under the notice in the same manner as if it were a commission issued under the seal of the court.

The depositions must be taken by a commissioner for Missouri; or by some consul, or commercial or diplomatic representative of the United States, having a seal; or mayor or chief officer of any city, town, or borough, having a seal of office; or by some judge, justice of the peace, or other judicial officer; or by a notary public. If taken before any of said officers, except a judge or justice of the peace, and certified by him in his official character accompanied by his seal of office, no other proof of his official character is necessary. If taken before a judge or justice of the peace, his official character must be shown by the certificate and seal of the clerk of some court of record within the county where the officer resides, stating that such officer was an acting judge or justice of the peace, and duly commissioned as such, at the time when the depositions were taken. The depositions may be taken in the narrative form, or in reply to questions. The fees for taking the depositions, and fees of witnesses, should be taxed, and a memorandum made stating by whom they were paid.

Depositions of witnesses found in this State may be taken by any officer authorized as above, without any commission or order of court, on notice given as above stated to the adverse party; provided (Sess. Acts, 1885, p. 155) that in any cause pending in a city having over fifty thousand inhabitants, the party to whom notice is given for taking the depositions of witnesses at any place in such city is entitled at any time before such taking is commenced, upon one day's notice of the application therefor served on the party giving such notice for depositions, to obtain from the court, judge, or clerk, an order appointing some disinterested attorney of such court a special commissioner to take such depositions and fixing the time and place thereof, and the depositions must then be taken pursuant to said order. Such commissioner is empowered to hear and determine objections to testimony, but must on demand of the party aggrieved report his ruling excluding any evidence to the court or judge forthwith for approval or reversal, keeping open the depositions for further proceedings if required.

Instructions for taking Depositions. — The officer taking the depositions will observe the following forms and mode of proceeding, commencing thus: —

Depositions of witnesses, produced, sworn, and examined, on the day of in the year of our Lord 19 between the hours of eight o'clock in the forenoon and six o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at in the county of and State of before me (here name the officer and style of office) in a certain cause now pending in the court of the county of in the State of Missouri, between plaintiff, and defendant, on the part of the (state whether plaintiff or defendant), of lawful age, being produced, sworn, and examined, on the part of the deponent and saith: (here insert the statement of witness.)

Every deposition must be reduced to writing in presence of the officer before whom it is taken, and signed by the witness. Depositions may be taken down in shorthand and afterwards written out, but the officer's certificate must show that they were transcribed in the presence of the officer before whom they were taken. Signature of witness may be waived. If any paper or exhibit is produced and proved, or referred to by the witness, it ought to be described in his deposition, or marked and referred to by the deponent, in such manner that it may be identified when the deposition is read, and all such papers and exhibits must be attached to, and returned with, the deposition. If the officer taking the deposition have an official seal, it must be affixed to each certificate.

The officer will annex, at the foot of the deposition of each witness, the following certificate: —

Subscribed and sworn to before me, on the day, at the place, and within the hours first aforesaid. (Signature and title.)

Then proceed with other depositions (if any), in the same form, annexing a like certificate to each. When all the witnesses who appear have been sworn and examined, and their depositions reduced to writing, subscribed, and certified, as above, the officer will attach to Every foreign manufacturing and business corporation is required to procure a license from the secretary of state. To do this it is necessary to file with the secretary of state a copy of the articles of association and charter. The fee for said license is ten dollars. Any corporation violating the anti-trust laws of this State cannot procure license.

Foreign corporations cannot hold real estate for a longer period than six years, except such as may be necessary for carrying on their legitimate business.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Missouri.

Deeds. — Deeds need not be under seal, unless executed by corporations. They must be acknowledged if executed in this State, before a court having a seal, or some judge, justice, or clerk thereof, notary public, or justice of the peace of the county where the real estate lies; if executed out of this State, then before a commissioner of the State, notary public, court of record of the United States or of any State or Territory having a seal, or clerk of any such court, and, if done in a foreign country, then before any court of any state, kingdom, or empire having a seal, or the mayor or chief officer of any city or town having an official seal, or before a minister or consular officer of the United States, or a notary public having a seal. Notaries public must have a seal.

It is not necessary for the United States consul to certify to the official character of notary public or other officer taking an acknowledgment in a foreign country.

No witnesses are necessary to the validity of any deed to be used in this State. If the acknowledgment to a deed be taken by a notary public of this State, the certificate of the officer must give the date when his commission expires, in writing.

Every deed, mortgage, conveyance, deed of trust, bond, or other instrument of writing authorized by law to be recorded, in order to be recorded must be acknowledged before some officer authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds, whose certificate shall be attached to such instrument.

Husband and wife must join in conveying legal title of wife to real estate, subject, however, to what is said under head Married Women.

The following are forms of certificates of the acknowledgment of deeds authorized and in use in this State: —

[Certificate of Acknowledgment.]

When a married woman unites with her husband in the execution of any such instrument and acknowledges the same in the form given, she must be described in the acknowledgment as his wife, but in all other respects her acknowledgment is to be taken and certified as if she were sole,⁴ and no separate examination of a married woman in respect to the execution of any release of dower or other instrument effecting real estate is required.

In case the corporation or association has no corporate seal, omit the words "the seal affixed to said instrument is the corporate seal of said corporation (or association), and that," and add, at the end of the affidavit clause, the words, "and that said corporation (or association) has no corporate seal."

It is not necessary to the validity of a deed that there be subscribing witnesses. If a deed is attested by subscribing witnesses and not acknowledged by a grantor, proof of its execution may be by the testimony of a subscribing witness, or where all the subscribing witnesses are dead or cannot be had, by evidence of the handwriting of the party and of one subscribing witness, given by two creditable witnesses to each signature. No certificate of such proof shall be granted by the officer unless the subscribing witness shall prove that the person whose name is subscribed thereto as a party, is the person who executed the same; that such person executed the instrument, and that the witness subscribed his name as a witness thereof; and the certificate must set forth the fact that the subscribing witness was personally known to the officer granting the certificate to be the person whose name is subscribed to such instrument as witness thereto or was proven to be such by at least two witnesses whose names and places of residence shall be inserted in the certificate; that proof was given by the witnesses of the execution of the instrument and of the facts that the person whose name is subscribed as a party is the person who executed the same and that the witness subscribed his name to such instrument as a witness thereof. Provisions are made for proof where the grantor and all the witnesses are dead. (Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1909, §§ 2800-2808.)

The form of certificate of acknowledgment by a trustee or person not acting in his own right should be as in the form first above given, modified to show the character of the grantor, and that the act is done in that character. The proper officer to certify to the official character of notaries, commissioners, etc., is the clerk of a court of record within the county where the officer resides, but no such certification is required in case of conveyances.

An acknowledgment may be written or printed, and may be pasted to the instrument.

Depositions. — Depositions are taken in cases pending by procuring a commission, if taken out of the State, and giving notice to the opposite party. Commissioners for this State may take depositions without any commission. Notice of the time and place must be served upon the adverse party three days before the taking of the depositions, and one day additional for every fifty miles for the first three hundred miles, and one day additional for each additional hundred miles' distance from the place of service of notice to the place of taking; the court or judge, however, may shorten the time. If adverse party waives issuance of dedimus, officer taking the depositions will proceed under the notice in the same manner as if it were a commission issued under the seal of the court.

The depositions must be taken by a commissioner for Missouri; or by some consul, or commercial or diplomatic representative of the United States, having a seal; or mayor or chief officer of any city, town, or borough, having a seal of office; or by some judge, justice of the peace, or other judicial officer; or by a notary public. If taken before any of said officers, except a judge or justice of the peace, and certified by him in his official character accompanied by his seal of office, no other proof of his official character is necessary. If taken before a judge or justice of the peace, his official character must be shown by the certificate and seal of the clerk of some court of record within the county where the officer resides, stating that such officer was an acting judge or justice of the peace, and duly commissioned as such, at the time when the depositions were taken. The depositions may be taken in the narrative form, or in reply to questions. The fees for taking the depositions, and fees of witnesses, should be taxed, and a memorandum made stating by whom they were paid.

Depositions of witnesses found in this State may be taken by any officer authorized as above, without any commission or order of court, on notice given as above stated to the adverse party; provided (Sess. Acts, 1885, p. 155) that in any cause pending in a city having over fifty thousand inhabitants, the party to whom notice is given for taking the depositions of witnesses at any place in such city is entitled at any time before such taking is commenced, upon one day's notice of the application therefor served on the party giving such notice for depositions, to obtain from the court, judge, or clerk, an order appointing some disinterested attorney of such court a special commissioner to take such depositions and fixing the time and place thereof, and the depositions must then be taken pursuant to said order. Such commissioner is empowered to hear and determine objections to testimony, but must on demand of the party aggrieved report his ruling excluding any evidence to the court or judge forthwith for approval or reversal, keeping open the depositions for further proceedings if required.

Instructions for taking Depositions. — The officer taking the depositions will observe the following forms and mode of proceeding, commencing thus: —

The officer will annex, at the foot of the deposition of each witness, the following certificate: —

Subscribed and sworn to before me, on the day, at the place, and within the hours first aforesaid. (Signature and title.)

been convicted of a felony or an infamous crime anywhere; or, 11th, that at the time of the marriage and without the husband's knowledge, the wife was pregnant by some other man. Suits for divorce are in the ordinary form. They are not tried by a jury. If defendant is a non-resident, he or she can be served with notice of the suit by publication, or by personal service or process at the place of residence of defendant twenty days before the return day of the writ in the case.

Dower. — The wife's dower in the real estate of the husband is one third for life if she survive him. Her inchoate right of dower cannot be disposed of by any act of the husband (except in partition suits), or of his creditors. Upon the death of the husband, leaving a child or descendant, the wife is entitled to a share in his personal estate equal to the share of a child. If the husband die leaving no descendant surviving, then the widow will take absolutely all personal property which came to the husband in right of the marriage and also one half of the real and personal estate of which the husband was owner at the time of his death, provided she make a written election to take such property subject to the payment of the husband's debts. This election must be in writing, acknowledged as in the case of a deed, filed in the probate court within six months, and recorded in the county where letters of administration were granted within nine months after the grant of such letters. If no such election is made, she will take no interest in the personality, and will take only ordinary dower in the realty. (Bryant v. Christian, 58 Mo. 98.) If a widow has a child born of the marriage, living at the death of her husband, she may elect to take a child's share absolutely in the real estate of her deceased husband in lieu of dower, subject to the payment of her husband's debts. Such election must, however, be made by a declaration in writing acknowledged before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds, and filed for record in the office of the recorder of the county in which letters testamentary or of administration may be granted, and within fifteen months after the grant of the same. A widow may transfer her unassigned dower, and transferee may maintain an action to have same set apart to him. If wife dies without any child or other descendants in being incapable of inheriting, her widower is entitled to one half of the real and personal estate belonging to her at her death absolutely, subject to the payment of her debts. (See Acts 1895, p. 169.) If the wife die leaving a child or children or other descendants, the widower is entitled to a share of her personal estate equal to the share of a child.

Evidence. — All parties are competent witnesses, including the parties to a suit, unless one of the parties to the original contract or cause of action in issue and on trial be dead or insane. The parties to a suit may compel each other, or one the other, to testify. Husband and wife are not competent witnesses for or against each other except where the wife has been the agent of the husband, or the husband the agent of the wife, or in cases where both are parties in interest in the cause, and the wife may also testify for her husband as to amount and value of property in suits against carriers for loss or damage to same and in suits on insurance policies, or where she was competent at common law, or where they are opposing parties; in the case last mentioned they are excluded only from reciting confidential communications made to each other. Conviction for crime does not affect the competency of a witness in this State. The conviction may be shown, however, as affecting his credibility, either by the record or cross-examination of the witness.

Disputed writings may be proved by comparison with any writing proved to the satisfaction of the judge to be genuine.

In counties where records affecting title to real estate have been destroyed by fire or other calamity, and when original instruments cannot be produced, abstracts or certified copies thereof may be used in evidence, when shown to have been made in usual course of business.

Executions. — Execution may issue at any time within ten years after rendition of judgment, and may issue to different counties at the same time. The execution (except on transcripts of justices of the peace) must issue from the court in which the judgment is rendered. Executions from judgments of justices of the peace in ordinary cases are made returnable in thirty days when issued by the justice. Executions issued by courts of record, either on transcripts of justices' judgments or on judgments originally rendered in the court of record, are made returnable at the next term of court. Executions are not issued by courts of record except upon good cause shown, until the time for filing and hearing of motions for a new trial or in arrest of judgment has expired. The time allowed for filing such motions is four calendar days after judgment rendered. See Redemption; Stay of Execution. No execution can be issued on any judgment after expiration of ten years from day of rendition, or from the day of last payment thereon.

Exemptions. — Certain animals, implements, and domestic furniture and wearing apparel, as specified by the statute, are exempt from execution or attachment when owned by the head of a family. Wearing apparel and the necessary tools and implements of trade of any mechanic, while carrying on his trade, are exempt from execution when owned by a person not the head of a family.

The right is also given to the head of a family to select as exempt, in lieu of the property specifically mentioned by statute, other property, real or personal or mixed, not exceeding in value three hundred dollars, except ten per cent. of any debt, income, salary, or wages due such head of a family. (Acts 1903, p. 195.)

All court-houses, jails, clerks' offices, and other public buildings, and the ground whereon they stand, when owned by the county or a municipal corporation therein, are also exempt from execution; also all burial grounds.

No property is exempt from seizure and sale for taxes. Nor in attachments, if defendant is a non-resident or is about to abscond, or is about to become domiciled out of this State; but if he be a married man and he has absconded or absented himself from his place of abode, his wife may claim the exemption. Nor is any personal property in the hands of the purchaser thereof, except an innocent purchaser for value without notice, exempt against an execution upon a judgment for the purchase-money. Nor is there any exemption against a claim for wages of a blacksmith, house servant, or common laborer to the amount of ninety dollars, provided suit is brought within six months, nor any exemption where execution is issued upon judgment against one who is about to leave the State. (Acts 1903, p. 195.) Nor any exemption in a proceeding instituted by a married woman for maintenance, nor against a judgment or order for alimony. (Acts 1903, p. 240.)

Every housekeeper or head of a family is entitled to have exempt from execution and attachment the homestead occupied by him, not exceeding in value three thousand dollars in cities of over forty thousand inhabitants, and not exceeding in quantity eighteen square rods of ground. In cities having less than forty thousand and not less than ten thousand inhabitants the homestead cannot exceed in value fifteen hundred dollars nor thirty square rods of ground; in cities having less than ten thousand inhabitants, five acres and not exceeding in value fifteen hundred dollars; and one hundred and sixty acres of land in the country, not exceeding in value fifteen hundred dollars. A homestead may be conveyed or incumbered as other property, and for that purpose no special form of conveyance is required. If no such conveyance or incumbrance has been made, the wife of the owner of the homestead may file her claim to the tract of land occupied by her and her husband, or by her alone if the husband has abandoned her. Such claim must describe the property, and state that the claimant is the wife of the person in whose name the property appears of record, and must be acknowledged as deeds are, and recorded in the county recorder's office. After such filing no conveyance of or incumbrance on the homestead can be made without the consent of the wife.

Upon the death of a person owning a homestead, leaving minor children or widow surviving, such homestead vests as a homestead in the widow and minor children until the death of the widow, and until the youngest child is of age. The fee simple of the property, subject to the homestead so continued therein, will pass by descent or devise, and may be sold for the decedent's debts as in other cases. If the decedent during his lifetime has legally charged his homestead with the payment of any debt, such charge will continue and may be enforced after his death.

Garnishment. — Writs of attachment may be levied by garnishing a debtor of the defendant as well as by a levy upon property. The garnishee can discharge himself by paying his debt to the officer. If he deny that he is indebted, an issue can be made with him, which is tried by the court as other causes are. The pleadings in a garnishment are the interrogatories of the plaintiff, the answer of the garnishee thereto, and the denial of that answer if issue is made upon such answer. Executions may be levied in same manner and similar proceedings had against the garnishee thereon. An executor or administrator cannot be garnished before an order of payment has been made. Nor shall any county collector, county treasurer, or municipal corporation, or any officer thereof, be liable to garnishment. Wages for last thirty days are also exempt from garnishment, except ten per cent. thereof, provided such employee is the head of a family and a resident of this State. Wages cannot be attached or garnished before personal service is had upon the defendant, unless the suit be brought in the county where the defendant resides or where the debt is contracted and the cause of action accrued; and the petition or statement in such case must affirmatively show the place where the defendant resides and the place where the debt is contracted and the cause of action arose. Wages earned out of the State and payable out of the State are exempt from attachment or garnishment in all cases where the cause of action arose or accrued out of the State unless the defendant is personally served with process. No garnishment shall be issued by any court where the sum demanded is two hundred dollars or less if the property sought to be reached is wages due the defendant by any railroad corporation until after judgment shall have been recovered by plaintiff against defendant; but this does not apply when the debt or claim sued for was contracted or accrued in this State.

Inheritance Taxes. — A tax is imposed upon all property or income therefrom when the transfer is by will or by the intestate laws of the State, from any person dying while a resident of the State and on all property of the decedent situated in this State, where the decedent was a non-resident of the State at the time of his death, and where transfers are made of property within this State or within its jurisdiction, in contemplation of death or to take effect in possession at or after such death, where such transfer is without an adequate, valuable consideration.

If the value of such property does not exceed twenty thousand dollars, the tax is as follows: (1) In case of husband, wife, lineal descendants or lineal ancestors, legally adopted child or lineal descendants of such child, or child born out of lawful wedlock, one per cent. (2) In case of brother, sister, descendants of same, wife or widow of a son, or husband of a daughter, three per cent. (3) In case of brother or sister of father or mother, or descendants of such brother or sister, three per cent. (4) In case of brother or sister of grandfather or grandmother, or descendants of the same, four per cent. (5) In case of all other persons, whether related to the decedent or not, five per cent.

If the amount exceeds twenty thousand dollars, the rates of taxes upon the excess shall be as follows: Upon all in excess of twenty thousand dollars up to forty thousand dollars, two times the rates named above; from forty thousand dollars to eighty thousand dollars, three times; from eighty thousand dollars to two hundred thousand dollars, four times; from two hundred thousand dollars up to four hundred thousand dollars, five times; upon all in excess of four hundred thousand dollars, six times.

Exemptions. — All transfers of property or any beneficial interest therein to be actually used solely for county, city, town, or municipal purposes, or for religious, charitable, or educational purposes in this State, fifteen thousand dollars to the surviving husband or wife, and five thousand dollars to each of the other persons described above in (1), five hundred dollars to each of the persons described above in (2), two hundred and fifty dollars to each of the persons described above in (3), and one hundred dollars to each of the persons described above in (4). For the enforcement and collection of such tax there is a first lien against the property affected thereby in favor of the State of Missouri, upon which a civil action may be prosecuted in any court having competent jurisdiction. If the tax is paid within six months after the death of the person leaving such property subject to taxation, no interest is charged. If not paid within six months, but within one year, six per cent. interest. If the above tax is not paid within one year after the death of the person rendering such property subject to taxation, said tax shall bear interest at twelve per cent. per annum, from the date of the death of such person.

Administrators or trustees are not required to deliver legacies or other property until the tax is paid. The probate court appoints some competent person in each estate as appraiser to fix valuation of assets subject to payment of tax. The appraiser files his report in the probate court, stating the cash value of the estate as appraised by him and the amount of the tax. The name of the appraiser in any estate may be ascertained by writing to the probate judge of the county in which the estate is being administered. Taxes are paid to the collector of the county and by the collector transmitted to the state treasurer. Provisions are made for assessing and collecting the tax on lands belonging to unknown persons or non-residents of the State.

Insolvent Laws. — See Assignments.

Interest. — The legal rate is six per cent., but parties may contract in writing for any rate not exceeding eight. In a suit on an obligation bearing usurious interest, such interest is credited on the principal, but holder of obligation gets legal interest, and defendant recovers costs. Judgments bear interest at six per cent. per annum. If the contract sued on calls for a higher rate, — not exceeding eight per cent., — the judgment thereon may be made to bear the rate of interest so agreed on. An open account bears interest at six per cent. per annum from the time when demand of payment is made.

Judgments. — Judgments of courts of record are liens upon the real estate of the defendant in the county in which they are rendered, and may be made such in other counties by the filing of a transcript of such judgment in the circuit clerk's office of such other counties. Judgments are not liens on personalty; but executions are liens on personalty from the time of levy made. Judgments rendered by justices of the peace are liens on real estate after transcript of the judgment is filed in the circuit clerk's office; and an execution can then be issued by the circuit clerk. Executions issued by justices are liens upon personalty situated in the county, without levy, as soon as they come into the hands of the constable and are receipted for by him. Justices' judgments can be revived any time within ten years after rendition. The lien on real estate of judgments rendered in courts of record begin with the day of rendition of the judgment in the county where rendered. As to other counties and justice's judgment, the lien dates from the filing of the transcript in the circuit court. The lien lasts three years from rendition of judgment, and by scire facias may be renewed at any time within ten years from the date of judgment. A judgment may be renewed within ten years for another period of ten years, or oftener, by suit, provided such suits are instituted within ten years of the lifetime of every judgment rendered in the last renewal. Where there is no contest judgment can be had in any suit at the trial term. See Service and Time of Trial.

Judgments by confession may be entered without action, either for money due or to become due, or to secure a contingent liability. A statement in writing must be signed and verified by defendant showing amount for which judgment may be rendered and authorizing entry of judgment thereon, and must state concisely the facts out of which the claim arose, and show that the sum is justly due or to become due, and if it be for the purpose of securing a contingent liability, the facts constituting the liability, and show that the sum confessed does not exceed the same. As to foreign judgments, see Proof of Claims.

Any judgment may be assigned, and any action or other proceeding which plaintiff in such judgment could have maintained may be maintained in the name of the assignee.

License. — Commercial travelers are not required to take out a license.

Liens. — See Mechanics' Liens.

Limitations. — Ten years: All actions upon written contracts for the payment of money, or property, actions on covenants in deeds, actions in ejectment for real estate, and actions for relief not otherwise provided for. Five years: Actions on promises for the payment of money not in writing upon justices' judgments upon open accounts (beginning with the last item of debit or credit), for taking personal property, for damages for injury to the person, for damages for injury to personal property and for the possession thereof, actions for trespass on real estate, actions on implied promises for the payment of money and actions for relief on the ground of fraud (beginning with the discovery of the fraud by the aggrieved party, which discovery must be made within ten years after its commission). Three years: Actions against sheriffs and other officers on official bonds and actions in their nature qui tam. Two years: Actions for libel, slander, assault, battery, false imprisonment, or criminal conversation. One year: Actions for death caused by negligence in this State. Judgments are barred by the lapse of ten years. The law presumes them paid from such lapse. In ejectment for military bounty lands the limitation in some cases is two years. Actions based upon a technical legal title to real estate from the United States against a person holding an equitable title in fee coupled with twenty years' possession must be brought within one year after the issue of the legal title from the government. In actions for relief on the ground of fraud where the relief asked is the possession of real estate, the limitation is ten years. A promise to overcome the bar of the statute of limitations must be in writing. If defendant be absent from the State without leaving a family and place of abode in this State, such absence will not be counted in the limitation; but persons who have always been non-residents may plead the statute here. Claims against the estate of a debtor who has made a voluntary assignment will be barred as to such estate if they are not presented to be proved on the days fixed by notice of the assignee.

Married Women. — Married women may hold real or personal property separate and apart from their husbands and free of the debts of the husband. The real estate and income of a married woman is not subject to the husband's debts, nor can he dispose of it unless she unite with him in conveying it. This real estate is liable, however, for necessities of the family and for improvements made upon it. Stocks and bonds given by a parent to a daughter are declared to be her property notwithstanding her marriage, and shall not be liable for the husband's debts, except for necessities of the family.

By an act of the general assembly approved March 25, 1875, and act of March 16, 1883, and act of April 9, 1895, all personal property and choses in action belonging to a married woman, no matter how the same may be after said act acquired by her, becomes and is her separate property, free of the husband's debts, but not free of debts contracted by the wife before marriage, or for debts of husband for necessities of wife or family. A married woman may sue and be sued in any actions as a feme sole, and judgments have the same effect as if she were unmarried. To make such property the property of the husband will require a written transfer from her, or a written admission that the husband shall be the sole owner of the property or chose in action.

A married woman can make contracts in her own name which will bind her separate property, real and personal. Her separate property left to her by will before or after marriage is not bound for her husband's debts without act of hers. The husband's property, except such as he may have acquired from the wife, is not liable for the wife's debts contracted before the marriage.

Females are of full age at eighteen years, and males at twenty-one; but males at the age of eighteen may make wills of personal property.

Mechanics' Liens. — Mechanics and others furnishing work or materials for the erection or repair of buildings or other improvements on land are entitled to liens on the improvement and one acre of land, or, if in a city, town, or village, on the lot, which take precedence as to the building and improvements, and as to the land precedence of all incumbrances made after the commencement of the work. Laborers and journeymen must within sixty days, original contractors within six months, and all other persons within four months after the debt accrues, file their lien in the clerk's office of the circuit court of the county in which the land improved is situated, and such lien will cover the improvements and a lot of ground in the city or an acre of land in the country. Sub-contractors, laborers, and journeymen are required to give to the owner of the premises ten days' notice of their intention to file a lien. Jurisdiction to enforce such liens is given the circuit court; and in counties having over fifty thousand inhabitants such jurisdiction is also given justices of the peace on claims not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, in counties having less than fifty thousand inhabitants, where amount does not exceed one hundred and fifty dollars, and in cities having over three hundred thousand inhabitants, where the amount does not exceed five hundred dollars. In all cases suit must be brought within ninety days after filing lien. As to the building and improvements made by a mechanic, his lien is prior to all other incumbrances. Statutory liens are also granted in certain cases to keepers of horses and other animals, automobiles and other vehicles, and to inn and boarding-house keepers, contractors, material-men, and laborers on railroads.

Any and all liens provided for by statute may be adjudicated, and the rights of all parties interested in the property against which the same is claimed may be determined and enforced in one action after the statement for such lien is filed in the office of the clerk of court, or such action may be brought by any owner or lessee of the property or mortgagor or holder of any incumbrance thereon. Such action shall be an equitable action for the purpose of determining the various rights, interests, and liens of the various claimants, and is for the purpose of marshaling, applying, and distributing the proceeds of the sale of such property that may be ordered and decreed in said action. All persons claiming any lien or incumbrance upon the property, and all persons having rights in or against it, and all owners and lessees thereof to be affected thereby as disclosed by the proper public records, shall be made parties to said action, and all parties shall be bound by the proceedings, orders, and judgments in said action. This action does not apply to instances where there is only one lien claimant. The court may appoint a referee to hear and report the evidence and make conclusions and findings of fact and law therein and report to the court. After such equitable action is commenced, the same is exclusive of all other remedies for the enforcement of mechanics' liens.

Mortgages and Deeds of Trust. — Mortgages and deeds of trust must be executed and acknowledged like other deeds, and must be recorded. (See Chattel Mortgages, as to filing being sufficient instead of recording chattel mortgages.) The common form of security in this State is a deed of trust. By it the property is conveyed to a trustee with power to sell and to convey the property absolutely if the debt, usually expressed by notes, is not paid. This proceeding is without suit. Mortgages and deeds of trust may be satisfied, at an expense of thirty-five cents, upon the margin of the record of the mortgage or deed of trust in the recorder's office; the notes and the deed of trust must be produced for cancellation, or affidavit of their payment and loss be made. Releases may also be made by deed. But no deed of release shall be admitted to record unless the note or notes and the deed securing them are produced and canceled, and that fact entered on the margin of the record and attested as required in the case of marginal releases, as above provided. Special provision is made for partial release when the issue secured is large and the mortgage contains proper authority. Where the notes are alleged to be lost, provision is made for filing affidavit of maker of notes and cestui que trust in lieu of the notes. Deeds of release, and acknowledgments of satisfaction of deeds of trust or mortgages, must be made and executed by the mortgagee, cestui que trust, or assignee, and it is not necessary for the trustee to join in such acknowledgment or satisfaction, or in such deed of release. No foreign corporation or individual is permitted to act as trustee in any deed of trust, or other conveyance hereafter made, where property, either real or personal, situated in this State, is hereafter conveyed in trust for any purpose whatever, unless in such conveyance there shall be named as co-trustee a corporation organized in this State, with power to act as trustee and execute trusts, or an individual citizen of this State, and no suit can be brought to foreclose such deed of trust unless a resident trustee is a party plaintiff. When debt is barred by statute of limitations the right to foreclose is also barred. See Redemption.

Notaries Public. — The governor of the State appoints notaries for the term of four years each. Females of eighteen years and over and males of twenty-one years and over, who are citizens of the United States and of the State of Missouri, are eligible to appointment. They have power to administer oaths, take affidavits, certify depositions, and take acknowledgments and make declarations and protests. They are required to keep a record in which must be recorded all their official acts. Every notary public is required to have a notarial seal bearing his name and the words "Notary Public," together with the name of the county or city, if appointed for such city, in which he resides and has his office, and also the name of the State, and his seal must be affixed to his certificates. He is also required, in all his official acts, at the end of his certificate, to state the date of the expiration of his commission as a notary public.

Every notary before entering upon the discharge of his duties is required to take an oath for the faithful performance of his duties and to give a bond in the sum of two thousand dollars to the State, except in counties of more than one hundred thousand inhabitants, in which notaries are required to give bond in the sum of five thousand dollars. They may be sued upon their official bond for any neglect of duty or malfeasance. They can act only in the county in which they reside. The proper officer to certify to the official character of a notary is the clerk of the county court in the county where the notary resides and the clerk of the circuit court of the city of St. Louis, if the notary resides in said city.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — Acceptances should be in writing on the bill, and if made on any other paper the acceptance will be binding only in favor of a person who has given value for the bill upon faith of such acceptance. An unconditional promise to accept is binding only in favor of a person who on faith thereof has purchased the bill. Promissory notes payable to order or bearer are negotiable.

Protests and Damages. — A notarial certificate of protest, sworn to by the notary at any time before filing, and filed fifteen days before the trial of a cause, is admitted as evidence of the facts therein stated. Upon protested bills and upon notes that have been negotiated, the following rates of damages can be recovered if the bill or note is overdue twenty days before suit is begun: 1st, if drawn upon a party in this State, four per cent.; 2d, if drawn upon a party out of this State and within the United States, ten per cent.; 3d, if drawn upon a party out of the United States, twenty per cent. The destruction of a bill by the drawee or refusal to return it within twenty-four hours after presentation for acceptance is taken to be an acceptance. Damages for protest are allowed only to purchasers for value or their assignees. No days of grace are allowed on any negotiable instrument. No written assignment of a note or bill is necessary to entitle the holder to sue. Holders for collection can sue without naming the real holder. To hold indorsers and drawers, it is necessary that the bill or note be duly presented for payment on the day of maturity of the note or bill where such presentment can be made by the exercise of reasonable diligence, unless it is waived; and upon its dishonor, that notice of its non-payment be given by the notary protesting to the drawer or indorser if such notice can be given by reasonable diligence unless waived. The law on this subject has been codified by the Negotiable Instruments Acts of 1905 and 1909. If the note or contract sued on provides for the recovery of attorneys' fees, such fees may be recovered as part of the damages sued for.

If any principal or surety dies, any co-surety or his legal representative may, within time allowed for exhibiting demands against estates, notify person entitled to the right of action to proceed to secure judgment against such estate on such instrument; if no action is begun in a reasonable time thereafter, such surety giving the notice shall be released from liability to the person so notified.—The uniform negotiable instruments law is in force in this State, and its provisions govern all notes and bills of exchange.

Holidays. — January 1st, February 22d, May 30th, July 4th, 1st Monday of September, any general State election day, any general primary election day, any Thanksgiving day appointed by the governor of this State or president of the United States, and December 25th, are holidays, and when any such days fall on Sunday, then the Monday following is the holiday; all bills, bonds, notes, and other mercantile paper falling due on either of these holidays or on Sunday "shall be considered as falling due on the next succeeding business day." In cities containing over one hundred thousand inhabitants, banks, trust companies, and other banking institutions are authorized to close their business at twelve o'clock noon every Saturday in the year; and every Saturday after twelve o'clock noon is made a legal half holiday, and so far as regards presenting for payment or acceptance, and for protesting and giving notice of dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks, drafts, promissory notes, and other negotiable paper, shall be considered same as Sunday, and all such bills, checks, etc., presentable for acceptance or payment on Saturdays shall be deemed presentable for acceptance or payment on the secular or business day next succeeding; provided, however, that all bills of exchange, drafts, and promissory notes, payable on demand, which would be payable on any half holiday Saturday, may, at the option of the holder, be presented for payment before twelve o'clock noon on Saturday when that entire day is not a holiday; and provided, further, that for the purpose of protesting or otherwise holding liable any party to any bill of exchange, bank check, draft, or promissory note, that has not been paid before noon of any half holiday Saturday, a demand of acceptance or payment may be made and notice of protest or dishonor may be given on the next succeeding secular or business day; provided, further, that any person receiving for collection in such city any bill of exchange, bank check, or promissory note, due and presentable for acceptance or payment on any half holiday Saturday, such person shall not be deemed guilty of neglect or omission of duty, nor incur any liability in not presenting for payment or acceptance or collecting such bill of exchange, bank check, draft, or promissory note on that day; and provided, further, that in construing this section every half holiday Saturday until twelve o'clock noon shall be deemed a secular business day. October 12th (Columbus Day) and February 12th are also legal holidays but do not affect commercial paper, the execution of contracts, or interference with judicial proceedings.

Practice. — Practice is under a code.

Proof of Claims. — Debts are proven in the ordinary way, i. e., by oral testimony in open court or by deposition. See Depositions. The signature of defendant to writings pleaded is taken to be admitted unless a denial thereof is made under oath. Ordinarily, pleadings need no verification. Judgments rendered in other States have no force here other than as evidence. Suits must be commenced on them here and a new judgment obtained. Proof for such recovery must be in the form of a certified copy of the proceedings and judgment rendered in the sister State, duly authenticated under the act of Congress concerning the authentication of records for use in other States.

Records. — All deeds of realty, to be effective against purchasers without notice in fact thereof, must be duly acknowledged and recorded in the county where the estate lies. Each county in this State has an office for the recording of instruments affecting any real or other property situated in such county. The title of the officer in charge of such office is "Recorder of Deeds," and he can be safely addressed in that way without any further name.

Redemption. — There is no statutory redemption from sales of property other than sales of real property under deed of trust without foreclosure suit, and then only if at such sale the beneficiary in such deed of trust, or his legal representatives, shall have been the purchaser. The redemption is to be made within one year after the sale by the payment of the debt, interest, and costs secured by the deed of trust; provided, also, that the person desiring to redeem shall have given written notice at the time of sale or ten days prior thereto of his intention to redeem, and within twenty days after the sale shall have given security to the satisfaction of the circuit court, or the clerk thereof in vacation, for payment of the interest to accrue after the sale, and for all damages and waste that may be occasioned or permitted by the party whose property is sold. This redemption right applies only to deeds of trust made after August 13, 1877.

Replevin. — Proceedings to obtain possession of personal property by the person entitled to such possession are under the statute concerning replevin. The petition in which the possession of such property is demanded must be accompanied by an affidavit of the claimant or his agent, setting forth such claim, a particular description of the property, the value of it, and that it has not been seized under attachment, execution, or other proceedings against the plaintiff. Upon such affidavit, an order for the seizure of the property and delivery thereof to plaintiff is made by the court or the clerk of the court in vacation. This order cannot be executed by the officer until the plaintiff, or some one for him, gives a bond with satisfactory resident sureties, for double the value of the property as sworn to in the affidavit filed by the plaintiff with his petition. After the delivery of the property to plaintiff, the right to the possession thereof is tried as ordinary cases are tried, except that the defendant, if successful in the issue, will have his election to retake the property and damages for its detention or the value of the property and such damages.

Unless the plaintiff shall state in his affidavit that the property was wrongfully taken, and that his right of action accrued within one year, the defendant may before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff retain it by giving a forthcoming bond in double the value of the property. The right to possession is tried as in ordinary actions. The successful party, provided the property is in the hands of the other party, has the election to take property and damages for its detention, or the assessed value thereof and damages. Judgment is against the losing party and his securities.

Reports, Judicial. — 272 volumes are now out, called Missouri Reports. These volumes contain all the decisions of the supreme court of the State. The decisions of the St. Louis court of appeals, Springfield court of appeals, and Kansas City court of appeals are published in the Missouri Appeal Reports. 198 volumes have been issued. Commissions appointed by the courts determine what decisions shall be published in the official reports.

Revision. — Revision of the statutes is required to be made every ten years. The last revision was made in 1909.

Sales in Bulk. — The sale of the major part in value, or the whole of a stock of merchandise otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade, is fraudulent and void as to creditors, unless the purchaser at least seven (7) days before the sale obtains a written statement under oath, giving the names and addresses of all creditors, and unless the purchaser at least seven (7) days before taking possession notifies such creditors by telegram or registered letter. If the purchaser fails to conform to the provisions of the act, he thereby becomes a receiver, and is accountable to creditors for such stock. The making of a false statement by the vendor is punishable by fine and imprisonment. This act applies to all sales in bulk made after March 25, 1913. If law is not complied with stock in hands of purchaser is subject to attachment or levy under execution.

Service and Time of Trial. — In the circuit courts in all cases where the defendant has been properly served the cases are triable at the first term of court after service, provided service was had at least fifteen days before the first day of the term. Where service is had less than fifteen days before the first day of the term, the cases are not returnable until the second term of court after such service. Defendant must plead to plaintiff's petition in all cases within the first three days of the term to which such cases are returnable; and in the following instances defendant's pleading must be filed on the first day of such term: 1st, in all counties having forty thousand inhabitants or less; 2d, in all cases (regardless of population) where service was had thirty days before first day of term; 3d, in all cases (regardless of population) where action is brought upon a bond, bill of exchange, or promissory note for the direct payment of money or property. Justices of the peace courts are always open, and trial may be had at any time after ten days' service of summons. In the absence of a defendant, summons may be served upon a member of his family over the age of fifteen years, at his place of abode. Service may be had by publication when personal service cannot be had in the State, in suits in partition, divorce, attachment, foreclosure of mortgages and deeds of trust, and upon mechanics' and all other liens against real or personal property, and for the enforcement of any right or claim against any real or personal property within the jurisdiction of the court.

Stay of Execution. — Stays of execution or attachment are unknown in this State; but personal property attached may be retained by the person in whose hands the same is found, on his giving bond and security satisfactory to the officer for the forthcoming thereof as directed by the court, and to abide the judgment of the court. And any attachment on personal or real property may be dissolved by the defendant appearing and pleading to the action and giving bond, in amount sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim with interest and costs, conditioned for payment of any judgment rendered, with interest and costs on or before the first day of the next term after judgment.

As to stay of execution pending an appeal, see Appeal.

Supplementary Proceedings. — After the return of an execution unsatisfied, the plaintiff may at any time within five years, by motion and affidavit showing reasonable cause therefor, obtain an order for the examination of the debtor before the court as to whether the debtor has any property subject to execution, or has any such property concealed, or has conveyed the same in fraud of his creditors. If upon such examination any such property is discovered, and the court shall be of opinion that such property ought to be applied to the payment of the judgment, such property may be levied on and sold under an alias execution as in ordinary cases.

Taxes. — Taxes are assessed and made payable annually. If not paid on or before the last day of December a penalty of one per centum per month is added as interest until paid. The tax and penalties are a lien upon the property assessed. All taxes remaining unpaid the first day of January, which were previously due and payable, are termed "delinquent," or "back taxes," and payment of these is to be enforced by suit and sale of the property as in ordinary actions. But suit to enforce payment of the tax shall not be brought for one year after the tax becomes delinquent unless the owner of the property is about to remove out of this State, or, being a non-resident, comes into this State so that he may be personally served with process. Reports for assessments must be made to the assessor between June 1 and January 1 according to the notice given by the assessor. Assessments for a given year are based upon the property owned on June 1 of previous year. Taxes for each year are payable on or before the last day of December. Report on real estate is made to the assessor of the county in which the real estate is located. Report on personalty is made to the assessor of the county in which the owner resides. A state income tax is also in force.

Testimony. — See Evidence.

Trust Deeds. — See Mortgages and Deeds of Trust.

Warehouse Receipts and Bills of Lading. — There is a uniform warehouse receipt law in force which prescribes the form of receipts and their essential terms. A receipt stating that the goods will be delivered to the depositor or any other specified person is a non-negotiable receipt. Where the receipt states that the goods will be delivered to the bearer or to the order of any person named in the receipt, it is a negotiable receipt and cannot be made non-negotiable by any provision inserted therein. A non-negotiable receipt must be so stamped upon its face. The warehouseman is bound to deliver the property upon demand if accompanied by an offer to satisfy the warehouseman's lien, to surrender the receipt if negotiable, and a readiness and willingness when the goods are delivered to sign an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if requested to do so by the warehouseman. The law provides for satisfactory proof where a negotiable receipt has been lost or destroyed as a protection to the warehouseman. Every duplicate receipt must be so stamped upon its face. A warehouseman loses his lien upon the goods by surrendering possession thereof or by refusing to deliver the goods when a demand is made with which he is bound to comply under the provisions of the act. The law provides for a sale of the goods deposited for the satisfaction of the warehouseman's lien upon proper notice. (See Consignments.) The uniform law of bills of lading is also in force.

Wills. — Wills as to realty may be made by male persons over the age of twenty-one years; and as to personalty by male persons over the age of eighteen years. Women of the age of eighteen, whether married or single, may make wills as to their realty and personalty. The dower of a wife and curtesy of the husband cannot be affected by a will unless the provisions of the will in that respect are accepted by the non-rejection of the provisions of the will within a specified time and in a certain formal way. Wills must be in writing, signed by the testator, and attested at his request and in his presence by two witnesses. Wills of non-residents, to be effective as to real estate situated in this State, must be executed and proved as prescribed by the laws of this State. After probate thereof wills should be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county where they have been probated, and copies duly certified should also be recorded in all other counties where the estate has any realty. Wills must be contested within one year after probate; otherwise they will be binding, except as against persons laboring under disabilities, who have a like period of one year, after removal of disabilities, to institute contest. Typewritten wills are valid. There is no limitation as to the amount a testator may will to charity, and no requirement that any specified portion of his estate shall be willed to his family. But he shall be deemed to have died intestate as to any of his children or children of his deceased children not mentioned in the will. A child may be disinherited, but he must be mentioned in the will. Spendthrift trusts are subject to claims of wife or children for support, and of the wife for alimony.

MONTANA LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. McConnell & McConnell, of Helena.

The next legislature convenes on the first Monday in January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — There is but one form of civil action, which is the same at law and in equity. Actions in the district court are instituted by the filing of a complaint with the clerk and the issuance of a summons; and in justices' courts by the filing of a complaint, or a copy of the note, bill, account, or other instrument upon which the action is brought. Actions must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except an executor or administrator, or trustee of an express trust, or person expressly authorized by statute. In case real property is sued for, the action must be commenced in the county where the real estate is situated; and generally, in other cases, in the county where the defendants, or any of them, reside at the commencement of the action. However, the action would not be dismissed if brought in the wrong county, but the venue could be changed, on motion, to the proper county. The venue may be changed in any action upon statutory cause being shown. Any person having an interest in the subject-matter of litigation with either party, or against either or both parties, may intervene before trial by filing a complaint in intervention, stating the grounds thereof. Leave of court must be first obtained, and notice served upon all parties who have not appeared, and upon the attorneys of those who have appeared. All parties may answer or demur to this complaint in intervention as though it were an original complaint. If the complaint is that of a non-resident or foreign incorporation, security for costs may be ordered by the court upon showing by the defendant, and must be furnished within thirty days, and all further proceedings will be stayed until such security is furnished.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Aliens. — Resident aliens may take in all cases by succession as citizens. No person is precluded from succession by alienage of relative. Non-resident foreigner must appear and claim succession within five years or be barred. Aliens shall not be appointed or elected to office.

Appeals. — Appeals may be taken from any judgment rendered in a civil action in police or justice court to the district court within thirty days after judgment. An appeal may be taken from the district court to the supreme court in the following cases: From a final judgment entered in an action or special proceeding commenced in a district court or brought into a district court from another court; from an order granting or refusing a new trial, or granting or dissolving an injunction, or refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction, or dissolving or refusing to dissolve an attachment; from an order appointing, or refusing to appoint, a receiver, or giving directions with respect to a receivership; from an order directing the delivery, transfer, or surrender of property; from any special order made after final judgment, and from such interlocutory judgments or orders in actions for partition as determine the rights and interests of the respective parties and direct partition to be made; from a judgment or order granting or refusing to grant, revoking or refusing to revoke, letters testamentary or of administration or of guardianship, or admitting or refusing to admit a will to probate, or against or in favor of the validity of the will, or revoking the probate thereof, or against or in favor of setting apart property, or making an allowance for a widow or children, or against or in favor of directing the partition, sale, or conveyance of real property, or settling an account of an executor or guardian, or refusing, allowing, or directing the distribution of an estate or the payment of a debt or legacy, or confirming or refusing to confirm a report of an appraiser setting apart a homestead.

An appeal from a final judgment must be taken within one year from its entry. Other appeals must be taken within sixty days after the judgment or order is made or entered or filed with the clerk. An appeal is taken by serving and filing notice of appeal and executing an undertaking in the sum of three hundred dollars. If the execution is to be stayed, an undertaking in double the amount of the judgment must be given.

Arrest. — Arrest in civil cases may be had in the following cases: 1. In an action for the recovery of money or damages upon an express or implied contract when the defendant is about to depart from the State, with intent to defraud his creditors, or when the action is for willful injury to person, to character, or to property, knowing the property to belong to another. 2. In an action for a fine or penalty; or for money or property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied or converted by a public officer or officer of a corporation, or by an attorney, factor, broker, or person acting in a fiduciary capacity, or for misconduct, neglect, or willful violation of duty. 3. In an action to recover personal property concealed or disposed of, so that it cannot be found or taken by the sheriff. 4. When the defendant has been guilty of fraud in contracting the debt. 5. When the defendant has removed or disposed of his property, or is about to do so, with intent to defraud his creditors. Before the order of arrest is so issued a proper affidavit must be filed, together with an undertaking in at least five hundred dollars, with two sufficient sureties. The defendant may be discharged upon giving bail or depositing the amount of the claim.

Assignments. — See Insolvent Laws.

Attachment. — At the time of the issuance of the summons, or at any time thereafter, the plaintiff may have all the property of the defendant attached which is not exempt by law from execution. Attachments are issued upon the filing of an affidavit showing that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff, specifying the amount of the debt, upon a contract, express or implied, for the direct payment of money which is not secured by any mortgage, lien, or pledge upon real or personal property, and if so secured, that the security has become valueless without any act of the plaintiff or person to whom the security was given; and that the attachment is not sought to hinder, delay, or defraud any creditor of the defendant. Before any attachment is issued, the plaintiff is required to give an undertaking, with two or more sureties, in a sum not less than double the amount claimed by the plaintiff, if such amount be one thousand dollars or under, or in case the amount so claimed by the plaintiff shall exceed one thousand dollars, then in such sum equal to such amount; but in no case shall an undertaking be required exceeding in amount the sum of ten thousand dollars. Debts due the defendant, and property of his in the hands of third persons, may be garnished. Public officers cannot be garnished. Attachments are satisfied according to their priority. Property covered by chattel mortgages can only be attached by first satisfying the chattel mortgage. Attachments may be issued prior to the maturity of a debt upon an affidavit, showing that the defendant is about to leave the State, taking property subject to levy, or is disposing of his property for the purpose of defrauding his creditors.

Chattel Mortgages. — Any interest in personal property which is capable of being transferred may be mortgaged. A mortgage of personal property must be signed and acknowledged by the mortgagor, and must have attached thereto the affidavit of the mortgagee, his agent, attorney, or other representative, that the same is made in good faith to secure the amount named therein, and without any design to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors. One mortgagee may sign the affidavit where there are two or more. One member of a firm of general partners may alone execute a mortgage of personal property. In case of a corporation, the president, vice-president, secretary, assistant secretary, cashier, or general manager may execute the mortgage or make the affidavit of good faith where the corporation is the mortgagee. The mortgage must be filed in the office of the county clerk and recorder of the county where the property was situated at the time of the execution of the mortgage. A mortgage of personal property ceases to be valid as against creditors of the mortgagor and subsequent purchasers or incumbrancers in good faith after the expiration of two years and sixty days from the filing thereof unless renewed. A chattel mortgage may be renewed at any time within sixty days after the expiration of two years from the date of filing the same in case the debt is unpaid, by the filing of an affidavit of the mortgagee or his assignee showing the date of such mortgage, the names of the mortgagor and mortgagee, the date of filing the same, and the amount of the debt justly owing at the date of making the affidavit or the condition of the obligation then unfulfilled, and that such mortgage was neither made nor renewed to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors or subsequent mortgagees of the mortgagor and mortgagee. In case of absence of the mortgagee, the affidavit may be made by his agent, attorney, or other representative. The renewal of a mortgage continues it in force and effect for the period of three years from the date of filing the affidavit. The filing of the affidavit for renewal does not extend the time of the maturity of the debt. A subsequent mortgagee may pay the amount of the prior mortgage and be subrogated to the rights of the prior mortgagee. Mortgaged personal property may be taken on attachment or execution by the payment of the amount due to the mortgagee, which amount is refunded at the sale of the property. The law applicable to chattel mortgages extends and applies to bills of sale, deeds of trust, and other conveyances of goods, chattels, or personal property that have the effect of a mortgage or lien upon the property. A chattel mortgage may be foreclosed in the same manner as provided by law for the foreclosure of mortgages upon real property; or when the chattel mortgage so provides, the power of sale may be granted to the sheriff of the county in which the property is situated, in which case the sheriff sells the property at public auction. The mortgagee may become the purchaser at such sale. The sale shall take place within thirty days after the seizure of the property unless postponed. A chattel mortgage is satisfied by an indorsement of an acknowledgment of satisfaction upon the mortgage filed, signed by the mortgagee. A mortgage may be given upon a growing crop, or a crop to be grown, and the lien thereon continues after severance, whether remaining in its original state or threshed, or otherwise prepared for market. However, the lien of such mortgage attaches only to crops next maturing after the execution of the mortgage, except to secure the purchase price or rental of the land. A mortgagor who removes the property from the county where it was situated at the time of the execution of the mortgage without the consent in writing of the mortgagee is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — Letters of administration on the estates of deceased persons dying intestate are issued by the district court in the following order: 1. To the surviving husband or wife, or some competent person whom he or she may request to have appointed. 2. To the children. 3. To the father or mother. 4. To the brothers. 5. To the sisters. 6. To the grandchildren. 7. To the next of kin entitled to share in distribution of the estate. 8. To the public administrator. 9. To the creditors. 10. To any person legally competent. If the decedent was a member of a partnership at the time of his death, the surviving partner must in no instance be appointed administrator of the estate, but he must wind up the partnership business and account to the administrator. No person is entitled to serve as administrator or administratrix who is a minor; not a bona fide resident of the State; convicted of an infamous crime; or adjudged incompetent by the court. A married woman may be appointed administratrix. When an unmarried woman marries her authority continues. An administrator must give a bond the penalty of which must not be less than twice the ascertained value of the estate. Every executor or administrator must render a full account and report of his administration within thirty days after the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice to creditors, and whenever required by the court or judge. When a person dies leaving a widow and minor children, the widow and children, until letters are granted and the inventory is returned, are entitled to remain in possession of the homestead, of all the wearing apparel of the family, and of all the household furniture of the decedent; and are also entitled to a reasonable provision for their support, to be allowed by the district judge. If the homestead selected by the husband or wife, or either of them, during their coverture, and recorded while both are living, was selected from the community property, it vests, on the death of the husband or wife, in the survivor for life. Upon the death of a person whose property was selected as a homestead, it shall go to his or her heirs or devisees, subject to the use of the surviving husband or widow during life, and in no case shall the homestead be liable for the debts of the owner except for debts secured thereon by mortgage or mechanic's, laborer's, or vendor's liens. A homestead may consist of a quantity of land not exceeding one fourth of an acre if within a town plat, city, or village, and if without a town plat, city, or village, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, and in either case it shall not exceed twenty-five hundred dollars in value.

Every executor or administrator must, immediately after his appointment, cause to be published in some newspaper published in the county, if there be one (if not, then in such newspaper as may be designated by the court), a notice to the creditors of the deceased, requiring all persons having claims against him to exhibit them, with the necessary vouchers, to the executor or administrator at the place of his residence or business, to be specified in the notice. Such notice shall be published as often as the judge or court shall direct, but in any event not less than once a week for four successive weeks. The time limited in the notice must be ten months after its first publication when the estate exceeds in value the sum of ten thousand dollars, and four months when it does not. If a claim arising upon a contract theretofore made be not presented within the time limited in the notice, it is barred forever, except in certain stated cases.

Every claim which is due when presented to the administrator must be supported by the affidavit of the claimant, or some one in his behalf, that the amount is justly due, that no payments have been made thereon which are not credited, and that there are no offsets to the same to the knowledge of the affiant. If the claim is not due when presented, or be contingent, the particulars of such claim must be stated. When the affidavit is made by a person other than the claimant, he must set forth in the affidavit the reason why it is not made by the claimant. The oath may be taken before any officer authorized to administer oaths. The executor or administrator may also require satisfactory vouchers or proofs to be produced in support of the claim. If the estate be insolvent, no greater rate of interest shall be allowed upon any claim after the first publication of notice to creditors than is allowed on judgments obtained in the district court. If the claim is founded on a bond, bill, note, or any other instrument, a copy of such instrument must accompany the claim, and the original instrument must be exhibited if demanded, unless it is lost or destroyed, in which case the claimant must accompany his claim by his affidavit, containing a copy or particular description of such instrument, and stating its loss or destruction. If the claim or any part thereof is secured by a mortgage or other lien, which has been recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the land affected by it lies, it is sufficient to describe the mortgage or lien, and refer to the date, volume, and page of its record. When a claim is rejected, either by the executor or administrator, or by the district judge, the holder must bring suit in the proper court against the executor or administrator, within three months after the date of its rejection, if it be then due, or within two months after it becomes due, otherwise the claim is forever barred. Claims in suit against the decedent at the time of his death must also be presented to the administrator in accordance with the statutes, and unless this is done no judgment can be obtained.

The debts of the estate must be paid in the following order: 1. Funeral expenses. 2. Expenses of last sickness. 3. Debts having preference by the laws of the United States or of the State. 4. Judgments rendered against decedent in his lifetime, and mortgages in the order of their date. 5. All other demands against the estate. The administrator is required by statute to inventory the estate, and the same must be duly appraised by appraisers appointed by the district court. A tax must be paid on direct and collateral inheritances, bequests, and devices.

Corporations. — The Constitution prohibits the legislature from granting private charters or special privileges, but it is allowed to pass general incorporation laws for organization of corporations for industrial and other purposes. Any three or more persons can incorporate a company by making, signing, and acknowledging a certificate giving the name of the company, its object, capital stock, number of shares and par value thereof, amount actually subscribed and by whom, term of existence, not exceeding forty years, the locality where the business is to be transacted, and the names and residence of the trustees for the first three months, which shall not be less than three, nor more than thirteen, and if the stock is assessable it must be so stated. The certificate must be filed and recorded with the clerk of the county where the business is to be done and a certified copy thereof with the secretary of state, who issues his certificate thereof, and thereupon the persons signing the articles become a body politic and corporate. For filing a certificate of incorporation the fees of the county clerk are one dollar and fifty cents and the fees of the secretary of state are: Fifty cents per one thousand dollars on amounts up to one hundred thousand dollars; forty cents per one thousand dollars from one hundred thousand dollars to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; thirty cents per one thousand dollars from two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to five hundred thousand dollars; twenty cents per one thousand dollars from five hundred thousand dollars to one million dollars; ten cents per one thousand dollars over one million dollars. A fee of three dollars is charged for issuing each certificate of incorporation and for each certificate of increase of capital stock. No fee for filing articles of incorporation shall be less than twenty dollars, except for religious societies, etc. The same fees are charged for filing each certified copy of articles of incorporation of any foreign corporation.

The stock need not be subscribed, but may all be issued in payment of the property if the value of such property is reasonably worth that of the par value of the stock. Banking and savings bank companies, trust, deposit, and security companies, stock and mutual insurance companies are required to have a portion of their capital stock paid in cash before being authorized to do business, the amount thereof varying with different kinds of corporations. Three fourths of the directors of banks and savings banks must be residents of the State; a majority of the directors of assessment life insurance companies and assessment accident insurance companies are required to be residents of the State.

Directors, who must be stockholders, are elected annually. Such election must be held on the first Tuesday in June, unless the by-laws provide a different time for holding the election. Stockholders are liable to creditors for the amount of their unpaid stock only. Directors are guilty of a misdemeanor and are jointly and severally liable in a civil action for dividing or withdrawing any part of the capital stock, or for creating debts beyond the subscribed capital stock, or for declaring a dividend except from surplus profits.

No loan of money shall be made to any stockholder, and if made, the officers assenting thereto are jointly and severally liable to the extent of the loan and interest for all the debts contracted by the company before the payment of the sum loaned. Directors of corporations, whose capital stock is assessable, may levy an assessment for the purpose of paying expenses, or conducting the business, or paying debts. No one assessment must exceed five per cent. of the capital stock. Corporations whose stock is non-assessable may make such stock assessable by the consent in writing of three fourths of the stockholders. The name of any corporation may be changed by a vote of a majority of the stockholders at any regular or special meeting. Persons owning five per cent. of the capital stock of any corporation, upon written request upon the treasurer, are entitled to a detailed statement of the corporation's affairs. Corporations in existence prior to the adoption of the codes (July 1, 1895) are governed by the provisions of the law in force at the time of incorporating, unless such corporation elects to continue its existence under the provisions of the codes, which may be done by a vote of the stockholders representing a majority of the stock. Corporations are required annually, within twenty days after the thirty-first day of December, to make a report duly authenticated and verified stating the amount of the capital stock, the proportion paid in, and the amount of the existing debts of the company, and file the same in the office of the clerk of the county where the principal office or place of business of the company is located; and if they fail so to do all the directors or trustees of the company shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the company then existing, and for all that may be contracted before such report shall be made. No corporation formed since the adoption of the codes shall purchase, locate, or hold property in any county in the State, unless within sixty days after such purchase or location a copy of the articles of incorporation, certified by the secretary of state, shall be filed in the county where the property is situated. Corporations may increase or diminish their capital stock; but before diminishing the same, if the amount of their debts and liabilities exceed the amount to which it is proposed to reduce the capital stock, such debts and liabilities must be reduced so as not to exceed the capital stock. At such meeting not less than two thirds of the stock must be represented. The directors cannot sell, mortgage, or incumber mining property without first calling a meeting of the stockholders and submitting the proposition to them. Not less than two thirds of the stock must be represented at the meeting, and not less than two thirds of the entire stock issued must be voted in favor of the proposition to authorize the directors in selling, mortgaging, or incumbering the property. All mortgages made by corporations must be acknowledged and verified as is required by the law for chattel mortgages.

What is known as the "Blue Sky" Law is in force in this State requiring every investment company desiring to sell or take subscriptions for any of its stocks, bonds, or other securities to obtain a permit from the state investment commissioner by the filing of certain papers giving information as to its financial condition, and consenting to be sued in the courts of the State, and that service of process on the investment commissioner shall be valid.

All corporations organized outside the limits of this State are deemed to be foreign corporations; and before they are permitted to conduct any business in the State they are required to file with the secretary of state, and with the county clerk of the county where they desire to do business, an authenticated copy of their charter or articles of incorporation, and a statement, verified by the oath of the president and secretary and attested by a majority of the board of directors, showing, first, the name of the corporation, the location of its principal office or place of business without the State, and, if it is to have a place of business within the State, the location thereof; second, the amount of its capital stock; third, the amount of its capital stock actually paid in money; fourth, the amount of its capital stock paid in any other way, and in what; fifth, the assets of the corporation, and of what they consist, with the cash value thereof; sixth, the liabilities, and, if any of its indebtedness is secured, how secured, and upon what property. There shall also be filed at the same time and in the same offices a certificate, under the seal of the corporation and the signature of its acting head and secretary, that the corporation has consented to be sued in the courts of the State, and has designated some person, a citizen of the State, giving his residence, as an agent upon whom process may be served. This agent must file a written consent to act in such capacity. Foreign corporations are also required to file in the office of the secretary of state and in the office of the county recorder of the county wherein they are doing business, annually, within two months from the first day of April of each year, a report, which shall be in the same form and contain the same information as the original statement. The property of a corporation is taxed the same as if owned by an individual. Report of property on hand on the first Monday in March of each year should be made to the county assessor when called for by him. Taxes must be paid on or before November 30 of each year or they become delinquent. See Taxes.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Montana.

Deeds, Acknowledgments, etc. — Every conveyance in writing of or affecting real estate must be acknowledged or proved and certified. If acknowledged in the State the acknowledgment may be taken before a clerk of a court of record, county clerk, notary public, justice of the peace, or U. S. commissioner; without the State but within the United States, by some justice or clerk of any court of record of the United States, or of any court of record of any State or Territory, a notary public, any officer of a State authorized by the laws of that State to take acknowledgments, or a commissioner appointed by the governor of the State for that purpose; without the United States, by a notary public, or a United States minister, commissioner, chargé d'affaires, consul, vice-consul, consular agent, judge of a court of record, or commissioner appointed by the governor under special statutes. The acknowledgment, if made before a justice of the peace and to be used outside his county, must be accompanied by a certificate of official character from the county clerk; certificates of official character are not required from other officers. An acknowledgment may be written, printed, or pasted on an instrument.

Descent and Distribution. — Property of an intestate is distributed subject to the payment of his debts, in the following manner: First. If the decedent leave a surviving husband or wife, and only one child, or the lawful issue of one child, in equal shares to the surviving husband or wife and one child, or issue of such child. If the decedent leave a surviving husband or wife, and more than one child living, or one child living, and the lawful issue of one or more deceased children, one third to the husband or wife, and the remainder in equal shares to his children, and to the lawful issue of any deceased child, by right of his representation; but if there be no child of the decedent living at his death, the remainder goes to all his lineal descendants; and if all the descendants are in the same degree of kindred to the decedent, they share equally, otherwise they take according to the right of representation. If the decedent leave no surviving husband or wife, but leave issue, the whole estate goes to such issue, and if such issue consists of more than one child living, or one child living and the lawful issue of one or more deceased children, then the estate goes in equal shares to the children living or to the child living, and to the issue of the deceased child or children by right of representation. Second. If the decedent leave no issue, then the estate goes one half to the surviving husband or wife, and the other to the decedent's father and mother. If there be no father or mother, then one half goes in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the decedent, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation. If the decedent leave no issue, nor husband or wife, the estate must go to the father and mother. Third. If there be no issue, nor husband, nor wife, nor father, nor mother, then in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the decedent, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister, by right of representation. Fourth. If the decedent leave a surviving husband or wife, and no issue, and no father, nor mother, nor brother, nor sister, the whole goes to the surviving husband or wife. Fifth. If the decedent leave no issue, nor husband, nor wife, and no father, nor mother, nor brother, nor sister, the estate must go to the next of kin in equal degree, excepting that when there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree, but claiming through different ancestors, those who claim through the nearest ancestors must be preferred to those claiming through an ancestor more remote. Sixth. If the decedent leave several children, and one child and the issue of one or more children, and any such surviving child dies under age, and not having been married, all the estate that came to the deceased child by inheritance from such decedent descends in equal shares to the other children of the same parent, and to the issue of any such other children who are dead, by right of representation. Seventh. If, at the death of such child who dies under age, not having been married, all the other children of his parents are also dead, and any of them have left issue, the estate that came to such child by inheritance from his parents descends to the issue of all other children of the same parent; and if all the issue are in the same degree of kindred to the child, they share the estate equally, otherwise they take according to the right of representation. Eighth. If the decedent leave no husband, wife, or kindred, the estate escheats to the State.

Divorce. — The following are statutory grounds for divorce: 1. Adultery. 2. Extreme cruelty. 3. Willful desertion. 4. Willful neglect. 5. Habitual intemperance. 6. Conviction of felony. No divorce is allowed in anywise to affect the legitimacy of the children of the marriage, except in cases for adultery of the wife the legitimacy of the children begotten after the commission of adultery is decided by the court. The party seeking the divorce must have resided in the State one whole year previous to the filing of the bill of complaint. Willful desertion, willful neglect, or habitual intemperance must continue for the space of one year before there is ground for divorce. Divorce must be denied upon showing connivance, or collusion, or condonation, or recrimination.

Alimony may be granted by the court. There is no limitation of time for commencing actions for divorce, except that in cases of adultery the action must be commenced within two years after its discovery by the injured party, and in cases of conviction for felony the action must be commenced within two years after sentence, and in other cases divorce will be denied when there is an unreasonable lapse of time.

Dower. — A widow is entitled to a one third interest as her dower in all lands whereof her husband was seized of an estate of inheritance during marriage unless relinquished. She has a dower interest in the surplus in case of sale under mortgage and in equitable estates. A wife relinquishes her right to dower by joining with her husband in the conveyance of land. A widow's dower may be barred by a devise or bequest unless she elect in one year after the probate of the will to take her dower. If the husband leave a widow but no children the widow may elect to take in her own right one half of all the real estate after the payment of debts, but such election must be made within two months after being notified of the payment of debts.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Executions. — Executions may issue to any sheriff in the State and at the same time to different counties, and are returnable in not less than ten nor more than sixty days. Personal property is levied on first; but if it is not sufficient to pay the debt, then upon real property. A sale of the former after judgment is made by giving not less than five nor more than ten days' notice; of the latter, by giving twenty days' notice. There is no stay law. See Stay of Execution. Executions may be issued at any time within six years after entry of judgment, without notice; after six years from the entry of judgment, upon motion, by leave of the court.

Exemptions. — Exemptions are as follows: All clothing of the debtor and family, and chairs, tables, desks, and books to the value of two hundred dollars; also all necessary household, table, and kitchen furniture, of the judgment debtor, including one sewing-machine, stoves, stove-pipes, and stove furniture, heating apparatus, beds, bedding, and bedsteads, and provisions and fuel provided for individual or family use, sufficient for three months; one horse, saddle and bridle, two cows with their calves, four hogs, and fifty domestic fowl, and feed for such animals for three months; one clock, and all family pictures. In addition to the above, there is exempt to a farmer his farming utensils not exceeding six hundred dollars in value, two oxen, or two horses or mules and their harness, one cart or wagon, and food for such stock for three months; two hundred dollars' worth of seed, grain, or vegetables actually provided for the purpose of sowing or planting. The proper tools, instruments, or books of any mechanic, physician, dentist, lawyer, or clergyman, and office furniture. To a miner, his dwelling, and all his tools and machinery necessary for carrying on his avocation, not to exceed in value the aggregate sum of one thousand dollars, and also one horse or mule, and its harness, with its food for three months, in case such stock is used in working his mining claim. One horse, mule, or two oxen, vehicle and harness, by which the debtor habitually earns his living, and one horse, with vehicle and harness, of physician or clergyman, used in making professional visits, with food for such stock for three months. All arms, uniforms, etc., required by law to be kept by any person. All property generally held by the county or town for the benefit of the county or the public, except as against a vendor's lien or a mortgage. The wages of the debtor earned at any time within forty-five days next preceding the levy, provided they are necessary for the use of his family, residing in the State, supported wholly or in part by his labor. All moneys growing out of life insurance. These exemptions are restricted to married persons or to persons who are the heads of families, and only the wearing apparel of an unmarried person is exempt to him. None but bona fide residents can claim the benefits of this law. A homestead not to exceed in value the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars; if agricultural land, it is not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres. If within the limits of a town, plat, city, or village, not to exceed one fourth of an acre. The debtor has his option of the two, and may select either, with all improvements thereon, which are included in the valuation. Such exemption does not affect the lien of any mechanic or laborer, or extend to any mortgage lawfully obtained.

Inheritance Taxes. — There is an inheritance tax of five dollars on every one hundred dollars of the market value of property descending to any person or corporation except to the decedent's father, mother, husband, wife, lawful issue, brother, sister, or adopted child, in which event the tax is one dollar on every one hundred dollars of the market value of such property; provided that an estate valued at less than seventy-five hundred dollars is not subject to any tax. The tax is due at the death of the decedent. It is the duty of the executor to deduct the tax from the legacy, and he shall not deliver any legacy until he shall have collected the tax thereon. The amount of the inheritance tax is determined in the court where the estate is pending. The inheritance tax is payable to the county treasurer of the county where the estate is being administered. Whenever a foreign executor assigns stock or loans standing in the name of the decedent and liable to the inheritance tax, such tax must be paid to the treasurer of the proper county, otherwise the corporation permitting the transfer shall become liable to pay such tax.

Insolvent Laws and Assignments. — These laws are practically suspended by the National Bankruptcy Act of 1898.

Interest. — Parties may agree in writing for the payment of any rate of interest not exceeding the rate of twelve per cent. per annum. The taking or charging of a higher rate than twelve per cent. shall be deemed a forfeiture of a sum double the amount of interest which the note carries, to be recovered in an action. Such action must be brought within two years after the payment of the interest. When no contract is made as to interest, the legal rate of eight per cent. per annum governs after the debt is due. Judgments bear interest at eight per cent.

Judgments. — Judgment may be entered upon the failure of the defendant to interpose a defense within twenty days after service of summons. Where the default of the defendant has been entered no proof is necessary in actions arising upon contract for the recovery of money or damages only, but in taking judgment upon a note, bond, or bill of exchange, such instrument is introduced in evidence. In actions asking for equitable relief proof is required of the allegations in the complaint. From the time the judgment is docketed in the district court it becomes a lien upon all the real property of the judgment debtor not exempt from execution, in the county, owned by him at the time, or which he may afterwards acquire, until the lien ceases. A certified transcript of the docket filed with the district court clerk of another county gives a similar lien from the date of such filing until its expiration. The lien expires in six years from the docketing of the judgment. Judgments may be entered in any court by the clerk, on default, when no answer is filed as soon as time for service has expired, when action is on contract for the recovery of money or damages only. Execution may issue as soon as judgment is entered and docketed. Judgments may be appealed from at any time within a year.

License. — It is not necessary for a commercial traveler to take out a state license before doing business. A license is, however, required of every traveling merchant or peddler who carries a pack or uses a wagon and vends goods. There is a general license law upon almost every business carried on in the State, and also upon insurance companies, associations, and societies doing business in the State. No state or county license is required of merchants, or for occupations.

Liens. — An attorney has a lien upon his client's cause of action or counter-claim from the commencement of an action or the interposing of the counter-claim, and this lien attaches to the verdict, judgment, and decision and the proceeds thereof in whosoever hands they may come, and cannot be affected by settlement between the parties before or after judgment. This includes a reasonable fee.

Every mechanic, miner, machinist, architect, foreman, engineer, builder, lumberman, artisan, workman, laborer, and any other person performing any work and labor upon, or furnishing any material, machinery, or fixture for any building, structure, bridge, flume, canal, ditch, mining claim, quartz lode, tunnel, city or town lot or lots, ranch, fence, railroad, telegraph, telephone, electric light, gas or water works or plant, or any improvement, is given a lien upon the same to secure the payment of his work and labor done, or material, machinery, or fixtures furnished. This lien must be claimed within ninety days by filing with the recorder of the county in which the property is situated a just and true account of the amount due or owing, after allowing all credits, and containing a true description of the property to be charged with the lien, verified by affidavit. The lien attaches to such improvements in preference to any prior mortgage upon the land upon which the improvements are erected. Actions to foreclose liens must be commenced within twelve months.

All threshermen have a lien upon the grain and other crops threshed by them.

Any ranchman, farmer, agister, herder, hotel-keeper, or livery stable-keeper to whom any horses, mules, cattle, sheep, hogs, or other stock shall be intrusted, and a contract for their keeping, express or implied, be entered into between the parties for their feeding, herding, and pasturing or ranging, shall have a lien thereon for the amount due for such feeding, etc., and may retain possession thereof until the amount is paid; provided that it does not apply to stolen stock. Merchants, stable-keepers, etc., are required to pay a license for carrying on their trade, occupation, or profession, and such license is made a lien upon all property held or used in such trade, occupation, or profession, and takes precedence over all other liens, claims, or demands.

Limitations. — An action upon a judgment must be commenced within ten years; actions upon contracts or obligations founded upon any instrument in writing, within eight years; actions upon an account not founded upon a written instrument, actions for trespass upon real estate, actions upon a liability created by statute other than a penalty or forfeiture, actions for taking, detaining, or injuring goods or chattels, including actions for the specific recovery of personal property, actions for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake (cause of action not to accrue until discovery of the fraud or mistake), actions to establish a will, actions upon judgments of a court not of record, must be commenced within five years. If an action is upon a running or open account, the computation of time shall be from the date of the last item thereof. Actions against a sheriff or other officer in his official capacity, actions to recover damages for the death of one caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another, must be commenced within three years. For a penalty or forfeiture under the statute, given to an individual or to the State, and an action for libel, slander, assault, battery, false imprisonment, set aside tax deed, or seduction, within two years; an action against a sheriff or other officer for the escape of a prisoner arrested on civil process, an action against a municipal corporation for damages caused by a mob, or an action by a municipal corporation for the violation of a city ordinance, an action against an officer, or a de facto officer, to recover for goods, wares, and merchandise, or the value thereof, or for damages done to person or property, actions for killing or injuring stock by a railroad corporation or company, within one year. An action to recover stock sold for a delinquent assessment, actions on claims against a county, must be commenced within six months. Actions for relief not provided for, within five years.

There is no limitation upon the right to maintain an action for the recovery of money, or other property, deposited with any bank, banker, trust company, or savings and loan society, except to obtain, set aside, or question a stated or settled account an action must be commenced in five years, and an action against a bank arising from the payment of a forged check or note must be commenced within three years. In mutual accounts, the cause of action is deemed to accrue from the date of the last item proved in the accounts on either side. The statute applies to actions brought in the name of the State, or for the benefit of the State, in the same manner as for actions brought by private individuals. An acknowledgment of a promise to take the case out of the statute must be signed by the party charged thereby, but this does not alter the effect of any payment of principal or interest. The limitation upon existing contracts, whether bills of exchange, promissory notes, bonds, or other evidence of indebtedness, only commences to run from the time of the last payment, if such payment be made after the same shall have become due. Actions for the recovery of real property must be commenced within ten years. In actions for the recovery of real property or the possession thereof, or to make an entry or defense based upon a real property right, there is a suspension of the statute during disability, to infants, insane persons, those imprisoned on criminal charges for less than life, and married women when the husbands are necessary parties. If the party against whom the action accrues is out of the State at the time, the statute does not begin to run until his return; and if the cause of action shall have accrued and he departs from the State, the time of his absence is not a part of the time limited for the commencement of the action. A cause of action arising in any other State or Territory or country, barred by the laws thereof, cannot be maintained in this State.

Married Women, Rights of. — A conveyance by a married woman has the same effect as if she were unmarried, and may be acknowledged in the same manner. Married women may, in their own right, make and draw deposits and draw dividends and give valid receipts therefor. Stock owned by a married woman may be transferred by her without the signature of her husband. A married woman may be an administratrix or executrix, guardian or trustee. She may sue and be sued in the same manner as if she were sole. She may make a will the same as if she were sole, except such will shall not, without the written consent of her husband, deprive him of more than two thirds of her real estate or personal estate. A married woman may make contracts with like effects as if she were a single woman. Her contracts in respect to her separate property are not binding upon her husband or his property. A wife cannot be examined for or against her husband without his consent, and, vice versa; this does not apply to actions of one against the other. A married woman, having resided six months in the county where application is made, may become a sole trader upon publishing notice of such intention in a newspaper four successive weeks, specifying the day application will be made, place and business proposed, and name of her husband. Ten days prior to date of application a verified petition must be filed stating, 1, that the application is made in good faith to enable her to support herself and others dependent upon her, naming them and their relation to her; 2, the fact of insufficient support and the cause; 3, any grounds of application constituting causes for divorce and the reason divorce is not sought; 4, nature of business, and capital to be invested and the source thereof. Any creditor of the husband may oppose the application upon verified petition denying the truth of the material allegations of the application, or that the same is made to defraud him or will prevent him from collecting his debt. Applicant must make written oath that application is not made with intent to defraud creditors of the husband. This oath, with a certified copy of the judgment of the court, must be recorded in the office of the county clerk of the county where the business is to be carried on, and thereupon the person is entitled to carry on the business in her own name, and her property is not liable for any debts of her husband. A sole trader is liable for the maintenance of her minor children. The husband must not manage, superintend, or act as agent for his wife, and if he does the property of the sole trader is liable for his debts.

Mortgages.— Mortgages of real property must be executed and acknowledged and recorded the same as deeds; and if given by a corporation must be verified like a chattel mortgage; and mortgages given upon mining property must be authorized by a stockholders' meeting called in accordance with the statute. Mortgages are subject to taxation. They are not deemed a conveyance, whatever their terms, so as to enable the owner of the mortgage to recover possession of the real property without foreclosure and sale; but the mortgage may be in the form of a trust deed, giving power of sale to the trustee, after the manner of trust deeds at common law. The mortgage of a homestead by a married man is void unless the wife join in the execution. If foreclosure is had in court, the same time for redemption is allowed as upon the sale of real estate under execution, being one year. They are discharged by the entry on the margin of the record, or by separate instrument duly executed so as to entitle the same to record, and recorded. Failure to enter satisfaction for one week after request subjects the delinquent to a forfeiture of one hundred dollars to the mortgagor, besides actual damages sustained by such neglect or refusal. When satisfied by one other than the mortgagee, the satisfaction must be accompanied by a certified copy of the authority to act for the mortgagee. A real estate mortgage is good and valid as against the creditors of the mortgagor or owner of the land mortgaged, or subsequent purchasers or incumbrancers, from the time it is recorded until eight years after the maturity of the debt, unless the mortgagee shall, within sixty days after the expiration of eight years, file an affidavit of renewal, setting forth the date of the mortgage, when and where recorded, the amount of the debt secured thereby, the amount remaining unpaid, and that the mortgage is not renewed for the purpose of hindering, delaying, or defrauding creditors of the mortgagor or owner of the land, and this renewal affidavit continues the mortgage in force for the further period of eight years.

Notaries Public.— Notaries public are appointed by the governor of the State for a term of three years. Every notary public must take an official oath and execute a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, upon which he and his sureties are liable for any official misconduct or neglect. Every notary public must have a seal and attest all his official acts therewith except in oath and affidavits to be used in the courts of this State. The jurisdiction of a notary public extends to every county in the State. It is the duty of notaries public to demand acceptance and payment of foreign, domestic, and inland bills of exchange and promissory notes and protest the same for non-payment, to take acknowledgments, depositions, administer oaths, and to exercise such other powers and duties as by the laws of any other State may be performed by notaries. The official character of a notary public is certified to by the secretary of state or by the county clerk of the county where his commission is filed.

Notes and Bills of Exchange.— There are six classes of negotiable instruments, viz., bills of exchange, promissory notes, bank-notes, checks, bonds, and certificates of deposit. Any date may be inserted by the maker of a negotiable instrument, whether past, present, or future. A non-negotiable instrument may contain a pledge of collateral security with authority to dispose thereof. The signature of every drawer, acceptor, and indorser of a negotiable instrument is presumed to have been made for a valuable consideration. It is not necessary to make demand on the principal debtor to charge him unless the instrument is payable at a specified place, and if so the instrument must be presented by the holder thereof to the principal debtor at such place. The apparent maturity of a demand or sight bill of exchange is one year from its date, if it bear interest; if it does not bear interest, ten days from its date in addition to the time of transmission. The apparent maturity of a demand or sight note is one year, if it bear interest, and six months if it does not bear interest. If a sight or demand bill of exchange without interest is not presented for payment within ten days the drawer and indorsers are exonerated unless such presentment is excused. If a sight or demand note without interest is not duly presented for payment within six months after its date, the indorsers thereon are exonerated unless such presentation is excused. Days of grace are not allowed. Acceptance must be in writing by the drawee, or by an acceptor for honor, and may be made by the acceptor writing his name across the face of the bill with or without other words. The drawee may postpone his acceptance or refusal until the next day after presentment. An instrument payable upon a contingency is not negotiable. An incomplete instrument may be completed by the person in possession thereof filling up the blanks therein.

Protest. — Notice of the dishonor of a foreign bill of exchange can be given only by a notice of protest. Protest must be made by a notary public, if with reasonable diligence one can be obtained, and if not, by any reputable person in the presence of two witnesses. Protest is made by giving a written notice setting forth a copy of the original bill of exchange, stating presentment and manner in which made, the refusal or inability of the drawee to pay and the reason assigned, and protesting against all the parties to be charged; such notice must be deposited in the nearest post-office directed to each of the parties to be charged, and the postage must be prepaid thereon. Protest must be made in the city where the bill is presented for acceptance or payment. Damages are allowed to holders for value upon protest.

Practice. — The legislature of Montana adopted four codes which went into effect at noon on July 1, 1895. The Political, Civil, and Penal Codes declare the law. The Code of Civil Procedure provides for the civil practice, the Penal Code for the criminal practice. The laws of Montana have been recodified and are known as the Revised Codes of Montana, 1907.

Proof of Claims. — In sending claims to attorneys for collection, send the original instrument in case the demand is in writing. If the demand is an open or stated account, an itemized statement of the entire transaction should be sent. A verified claim does not make a prima facie case; but proof must be made in court, or by deposition taken after the suit has been commenced if the defendant denies the claim by verified answer, otherwise it is deemed admitted. In all cases give the full name of the firm, and the full name of each member of the firm; if a corporation, give the name of the corporation, and where organized; and in all cases where an attachment is desired refer the attorney to two responsible parties or some bank in the State who will become proper security.

Records. — See Deeds and Mortgages.

Redemption. — Real property sold under execution or foreclosure, except when the estate is less than a leasehold of two years' unexpired term, may be redeemed by the following persons or their successors in interest: the judgment debtor or his successor in interest; a creditor having a lien by judgment, mortgage, or attachment; a stockholder of a corporation may redeem, if the officers refuse to do so. These persons are called redemptioners.

The judgment debtor or redemptioner may redeem the property from the purchaser any time within one year after the sale on paying the purchaser the amount of his purchase, with one per cent. per month interest, together with taxes or assessments the purchaser may have paid, with interest, also any prior lien other than the judgment held by the purchaser, with interest. Another redemptioner may, within sixty days after the last redemption, again redeem the property from the last redemptioner on paying the sum paid on the last redemption, with one per cent. thereon in addition and the amount of any assessment or taxes which the last redemptioner paid, with interest, and in addition the liens held by said last redemptioner prior to his own, with interest. The property may be again redeemed from any previous redemptioner and as often as the redemptioner is so disposed, within the same time after the last redemption and on the same terms. Written notice of redemption must be given to the sheriff and a duplicate filed with the county clerk and notice given in like manner and to the same officers of any taxes, assessments, or liens. If no redemption is made within one year after the sale, the purchaser or his assignee is entitled to a conveyance; or if redeemed by a redemptioner, whenever sixty days have elapsed and no other redemption has been made, and notice given, and the time for redemption has expired, the last redemptioner or his assignee is entitled to a sheriff's deed; but in all cases the judgment debtor shall have the entire period of one year from date of sale to redeem.

Replevin. — The plaintiff in an action to recover possession of personal property may, at the time of issuing summons, or at any time before answer, claim the delivery thereof, upon making an affidavit showing that the plaintiff is the owner of the property (describing it), or is entitled to the possession thereof; that it is wrongfully detained; and that it has not been taken for a tax, assessment, or fine pursuant to a statute; or seized under execution or attachment against the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is exempt, and also stating the actual value of the property. It is also necessary to give an undertaking in double the value of the property, to prosecute the action, and for the return of the property, if return thereof shall be adjudged. The defendant may, within two days after the service on him of the papers in the action, except to the sufficiency of the sureties; and if he fails to do so he waives the right. At any time before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff, the defendant may, if he does not except to the sufficiency of the sureties of the plaintiff, require the return thereof upon giving to the sheriff a written undertaking executed by two or more sufficient sureties, bound in double the value of the property as stated in the affidavit of the plaintiff, if such delivery be adjudged, and for the payment to him of such sum as may, for any cause, be recovered against the defendant. If a return of the property is not claimed within five days after the taking thereof, it shall be delivered to the plaintiff.

Revision. — See Practice.

Sales. — The original or a true copy certified by the county clerk and recorder of all contracts, notes, and instruments given upon the sale of personal property when the title is to remain in the vendor, until payment of purchase price, must be in writing and filed with the clerk and recorder of the county wherein the property is situated, otherwise they are void as to subsequent purchasers or incumbrancers. Upon the sale of a stock of merchandise in bulk, the purchaser must require the vendor to give a verified list of the names, addresses, and amounts owing of all creditors, and it is made the duty of the purchaser to see that the purchase-money is applied to the payment of creditors of the vendor, otherwise the sale is fraudulent and void. If the list given by the vendor is false and untrue, the vendor shall be deemed guilty of perjury.

Service. — Summons is served by the sheriff delivering to the defendant personally a copy of the summons, together with a copy of the complaint; it may be made, also, by any person over the age of eighteen years, but in such case the return must be accompanied by an affidavit of such person. Corporations, joint-stock companies, and associations are served by the delivery of a copy of the summons to the officer or managing agent thereof. Summons may be served by publication for four successive weeks, if the defendant be a non-resident, or has departed from the State, evades service, or cannot be found after due diligence; if his residence be known, a copy of the summons and complaint must be mailed to him. The defendant is required to appear within twenty days after service of summons.

Stay of Execution. — There is no statutory enactment on the subject. When an appeal is perfected, and a proper bond given, the execution is stayed pending the appeal.

Taxes. — All property in this State, except public property and property for beneficent purposes, is subject to taxation. Such taxes are a lien upon the property, which lien has the effect of an execution levied on all such as are delinquent after the thirtieth day of November, after which a penalty of ten per cent. is added. The delinquent tax list is published in some newspaper on or before the last Monday of each year, and in not less than twenty-one and not more than twenty-eight days after the first publication sale of the real estate is made, subject to redemption within thirty-six months from date of sale. The purchase-money draws interest at one per cent. per month from the date the taxes become delinquent. The purchaser is entitled to a tax deed at the end of the thirty-six months, but must give thirty days' notice to the owner or occupant of the property. Taxes are assessed to the party in whose name the property stands of record on the first Monday in March of each year, and report of property subject to taxation should be made of that date when called for by the assessor of the county where the property is situated. A tax is levied upon direct and collateral inheritances.

Testimony or Evidence. — All persons except those of unsound mind and children under the age of ten years incapable of receiving just impressions may be witnesses. A convict may be a witness. Interest in a case as a party or otherwise only affects the credibility. The husband or wife cannot be examined for or against the other without his or her consent; nor as to any communication made during the marriage without similar consent. Communications to attorneys, clergymen, or physicians are also privileged, subject, however, to be waived by the consent of the parties interested. A copy of any record, document, or paper in the custody of a public officer of this State, sister State, or foreign country for use within the State, certified to be a true copy of the original by the legal custodian thereof under the oath of such officer or his official seal, may be read in evidence in any proceeding in any court of the State, and in like manner and with like effect as the original could be if produced.

Wills. — Every person over the age of eighteen years, of sound mind, may by last will dispose of all his estate, real and personal. A married woman may dispose of her separate estate by will. All wills, except nuncupative wills, must be in writing; and all wills, except nuncupative and holographic, must be executed and attested as follows (the statute says "writing," but a typewritten will would be valid): First. Must be subscribed at the end thereof by the testator himself or by some person in his presence and by his direction who has subscribed his name thereto. Second. Such subscription must be made in the presence of the attesting witnesses, or be acknowledged by the testator to them to have been made by him or by his authority. Third. The testator must, at the time of subscribing or acknowledging the same, declare to the attesting witnesses that the instrument is his will. Fourth. There must be two attesting witnesses, each of whom must sign his name as a witness at the end of the will at the testator's request and in his presence. A holographic will is one that is entirely written, dated, and signed by the hand of the testator himself, and is subject to no form; it may be made in or out of the State, and need not be witnessed. In order that a nuncupative will may be probated, the estate bequeathed must not exceed one thousand dollars in value. It must be proved by two witnesses who were present at the making thereof:

one of whom was asked by the testator at the time to bear witness that such was his will, or words to that effect. The testator must have been at the time in actual military service in the field, or doing duty on shipboard at sea; and in either case in actual contemplation, fear, or peril of death, or in expectation of immediate death, from an injury received the same day. No proof of such will can be received unless offered within six months after stating the testamentary words, nor unless the substance thereof was reduced to writing within thirty days after they were spoken. The will of real or personal property, or both, made by person not having a domicile in the State, if executed and acknowledged according to the law of the place where made or where the testator was then domiciled, may be probated in this State.

Probate courts have been abolished by the Constitution, and all probate matters are now transacted in the district courts. A bequest to a charitable institution is void unless made at least thirty days before the death of the testator; such devise shall not exceed, collectively, one third of the estate, when there are heirs, and if it does, it shall be reduced to that extent.

A person can will his entire estate away from his family, subject, however, to the dower rights of his wife.

NEBRASKA LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by
Francis A. Brogan, Esq., of Omaha.

The next legislature convenes January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — There is but one form of action, called a civil action, which must be commenced in the name of the real party in interest, except plaintiff be an executor, administrator, guardian, trustee of an express trust, a person with whom or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another, or other party expressly authorized by statute to sue. Assignees of choses in action assigned for the purpose of collection, may sue on any claim assigned in writing. The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity is abolished by statute, but right of jury trial preserved in law actions.

Actions are commenced by filing in the office of the clerk of the proper court a petition and causing summons to be issued thereon. Actions concerning real estate must be brought in the county or counties where the same is situate except that for a specific performance of a contract to convey action may be brought in county where defendant resides. Actions against a corporation created by the laws of this State may be brought in the county in which it is situated or has its principal place of business; but if such corporation be an insurance company, action may be brought in the county where the cause of action or some part thereof arose, or in the county where any contract has been violated or is to be performed. Personal actions must be brought in the county in which the defendant or some one of the defendants resides or may be summoned. When action is rightly commenced in any county summons may issue to any county in the State. An action against a non-resident may be brought in any county in which he has property. Summons returnable second Monday after its date; and when issued to another county may be made returnable third Monday after its date; and different summonses may issue to different counties at the same time.

The only pleadings allowed are: 1st. The petition, filed when action commenced. 2d. Answer or demurrer to petition, filed by third Monday after return day of summons. 3d. Demurrer or reply to answer, filed by fifth Monday after return day of summons. 4th. Demurrer to the reply.

Actions stand for trial or hearing as soon as issues are joined.

In justices' courts, where personal service can be obtained, the summons is made returnable not less than three nor more than twelve days from date, and unless adjourned for cause, and on proof of claim, judgment is rendered on return day of summons. See Security for Costs.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — An affidavit may be used to verify a pleading, to prove the service of a summons, notice, or other process in an action, to obtain a provisional remedy, an examination of a witness, a stay of proceedings, or to support a motion, and in other cases permitted by law. An affidavit may be made in and out of this State, before any person authorized to take depositions and must be authenticated in the same way, and officer taking same shall certify that it was sworn to or affirmed before him, and signed in his presence. An attorney who is a notary public may swear a client to any pleading in any proceeding of the courts of this State.

Aliens. — "No distinction shall ever be made by law between resident aliens and citizens in reference to the possession, enjoyment, or descent of property" (Constitution, art. I, § 25), except as controlled by treaties. No non-resident aliens, nor corporations not incorporated under the laws of Nebraska, can acquire title to or hold lands or real estate in this State except: 1st. Widows or heirs of aliens who have heretofore legally acquired lands in this State may hold such lands for a period of ten years, at the end of which time, unless the lands be in the mean time sold or the alien heir becomes a resident, such lands may, by proceedings in the district court, be forfeited to the State, and the heirs of persons who would have been entitled to such lands shall be paid the full value thereof, to be ascertained by appraisement. 2d. An alien owning land at the time this act takes effect may dispose of the same during his lifetime and take security for the purchase-money, with the same right as a citizen of the United States. 3d. Said aliens and corporations may hold and take lien upon real estate, and may hold or take title to real estate subject to such liens. They may enforce liens and judgments, and purchase at any sale made for the purpose of enforcing collection of such debt or judgment. Lands so acquired shall be sold within ten years or revert to the State, compensation being made as in case of aliens. 4th. This act does not apply to real estate necessary for construction and operation of railroads. 5th. Nor to such real estate as shall be necessary for erecting and maintaining manufactories. 6th. Nor to real estate within cities and towns.

Appeals. — Either party may appeal from the judgment or decree or final order made by any district court, in any civil action, to the supreme court. The transcript and bill of exceptions, if any, must be filed within three months from date of judgment, decree, or order appealed from or overruling of motion for a new trial. The appeal does not operate as a supersedeas, unless within twenty days from date of judgment, decree, or order the appellant file bond with security duly approved.

Actions in county and justices' courts may be appealed to district court by filing the statutory bonds within ten days from rendition of judgment, and such appeals operate as stay of execution on judgment in court below.

Error and Appeal. — A judgment rendered, or final order made by a county court, justice of the peace, or any other tribunal, board, or officer exercising judicial functions, and inferior to the district court, may be reversed, vacated, or modified by the district court.

A judgment rendered or final order made by the district court may be reversed, vacated, or modified by the supreme court for errors appearing on the record.

Arrest. — Arrest and imprisonment, in civil actions, for debt are abolished.

Assignments. — See Insolvent Laws.

Attachment against Property. — The plaintiff, in a civil action for the recovery of money, may, at or after the commencement thereof, have an attachment against the property of the defendant, and upon the grounds herein stated: When the defendant or one of several defendants is a foreign corporation, or a non-resident of this State; or has absconded with the intent to defraud his creditors; or has left the county of his residence to avoid the service of a summons; or so conceals himself that a summons cannot be served upon him; or is about to remove his property, or a part thereof, out of the jurisdiction of the court, with the intent to defraud his creditors; or is about to convert his property, or a part thereof, into money, for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors; or has property, or rights in action, which he conceals; or has assigned, removed, or disposed of, or is about to dispose of, his property, or a part thereof, with the intent to defraud his creditors; or fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation for which suit is about to be or has been brought. But if the demand is not founded on contract, the original petition must be presented to some judge of the supreme, district, or county court, who shall make an allowance thereon of the amount in value of the property that may be attached, and the amount of bond, if any, to be given by plaintiff. But an attachment shall not be granted on the ground that the defendant is a foreign corporation, or a non-resident of the State, for any claim other than a debt or demand arising upon contract, judgment, or decree, unless the plaintiff shall have been a bona fide resident of the State for at least six months preceding the filing of the petition. An order of attachment shall be made by the clerk of the court in which the action is brought, in any case above mentioned, when there is filed in his office an affidavit of the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney showing: the nature of the plaintiff's claim; that it is just; the amount which the affiant believes the plaintiff ought to recover; the existence of some one of the grounds for an attachment above enumerated; and, also, in case the demand be not founded on contract, the original petition with the allowance thereon by a judge of the supreme, district, or county court of the amount for which the attachment may issue, and of the amount of bond, if any, to be given by plaintiff. When the ground of the attachment is that the defendant is a foreign corporation, or a non-resident of this State, the order of attachment may be issued without an undertaking. In all other cases, the order of attachment shall not be issued by the clerk until there has been executed in his office by one or more sufficient sureties of the plaintiff, to be approved by the clerk, an undertaking, not exceeding double the amount of the plaintiff's claim, or in the amount fixed by the judge of the supreme, district, or county court in case attachment has been allowed by such judge, to the effect that the plaintiff shall pay the defendant all damages which he may sustain by reason of the attachment if the order be wrongfully obtained.

A creditor may bring an action on a claim before it is due, and have an attachment against the property of the debtor; when the debtor has sold, conveyed, or otherwise disposed of his property, or is about to make such sale, conveyance, or disposition of his property, with the fraudulent intent to cheat or defraud his creditors, or to hinder or delay them in the collection of their debts, or when he is about to remove his property or a material part thereof with the intent or to the effect of cheating or defrauding his creditors or of hindering and delaying them in the collection of their debts.

When there are several attachments against the same defendant, they shall be executed in the order in which they are received by the sheriff. Subsequent attachments are subject to prior ones. Attachment binds property from time of service. Statute does not undertake to marshal extent of the responsibility on bonds of prior and subsequent attachments.

Chattel Mortgages — Are valid against bona fide purchasers and creditors, if the instrument or a true copy thereof shall be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county where the mortgagor resides, or, in case he is a non-resident, in the county where the property is situated. The mortgage need not be acknowledged unless it is made upon household goods, when it must be signed and acknowledged by both husband and wife, and duly witnessed. The mortgage ceases to be valid against creditors, purchasers, or mortgagees in good faith after the expiration of five years after the filing thereof. A bill of sale in the nature of a chattel mortgage is good as to the parties to it without being filed as the statute directs. Every chattel mortgage containing power of sale to mortgagee may be foreclosed by sale without proceedings in court. Sale or mortgage of chattels, unless followed by an actual and continued change of possession, is prima facie fraudulent and void as against creditors and subsequent bona fide purchasers. As between the parties a chattel mortgage need not be in writing. A mortgage of goods and chattels with possession and power of sale in the mortgagor is void against the other creditors and subsequent purchasers of such mortgagor. There is no time specified by statute within which chattel mortgages must be foreclosed. It is made a felony for a mortgagor of chattels during the existence of the mortgage lien to sell the property without the consent of the mortgagee, with penalty of imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years, and fine not exceeding one hundred dollars. It is also a felony for a mortgagor to remove the property from the county where situated when mortgaged, with penalty of imprisonment not exceeding ten years and fine not exceeding one thousand dollars.

Chattel mortgages, when satisfied, may be discharged by an entry by the mortgagee, his agent or assignee, on the margin of the index, which shall be attested by the clerk; or by the clerk on the presentation or receipt of an order in writing signed by the mortgagee and attested by a justice of the peace or some officer with a seal. If a mortgagee, his assignee or representative, shall neglect, for the space of ten days, after being requested, to discharge the same as aforesaid, he is liable in the sum of fifty dollars, in addition to actual damages.

Claims against Estates — Are established by the same rules of evidence governing civil actions. They shall be barred unless presented within such time as the probate judge shall fix, not less than three nor more than eighteen months from the granting of letters testamentary or of administration. Such time may, for cause, within three months after its expiration, upon application of a creditor, be extended for a period not more than three months thereafter. When letters have issued claims may be filed. Within forty days after issuance of letters court gives notice of times for hearing, and time limited for filing, claims by posting notices thereof in four public places in the county and by publishing the same at least four weeks successively in some newspaper printed in the State, or in any other manner which the court may direct. Time of payment may be extended on application of administrator or executor from time to time, not exceeding six months at a time, nor so that the whole time allowed shall exceed three years. At end of three years estates shall be settled at once. Claims are classed and paid: 1st. Funeral expenses. 2d. Expenses of last sickness. 3d. Debts having preference by laws of United States. 4th. Other creditors. Specific liens are satisfied out of the property in their order of priority.

When a will is duly proved and allowed, the probate court issues letters testamentary thereon to the person named executor therein, if he is legally competent and accepts the trust and gives bond. If a person named executor in a will refuses to accept the trust, and neglects for twenty days to give bond, the probate court may grant letters testamentary to the other executors, if there be any who are capable and willing to accept the trust, and if there be no such other executor who will give bond, the court may commit administration of estate with will annexed to such person as would have been entitled to the same if the testator had died intestate. Every executor, before he can enter upon the execution of his trust, and before letters testamentary can be issued, must give bond to the probate judge in such reasonable sum as he may direct with one or more sufficient sureties conditioned as follows: to make and return to the court within three months a true and perfect inventory of all the goods, chattels, rights, credits, and estate of the deceased which shall come to his possession or knowledge, or to the possession of any other person for him; to administer according to law and to the will of the testator all his goods, chattels, rights, credits, and estate which shall at any time come to his possession, or to the possession of any other person for him, and out of the same to pay and discharge all debts, legacies, and charges chargeable on the same, and such dividends thereon as shall be ordered and decreed by the court; to render a true and just account of his administration to the probate court within one year, and at such other time when required by such court; and to perform all orders and decrees of the probate court by the executor to be performed in the premises.

Administration of the estate of a person dying intestate shall be granted to some one or more of the persons hereinafter mentioned, and they shall be respectively entitled to the same in the following order: 1. The widow or next of kin, or both, as the judge of probate may think proper, or such person as the widow or next of kin may request to have appointed, if suitable and competent to discharge the trust. 2. If the widow or next of kin or the persons elected by them shall be unsuitable or incompetent, or if the widow or next of kin shall neglect for thirty days after the death of the intestate to apply for administration or to request that administration be granted to some other person, the same may be granted to one or more of the principal creditors if any such are competent and willing to take it. 3. If there be no such creditor competent and willing to take such administration, the same may be committed to such other person or persons as the judge of probate may think proper.

Every administrator before he enters upon the execution of his trust, and before letters of administration are granted, must give a bond to the judge of probate, with such surety or sureties as he shall direct and approve, with the same conditions as required in case of an executor, with such variations only as may be necessary to make it applicable to the case of an administrator.

When there is a delay in granting letters testamentary or administration occasioned by any cause, the probate judge may appoint an administrator to act in collecting and taking charge of the estate of the deceased, until the question of the allowance of the will, or such other question as shall occasion the delay, shall be terminated. It is the duty of such special administrator to collect the goods, chattels, and debts of the deceased and preserve the same for the executor or administrator afterwards appointed.

The executor or administrator of any person dying out of this State appointed in any other State, Territory, or foreign country, and no executor or administrator having been appointed in this State, may be licensed to sell lands of the deceased situate in this State. If it shall appear to the licensing court in this State that the foreign executor or administrator is duly bonded by sufficient sureties in the State or country of his appointment and a copy of the bond duly authenticated be filed in such court, no further bond for the purpose is required. Such executor or administrator may sue in that capacity in this State as other non-residents may sue.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — A section of the statute of frauds reads as follows: "That no sale, contract, or lease, wherein the transfer of title or ownership of personal property is made to depend upon any condition, shall be valid against any purchaser or judgment creditor of the vendee or lessee in actual possession, obtained in pursuance of such sale, contract, or lease, without notice, unless the same be in writing, signed by the vendee or lessee, and a copy thereof filed in the office of the clerk of the county within which such vendee or lessee resides; said copy shall have attached thereto an affidavit of such vendor or lessor, or his agent or attorney, which shall set forth the names of the vendor and vendee or lessor or lessee, or description of the property transferred, and the full and true interest of the vendor or lessor therein. All such sales and transfers shall cease to be valid against purchasers in good faith, or judgment or attaching creditors without notice, at the expiration of five years, unless such vendor or lessor shall, within thirty days prior to the expiration of the five years from the date of such sale or transfer, file a copy thereof, verified as aforesaid, in the office of said clerk, and the said vendor or lessor may preserve the validity of his said sale or transfer of personal property by an annual refiling in the manner as aforesaid of such copy."

In the event of payment by vendee of one third of purchase price, and subsequent default, and taking of possession by vendor, the latter shall redeliver the property to vendee within twenty days from taking possession upon payment of balance of purchase price and such costs as have been made; and in event of refusal of vendor to redeliver, the vendee may recover the amount paid and costs.

Consignments. — Every consignee, factor, or agent who shall sell any merchandise or other property intrusted or consigned to him with intent to defraud the true owner, and every person who shall knowingly connive with aid, or assist him in such fraudulent sale, or shall deposit any merchandise intrusted or consigned to him, or any document so possessed or intrusted, as security for any money borrowed, or shall in any way dispose of the same to his own use, contrary to good faith and with such fraudulent intent, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding three years nor less than one year.

If any warehouseman or forwarding agent, or any person having in his or their possession, custody, or control any goods, wares, merchandise, live stock, or other property by virtue of having issued therefor a receipt, schedule, invoice, or other written instrument, shall without authority, and with intent to injure or defraud the rightful owner thereof sell, assign, transfer, or incumber such goods, wares, or merchandise to the value of fifty dollars or upwards, or in any way convert the same to his own use, or, if received for consignment, he shall change the consignment thereof or sell or incumber the same during the transit, or shall in any way convert the same, or any part thereof, to his own use, to the value of fifty dollars or upwards, he shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary for a term of not less than one nor more than four years.

If any bailee of any goods or chattels shall convert the same to his own use with an intent to steal the same, he is guilty of larceny and is punished accordingly.

Corporations. — The legislature shall pass no special act conferring corporate powers. Corporations may be formed under general law. (Const. title "Miscellaneous Corporations.") There are general statutes for that purpose. Every corporation previous to the commencement of any business except its own organization, when the same is not formed by legislative enactment, must adopt articles, and have them filed and recorded in the Secretary of State's office; and domestic corporations must also file with the county clerk of the county where their headquarters are located, except mutual insurance companies, building and loan companies, loan and investment companies, and banking institutions, which shall file with the State Auditor and State Banking Board. Any number of persons may organize an ordinary corporation; but at least five must organize a railroad corporation. Mutual insurance companies, building and loan, and loan and investment companies, required by law to file articles with the State Auditor, shall file a certificate with the Secretary of State, stating the date of filing with the Auditor, name and place of business, and

strument or a true copy thereof shall be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county where the mortgagor resides, or, in case he is a non-resident, in the county where the property is situated. The mortgage need not be acknowledged unless it is made upon household goods, when it must be signed and acknowledged by both husband and wife, and duly witnessed. When a will is duly proved and allowed, the probate court issues letters testamentary thereon to the person named executor therein, if he is legally competent and accepts the trust and gives bond. If a person named executor in a will refuses to accept the trust, and neglects for twenty days to give bond, the probate court may grant letters testamentary to the other executors, if there be any who are capable and willing to accept the trust, and if there be no such other executor who will give bond, the court may commit administration of estate with will annexed to such person as would have been entitled to the same if the testator had died intestate. Every executor, before he can enter upon the execution of his trust, and before letters testamentary can be issued, must give bond to the probate judge in such reasonable sum as he may direct with one or more sufficient sureties conditioned as follows: to make and return to the court within three months a true and perfect inventory of all the goods, chattels, rights, credits, and estate of the deceased which shall come to his possession or knowledge, or to the possession of any other person for him; to administer according to law and to the will of the testator all his goods, chattels, rights, credits, and estate which shall at any time come to his possession, or to the possession of any other person for him, and out of the same to pay and discharge all debts, legacies, and charges chargeable on the same, and such dividends thereon as shall be ordered and decreed by the court; to render a true and just account of his administration to the probate court within one year, and at such other time when required by such court; and to perform all orders and decrees of the probate court by the executor to be performed in the premises.

Administration of the estate of a person dying intestate shall be granted to some one or more of the persons hereinafter mentioned, and they shall be respectively entitled to the same in the following order: 1. The widow or next of kin, or both, as the judge of probate may think proper, or such person as the widow or next of kin may request to have appointed, if suitable and competent to discharge the trust. 2. If the widow or next of kin or the persons elected by them shall be unsuitable or incompetent, or if the widow or next of kin shall neglect for thirty days after the death of the intestate to apply for administration or to request that administration be granted to some other person, the same may be granted to one or more of the principal creditors if any such are competent and willing to take it. 3. If there be no such creditor competent and willing to take such administration, the same may be committed to such other person or persons as the judge of probate may think proper.

Every administrator before he enters upon the execution of his trust, and before letters of administration are granted, must give a bond to the judge of probate, with such surety or sureties as he shall direct and approve, with the same conditions as required in case of an executor, with such variations only as may be necessary to make it applicable to the case of an administrator.

When there is a delay in granting letters testamentary or administration occasioned by any cause, the probate judge may appoint an administrator to act in collecting and taking charge of the estate of the deceased, until the question of the allowance of the will, or such other question as shall occasion the delay, shall be terminated. It is the duty of such special administrator to collect the goods, chattels, and debts of the deceased and preserve the same for the executor or administrator afterwards appointed.

The executor or administrator of any person dying out of this State appointed in any other State, Territory, or foreign country, and no executor or administrator having been appointed in this State, may be licensed to sell lands of the deceased situate in this State. If it shall appear to the licensing court in this State that the foreign executor or administrator is duly bonded by sufficient sureties in the State or country of his appointment and a copy of the bond duly authenticated be filed in such court, no further bond for the purpose is required. Such executor or administrator may sue in that capacity in this State as other non-residents may sue.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — A section of the statute of frauds reads as follows: "That no sale, contract, or lease, wherein the transfer of title or ownership of personal property is made to depend upon any condition, shall be valid against any purchaser or judgment creditor of the vendee or lessee in actual possession, obtained in pursuance of such sale, contract, or lease, without notice, unless the same be in writing, signed by the vendee or lessee, and a copy thereof filed in the office of the clerk of the county within which such vendee or lessee resides; said copy shall have attached thereto an affidavit of such vendor or lessor, or his agent or attorney, which shall set forth the names of the vendor and vendee or lessor or lessee, or description of the property transferred, and the full and true interest of the vendor or lessor therein. All such sales and transfers shall cease to be valid against purchasers in good faith, or judgment or attaching creditors without notice, at the expiration of five years, unless such vendor or lessor shall, within thirty days prior to the expiration of the five years from the date of such sale or transfer, file a copy thereof, verified as aforesaid, in the office of said clerk, and the said vendor or lessor may preserve the validity of his said sale or transfer of personal property by an annual refiling in the manner as aforesaid of such copy."

In the event of payment by vendee of one third of purchase price, and subsequent default, and taking of possession by vendor, the latter shall redeliver the property to vendee within twenty days from taking possession upon payment of balance of purchase price and such costs as have been made; and in event of refusal of vendor to redeliver, the vendee may recover the amount paid and costs.

Consignments. — Every consignee, factor, or agent who shall sell any merchandise or other property intrusted or consigned to him with intent to defraud the true owner, and every person who shall knowingly connive with aid, or assist him in such fraudulent sale, or shall deposit any merchandise intrusted or consigned to him, or any document so possessed or intrusted, as security for any money borrowed, or shall in any way dispose of the same to his own use, contrary to good faith and with such fraudulent intent, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding three years nor less than one year.

If any warehouseman or forwarding agent, or any person having in his or their possession, custody, or control any goods, wares, merchandise, live stock, or other property by virtue of having issued therefor a receipt, schedule, invoice, or other written instrument, shall without authority, and with intent to injure or defraud the rightful owner thereof sell, assign, transfer, or incumber such goods, wares, or merchandise to the value of fifty dollars or upwards, or in any way convert the same to his own use, or, if received for consignment, he shall change the consignment thereof or sell or incumber the same during the transit, or shall in any way convert the same, or any part thereof, to his own use, to the value of fifty dollars or upwards, he shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary for a term of not less than one nor more than four years.

If any bailee of any goods or chattels shall convert the same to his own use with an intent to steal the same, he is guilty of larceny and is punished accordingly.

Corporations. — The legislature shall pass no special act conferring corporate powers. Corporations may be formed under general law. (Const. title "Miscellaneous Corporations.") There are general statutes for that purpose. Every corporation previous to the commencement of any business except its own organization, when the same is not formed by legislative enactment, must adopt articles, and have them filed and recorded in the Secretary of State's office; and domestic corporations must also file with the county clerk of the county where their headquarters are located, except mutual insurance companies, building and loan companies, loan and investment companies, and banking institutions, which shall file with the State Auditor and State Banking Board. Any number of persons may organize an ordinary corporation; but at least five must organize a railroad corporation. Mutual insurance companies, building and loan, and loan and investment companies, required by law to file articles with the State Auditor, shall file a certificate with the Secretary of State, stating the date of filing with the Auditor, name and place of business, and names of stockholders. Domestic banking organizations, that have been approved by State Banking Board and that have filed articles with said board, shall file a certificate in the Secretary of State's office, stating the date of filing articles with said board, name and place of business, and names of stockholders. Above provisions do not apply to mutual fraternal benefit societies. Corporate powers cease if corporation is not organized within one year after incorporation. Within four months from filing articles, notice must be published in a newspaper near principal place of business for four weeks, stating, 1, name; 2, principal place of business; 3, general nature of business; 4, amount of capital stock authorized, and time and conditions of payment; 5, time of commencement and termination; 6, highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which corporation is at any time to subject itself; 7, by what officers affairs are to be conducted. Corporations shall give notice by publication annually of the amount of their existing debts; and if any corporation shall fail to do so, after the assets of the corporation are first exhausted, all the stockholders of the corporation shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the corporation existing and contracted during the time the officers are in default in giving such notice, to the extent of unpaid subscription to stock, and, in addition, to the amount of stock owned by each. If corporations fail to comply substantially with the statute, as to notice of indebtedness after the assets of corporations are first exhausted, the property of stockholders shall be liable for the debts, to the extent of unpaid subscription to stock, and in addition thereto to the amount of stock owned by each. Stockholders in railroad companies are individually liable to creditors for amount unpaid on stock. Corporations shall not become indebted to exceed two thirds of their capital stock. This limitation does not apply to debts for risks of insurance companies, deposits in banks, and the notes, bonds, or debentures of any loan or trust company secured by mortgage on real estate of twice the par value thereof; nor to any loan or trust company's guaranty upon the transfer of such notes, etc. Actions do not abate on account of dissolution of corporation. Also see Service. "Any corporation organized under the laws of any other State or Territory which has filed or may hereafter file with the Secretary of this State a true copy of its charter or articles of association shall, on filing with the Secretary of State a certified copy of a resolution adopted by its board of directors accepting the provisions of this act, be and become a body corporate of this State." No requirement that any particular amount of capital must be paid in at time of organization; nor as to number of directors, resident or otherwise. There must be paid to the Secretary of State on filing articles, domestic or foreign, in addition to a recording fee of ten cents per one hundred words, a fee based upon authorized capital stock as follows: ten dollars if capital stock is ten thousand dollars or less; twenty dollars if capital stock is more than ten thousand dollars but does not exceed twenty-five thousand dollars; fifty dollars if capital stock is more than twenty-five thousand dollars, but does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars; and if capital stock is over one hundred thousand dollars fifty cents additional for each one thousand dollars in excess of one hundred thousand dollars. Property of corporation, domestic or foreign, taxed on ad valorem basis, as if owned by individual. No tax on capital stock of foreign corporation, and no tax or license fee required for doing business in State. See Tax Laws. With reference to foreign corporation holding lands, see Aliens.

Every foreign corporation, except insurance companies, and railroad companies which maintain agents in the State, and carriers of interstate commerce must, before authorized to transact business, file a certificate, signed and acknowledged by the president or secretary, with the Secretary of State and with the register of deeds of the county in which is located the principal place of business in the State, designating the principal place of business in the State, and naming an agent with his official title upon whom service of process against the corporation can be made, who must reside at the principal place of business. Service can also be made upon the corporation by serving the State Auditor, who shall notify the corporation. Failure to comply subjects the foreign corporation to the payment of one thousand dollars to the State, to be collected by an action instituted by the Attorney-General. Any person transacting any business for a foreign corporation failing to comply is guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by jail sentence of from ten to thirty days.

Foreign corporation for profit, doing business in the State, and owning or using a part or all of its capital or plant in the State, must annually make a written report to the Secretary of State during the month of July, which must be signed and sworn to by the president, vice-president, secretary, superintendent, or managing agent in the State, and which must show: the name of the corporation and under the laws of what State or country organized, the location of its principal office, the names of president, secretary, treasurer, and members of the board of directors, with post office address of each, the date of the annual election of officers, the amount of authorized capital stock and the par value of each share, the amount of capital stock subscribed, the amount of capital stock issued and the amount of capital stock paid up, the nature and kind of business in which engaged and place or places of business, both within and without the State, the name and location of its office or offices in the State, and the name and address of the officers or agents in charge of its business in the State, the value of the property owned and used in the State, where situated, and the value of the property owned and used outside of the State and where situated, and the change or changes, if any, in the above particulars made since the last annual report.

Upon the filing of such report by a foreign corporation, now or hereafter doing business in the State, it shall be its duty to pay to the Secretary of State as an annual fee, based upon paid up capital stock, the same amount as the annual fee prescribed for domestic corporations.

Upon the filing of reports and payment of fees, the Secretary of State must deliver to the corporation a certificate exhibiting the filing of the report and the payment of the annual fee. If a corporation fails to file report and pay fee within thirty days after required, it shall be subject to a penalty of fifteen per cent. of amount of fee required to be paid, which penalty and annual fee may be recovered in an action at law brought by the State through the attorney general on request of the Secretary of State in the county in which the capital of the State is located, or in any county in which the corporation has an office or place of business. The Governor, Secretary of State, and Attorney-General, upon cause shown, may, in their discretion, remit the penalty or any part thereof.

The issuance and sale of stock in foreign and domestic corporations is regulated by statute under the jurisdiction of the State Railway Commission. No shares of stock may be sold except upon permit obtained from the Commission.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Nebraska.

Deeds. — All deeds affecting the title of real property, excepting leases for one year or less, must be signed by the grantor, attested by one or more competent witnesses, acknowledged or proved, and duly recorded. Where consideration exceeds one hundred dollars the actual consideration must be stated in all conveyances. Acknowledgments or proofs may be taken in the State by judges, clerks of courts, justices of the peace, and notaries public. The certificate of acknowledgment must be indorsed on the instrument, and show that the grantor acknowledged the same to be his voluntary act and deed, and that the officer taking the acknowledgment knew him to be the same person whose name was signed thereto, or had satisfactory evidence of that fact. If the acknowledgment be taken before a notary public or other officer having a seal, his seal of office must be affixed, and no further authentication is necessary. A notary public must state in his seal, or under his official signature, on all certificates of authentication, the date of expiration of his term of office. The county clerk of county for which a notary public is qualified is the proper officer to certify as to official character. If the grantor die before acknowledgment, or if for any cause his attendance cannot be procured to make the acknowledgment, or if he refuses to make it, proof of execution and delivery may be made by any competent subscribing witness thereto, before any officer authorized to take the acknowledgment; or, if all the subscribing witnesses are out of the State, proof may be made by proving the handwriting of the grantor and of any subscribing witness. The deed, with the certificates of acknowledgment or proof, must be recorded in the county where the lands lie. Acknowledgments or proofs taken out of the State and in the United States must be taken in conformity to the law of the State or Territory in which taken, or in accordance with the laws of this State, and be made before some court of record or clerk or officer holding the seal thereof, or before some commissioner to take the acknowledgment of deeds appointed by the governor of this State or before some notary or justice of the peace; and if taken before a justice of the peace the acknowledgment shall be accompanied by a certificate of his official character under the hand of the clerk of some court of record, to which the seal of said court shall be affixed. All such acknowledgments or proofs last mentioned, taken by an officer having no seal of office, must be accompanied with a certificate of a clerk of a court of record, or other proper officer of the district, under official seal, that the officer taking the same was the same as represented therein at the date thereof, that the signature is genuine, and the acknowledgment is in conformity with law. Deeds executed in foreign countries may be made according to the laws thereof, and acknowledged by any notary public, or by any ministerial officer, commercial agent, or consul of the United States appointed to reside therein. There is no requirement that acknowledgments must be written or printed on the instrument. They are ordinarily both written and printed on the instrument, and sometimes on separate paper securely pasted to the instrument. There is no requirement in the statute that United States consul should certify to official position of officer taking acknowledgment. See Records.

No separate examination is required in taking a wife's acknowledgment, and her deed may be acknowledged or proved same as a married man's. See Married Women. All deeds shall have at least one subscribing witness therein. When proof of execution in lieu of acknowledgment is permitted, the same may be made by a subscribing witness thereto, who must state upon oath his own place of residence, that he set his name to the deed as a witness, that he knew the grantor in such deed, and saw him sign or heard him acknowledge that he had signed the same. And such proof shall not be taken unless the officer is personally acquainted with such witness, or has satisfactory evidence that he is the same person who was a subscribing witness to such deed.

"It shall be lawful for any corporation to convey lands by deed, sealed by the common seal of said corporation, and signed by the president or presiding officer of the board of directors of the corporation; and such deed, when acknowledged by such officer to be the act of the corporation, or proved in the usual form prescribed for other conveyance for lands, shall be recorded in the clerk's office of the county in which the lands lie, in like manner as other deeds."

Private seals are abolished. Not even a scroll is required.

[Certificate of Acknowledgment of Husband and Wife.]

STATE OF }
COUNTY OF } ss.

On this second day of January, A. D. 19 before me (here insert name and title of officer), in and for said county, personally appeared John Smith and Mary E. Smith, his wife, to me personally known (or by the oaths of one or more witnesses, whose names are hereto suband the issue of one or more other children, and any such surviving child shall die under age and not having been married, all the estate that came to the deceased child by inheritance from such deceased parent shall descend, in equal shares, to the other children of the same parent, and to the issue of any such children who shall have died, by the right of representation. 6. If, at the death of such child who shall die under age, and not having been married, all the other children of said parent shall also be dead, and any of them shall have left issue, the estate that came to the said child by inheritance from his or her said parent shall descend to all the issue of the other children of the same parent; and if all the said issue are in the same degree of kindred to said child, they shall take the estate equally; otherwise they shall take according to the right of representation. 7. If the deceased shall leave no kindred nor husband nor wife, the estate shall escheat to the State of Nebraska.

The right of a married man or woman to inherit a part or all of the real estate of which his or her spouse was seized of an estate of inheritance at any time during the marriage may be barred by a conveyance executed by such husband and wife while residents of this State, and, if either such husband or wife be not a resident of this State, by a deed of conveyance executed either by both of said parties or by the one seized at the time of such conveyance; and such right to inherit may also be barred by the sale of such real estate under execution or other judicial sale, during the lifetime of the owner of the title. A man or woman may also bar his or her right to inherit part or all of the lands of his or her husband or wife by a contract made in lieu thereof before marriage. Said contract shall be in writing signed by both of the parties to such marriage and acknowledged in the manner required by law for the conveyance of real estate, or executed in conformity with the laws of the place where made. If any real estate be devised by a deceased husband or wife to the surviving husband or wife of such deceased person, or other provision be made for him or her in the last will and testament of such deceased person, he or she shall be entitled to his or her election to take the lands so devised, or the provision made for him or her in the last will and testament of such deceased husband or wife or to take by inheritance, descent, and distribution the interest in the estate of the deceased, provided by law; but he or she shall not be entitled to both unless it plainly appears by the last will and testament of the deceased to have been so intended by the testator or testatrix. Surviving husband or wife deemed to have elected to take under will unless within one year after the issuance of letters testamentary he or she file in the probate court his or her refusal in writing to take under will, and his or her declaration to take under law, which refusal and declaration must be acknowledged in manner provided for acknowledgment of conveyances of real estate.

Personal Estate. — Surviving husband or wife, and if any, then the child or children, allowed all articles of apparel and ornament, the household furniture, and all property that was exempt from execution, of the deceased, and other personal property to be selected to the value of two hundred dollars. This allowance is made as well when party taking receives provision made in will of deceased as when he dies intestate. The husband or wife and children have such reasonable allowance from personal estate, or from income of real estate, as probate court may deem necessary for their maintenance during settlement of estate, which, where estate is insolvent, shall not be longer than one year after granting administration, nor for any time after personal estate shall be assigned to surviving husband or wife. When personal estate and income from real estate are insufficient to meet allowances same shall be a debt against the estate, to be paid from the proceeds of the sale of any real estate, and to take preference for payment next after debts due the State, and before claims of general creditors. When deceased leaves children under fourteen years of age having no father nor mother, or when the father or mother shall die before children arrive at the age of fourteen years, an allowance is made for the maintenance of such children until they arrive at the age of fourteen years, out of such part of the personal estate, and the income of such part of the real estate as the father or mother would have inherited if he or she had been living. If, on the return of the inventory, it appears that the value of the estate does not exceed five hundred dollars the probate court may assign for the support of the surviving husband or wife and children, or for the support of the children under fourteen years of age, if there be no surviving husband or wife, the whole of the estate after payment of funeral charges and expenses of administration. If personal estate shall amount to more than five hundred dollars, and more than the allowance heretofore named in favor of surviving husband or wife or child or children, the same shall be applied to the payment of the debts of deceased, with the charges of the funeral and of settling the estate.

Distribution. — After paying debts, etc., of deceased, the residue of the personal property of intestate shall be distributed in the same proportions to the same persons as prescribed for the descent of real estate.

Divorce — May be decreed by the district court of the county where one of the parties resides, when the husband or wife has committed adultery, has willfully abandoned the other without just cause for two years, has become a habitual drunkard, was physically incompetent at the time of the marriage, or has been sentenced to imprisonment for three years or more, or been guilty of extreme cruelty; wife may obtain divorce when husband, being of sufficient ability to suitably maintain her, grossly or wantonly and cruelly refuses or neglects so to do. Court may decree alimony and distributive share of real property. All Judgments and orders for payment of alimony or of maintenance, in actions of divorce or maintenance, shall be liens upon property in like manner as in other actions, and enforced in like manner. This remedy is merely cumulative. The court may compel husband to give security for alimony or maintenance.

No person shall be entitled to a divorce from any cause arising in this State who has not had actual residence in this State for at least one year next before bringing suit for divorce with a bona fide intention of making this State his or her permanent home, unless the marriage was solemnized in this State and the applicant shall have resided therein from the time of the marriage to the time of filing the petition. No person shall be entitled to a divorce for any cause arising out of this State unless the petitioner or defendant shall have resided within this State for at least two years next before bringing suit for divorce, with a bona fide intention of making this State his or her permanent home. A petition or bill of divorce, alimony, and maintenance may be exhibited by a wife in her own name, as well as by a husband, and in all cases the respondent may answer such petition or bill without oath. No person shall be entitled to a divorce unless the defendant shall have been personally served with process, if within this State, or with personal notice duly proved and appearing of record, if out of this State, or unless the defendant shall have entered an appearance in the case; but if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court by the affidavit of the petitioner or of his or her attorney that the petitioner does not know the address or residence of the defendant, and has not been able to ascertain either, after reasonable and due inquiry and search, continued for three months after the filing of the petition, the court or judge in vacation shall authorize notice by publication of the pendency of the suit for divorce, to be given in a manner as provided in other cases under the code of civil procedure. A decree of divorce shall not become final or operative until six months after trial and decision except for the purpose of review, by proceedings in error or by appeal; and for such purpose only the decree shall be treated as a final order as soon as rendered: provided that if proceedings in error or by appeal shall have been instituted within said six months the said decree shall not become final until said proceedings are finally determined. If no such proceedings have been instituted, the district court may, at any time within said six months, vacate or modify said decree; but if said decree shall not have been vacated or modified, unless proceedings are then pending with that end in view, the original decree shall at the expiration of six months become final without any further action of the court.

Marriages are void: 1. When one party is a white person and the other is possessed one eighth or more negro, Japanese, or Chinese blood. 2. When either party has a husband or wife living at the time of marriage. 3. When either party is insane or an idiot at the time of marriage. 4. When the parties stand in the relation to each other of parents and children, grandparents and grandchildren, brother and sister of half as well as whole blood, first cousins when of whole blood, uncle and niece, aunt and nephew.

Dower and Curtesy. — Dower and curtesy are abolished.

Estates. — See Claims against Estates.

Evidence. — Parties to actions are allowed to testify, except when the adverse party is an executor, administrator, or legal representative of a deceased person, and other usual exceptions arising out of the relation of the parties to each other. Defendants in criminal prosecutions are allowed to testify in their own behalf. See also Judgments.

When adverse party is the representative of a deceased person, the person having interest cannot testify to any transaction or conversation had between deceased and witness, except under certain special circumstances named.

Executions — Issue, unless stayed, at any time after judgment upon order therefor. Execution first issued is first satisfied, except no preference is given to execution issued during the term at which judgment is rendered, or within ten days after such term, or delivered to sheriff on same day. May issue to any county in the State, and simultaneously to different counties. Is first to be satisfied upon goods and chattels, and if these be insufficient, is then to be levied upon lands. Are not liens upon personalty or realty, when issued to counties other than where judgment is rendered, until levy, unless transcript thereof has been filed in such county. Are returnable within sixty days if issued by district court, and in thirty days if issued by county court or justice of the peace. There is no redemption of property sold on execution or order of sale on foreclosure of mortgage. Debtor can redeem it any time before confirmation of sale. Title becomes absolute on confirmation of sale, any subsequent reversal of the judgment under which the property was sold notwithstanding. If execution shall not be sued out within five years from the date of the judgment, or if five years shall have intervened between the date of the last execution issued on such judgment and the time of suing out another execution thereon, such judgment shall become dormant, and shall cease to operate as a lien on the estate of the debtor. If execution be not issued in five years from the rendition of judgment, the judgment shall not operate as a lien upon the estate of the debtor to the prejudice of any other bona fide judgment creditor or purchaser; but this does not affect the lien when such failure to issue execution is caused by stay of execution, appeal, proceedings in error, injunction, or by vacancy in the office of sheriff or coroner, or the inability of such officers, until one year after such disability shall be removed.

The property, real and personal, which any woman in this State may own at the time of her marriage, and the rents, issues, profits, or proceeds thereof, and any real, personal, or mixed property which shall come to her by descent, devise, or the gifts of any person, except her husband, or which she shall acquire by purchase or otherwise, shall remain her sole and separate property, notwithstanding her marriage, and shall not be subject to the disposal of her husband, or liable for his debts. But her separate estate, not exempt from execution or attachment, shall be liable for the payment of all debts contracted for necessities furnished the family, after execution against the husband therefor shall have been returned unsatisfied.

Exemptions. — There is exempt from judicial sale to every family, whether owned by the husband or wife, a homestead, not exceeding in value two thousand dollars, consisting of dwelling-house, in which claimant resides, and its appurtenances, and land on which same is situated not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, or if within any incorporated city or village a quantity of contiguous land not exceeding two lots. All heads of families who have neither lands, town lots, nor houses subject to exemption as a homestead have exempt from forced sale on execution five hundred dollars in personal property, except wages. Ninety per cent. of wages exempt except for necessities furnished in support of family. If title to homestead is in wife it is exempt, and in such case the head of the family is not entitled to exemption of five hundred dollars in personalty. Nor is he if his title is simply a contract of sale. The clothing of the family, family supplies for six months, supplies for domestic animals for three months, furniture, family bible and pictures, books, cooking utensils, certain domestic animals, tools, implements of trade, etc., are exempt. Exempt property is not susceptible of fraudulent alienation. All pension money of United States soldiers and sailors, and property purchased and improved thereby, is exempt.

"The phrase, 'head of a family,' as used in this chapter includes within its meaning: 1. The husband, when the claimant is a married person. 2. Every person who has residing on the premises with him or her, and under his care and maintenance, either: 1. His or her minor child, or the minor child of his or her deceased wife or husband. 2. A minor brother or sister, or the minor child of a deceased brother or sister. 3. A father, mother, grandfather, or grandmother. 4. The father or mother, grandfather or grandmother of a deceased husband or wife. 5. An unmarried sister, or any other of the relatives mentioned in this section who have attained the age of majority and are unable to take care of or support themselves."

An assignment of wages of the head of a family is void unless executed and acknowledged by both husband and wife.

A conveyance or incumbrance of homestead by the owner is of no validity unless the husband and wife, if the owner is married, concur in and sign the same joint instrument.

The homestead is subject to execution on forced sale in satisfaction of judgments obtained: 1. On debts secured by mechanics', laborers', or vendors' liens upon the premises. 2. On debts secured by mortgage upon the premises, executed and acknowledged by both husband and wife, or an unmarried claimant.

Homestead descends discharged from debts.

Garnishment. — In cases of attachment, "when the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall make oath in writing that he has good reason to and does believe that any person or corporation to be named, and within the county where the action is brought, has property of defendant (describing same) in his possession," the said property, whether debts, choses in action, or chattels or other property, may be garnished and held the same as property otherwise attached.

In all cases where an execution issued upon any judgment of a court of record or of a justice of the peace shall be returned by the officer in whose hands the same was placed for service, unsatisfied for want of sufficient property whereon to levy and collect the same, and the judgment creditor in such execution, his agent or attorney, shall file an affidavit in the office of the clerk of such court, or such justice of the peace, that any person or corporation (naming same) has property of and is indebted to the judgment creditor, such person or corporation may be summoned as garnishee.

Inheritance Taxes. — See Tax Law.

Insolvent Laws or Assignments. — Except as affected by the national bankruptcy act, the following statute respecting assignments is in force.

No voluntary assignment is valid unless made according to this act. Every such assignment shall be of all real and personal property, except what is exempt from execution. (§ 2.) The real estate shall be described as definitely as in ordinary conveyances. (§ 3.) The personal property claimed as exempt shall be separately specified and described. (§ 4.) The sheriff, and his successor in office, of the county in which the assignor resides, shall be the assignee. (§ 5.) The assignment shall be by deed, and shall be filed for record within twenty-four hours of its execution; shall be recorded in every other county where land lies within thirty days. A failure to record within time avoids the deed as to the property situated in the county where such failure took place, and, if the fault of the failure is on the assignee, he shall be liable for the amount of the property as to which such assignment shall be avoided. (§ 6.) The sheriff is liable on his bond for the assigned property, and shall take immediate possession thereof. (§ 7.) Within ten days assignor shall file inventory and statement of debts and credits with county judge. (§ 8.) Within fifteen days thereafter, county judge shall have meeting of creditors at his office to choose assignee to succeed sheriff. (§ 9.) Assignee must be chosen by majority in value and one third in number of creditors, and only creditors who have verified their debts on oath can vote. (§ 10.) The meeting can be adjourned from day to day for three days, and in case of failure to choose the sheriff remains assignee. (§ 11.) Immediately after meeting the sheriff and the assignee shall return inventory and appraisement into county court. (§ 12.) Within forty-eight hours after, the assignee shall enter into an undertaking in double amount of the appraised value of whole estate, with one or more sureties to be approved by county judge, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as such assignee. Failure to give this bond avoids the election of assignee. (§ 13.) The bond shall be recorded, etc. (§ 14.) Then sheriff shall quitclaim and deliver to assignee. (§ 15.) All claims shall be filed at time to be fixed by county judge, not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days after meeting of creditors, and all claims not filed within the time are "forever barred." (§ 16.) Next day after time for filing all uncontested claims shall be allowed, and pleadings as in other cases, as near as practicable, shall be made on contested claims, and afterward, not exceeding sixty days, trial. (§ 17.) Procedure on contested claims. (§ 18.) Appeals in contested claims allowed to district court. (§ 19.) Assignee shall sell the estate as a sheriff, upon execution, and the procedure is similar, except that the property must bring appraised value, unless by written consent of majority in value of creditors. (§ 20.) Assignee shall report sale to county court, and make like report between first and fifth days of every month. (§ 21.) Three months from date of inventory and at other time county court shall order distribution of money in assignee's hands, and can enforce order by attachment. (§ 22.) When entire estate is converted into money, final distribution shall be ordered and enforced in like manner. (§ 23.) Money shall be distributed as follows: 1. Fees and allowance to assignee, county judge, sheriff, and officers. 2. Taxes and assessments. 3. Preferred claims. 4. Balance among creditors pro rata. (§ 24, as amended by Laws 1887, p. 98.) For procedure in cases of delays in contested claims, and final distribution thereafter, and discharge of assignee, see §§ 25-27. Fees allowed in assignments. (§ 28.) Every assignment shall be void if it gives a preference among creditors, except for labor or wages not exceeding one hundred dollars to any person, or if it require any creditor to release or compromise his demand, or if it reserve any interest in the assigned property, or if it confer any power on the assignee different from the statute, or if the assignor fails to make the inventory required. But an omission of any property will not avoid assignment. (§ 29.) Fraudulent conveyance by assignee. (§ 30.) Assignee may be cited to account or removed. (§ 31.) Copartnership property may be assigned without including individual property. (§ 32.) Assignments shall not affect right of creditor to pursue any remedy at law or in equity to collect his claim, neither shall the proving of his claim prevent his attacking validity of assignment. (§ 33.) Assignor may be cited to account and declare under oath. (§ 34.) Third persons suspected of having property of assignor may be cited and compelled to account. (§ 35.) Full jurisdiction in county court to carry out provisions of the statute, which for that purpose is always open for business. (§ 39.) Fraudulent conveyances by assignor void. (§§ 42, 43.) Clerks' and servants' wages protected. (§ 44.) Frauds of assignor made penitentiary offenses. (§ 45.)

The sale of the whole of a stock of merchandise, other than in the ordinary course of trade and regular and usual prosecution of the seller's business, is void as against the creditors of the seller unless he and the purchaser, at least five days before the sale, make a detailed inventory showing the quantity and cost price to the seller of each article included, and unless the purchaser demands and receives from the seller a written list of names and addresses of creditors of the seller, with the amount due or owing to each, and certified by the seller, under oath, and unless the purchaser shall at least five days before taking possession, or making payment, notify personally or by registered mail, every creditor whose name and address is stated in the list, of the proposed sale, terms and conditions; provided that at least five days before sale the seller may file with the county clerk of the county in which stock is located an agreement with all his creditors waiving the inventory and notice. These provisions are not applicable to sales made by executors, administrators, receivers, or public officers under judicial process.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest is seven per cent., but by agreement may be as high as ten per cent. Judgments draw same rate of interest as the contracts upon which they are founded, except that if contract rate is less than legal rate the judgment will bear the legal rate. A judgment not founded on a contract for a higher rate will draw but seven per cent. An unsettled account draws interest at the rate of seven per cent., from date. In case of mutual accounts, interest runs on the balance six months after the date of the last item. The contract rate continues until payment.

The acts and dealings of an agent in loaning money shall bind the principal, and in all cases when there is illegal interest by the transaction of the agent, the principal will be held thereby as if he had done the same in person. Where the same person acts as agent for the borrower who obtains the money from the lender, he shall be deemed to be the agent of the loaner also.

Any person charged with taking illegal interest may be required to answer touching the same, on oath, in any civil proceeding.

Any officer or agent of a person or a corporation, whether interested or not, may be summoned as witness in any action for usury against such person or corporation, and required to disclose all the facts of the case; but the testimony of such witness, or the answer of the party, shall not be used against such witness or party, in any criminal prosecution for perjury.

The penalty for usury is to prohibit the recovery of any interest on the principal or of any costs in the action. The principal can be recovered.

Usury cannot be pleaded against an innocent purchaser for value before due.

Judgments. — In the district court are liens on the lands of the debtor situated in the same county, from the first day of the term at which judgment is rendered; but judgments by confession, and judgments rendered at the same term at which the action is commenced, shall bind such lands only from the day on which such judgments are rendered. All other lands, as well as goods and chattels of the debtor, shall be bound from the time they shall be seized in execution, except that the transcript of a judgment in any district court in this State may be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of any county, and such transcript shall be a lien on the property of the debtor in any county in which such transcript is filed, in like manner as in the county where such judgment was rendered. The transcript of a judgment of a justice of the peace to become a lien must be filed in the district court of the county where judgment is recovered, and cannot in the first instance be filed in the district court of another county. But transcript of a judgment of the county court may be taken directly to the district court of another county. The lien on the real estate of a judgment debtor, created by a judgment in the district court of the county where the land is situated, continues for five years after the rendition of the judgment, and for five years after the issuance of execution.

Judgments bear interest from date at seven per cent. per annum, provided that if the contract on which judgment was rendered was for a greater rate, and not more than allowed by law, the judgment shall bear same rate of interest as such contract.

Judgments in justices' and county courts become liens on real estate upon the filing and docketing of a transcript thereof in the office of the clerk of the district court.

If no defense, party is in default in district court on Tuesday next after third Monday after the return day of summons served; and in county court on second day of the first term after the service of summons has been made, ten days; and in justices' courts at the time for trial named in the summons not less than three nor more than twelve days, and judgments may be rendered as soon as party is in default.

A judicial record of this State, or of any federal court of the United States, may be proved by the producing of the original, or by a copy thereof certified by the clerk or person having the legal custody thereof, authenticated by his seal of office, if he have one. That of a sister State may be proved by the attestation of the clerk and seal of the court annexed, if there be a seal, together with a certificate of a judge, chief justice, or presiding magistrate, that the attestation is in due form of law.

The record of a justice of the peace of any of the United States is proved by certificate of the justice, supported by official certificate of the clerk of any court of record of the county where the justice resides, stating that he is a justice of the peace of that county and that the signature of his certificate is genuine.

No statute authorizing judgment notes.

A judgment lien does not attach to an equitable interest of the debtor in real estate unless the debtor is in possession as owner.

A dormant judgment may be revived by proceedings commenced within ten years after it becomes dormant.

License. — Commercial travelers are not required to take out a license. Agents for sale of corporation stock are required to obtain a permit. See Corporations.

Liens. — Mechanics', contractors', and material-men's liens are obtained by filing in the office of the county clerk, or in the office of the registrar of deeds in counties having such office, for record, an account in writing of the items, and making oath thereto, to be done within four months after furnishing such materials or work and labor, where the contract for the same is made, with the owner of the premises. Where the contract is made with the contractor the account must be filed as above within sixty days. The contract must be made with the owner of the property, and with reference to its improvement, removal, etc. The lien continues from the date of the first item for two years after the filing of such lien and is good against the homestead exemption. See Exemptions.

Mechanics' liens are assignable after being filed as above, but not before.

Public boards in letting contracts for public buildings must take bond of builder that all mechanics and material-men will be paid.

An artisan who by alteration or repair enhances the value of any vehicle, automobile, machinery, farm implement, or tool, or shoes horse or mule, etc., at the request of or with the consent of the owner, has a lien and may retain article in possession until charges are paid, or he may deliver to owner, and within sixty days thereafter file a verified claim in the office of the county clerk and have a lien prior to all other unrecorded liens during a period of one year, and may foreclose as in case of a chattel mortgage.

Limitations. — Civil actions must be commenced within the following times after the cause of action accrues: 1st. For the recovery of title or possession of real estate, which is stated to apply also to mortgages of lands, upon official bonds of executors, administrators, guardians, sheriffs, or other officers, or upon penal bonds, ten years. 2d. For recovery of damages resulting from failure of consideration of contract, or for the recovery of money paid on like contract; upon a verbal contract express or implied; for trespass upon real property; for taking, detaining, or injuring, or for the recovery of specific personal property, or for relief on the ground of fraud, four years. 3d. Upon a specialty, agreement, contract, or promise in writing or foreign judgment, five years. 4th. For forcible entry and detainer, libel, slander, assault and battery, malicious prosecution or false imprisonment, actions upon statute for penalty or forfeiture, one year. Causes of action arising without this State which have been barred by the laws of any State or Territory are barred by the laws of this State. Such causes are barred in this State when debtor has resided here statutory time. The statute ceases to operate (except actions for penalty or forfeiture) while the plaintiff labors under a legal disability, or while defendant absents or conceals himself. The payment of any part of the principal or interest, or an acknowledgment of an existing liability, debt, or claim, or any promise to pay the same in writing, takes a case founded on contract out of the statute and revives the liability. A new promise, partial payment, etc., after debt barred, revives it. Claims against State barred in two years. See Tax Law, for tax title limitations.

Married Women. — The property, real or personal, owned by a married woman at the time of marriage, the rents, issues, profits, and proceeds thereof, and any property which comes to her, except only by gift of her husband, remains her sole and separate property, not subject to the disposal of her husband, nor liable for his debts. See Executions. She may convey her real estate and contract with reference thereto, in the same manner and with like effect as a married man, and may sue and be sued as if unmarried. May labor or carry on business on her separate account. Her earnings are her sole property. If married out of the State, she may here enjoy all rights as to property there acquired. Husband is not liable for debts contracted by wife before marriage.

A married woman is not liable to a personal judgment on her note or other contract unless same was made with reference to her separate property.

A married woman may dispose of her own property by will, and may alter or revoke the same in like manner that a person under no disability may do, and subject to the same restrictions.

She is liable upon her covenant of warranty in sale of her separate estate. The property of a married woman without act of hers is not liable for her husband's debts. But see Executions.

Majority. — Males become of age at twenty-one; females, eighteen; but in case a female marries between the age of sixteen and eighteen, her minority ends.

Mechanics' Liens. — See Liens.

Mortgages. — See Chattel Mortgages. All the statements under title of Deeds apply equally to mortgages of real estate. A wife cannot claim dower as against a lien or a mortgage for purchase-money, though not executed by her. Every deed, though absolute, shown by any other instrument in writing to be intended as a security in the nature of a mortgage, is considered a mortgage, and no advantage can be derived from the record thereof by the person for whose benefit it is made, except the defeasance or explanatory instrument be also recorded. Stay of execution on decrees of foreclosure and sale allowed for nine months, on written request, without bond. No redemption of lands sold on foreclosure. Proceedings for foreclosure may be commenced on any delinquent principal. The record of the assignment of mortgage is not of itself notice to the mortgagor. Mortgages may be discharged by the mortgagee, his assignee, or personal representative, by entry on the margin of the record, signed by such person in the presence of and attested by the clerk or his deputy; or by such entry made and signed by the clerk on presentation to him of a certificate that such mortgage has been satisfied, signed by the mortgagee, and acknowledged or proved as in case of deeds. If a mortgagee or representative fail to satisfy as aforesaid after performance of conditions and for seven days after request and tender of charges he is liable in the sum of one hundred dollars, in addition to actual damages. In absence of stipulations to the contrary, mortgagor has legal title and right of possession. Deeds of trust to secure payment of money are considered and treated as mortgages. The only foreclosure is by sale on decree of court. Mortgage on homestead is good when executed by husband and wife. Mortgagee has right to pay taxes and add to his debt.

Real estate mortgages usually secure promissory notes accompanying them, and usually provide that if interest, installments of principal, and taxes are not paid when due the whole debt becomes due. Actions to foreclose mortgages are barred in ten years from the time the debt becomes due, or from the date of the last payment or a new promise to pay.

Notaries Public. — Each notary is appointed by governor and commissioned for term of six years for the county in which he resides. Gives bond to State for faithful performance of duties. Jurisdiction confined to county for which appointed. Must have seal on which must be engraved the words "Notarial Seal" and "Nebraska," and if desired his name or initials and date of commission; with which seal by impression and his official signature all of his acts must be authenticated. Under his signature must write date of the expiration of term of office, unless same appears in seal. Has the powers and duties ordinarily incident to the office.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The Uniform Negotiable Instruments Act was adopted in Nebraska in 1905.

Practice. — The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity is abolished. The practice is regulated by Code. See Actions.

Proof of Claims. — No provision of statute for ex parte proof of claims. All claims sought to be enforced in the courts of this State are governed by the usual rules of evidence governing litigation, except as modified by the subdivision herein entitled Affidavits.

Records. — Deeds, mortgages, and other instruments required by law to be recorded are in force from and after they are delivered to the recording officer in the county in which the lands lie, as to all creditors and subsequent purchasers in good faith without notice; and are void as to creditors and purchasers without notice whose instruments are first recorded.

The certificate of the proof or acknowledgment of every deed, and the certificate of the genuineness of the signature of every officer, where such certificate is required, must be recorded together with the deed.

It shall be no objection to the record of a deed that no official seal is appended to the acknowledgment or proof if the same purports to have been taken by an officer with official seal, and the certificate of acknowledgment or proof asserts the same to be under hand and seal of office, in which case it will be presumed that the seal was attached to the original.

Deeds are not deemed lawfully recorded unless previously acknowledged or proved. See Deeds.

All certificates of the register and receiver of any United States land officer for entry or purchase of any tract of land, and all letters patent of land from the United States of land lying in this State, shall be recorded in the county in which the land lies. Authenticated copy of record of power of attorney shall be entitled to be recorded with same force and effect as original.

Redemption. — See Executions, Mortgages, and Tax Law.

Replevin. — Possession of personal property may be recovered by action of replevin. The plaintiff, his agent or attorney, must make affidavit, describing the property, stating that plaintiff is the owner, or has a special ownership, with the facts showing such special ownership; that plaintiff is entitled to the immediate possession thereof, and that the same is wrongfully detained by defendant, and that the property was not taken under any legal process against plaintiff, either to satisfy taxes or any other debt or claim of personal property: provided that the affidavit may show that the property was taken in execution on a judgment or order other than an order of delivery in replevin, and that the same is exempt from execution.

The plaintiff shall execute to defendant a written undertaking in double the value of the property taken, conditioned that plaintiff [shall duly prosecute the action and pay all costs and damages which may be awarded against him and return the property to defendant, in case judgment for a return of such property is rendered against him. The undertaking must have one or more sufficient sureties, but it is not material what kind of property they own.

When possession is not obtained, the action may proceed as one for damages as for a conversion.

Reports. — Nebraska Reports, volumes 1 to 101, are published.

Revision. — Revised Statutes of Nebraska for 1913 is the title of a revision completed and adopted in 1913. Session Laws for 1915 and 1917 have been published.

Sales in Bulk. — The sale or disposition of a stock of merchandise, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade, is void as against the seller's creditors, unless the seller and purchaser at least five days before the sale make an inventory showing quantity and cost price, and unless the purchaser demands and receives from the seller a written list under oath of the seller's creditors, with amounts owing, and unless the purchaser shall at least five days before taking possession notify personally or by registered mail the creditors of the proposed sale. The seller may, at least five days before sale, file with the county clerk in county where stock is located an agreement with all creditors waiving inventory and notice.

Service. — Personal Service in District Court. — When action is rightly brought in any county, a summons may issue to any other county at plaintiff's request, and when it is not otherwise provided by statute for special cases, the summons shall be returnable on second Monday after its date, but when issued to another county, it may be made returnable, at the option of the party having it issued, on the third or fourth Monday after its date. Constructive service may also be held by publication and by service on the person outside of the State in certain cases.

The answer or demurrer of defendant shall be filed on or before the third Monday, and the reply or demurrer of plaintiff on or before the fifth Monday after the return day of the summons or constructive service; so that a defendant cannot be brought into court sooner than the fifth Monday after date of summons.

Personal service before justices of peace three days before trial. Any person or corporation owning or claiming any interest in or lien upon any real estate in this State may make and file in the office of the county clerk of the county in which such real estate is situated, an appointment in writing of some person, who shall be a resident of the county in which the lands lie, upon whom process may be served in any suit, action, or proceeding affecting said real estate to which such owner or claimant shall be a party. The person so appointed shall be served, and in cases of such appointment there can be no service by publication.

Security for Costs. — When the plaintiff is a non-resident of the county in which action is brought, or is a company, etc., suing in firm name, he may be compelled to give security for costs.

When a judgment creditor is substituted as defendant, instead of sheriff, in action of replevin of property taken on execution, he may be required to give security for costs.

The guardian or next friend of an infant, as plaintiff, if insolvent, may be required to give security for costs.

Stay of Execution. — Stay of execution on judgments is allowed as follows: In district court, judgments of fifty dollars or under, exclusive of costs, three months; over fifty and not exceeding one hundred dollars, six months; all other amounts, nine months. In county courts, on all sums exceeding two hundred dollars execution may be stayed upon same conditions as in district court; for two hundred dollars and under, same as before justice of the peace. In justice courts, judgments for ten dollars and under, sixty days; over ten and under fifty dollars, ninety days; over fifty and under one hundred dollars, six months; over one hundred and not exceeding two hundred dollars, nine months. Stay allowed on approved bond with two or more sureties; except in district court, stay may be allowed on foreclosure of mortgage on lands on request. The judgment is made a lien on the lands of the sureties. No stay allowed in judgments on appeal or error, nor against any officer or person or corporation, or the sureties of any of them, for money received in a fiduciary capacity, or for the breach of any official duty; nor on judgment against surety for stay.

Supplementary Proceedings. — When a judgment debtor has not personal or real property subject to levy on execution, sufficient to satisfy the judgment, any interest which he may have in any banking, turnpike, bridge, or other joint-stock company, or any interest he may have in any money contracts, claims, or choses in action, due or to become due to him, or in any judgment or decree, or any money, goods, or effects which he may have in possession of any person, body politic or corporate, shall be subject to the payment of such judgment by proceedings in equity or as hereinafter prescribed.

When an execution has been returned unsatisfied, plaintiff is entitled to an order for the appearance and examination of the debtor, or it may be obtained at any time after the issuing of execution, upon proofs by affidavit of plaintiff, or otherwise, that the debtor has property which he unjustly refuses to apply towards the satisfaction of the judgment. If any property is thus discovered, it may be levied upon, and if in the hands of others, may be ordered to be delivered up and applied in satisfaction of the judgment. A receiver may also be appointed over debtor's property, and any transfer or other disposition thereof be forbidden.

An execution against the person of the debtor may be issued upon any judgment for the payment of money: 1. When the judgment debtor has removed or begun to remove any of his property out of the jurisdiction of the court, with intent to prevent the collection of the money due on the judgment. 2. When he has property, rights in action, evidences of debt, or some interest or stock in some corporation or company, which he fraudulently conceals, with the like intent. 3. When he has assigned or disposed of all or any part of his property or rights in action, or has converted the same into money, with intent to defraud his creditors, or with the intent to prevent such property from being taken in execution. 4. When he fraudulently contracted the debt, or incurred the obligation upon which the judgment was rendered.

Tax Law. — Between April and June of each year report must be made to county assessor on his call of personal property subject to taxation for state and county purposes. State and county taxes on personal and real property are levied for calendar year. Lien for State and county taxes on personal property dates from November 1 and on real property from October 1. State and county taxes on personal and real property are due November 1, and are delinquent on personal property on December 1 and on real property on May 1, after levy, and bear interest at ten per cent. per annum after delinquency. In cities times for paying city taxes vary in accordance with laws pertaining to cities of various classes. May 1 after levy city taxes on personal and real property in cities of metropolitan class (Omaha) become due, and on July 1 become delinquent, and bear interest at ten per cent. per annum after delinquency. October 1 after levy city taxes on personal and real property in cities of first class (Lincoln) become due, and on December 1 become delinquent and bear interest at twelve per cent. per annum after delinquency.

On the first Monday in November lands will be offered for sale for delinquent taxes. A three weeks' notice by publication required. Two years from date of sale are allowed to redeem from tax sales by paying amount of sale with fifteen per cent. interest and all taxes subsequently paid. In the case of a minor redemption may be made within two years after majority; and in case of a lunatic or idiot within five years from sale. Irregularities shall not invalidate sale for taxes. Purchasers at tax sales may within five years from date of certificate of sale foreclose the lien for the money paid and interest against the land in like manner as mortgages are foreclosed.

On failure for five years from date of certificate of tax sale to demand deed or commence action of foreclosure thereon, the same shall cease to be valid or of any force whatever either as against person holding title adverse thereto, and all other persons, and as against the State, county, and all other municipal subdivisions thereof. Property in the hands of an agent will be listed where agent does business. Money of a non-resident in the hands of an agent in this State is taxable.

The statute of limitations does not begin to run against a tax lien until the title acquired by the tax deed has failed.

Inheritance Tax. — All property, interest therein or income therefrom, which shall pass by will or by the intestate laws of the State from any person who may die seized or possessed of the same while a resident of the State, or, if decedent was not a resident of the State at the time of his death, which property, or any part thereof, or any interest therein or income therefrom, shall be within the State, or which may pass by grant or gift made in contemplation of death, or in trust or otherwise with intent to have effect after death, shall be subject to tax as follows: When the value of an estate exceeds ten thousand dollars, then on the excess of one dollar on each one hundred dollars or less passing to any father, mother, husband, wife, child, brother, sister, wife or widow of son or husband of daughter, or any child or children adopted as such in conformity with law, or to any person to whom the deceased for not less than ten years prior to death stood in acknowledged relation of a parent, or to any lineal descendant born in lawful wedlock; when the amount passing to any uncle, aunt, niece, nephew or other lineal descendant of the same shall exceed two thousand dollars, then two dollars on each one hundred dollars of the excess; when passing to any party other than as above two dollars on each one hundred dollars above five hundred dollars and up to five thousand dollars, and over five thousand dollars and up to ten thousand dollars, three dollars, and over ten thousand dollars and up to twenty thousand dollars, four dollars, and over twenty thousand dollars and up to fifty thousand dollars, five dollars, and over fifty thousand dollars, six dollars. If tax is paid in one year from death of decedent no interest is charged; otherwise interest from expiration of one year at seven per cent. per annum.

For the purpose of determining the amount of the tax an appraiser is appointed by the county judge of the county of which the deceased was a resident, or if deceased was a non-resident then by the county judge of the county in which the property is situate, whose duty it is to ascertain the value of the property passing through the death of the owner. The appraiser makes return of his appraisal to the county judge, and the county judge determines therefrom the amount of and fixes the tax. An appeal may be taken to the county court, and from the county court to the district court and to the supreme court. The tax is payable to the county treasurer. A section of the law provides: "Whenever any foreign executors or administrators shall assign or transfer any stocks or loans in this State standing in the name of the decedent, or in trust for a decedent, which shall be liable to such tax, the tax shall be paid to the treasury or treasurer of the proper county on the transfer thereof; otherwise the corporation making such transfer shall become liable to pay such tax; provided such corporation has knowledge before such transfer that the stocks or loans are liable for such tax."

Testimony. — See Evidence.

Trust Deeds. — A trust deed to secure a debt has only the legal incidents of a mortgage. The power of sale in a trust deed conveying real estate cannot be executed, except by an action to foreclose, the same as a mortgage.

Wills — In writing shall be signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence, and by his express direction, and attested and subscribed in his presence, by two or more competent witnesses. Nuncupative wills are allowed under stringent statutory regulations.

Every person of full age and sound mind may devise or dispose of his or her property by will as he or she may see fit. There are no restrictions upon the power of disposition.

All wills which shall have been duly proved and allowed in any of the United States, or in any foreign country or state, according to the laws of such state or country, may be admitted to probate in this State.

Wills shall be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the land lies.

Married women can make wills same as other persons. See Married Women.

No will shall be effectual to pass real or personal property in Nebraska unless it shall have been duly proved and allowed in this State.

NEVADA LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by
Cole L. Harwood, Esq., of Reno.

The next session of the legislature convenes on the third Monday in January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — There is in this State but one form of civil action. In such action the party complaining shall be known as the plaintiff, and the adverse party as the defendant. An action in the district court is commenced by filing a complaint with the clerk of the court and the issuance of a summons thereon. If the action be in a justice's court, it may be by filing a copy of the note, bill, account, or other instrument on which action is brought. The action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except that an executor or administrator, or trustee of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute, may sue without joining with him the person for whose benefit the action is prosecuted. If the complaint, though not verified, contains a copy of the instrument upon which the action is brought, the genuineness and due execution of such instrument are admitted unless the answer denying the same be verified. If the defense to an action is founded upon a written instrument and the answer contains a copy thereof, its genuineness and due execution are deemed admitted unless in an action in the district court within five days after receiving a copy of the answer, the plaintiff file with the clerk an affidavit denying the same. An action affecting the title of possession of real estate, or for the enforcement of a lien thereon, must be commenced in the county in which the same, or some part thereof, is situated. In personal actions, the complaint may be filed in any county in the State, but the defendant has the right to have the action tried in the county of his residence or in the county in which some one of the defendants resides, if there be more than one defendant. In all cases, however, the court has the right to change the place of trial for the convenience of witnesses or when satisfied that an impartial trial cannot be had in the county where the action is pending. A non-resident plaintiff or foreign corporation may be required by the defendant to give security for costs before proceeding further with the action.

Relative to actions in justice's courts, see, under that head, Court Calendar for Nevada.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claim against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — An affidavit taken in another State, or in a Territory of the United States, to be used in this State, shall be taken before a commissioner appointed by the governor of this State to take affidavits and depositions in such other State or Territory, or before any notary public or judge of a court of record having a seal. An affidavit taken in a foreign country to be used in this State shall be taken before an ambassador, minister, or consul of the United States, or before any judge of a court of record having a seal in such foreign country. When an affidavit is taken before a judge of a court in another State, or in a Territory of the United States, or in a foreign country, the genuineness of the signature of the judge, the existence of the court, and the fact that such judge is a member thereof, shall be certified by the clerk of the court under the seal thereof.

The testimony of a witness out of the State may be taken at any time after service of summons, or appearance of defendant in an action, or after a question of fact has arisen in a special proceeding.

A commission is issued under seal of the court, upon an order of the court or judge, after five days' notice to the other party. If the parties do not agree upon a person as commissioner, the commission is issued to a judge or justice of the peace selected by the court, or to a commissioner appointed by the governor of this State to take affidavits and depositions in other States. The interrogatories will be settled by the court, if the parties disagree as to their form. The parties may agree to dispense with the written interrogatories.

A trial shall not be postponed on account of a deposition not returned, except upon evidence satisfactory to the court that the testimony is necessary, and that proper diligence has been used to obtain it. Justices of the peace may issue commissions. See Depositions.

Aliens. — Any non-resident alien, except subjects of the Chinese Empire, person, or corporation may take, hold, and enjoy any real property, or any interest in lands, upon the same conditions as any resident citizen.

Corporations. — The legislature of 1903 enacted a new corporation law, to encourage foreign and domestic corporations to incorporate under the laws of this State; the law is very liberal and allows great latitude to corporations and gives them ample power to carry on the enterprises for which they have been created; the act itself covers forty-two pages of the Statutes, and all its provisions cannot be covered in this synopsis. It is mainly a re-enactment of the corporation law of New Jersey.

Any number of persons, not less than three, may associate to establish a corporation for the transaction of any lawful business, or to promote or conduct any legitimate object or purpose under the provisions of and subject to the requirements of this act as hereinafter provided; except to carry on within this State an insurance business, or that of a surety company, or that of a railroad company other than a street railroad; but corporations may be formed for the purpose of carrying on these occupations, if operated wholly without the State of Nevada. To form a corporation any three or more persons shall make, sign, and acknowledge, before some person competent to take the acknowledgments of deeds, and file and have recorded in a book provided for that purpose, in the office of the secretary of state and file a copy thereof certified by the secretary of state in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal place of business of the company is intended to be located, articles of incorporation, or a certificate of incorporation. The said certificate shall set forth: 1. The name of the corporation (which name shall end with the word incorporated or shall contain one of the following words, used therein as a substantive or noun, "association," "company," "corporation," "club," "society," or "syndicate") shall be such as to distinguish it from any other formed or incorporated in this State or engaged in the same business, or promoting or carrying on the same object or purposes in this State. 2. The name of the county and of the city and town and of the place within the county, city, or town in which its principal office or place of business is to be located in this State (giving street and number if practicable). 3. The nature of the business, or object or purpose proposed to be transacted, promoted, or carried on by the corporation. 4. The amount of the total authorized capital stock of the corporation, which shall not be less than two thousand dollars; the number of shares into which the same is divided, and the par value of each share; the amount of subscribed capital stock with which it will commence business, which shall not be less than one thousand dollars: the amount actually subscribed and the amount actually paid up if any, and if there be more than one class of stock created by the certificate of incorporation, a description of the different classes with the terms on which the respective classes of stock are created, and the amount of each class subscribed and the amount paid thereon; provided, however, that the provisions of this paragraph shall not apply to corporations not for profit, for which it is desired to have no capital stock; in case any such corporation desires to have no capital stock, it shall be so stated and the conditions of membership shall be also stated. 5. The names and post-office addresses and residences of each of the original subscribers to the capital stock and amount subscribed by each, or if there be no stock, of the original incorporators. 6. The period, if any, limited for the duration of its existence. 7. Whether the members of its governing board shall be styled directors or trustees of the corporation and the number of such trustees or directors, which shall not be less than three. 8. Whether or not capital stock, after the amount of the subscription price or par value has been paid in, shall be subject to assessment to pay debts of the corporation, and unless provision is made in such original certificate or articles of incorporation for assessment on paid-up stock, no paid-up stock and no stock issued as fully paid up shall ever be assessable or assessed, and the articles of incorporation shall not be amended in this particular. The certificate or articles of incorporation may also contain any provisions which the incorporators may choose to insert for the regulation of the business and for the conduct of the affairs of the corporation, and any provisions creating, defining, limiting, and regulating the powers of the corporation and the rights, powers, or duties of the directors, the stockholders, or any classes of the stockholders, or holders of the bonds or other obligations of the corporation, or providing for governing the distribution or division of the profits of the said corporation; provided such provisions are not contrary to the laws of this State.

Upon filing the certificate with the secretary of state and paying the fees he will issue a certificate of these facts, and from the date of the certificate the corporation is formed, and the certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of the corporation.

Fees of secretary of state for certificate of articles of incorporation, ten cents for each thousand dollars of the total amount of the capital stock authorized, but in no case less than twenty-five dollars.

The capital stock of any corporation, when divided into shares and certificates thereof are issued, shall be deemed personal estate, and may be transferred by indorsement and delivery of the certificate thereof, but such transfer shall not be valid, except between the parties thereto, until the same shall have been so entered upon the books of the corporation. The stockholders of any corporation formed under the act may, in the by-laws of the company, prescribe the times, manner, and amounts in which the payment of the sums subscribed by them respectively shall be made; but in case it shall not be so prescribed, the trustees shall have power to demand and call in from the stockholders the sums by them subscribed at the time, in such manner, payments, or installments as they may deem proper. In all cases notice of assessment shall be given to the stockholders, personally or by publication once a week for at least four weeks in some newspaper published in the county in which the principal place of business of the company is located, and if none be published in such county then in the newspaper nearest to said principal place of business in the State.

Every incorporated company or association created and existing under the laws of any other State, or of any foreign government, shall file in the office of the secretary of state a certified copy of its articles of incorporation, or of its charter, or of the statute or statutes, or legislative or executive or governmental acts, or other instrument of authority, by which it was created, and a certified copy thereof duly certified by the secretary of state, in the office of the county clerk of the county where its principal place of business in this State is located, and shall pay to the secretary of state the same fees therefor as are paid by corporations organized under the laws of this State; and every corporation failing to comply with the above shall be subjected to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars, and shall not be allowed to commence, maintain, or defend any action or proceeding in any court of this State, and any person or persons who shall act as agent within this State of any such corporation which shall fail for a period of ten days after the taking effect of this act (March 20, 1907) to comply with the above provisions shall be personally and individually liable to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars.

A conveyance by a married woman has the same effect as though she were unmarried, and may be acknowledged in the same manner. The wife need only join in a deed when the property is a homestead.

The husband has the absolute control and management of the community property, with the like absolute power of disposition thereof, except as hereinafter provided, as of his own separate estate; provided that no deed of conveyance, or mortgage of a homestead, as now defined by law, regardless of whether a declaration thereof has been filed or not, shall be valid for any purpose whatever unless both the husband and wife execute and acknowledge the same as now provided by law for the conveyance of real estate. The wife has the entire management and control of her own separate property, with the full power of disposition thereof.

If the grantor is unknown, his identity must be proven to the officer by the oath of a credible and competent witness.

Witnesses are not required except where the signature of the contracting party is made by "mark," where one witness will suffice.

There is no statutory regulation of the manner in which conveyances by corporations shall be made. A deed by the president and secretary of the company under its corporate seal, pursuing the authority of a resolution of the board of trustees, would be sufficient.

Proof of the execution of a conveyance shall be made, first, by the testimony of a subscribing witness; second, when all the subscribing witnesses are dead, or cannot be had, by evidence of the handwriting of the party, and of at least one subscribing witness, given by a credible witness to each signature, under oath.

If acknowledgment is made by a non-resident of this State, in accordance with the law where such non-resident resides; such acknowledgment shall have the same force and effect as though the certificate contained the form and language prescribed by statute in this State.

The certificate of acknowledgment or proof must be under the hand and seal of office, when taken by a judge or clerk, or an officer having a seal of office.

If he or she shall have no issue nor father nor mother, the whole community property of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife, and one half of the separate property of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife, and the other half thereof shall go in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation. If he or she shall leave no issue, or husband, or wife, the estate shall go one half to the intestate's father and one half to the intestate's mother if both are living; if not, the whole estate shall go to either the father or mother then living. If he or she shall leave no issue, father, mother, brother, or sister, or children of any issue, brother, or sister, all of the property, both community and separate, of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife. Third. If there be no issue, nor husband, nor wife, nor father, nor mother, then in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation. Fourth. If the intestate shall leave no issue, nor husband, nor wife, nor father, nor mother, and no brother or sister living at his or her death, the estate shall go to the next of kin in equal degree, excepting that when there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree, but claiming through different ancestors, those who claim through the nearest ancestors shall be preferred to those who claim through ancestors more remote; provided, however, if any person shall die leaving several children, or leaving one child and issue of one or more children, and any such surviving child shall die under age and not having been married, all the estate that came to such deceased child by inheritance from such deceased parent shall descend in equal shares to the other children of the same parent, and to the issue of any such other children who may have died, by right of representation. Fifth. If at the death of such child, who shall die under age and not having been married, all the other children of his said parent being also dead, and any of them shall have left issue, the estate that came to such child by inheritance from his or her said parent shall descend to all the issue of the other children of the same parent, and if all the said issue are in the same degree of kindred to said child they shall share the said estate equally; otherwise they shall take according to the right of representation. Sixth. If there be no surviving husband or wife or kindred except a child or children, the estate shall, if there be only one child, all go to that child; and if there be more than one child, the estate shall descend and be distributed to all the intestate's children, share and share alike. Seventh. If there be no surviving husband or wife or kindred except a child or children and the lawful issue of a child or children, the estate shall descend and be distributed to such child or children and lawful issue of such child or children by right of representation as follows: To such child or children each a child's part, and to the lawful issue of each deceased child, by right of representation, the same part and proportion that its parent would have received in case such parent had been living at the time of the intestate's death; that is, the lawful issue of any deceased child shall receive the part and proportion that its parent would have received had such parent been living at the time of the intestate's death. Eighth. If there be no surviving husband or wife or kindred except the lawful issue of a child or children, all of the estate shall descend and be distributed to the lawful issue of such child or children by right of representation, and this rule shall apply to the lawful issue of all such children and to their lawful issue ad infinitum. Ninth. If the intestate shall leave no husband nor wife nor kindred, the estate shall escheat to the state for the support of the common schools.

Inheritance Taxes. — Sec. 1. A tax shall be and is hereby imposed upon the transfer of any and all property within the jurisdiction of this State, and any interest therein or income therefrom, whether belonging to the inhabitants of this State or not, or whether tangible or intangible, not hereinafter exempted, which shall pass in trust or otherwise by will or by the statutes of inheritance of this or any other state or by deed, grant, sale, or gift made without valuable and adequate consideration in contemplation of the death of the grantor, vendor, assignor, or donor or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after such death as specified in this act. For the purposes of this act, the ownership of shares of stock in a corporation owning property in this State shall be considered as the ownership of such interest in the property so owned by such corporation, as the number of shares so owned shall bear to the entire issue and outstanding capital stock of such corporation; and notes and other evidences of indebtedness secured by mortgage on real estate situated in this State are and shall be, upon the owner's death, subject to the inheritance tax herein provided.

Sec. 2. When the property or any interest therein or income therefrom so passed or transferred exceeds in value the exemption hereinafter specified and shall not exceed in value the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, the tax hereby imposed shall be: (1.) Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be husband, wife, lineal issue or lineal ancestor of the decedent or any child adopted as such in conformity with the laws of this State, or any child to whom such decedent for not less than ten years prior to such transfer stood in the mutually acknowledged relation of a parent; provided, however; such relationship began at or before the child's fifteenth birthday and was continuous for said ten years thereafter, or any lineal issue of such adopted or mutually acknowledged child, at the rate of one per centum of the clear value of such interest in such property. (2.) Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be the brother or sister or a descendant of a brother or sister of the decedent, a wife or widow of a son, or the husband of a daughter of the decedent, at the rate of two per centum of the clear value of such interest in such property. (3.) Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be the brother or sister of the father or mother (of) or a descendant of a brother or sister of the father or mother of the decedent, at the rate of three per centum of the clear value of such interest in such property. (4.) Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be the brother or sister of the grandfather or grandmother or a descendant of the brother or sister of the grandfather or grandmother of the decedent at the rate of four per centum of the clear value of such interest in such property. (5.) Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be in any other degree of collateral consanguinity than the before stated; or shall be a stranger in blood to the decedent, or shall be a body politic or corporation, at the rate of five per centum of the clear value of such interest in such property.

Sec. 3. The foregoing rates in section two are for convenience termed the primary rates. When the market value of such property or interest exceeds twenty-five thousand dollars, the rates or tax upon such excess shall be as follows: (1.) Upon all in excess of twenty-five thousand dollars and up to fifty thousand dollars, two times the primary rates. (2.) Upon all in excess of fifty thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars three times the primary rates. (3.) Upon all in excess of one hundred thousand dollars and up to five hundred thousand dollars four times the primary rates. (4.) Upon all in excess of five hundred thousand dollars, five times the primary rates.

Sec. 4. The following exemptions from the tax are hereby allowed: (1.) Property of the clear value of twenty thousand dollars transferred to the widow or a minor child of the decedent, and of ten thousand dollars transferred to each of the other persons described in the first subdivision of section two, shall be exempt. (2.) Property of the clear value of ten thousand dollars transferred to any or all of the persons described in the second subdivision of section two shall be exempt. (3.) Property of the clear value of five thousand dollars transferred to any or all of the persons described in the third subdivision of section two shall be exempt. (4.) No exemption shall be allowed upon property transferred to any of the persons described in the fourth and fifth subdivision of section two of this act.

Sec. 5. When any grant, gift, legacy, devise, or succession upon which a tax is imposed by section one of this act shall be an estate, income or interest for a term of years, or for life, or determinable upon any future or contingent event, or shall be a remainder, reversion or other expectancy, real or personal, the entire property or fund by which such estate, income or interest is supported or of which it is a part shall be appraised immediately after the death of the decedent, and the market value thereof determined, and the tax prescribed by this act shall be immediately due and payable to the treasurer of the proper county, and together with the interest thereon, shall be and remain a lien on said property until the same is paid. The tax is due at the death of the decedent and if paid within eighteen months no interest shall be charged, but if not paid, interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum shall be charged and collected from the time such tax accrued, provided that if such tax is paid within six months within the accruing thereof, a discount of five per centum shall be allowed and deducted from said tax. The tax constitutes until paid, a lien upon the property chargeable therewith and property may be sold to pay taxes.

The general supervision of inheritance taxes is vested in the state tax commission, Carson City. The tax is fixed by a board of appraisers appointed by the district judge in each county, and is payable to the county treasurer. The tax is not imposed on shares of stock in corporations incorporated in this State, unless the stock is owned here or the corporation owns property here. It is imposed upon shares in a corporation of another State owning property here. See § 1, supra.

Divorce. — Divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be obtained by complaint, under oath, to the district court of the county in which the cause therefor shall have accrued, or in which the defendant shall reside or be found, or in which the plaintiff shall reside, if the latter be either the county in which the parties last cohabited, or in which the plaintiff shall have resided for six months before suit brought, for the following causes: 1st, impotency at the time of marriage, continuing to the time of divorce; 2d, adultery since marriage remaining unforgiven; 3d, willful desertion of either party by the other for the space of one year; 4th, conviction of felony or infamous crime; 5th, habitual gross drunkenness, contracted since marriage, of either party, which shall incapacitate such party from contributing his or her share to the support of the family; 6th, extreme cruelty in either party; 7th, neglect of the husband for the period of one year to provide the common necessities of life, when such neglect is not the result of poverty on the part of the husband, which he could not avoid by ordinary industry. The legislature of 1915 restored the divorce law as it was enacted in 1861 and amended in 1875.

The common property shall be equally divided between the parties; provided that when the decree proceeds upon the ground of adultery or extreme cruelty, the guilty party shall only be entitled to such portion of the common property as the court shall allow.

To obtain annulment of marriage, the residence of defendant in the county where the action is brought, or of plaintiff for six months preceding commencement of proceedings, confers jurisdiction. See Married Women.

Dower. — See Married Women.

Employer's Liability. — Revised Statutes of 1912, volume 1, sections 1915-1945, contain the Employer's Liability Act.

Estates. — See Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Execution. — An execution may issue immediately after entry of judgment and at any time within six years from entry of judgment, unless a stay is granted, and may issue to different counties. All property of the debtor not exempt by law is liable to execution. Personal property is not affected by an execution until a levy. In district court executions are returnable in not less than ten nor more than sixty days after receipt by sheriff. The same periods apply to executions from a justice's office, except that an execution must be issued within five years after the entry of judgment. See Stay of Execution; Redemption; Exemptions.

Exemptions. — The following property is exempt from execution except upon a judgment for the purchase-money or upon a mortgage thereon: Chairs, tables, desks, and books to the value of one hundred dollars; necessary household and kitchen furniture, wearing apparel, etc., and provisions and firewood actually provided sufficient for one month, farming utensils, or implements of husbandry, and seed provided for planting within the ensuing six months, not exceeding in value two hundred dollars; two horses, two oxen, or two mules, and two cows, and food for one month for such animals, and one cart or wagon; the tools of a mechanic necessary to his trade; the instruments and libraries of a surgeon, physician, surveyor, or dentist; the professional library of an attorney and counselor, or minister of the gospel; the dwelling of a miner not exceeding in value five hundred dollars, also his tools and appliances necessary to carry on his mining operations, not exceeding in value five hundred dollars; and two horses, two oxen, or two mules, their harness, and food for one month for such animals, when they are necessary in his mining operations; two oxen, two horses, or two mules, and their harness and one cart or wagon, by the use of which a teamster or laborer habitually earns his living; one horse, harness, and vehicle, of a physician or surgeon, or minister of the gospel, and food for such animal for one month. For every livery stable keeper, two horses or mules, with vehicle and harness, provided the whole shall not exceed in value five hundred dollars; one sewing-machine in actual use in the debtor's family, not exceeding in value one hundred and fifty dollars; all fire engines and property of fire companies; all arms, etc., required by law to be kept by any person; all public property of State, counties, towns, etc.; a homestead to be selected by the husband or wife, or other head of a family, not exceeding in value five thousand dollars; the earnings of the debtor not exceeding fifty dollars for his personal services for the calendar month during, or immediately preceding, that in which process has been issued, where such earnings are necessary for the use of a family supported wholly or partly by the labor of the debtor.

A homestead duly recorded cannot be alienated except by the consent of both husband and wife (when that relation exist), which consent must be in writing and duly acknowledged and recorded. The joint deed or conveyance has same effect.

Garnishment. — The process of garnishment is provided for in the Attachment Act (§ 515, Rev. Laws), as follows: By leaving with the debtor of the defendant, or person having charge of such credits, a copy of the writ of attachment, with written notice that the same are attached in pursuance of writ.

There is also a chapter on garnishment (Rev. Laws, §§ 5169-5191) providing the usual remedies against a garnishee in connection with the issuance of a writ of attachment. A writ of garnishment is provided for: the examination of the garnishee; judgment against him for failure to answer; discharge, judgment, etc.

Insolvent Laws. — The National Bankruptcy Act of 1898 has suspended the operation of this law.

Inheritance Taxes. — See Descent and Distribution.

Interest. — Seven per cent. per annum is legal interest, but parties may contract in writing for the payment of any other rate, not exceeding, however, the rate of twelve per cent. per annum. After a judgment on such a contract, only the original claim shall draw interest.

Judgment. — A judgment becomes a lien upon the real estate of the judgment debtor not exempt from execution within the county where it is rendered, from the time it is docketed, and remains a lien for two years. A certified transcript filed with the recorder of another county has the same effect in that county. Judgments take precedence in the order in which they are docketed. A judgment in a justice's court also becomes a lien upon the filing and recording of a certified transcript thereof in the office of the county recorder of the county in which judgment is rendered. When such transcript is to be filed in another county than that in which the justice resides it shall be accompanied by a certificate of the county clerk as to the official character of the justice.

Under head of Service the several periods within which a party must plead is shown. In actions at law for a specific sum of money, judgment can be entered immediately upon default, in other cases application has to be made to the court.

Advertisement of sale of perishable property is made by posting written notices in three public places for such time as may be reasonable, considering the character and condition of the property. Of personal property, by posting written notices in three public places in the township or city where the sale is to take place, not less than five, nor more than ten days successively; and if the execution has issued out of a district court, by publication of a copy once a week for the same period in a newspaper if there be one in the county. Of real property, by posting notice of sale of property in three public places in the township or city where the property is situated, and also where the property is to be sold, for a period of twenty days successively, particularly describing the property; and also by publishing a copy of said notice once a week, for the same period, in a newspaper, if there be one in the county, provided that the cost of publication does not cost more than two dollars and fifty cents per square for the first insertion, and one dollar per square for each subsequent insertion; provided further, that notices of sale of property on execution, upon a judgment for any sum less than five hundred dollars, exclusive of costs, shall be given only by posting in three public places in the county, one of which notices shall be posted at the courthouse.

A written contract providing for an attorney fee, in case of suit for collection, would not, probably, be a promissory negotiable note; but if mortgages and such contracts provide an attorney fee, the fee can be taxed up, if reasonable.

License. — Commercial travelers require no license.

Lien Law. — Mechanics and others who shall perform labor or furnish materials for the construction or repairing of any building or superstructure, to the amount of five dollars, shall have a lien thereon.

Laborers upon any railroad, tramway, toll road, canal, water ditch, flume, aqueduct, or reservoir, mine, mining shaft, or tunnel, or who shall do work upon any building lot in a city or town, for the purpose of improving the same, shall have a lien thereon.

It shall be the duty of the owner of any building, improvement, or structure, upon or after the completion thereof, or of any alteration or repair thereof, to file or cause to be filed with the county recorder of the county where the same or some part thereof is situated, an affidavit, under the oath of himself or of some other person conversant with the facts, stating that such building, improvement, or structure, or the alteration or repair thereof, as the case may be, has been completed, giving the date of such completion and a description of the same sufficient for identification. If any such affidavit be filed before the building, improvement, or structure, or the alteration or repair thereof, as the case may be, has in fact been completed, such filing shall be void and a mere nullity, and the time within which any claim of lien as hereinafter provided shall be filed, shall not commence to run until after such building, improvement, or structure, or the alteration or repair thereof, as the case may be, has in fact been completed, and a valid and legal affidavit thereafter been filed. Every person claiming the benefit of this chapter shall, not earlier than ten days after the completion of his contract or the delivery of material by him, or the performance of his labor, as the case may be, and not later than fifty days after filing of the owner or other person as aforesaid of the affidavit hereinbefore provided for, or within fifty days after the performance of any labor in a mining claim, file for record with the county recorder of the county where the property or some part thereof is situate, a claim containing a statement of his demand after deducting all just credits and offsets, with the name of the owner or reputed owner if known, also the name of the person by whom he was employed or to whom he furnished the material, with a statement of the terms, time given, and conditions of his contract, and also a description of the property to be charged with the lien sufficient for identification, which claim must be verified by the oath of himself or some other person.

Upon the trial of any action or suit to foreclose such lien no variance between the lien and the proof shall defeat the lien or be deemed material unless the same shall result from fraud or be made intentionally, or shall have misled the adverse party to his prejudice, but in all cases of immaterial variance the claim of lien must be amended, by amendment duly recorded, to conform to the proof. No error or mistake in the name of the owner or reputed owner contained in any claim of lien shall be held to defeat the lien, unless a correction of the lien in this particular shall prejudice the rights of an innocent bona fide purchaser or incumbrancer for value. But upon the trial, if it shall appear that an error or mistake has been made in the name of the owner or reputed owner, or that the wrong person has been named as owner or reputed owner, in any such claim of lien, the court shall order an amended claim of lien to be recorded with the recorder where the original claim was recorded, and shall issue to the person who is so made to appear to be the original or reputed owner a notice directing such person or persons to be and appear, within the same time as is provided by law for the appearance in other actions after the service of summons, and said notice shall be served in all respects as a summons is required to be served, before said court and to show cause why he should not be substituted in said claim of lien and in said suit in lieu of the person so made defendant and alleged to be owner or reputed owner by mistake, and to further show why he should not be bound by the judgment or decree of the court. And such proceedings shall be had therein as though the party so cited to appear had been an original party defendant in the action or suit, and originally named in the claim of lien as owner or reputed owner, and the rights of all parties shall thereupon be fully adjudicated. A person claiming such lien must file his claim with the county recorder; the lien expires after six months unless suit has been commenced before for its enforcement.

The proceeds of the sale of property in the enforcement of mechanics' liens must be applied in the order of its rank, which is as follows: 1. Labor. 2. All persons other than original contractors and sub-contractors. 3. Sub-contractors. 4. Original contractors.

Persons cutting or cording wood or timber for the owner of the land by contract have a lien upon the wood or timber for the amount in value of the work or labor performed, by retaining possession of the same, but must commence suit within sixty days after it has been taken into possession. (Stats. 1879, p. 52, amending § 18, Lien Law, 1875.) Claims for wages due for labor done within ninety days, not exceeding in amount two hundred dollars, are made preferred claims against any property of debtor taken in execution. (Laws 1873, p. 76.)

A reasonable attorney fee allowed as costs, also costs of filing lien.

Limitation of Actions. — No action for the recovery of real property, or for the recovery of the possession thereof, other than mining claims, shall be maintained, unless it appear that the plaintiff, his ancestor, predecessor, or grantor, was seized or possessed of the premises within five years before the commencement thereof.

Actions for the recovery of mining claims must be commenced within two years.

Act of March 2, 1877, Sec. 1. Actions other than those for the recovery of real property can only be commenced as follows: Within six years: First. An action upon a judgment or decree of any court of the United States, or of any State or Territory within the United States. Second. An action upon a contract, obligation, or liability, founded upon an instrument in writing, except those mentioned in the preceding section. Within four years: First. An action on an open account for goods, wares, and merchandise sold and delivered. Second. An action for an article charged in a store account. Third. An action upon a contract, obligation, or liability not founded upon an instrument in writing. Within three years: First. An action upon a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture. Second. An action for trespass upon real property. Third. An action for taking, detaining, or injuring any goods or chattels, including actions for the specific recovery of personal property. Fourth. An action for relief on the ground of fraud; the cause of action in such case not to be deemed to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts constituting the fraud. Within two years: First. An action against a sheriff, coroner, or constable upon the liability incurred by the doing of an act in his official capacity and in virtue of his office, or by the omission of an official duty, including the nonpayment of money collected upon an execution. Second. An action upon a statute for a penalty or forfeiture, where the action is given to an individual, or an individual and the State, except where the statute imposing it prescribes a different limitation. Third. An action for libel, slander, assault, battery, or false imprisonment. Fourth. An action upon a statute for a forfeiture or penalty to the State. Fifth. An action against a sheriff, or other officer, for the escape of a prisoner arrested or imprisoned on civil process. Sec. 2. The time in section 1 of this act shall be deemed to date from the last transaction, or the last item charged or last credit given.

In case of mutual accounts, the statute begins to run from the last entry on either side, but to constitute a mutual account, a right of action must exist in either party.

If, when the cause of action shall accrue against a person, he be out of the State, the action may be commenced within the time herein limited after his return to the State, and if, after the cause of action shall have accrued, he depart the State, the time of his absence shall not be part of the time prescribed for the commencement of the action. If a person entitled to bring an action, other than for a penalty or forfeiture, or against an officer for an escape, be at the time the cause of action accrued, 1st, within the age of twenty-one years; 2d, insane; 3d, imprisoned on criminal charge, or under sentence for a term less than life; or 4th, a married woman, the statute does not run during such disability.

An action upon a judgment, contract, obligation, or liability for the payment of money or damages obtained, made, executed, or incurred out of the State, can only be commenced as follows: 1st. Within one year, when, prior to the passage of this act (March 5, 1867), more than two, and less than five years have elapsed since the cause of action accrued. 2d. Within six months, when prior to the passage of this act, more than five years have elapsed since the cause of action accrued. 3d. Within two years, in all other cases, after the cause of action accrued, a right of action shall be deemed to have accrued on a judgment at the time of its rendition.

When the cause of action has arisen in any other State or Territory of the United States, or in a foreign country, and by the laws thereof an action cannot be maintained against a person by reason of the lapse of time, no action thereon shall be maintained against him in this State. No acknowledgment or new promise shall take a case out of the statute except it be in writing signed by the party to be charged. Section 2 of Act of 1877, above set out, may change the rule, possibly, as the limitation of all actions, except real actions, is provided by § 1.

Married Women. — All property of the wife owned by her before marriage, and that acquired afterward by gift, bequest, devise, or descent, shall be her separate property. All property acquired after marriage by either husband or wife, except such as may be acquired by gift, devise, or descent, shall be common property. The husband has absolute control of the common property during the existence of the marriage, and may dispose of it as his own separate estate. The wife may, without consent of her husband, convey, change, incur or otherwise in any manner dispose of her separate property. A woman becomes of age at eighteen. The wife must support the husband out of her separate property when he has no separate property and they have no community property, and he from infirmity is not able or competent to support himself.

The husband can have no estate by curtesy, nor the wife any estate by dower.

Upon the death of the husband, the entire community property, after paying the debts, family allowance, and expenses of administration, shall go to the surviving wife. See, further, Descent and Distribution.

In case of a divorce, the common property shall be equally divided between the parties, except when granted upon the ground of adultery or extreme cruelty, in which case the court may divide it as shall seem just.

After marriage the separate property of the wife shall continue liable for her debts contracted before marriage. (Laws 1864-1865.) A married woman may make contracts in her own name, buy goods, give notes in settlement of purchases, binding her own separate property, real and personal. She may transact business as a feme sole, after she is declared a sole trader by order of the court.

Mechanics' Liens. — See Lien Law.

Mortgages. — A mortgage of real property, whatever its terms, shall not be deemed a conveyance so as to enable the owner of the mortgage to recover possession of the real property, without a foreclosure and sale. (Stat. 1869.) But one form of action for the recovery of any debt, or enforcement of any right secured by lien or mortgage upon property, real or personal, which is by action for foreclosure. Judgment is for amount found due, with a decree or order of sale of incumbered property, and for the application of the proceeds to the payment of the debt; balance remaining due, if any, is docketed against the defendant personally liable. It is only necessary that the mortgagee should join in discharge. The discharge may be made either upon the margin of the record of the mortgage or by satisfaction piece duly acknowledged and recorded. Before any satisfaction or discharge of a mortgage can be made, the law exacts an oath by the mortgagee, or agent of mortgagee, to be made before the recorder having custody of the record of the mortgage, that all state and county taxes assessed and levied upon the moneys or debt secured by the mortgage have been paid. This oath may be taken before the county recorder having the custody of the record of the mortgage to be discharged, or before any officer authorized to administer oaths. See Chattel Mortgages.

Notaries Public — Are appointed by the governor of the State for the term of four years; and must give a bond in the sum of two thousand dollars; they shall have authority to demand acceptance and payment of foreign and domestic bills of exchange, and to protest the same for non-acceptance and non-payment, and to exercise such other powers and duties as by the law of nations, and according to commercial usages, or by the law of any State, Territory, or country, may be performed by notaries public; they may demand acceptance of inland bill of exchange, and payment thereof, and of promissory notes, and may protest the same for non-payment, or non-acceptance, as the case may require. They shall have power to take and to certify to the acknowledgment or proof of powers of attorney, mortgages, deeds, and other instruments in writing, the acknowledgment of any conveyance, or the instrument of writing executed by any married woman, or to give a certificate of such proof or acknowledgment, which certificate shall be indorsed on the said deed or other instrument, or attached thereto. They shall have power and authority to take depositions and to administer oaths and affirmations in all matters incident and belonging to the duties of their office, and to take affidavits to be used before any court, judge, or officer in this State; they shall keep a correct record, wherein they shall enter the name or character of any instrument acknowledged or proved before them, together with the date of the same and the parties thereto, as the same appears; they shall have a notary seal with which they shall authenticate all their official acts. The original protest of a notary public under his hand and official seal, of any bill of exchange or promissory note, for non-acceptance or non-payment, stating the presentment by him of such bill of exchange or note for acceptance or payment, and the non-acceptance or non-payment thereof, and the service of notice on any or all of the parties to such bill of exexchange or promissory note, and specifying the mode of giving such notice, and the reputed place of residence of the party to such bill of exchange or promissory note to whom the same was given, and the post-office nearest thereto, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts contained therein. The certificate of a notary public, drawn from his record, stating the protest and the facts herein contained, shall be evidence of the facts in like manner as the original protest.

All notaries public may hereafter take acknowledgment of deeds, administer oaths, and perform all other notarial acts and functions at any place within this State. All acts of any notary public hereafter performed anywhere within this State shall be of the same force and validity as if performed within the county for which he was appointed and in which he resides. (Stat. 1903, p. 114, original act as amended.)

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The New York Negotiable Instruments Law is now enforced in this State. Negotiable instruments payable on Sunday or a legal holiday become due the next succeeding business day.

Legal holidays are every Sunday, January 1st (New Year's Day), February 12th (Lincoln's Birthday), February 22d (Washington's Birthday), May 30th (Memorial Day), the Fourth of July, the first Monday of September (Labor Day), the 12th day of October, to be known as Columbus Day, October 31st (Admission Day), Thanksgiving Day, and December 25th (Christmas Day); and every day on which a primary or general election is held, or any day that may be appointed by the President of the United States for public fasting, thanksgiving, or holiday.

Practice — Is under a Code.

Proof of Claims. — Persons sending claims to Nevada for collection should be careful to furnish their attorney with the full name, surname, and residence of the party in whose name the suit is to be brought, who must always be the real party in interest. If the claim belongs to a partnership, the full name, surname, and residence of each partner of the firm must be given; and if the claim is against a partnership, the same information as to the partners, if known. Where the plaintiff is a non-resident, or a foreign corporation (i. e. corporation formed out of the State), security for the costs may be required by defendant, and if not furnished within thirty days the action may be dismissed. All accounts should be made out in detail, and time and labor will be saved by furnishing the attorney at once with the names and residences of the witnesses by whom the claim can be established, and any written evidence of the claim. Claims against an estate are required to be presented to and approved and allowed by executor or administrator and judge of court in which estate is being settled; if rejected by them action can be brought if suit is commenced within thirty days after rejection of claim. Judgment is only a claim against the estate to be paid in due course of administration, except where it was a lien against specific property, in which case that property is sold and the proceeds applied to payment of lien, and any balance becomes a general debt of the estate. See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Records. — There is no time limited within which deeds or mortgages may be recorded after execution and delivery and their full operation preserved, and every conveyance is void as against any subsequent purchaser, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, where his own conveyance shall be first duly recorded, but is binding as between the parties thereto without record. The term "conveyance" includes every instrument in writing, except a last will and testament, by which any estate or interest in lands is created, aliened, assigned, or surrendered.

Redemption. — Where the estate is a leasehold of less than two years' unexpired duration, the sale is absolute; in all other cases the right of redemption runs for six months after the day of sale, upon payment of lien, taxes, and costs, together with eighteen per cent. interest on the judgment lien. This redemption may be made by judgment debtor or successor in interest, or by a redemptioner, i. e., one holding lien on property sold by judgment or mortgage subsequent to that on which property was sold. (Civil Pr. Laws, 1869, p. 234.)

Replevin. — The plaintiff in an action to recover the possession of personal property may replevy the same at the time of issuing the summons, or at any time before answer, upon making affidavit, either by himself or some one in his behalf, showing: 1st. That the plaintiff is the owner of the property claimed (particularly describing it), or is lawfully entitled to the possession thereof; 2. That the property is wrongfully detained by the defendant; 3d. The alleged cause of the detention thereof according to his best knowledge, information, and belief; 4th. That the same has not been taken for a tax, assessment, or fine pursuant to a statute, or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff, or, if so seized, that it is by statute exempt from such seizure; 5th. The actual value of the property. The plaintiff, or his attorney, may thereupon, by indorsement in writing upon the affidavit, require the sheriff of the county where the property claimed may be, to take the same from the defendant. It is also necessary to give an undertaking in double the value of the property claimed, with two or more sureties, to be approved by the sheriff, conditioned to prosecute the action, for the return of the property to the defendant, if return thereof be adjudged, and for the payment to him of such sum as may from any cause be recovered against the plaintiff. The defendant may, within two days after the service on him of a copy of the affidavit and the undertaking, give notice to the sheriff that he excepts to the sufficiency of the sureties. If he fail to do so, he shall be deemed to have waived all objection to them. When the defendant excepts, the sureties shall justify before the judge or clerk of the court in which the action is brought; five days' notice of the time and place of such justification shall be given to the defendant. If the defendant except to the sureties, he cannot reclaim the property. At any time before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff, the defendant may, if he do not except to the sureties of the plaintiff, require the return thereof, upon giving to the sheriff a written undertaking, executed by two or more sufficient sureties, bound in double the value of the property, as stated in the affidavit of plaintiff, for the delivery thereof to plaintiff, if such delivery be adjudged, and for the payment to him of such sum as may for any cause be recovered against the defendant. If a return of the property be not so required within five days after the taking and serving of notice to defendant, it shall be delivered to the plaintiff.

Revision. — Date of last revision December 1, 1912. Date of last session laws, 1917.

Sales. — Uniform Sales Act adopted 1915.

Service. — The summons shall require the defendant to answer the complaint as follows: 1st. If the defendant is served within the county, within ten days from the day of service. 2d. If served out of the county, but within the district, within twenty days. 3d. In all other cases, within forty days.

Service may be made on non-resident, absent, or concealed defendants, by order of the court in proper cases, by publication of summons. The order of publication shall be for a period of six weeks, in a newspaper, to be designated by the court or a judge thereof, most likely to give notice to the person to be served. When the residence of an absent defendant is known, a copy of complaint and summons shall be sent to him through the post-office. Personal service out of the State is equivalent to publication.

In justices' courts, when summons is accompanied by order of arrest it must be returned immediately. When plaintiff or defendant is a non-resident of township but within the county in which the action is brought, ten days; if served elsewhere, twenty days; if served within the township or city in which the action is brought, five days.

In actions upon contracts for the direct payment of money, the court may, instead of ordering publication, appoint an attorney to conduct the proceedings on the part of the defendant. But in such case, where the residence of the defendant is known, a copy of the summons shall be deposited in the post-office addressed to the defendant as in other cases, and the attorney so appointed shall not appear until the return day named in the summons.

Stay of Execution. — The court in which an action has been tried, except a justice court, has discretionary power to grant a stay of proceeding for a reasonable time, upon a judgment rendered therein. An appeal, when accompanied by sufficient undertaking, stays execution.

Stocks of Merchandise. — It shall be the duty of every person who shall bargain for the purchase of any portion of a stock of merchandise otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade and in the regular and usual prosecution of the sellers' business, or an entire stock of merchandise in bulk for cash or on credit, before paying to the vendor, his agent or representative, to demand and receive from such vendor or agent, a written statement sworn to, giving the names and addresses of all creditors of said vendor, together with the amount of the indebtedness due or owing, or to become due or owing by said vendor; and also to notify at least five days previous to any payment of the purchase price, personally or by registered mail, every creditor as shown upon said verified statement; said notice to contain the time and conditions of payment, and it is the duty of the vendee to see that the purchase money is applied to the payment of bona fide claims of creditors of the vendor as shown upon said verified statement. All sales of stocks of merchandise unless made in strict conformity to the above shall be fraudulent and void.

Tax Law. — Taxes are a lien upon the property assessed and upon the real estate of the owner of the property assessed, which lien attaches upon the first Monday of March of each year. Suits for delinquent taxes may be commenced by the district attorney of the county after the expiration of a stated time from the time they become delinquent, where the amount of the delinquent taxes and costs exceeds the sum of three hundred dollars. If the amount of the taxes and costs is less than three hundred dollars, the county treasurer as ex officio tax receiver, after giving the statutory notice, is authorized to sell the property. All sales of real estate sold for taxes shall be subject to redemption at any time within six months after date of sale, by the payment of all costs connected with the suit and sale, together with interest at the rate of three per cent. per month from date of sale up to time of redemption.

The tax levy is made by county commissioners not later than the first Monday in March. Thereafter and until the first Monday in September the assessor makes assessments of all property subject to taxation. The fiscal year commences January 1st of each year. On or before the second Monday in September assessor shall complete his assessment and deliver it to the clerk of the board of county commissioners, who meet as a board of equalization on the third Monday in September. The equalized roll is delivered to the county treasurer on the fourth Monday in October, when taxes become payable until the first Monday in December, when they become delinquent and a penalty of ten per cent. is added. After the second Monday in December, in all cases where the delinquent taxes exclusive of penalties and poll taxes do not exceed the sum of three hundred dollars, the taxes shall be advertised for sale; where the taxes are above three hundred dollars suit is brought in statutory form by the district attorney.

Personal taxes are a lien against real property of the delinquent. Where the delinquent has no real property personal taxes are collected upon demand by the assessor and distraint. Shares of stock in companies paying taxes on their property are not taxable.

Mining property, except patented mining claims, is not taxed unless it is producing bullion, when a flat bullion tax is imposed, after deducting the cost of mining. Patented mining claims shall be assessed for not less than a dollar and a quarter per acre.

Taxes are due on the first Monday of November, and may now be paid in two equal installments and become delinquent on first Monday in December and first Monday in June following; if first installment is not paid on first Monday in December, the whole becomes delinquent. After delinquency ten per cent. penalty is added, also costs of sale.

Testimony. — All persons may be witnesses in any action or proceeding, in civil cases, except: 1st. That no party to an action shall be allowed to testify therein when the opposite party to the transaction is dead, or when the opposite party to the action, or the person for whose immediate benefit the action or proceeding is prosecuted or defended, is the representative of a deceased person, when the facts to be proved transpired before the death of such deceased person; provided that when such deceased person was represented in the transaction in question by any agent who is living, and who testifies as a witness in favor of the representative of such deceased person, in such case the other party may also testify in relation to such transaction; and nothing contained herein shall affect the laws in relation to attestation of any instrument required to be attested; provided further, that when husband or wife is insane, and has been so declared by a commission of lunacy or in due form of law, the other shall be a competent witness to testify as to any fact which transpired before or during such insanity; but the privilege of so testifying shall cease on the restoration to soundness of the insane husband or wife, unless upon the consent of both, in which case they shall be competent witnesses. 2d. Persons convicted of felony, unless they are pardoned or the judgments are reversed on appeal, cannot be witnesses; but if the witness be a prisoner confined in a jail or prison within this State, an order for his examination in the prison upon deposition, or for his temporary removal and production before a court or officer for the purpose of being examined, may be made by the court itself, in which the action or proceeding is pending, unless it be a justice's court, or by a judge of the supreme court, or district court where the action or proceeding is pending, if pending before a justice's court, or before a judge or other person out of court. The order for such examination can only be made on motion of a party upon affidavit, showing the nature of the action or proceeding, the testimony expected from the witness, and its materiality. If the witness be imprisoned in the county where the action or proceeding is pending, his production may in the discretion of the court or judge, be required; in all other cases his examination, when allowed, shall be taken upon deposition. (Amendment February 26, 1881.) 3d. A husband or wife cannot be a witness for or against one another, except by consent, and except in an action by one against the other. 4th. An attorney or counselor shall not, except by consent of his client, be examined as to any confidential communications in course of professional employment, and the same prohibition applies to a clergyman or priest, and a physician or surgeon, with respect to professional relations which are confidential. 5th. A public officer shall not be examined as a witness as to communications made to him in official confidence, when the public interest would suffer by the disclosure. 6th. Laws in relation to attestation of instruments required to be attested are expressly reserved from the operation of the statute allowing parties in interest to testify. Facts which at common law would exclude a witness may be shown to affect his credibility. In criminal cases a defendant may testify in his own behalf. An accused person may testify against his co-defendant, but his testimony shall not afterwards be used against himself. Negroes are allowed to testify in all cases, but Indians are not permitted to give evidence for or against a white person, except when the accused is charged with selling liquor to Indians, when Indians are admitted to testify. The rules of evidence in the courts are those of the common law, modified to some extent by statute.

Trust Deeds — Of real property to secure the payment of money are not expressly authorized by statute; they have been used to a limited extent, and recognized and sustained by the courts. There is no redemption from a sale of property authorized under a trust deed.

Wills. — Every person of sound mind, over eighteen years of age, may dispose of his or her property by will, subject to the payment of debts.

Wills are required to be executed in conformity with the laws of this State (Laws 1861, § 26, p. 195) as follows: They must be signed and sealed by testator; there must be at least two witnesses, who must sign in the presence of each other as well as in the presence of the testator. If a will be made in a foreign country, a certified copy, together with proof of probate, is necessary in order to have the will probated in Nevada, otherwise the will must conform to the laws of the State. The power to dispose of property by will is absolute, except that one half of community property cannot be taken from the wife. If it appears from the will that the testator intended to disinherit any child, the disinheritance is final, but if the child is simply unprovided for in the will, it inherits the amount it would have received had its parent died intestate, unless it has received its share as an advancement during the life of the parent.

A married woman may dispose of her separate estate absolutely, without consent of husband, by will executed as required of other wills (Laws 1873); and, with consent of her husband, may dispose of her interest in common property, — consent of husband to be in writing annexed to will. (Laws 1864.)

No will (except nuncupative will) shall be valid unless it be in writing, signed and sealed by the testator, or by his direction, and attested by two witnesses in his presence.

No nuncupative will shall be good when the estate exceeds one thousand dollars in value, nor unless proved by two witnesses within three months after the testamentary words were spoken. A devise or legacy to a witness is void unless there are two other competent subscribing witnesses.

Any child of a testator unprovided for in his will shall share in the estate as though no will had been executed, unless it appear from the will that the omission was intentional. Wills are required to be recorded in the court in which they are admitted to probate. They can be typewritten if they are in form with other requirements of the statute.

There is not any restriction upon the amount that may be devised to charity, provided the intention to disinherit children clearly appears. No mention is made of any rights of the wife.

An act relating to holographic wills, approved March 20, 1895: Sec. 1. Property may be disposed of and taken under holographic wills. Such wills shall be valid and have full effect for the purpose for which they are intended. Sec. 2. An holographic will is one that is entirely written by the hand of the testator himself. It is subject to no other form, and may be made in or out of this State and need not be witnessed. Sec. 3. An holographic will may be proved in the same manner as other private writings are proved.

NEW HAMPSHIRE LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Streeter, Demond, Woodworth & Sulloway, of Concord.

The next legislature convenes 1st Wednesday in January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — The forms of original process are: writs of attachment, capias, replevin, and trustee process. There are also writs of scire facias and dower. (P. S. ch. 218.)

In actions brought by non-residents, the writ must be indorsed by some responsible resident, who is thereby made liable for the costs. (P. S. ch. 218, § 8.)

No security for costs is required of residents, save in cases of appeal.

If either party resides in this State, transitory actions should be brought in the county in which one of the parties resides. (P. S. ch. 216, § 1.) In actions against a decedent's estate, the decedent's residence governs instead of the executor's. (Laws of 1905, ch. 94.)

Parties are not entitled of right to a review of actions; but the court may grant a new trial where justice has not been done through accident, mistake, or misfortune, provided the party aggrieved petitions therefor within three years after the rendition of the judgment complained of or the failure of the suit. (P. S. ch. 230.) See Limitations.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits — May be made before any officer by whom a deposition may be taken. No particular form is required. Affidavits are not admissible as evidence in actions at law. See Depositions.

Allens. — Resident aliens may hold, purchase, sell, devise, or transmit by descent property the same as native born citizens. (P. S. ch. 137, §§ 16, 17.)

Appeals — May be taken from all decisions of the probate court to the superior court; must be claimed in writing within sixty days from the decision; and security for costs and to prosecute the appeal must be given. (P. S. ch. 200, §§ 1, 2, 3; Laws of 1901, ch. 78, § 2.) Appeals may also be taken from any police or justice's court to the superior court; must be claimed within two hours after judgment is rendered; and the party appealing must, within twenty-four hours, recognize or give bond in a civil case in the sum of one hundred dollars and in a criminal case in such sum as the court shall order, to pay the costs which may be recovered against him. (P. S. ch. 210, §§ 7, 8; ch. 211, § 13.)

Arrest. — No sheriff or voter on election days is liable to arrest upon civil process, nor any woman in action founded upon contract or upon a conditional sale of clothing; nor is any person so liable in any real action or action of ejectment, nor in any action founded on a contract unless the debt exceeds thirteen dollars and thirty-three cents, nor then unless it appear by affidavit of the plaintiff, or some person for him, indorsed on the back of the writ or execution, that the defendant is, in his belief, justly indebted to the plaintiff in a sum exceeding thirteen dollars and thirty-three cents; and that he conceals his property, or is about to leave the State to avoid payment of his debts. (P. S. ch. 221; Laws of 1905, ch. 47.)

Assignments. — The state law upon this subject is suspended by the national bankruptcy act of 1898.

Attachments. — In most actions, any property which may be taken upon execution may be attached and holden as security for the judgment the plaintiff may recover. (P. S. ch. 220, § 1.)

Real estate (including standing timber) is attached by the officer leaving an attested copy of the writ and of his return thereon at the office or dwelling-house of the register of deeds of the county in which the real estate is situated. (Laws of 1911, ch. 45.)

All movable property is taken possession of by the officer on making the attachment. The attachment of lumber, brick, vehicles, and other bulky articles may be preserved by leaving an attested copy of the writ and officer's return thereon with the town clerk, within forty-eight hours after the attachment is made, without retaining actual possession thereof. (P. S. ch. 220, § 16; Laws of 1915, ch. 57.) In all cases where an attachment is made, an attested copy of the writ should be served on the defendant, by giving in hand or leaving at his abode at least fourteen days before the sitting of the court to which it is returnable. (P. S. ch. 219, §§ 1, 2.)

The property of the defendant in the hands of a third person, and debts due the defendant, may be attached by trustee process, service being made upon the defendant and trustee.

tee, as in other cases. No trustee is chargeable for pensions or bounty money, or for the services or earnings of the wife or minor children of the defendant, or for the defendant's own earnings after service of writ, or for his earnings to the amount of twenty dollars before service of writ on trustee, except for necessities. (P. S. ch. 245, § 20.)

Property attached is holden for thirty days from the rendition of judgment, and the levy of the execution must be commenced within that time. (P. S. ch. 220, § 40.)

No valid attachment can be made to secure claims not due at the commencement of the action. Attaching creditors acquire a lien in the order of their attachments, and do not share in the attached property pro rata. See, also, Trustee Process.

Bills of Lading. — New Hampshire has recently adopted the Uniform Bills of Lading Law. (Laws of 1917, ch. 81. In effect June 1, 1917.)

Chattel Mortgages. — Personal property and crops, matured or growing, may be mortgaged. The mortgagee must take and retain actual possession of the chattels mortgaged, or the mortgage must be recorded in the office of the clerk of the town where the mortgagor lives at the time of making the same, if he resides within the State; otherwise where the property is located. No chattel mortgage is valid, save as between the parties thereto, unless the above provision of law is complied with, nor unless both of the parties subscribe and make oath to the following affidavit, which must be made upon the mortgage and recorded therewith: —

"We severally swear that the foregoing mortgage is made for the purpose of securing the debt specified in the condition thereof, and for no other purpose whatever, and that said debt was not created for the purpose of enabling the mortgagor to execute said mortgage, but is a just debt, honestly due and owing from the mortgagor to the mortgagee. So help us God."

When a firm is a party, any partner may make and subscribe the affidavit; and when a corporation is a party, that may be done by any director or any other authorized person. If the mortgage is given for any other purpose than to secure a debt due from the mortgagor to the mortgagee, the agreement or liability upon which the mortgagee is indemnified or secured must be specifically stated in the mortgage, and the above affidavit so far varied as to verify the validity, truth, and justice of such liability or agreement.

The mortgagee may sell the property at auction at any time after thirty days from condition broken, posting notices of the sale in two public places in the town, and giving the mortgagor, if he resides in the town, a written notice of the sale at least four days prior thereto; and may apply the net proceeds thereof to his debt. (P. S. ch. 140.)

Under certain circumstances mortgages may secure future obligations. (Laws of 1917, ch. 120.) See Mortgages.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — All claims against the estates of deceased persons must be prosecuted within two years after the grant of administration, but suit thereon cannot be maintained if commenced within one year, nor before payment is demanded. Demand must be made within one year after original grant of administration. (P. S. ch. 191, §§ 1-4; Laws of 1899, ch. 2.)

In granting letters of administration preference is given to, 1, the executor named in the will; 2, the widow, or any of the next of kin, or such suitable person as they or any of them may nominate; 3, one of the devisees or creditors; 4, such other person as the judge may think proper. (P. S. ch. 188, § 2.) Non-residents may be appointed if the circumstances, in the opinion of the judge, render the same proper. A non-resident administrator must appoint a resident his agent to receive notice of claims and service of process. (P. S. ch. 188, §§ 4, 24.)

A bond with sufficient sureties in such reasonable sum as the judge shall approve must be given, conditioned: 1. To return to the judge a true and perfect inventory of the estate of the deceased, upon oath, within three months from the date of the bond. 2. To administer the estate according to law. 3. To render to the judge an account of administration, upon oath, within one year. 4. To pay and deliver the rest and residue of the estate which shall be found remaining upon the account of the administrator to such person or persons respectively as the judge, by his decree, according to law, shall limit and appoint. 5. To deliver the letters of administration into the court of probate, in case a will of the deceased shall thereafter be approved and allowed. (P. S. ch. 188, § 12.)

Administrators must within ten days after their appointment post notice thereof at some public place in the town where the deceased dwelt, if in this State, and cause it to be published. (P. S. ch. 188 § 15.)

All claims against an estate shall, if required by the administrator, be exhibited under oath, as follows: "I do solemnly swear that, according to the best of my knowledge and belief, the above is a true statement of my claims against the estate of late of and that I have not on my books or elsewhere any credit, nor have I any knowledge of any credit or offset that should be allowed against my claim, except what is stated in the foregoing account. So help me God." (P. S. ch. 188, § 20.)

The judge is given the power to make the widow a reasonable allowance for her present needs.

Estates are distributed in the following order: 1. Expenses of administration. 2. Funeral expenses. 3. A reasonable allowance to the widow. 4. The just debts owed by the deceased. 5. The support and maintenance of infant children until seven years of age if the estate is in fact solvent. 6. Legacies. (P. S. ch. 189, § 17.)

Any estate may be decreed to be administered as if insolvent, on application of the administrator within one year from the original grant of administration, and in such case the claims against the estate must be presented to and allowed by commissioners appointed by the probate court, within the time (from six to nine months) prescribed by the judge, or they are barred. The judge of probate may extend the time of the commissioners' hearings for sufficient cause, upon payment of expenses of such extension. Taxes and claims for last sickness are preferred to other debts. Either the administrator or creditor, or an heir or another creditor may appeal from the commissioners to the superior court. (P. S. chs. 192, 193; Laws of 1903, ch. 15.)

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — In a conditional sale of personal property, the vendor loses his lien upon the property when it is delivered to the vendee, unless the vendee gives the vendor a written memorandum stating the lien and the sum due thereon, and the vendor and vendee make and subscribe an affidavit upon said memorandum, in substance as follows: "We severally swear that the foregoing memorandum is made for the purpose of witnessing the lien and the sum due thereon, as specified in said memorandum, and for no other purpose whatever, and that said lien and the sum due thereon were not created for the purpose of enabling the purchaser to execute said memorandum, but said lien is a just lien, and the sum stated to be due thereon is honestly due and owing from the purchaser to the vendor." Such memorandum must be recorded, within twenty days after the property is delivered, in the town clerk's office of the town (1) where the vendee resides, if in this State; (2) where the vendor resides, if in the State and the vendee does not reside in the State; (3) where the property is situated if neither the vendor nor vendee reside in the State. If not recorded within the twenty days, the lien will be valid against such creditors and purchasers only as become such subsequently to the record. (P. S. ch. 140, §§ 23-26.)

The foregoing does not apply to leases of household goods containing an option to purchase at a specified time.

Consignments. — There is no statute on this subject.

Corporations. — Five or more persons of lawful age may form a corporation for the carrying on of any lawful business or for any lawful purpose except banking, life insurance, the making of contracts for the payment of money at a fixed date or upon the happening of some contingency, the construction and maintenance of railroads, and the issue, sale, or redemption of trading stamps or similar devices. (P. S. ch. 147, § 1; Laws of 1905, ch. 70.)

The articles of association shall be filed with the secretary of state and also in the office of the town clerk of the town where the corporation is located. (P. S. ch. 147, § 4.)

The fees of the secretary of state and town or city clerk for recording the articles of association are from two to five dollars each, according to the length of the document. Corporations which are not to carry on business and have a principal office within the State must pay an additional charter fee upon the largest amount of capital authorized, as follows: Not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, ten dollars; from twenty-five thousand dollars to one hundred thousand dollars, twenty-five dollars; from one hundred thousand dollars to five hundred thousand dollars, fifty dollars; from five hundred thousand dollars to one million dollars, one hundred dollars. (Laws of 1895, ch. 18.)

There is no annual state tax, the property of the corporation being taxed upon the same basis as property of individuals. See Tax Law.

The capital stock shall not be less than one thousand nor more than five million dollars, divided into shares of not less than twenty-five nor more than five hundred dollars each. (P. S. ch. 147, § 6.) All capital must be paid in (P. S. ch. 150, § 8), except that a corporation may vote to issue shares of its capital stock to an amount not less than fifty per cent. of the total amount. The corporation must cause to be filed in the office of the clerk of the town in which its principal place of business is located, and in the office of the secretary of state, a certified copy of the vote and a certificate under oath, signed by its treasurer and a majority of its directors, stating the total amount of capital stock which the corporation is authorized to issue, the total amount which it has voted to issue, and that the whole amount of capital stock which the corporation has voted to issue has been paid in in cash or property at a fair valuation. (Laws of 1915, ch. 80.)

Corporations (except railroad corporations and public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of the public service commission) may capitalize their undivided surplus profits by issuing to their stockholders certificates of stock representing their respective shares of the whole or such part thereof as the corporation may determine, of any surplus profits represented by cash or property, such increase of capital stock to be within the limits provided by law. No such issue shall be authorized at less than par nor until a certified copy of the vote authorizing such issue, and a certificate under oath and signed by the treasurer and a majority of the directors, stating the number of shares and their par value and that the stock represents cash or property at a fair valuation, shall have been recorded in the office of the clerk of the town in which the corporation has its principal place of business and in the office of the secretary of state. (P. S. ch. 150, § 8; Laws of 1915, ch. 82.)

Corporations may admit associates and members, and for just cause remove them; elect all necessary officers, define their duties, and fix their compensation; have a common seal; sue and be sued, appear, prosecute, and defend, and appoint agents and attorneys for that purpose, and have perpetual succession unless otherwise provided, or unless dissolved as by law provided. (P. S. ch. 148, § 3.) There must be at least three directors, one of whom shall be a resident of the State, if any stockholders reside in the State.

Corporations may change their names, increase or decrease their capital stock or amend their articles of association, by a majority vote at a meeting called for the purpose, and by recording a copy of said vote as required for the articles of association of voluntary corporations.

Corporations may make all contracts necessary and proper for the transaction of their authorized business and no other, and they are not capable of binding themselves as sureties or guarantors. (P. S. ch. 148, § 7.) They may purchase, hold, and convey real and personal estate necessary and proper for the transaction of their authorized business. (§ 8.) They may take mortgages or make attachments to secure the payment of debts due them. (§ 9.)

Every corporation must have a clerk who must be an inhabitant of this State and keep his office here. He shall keep a record of all proceedings of the corporation and of its managing officers, and of all papers required to be recorded in his office, and perform all other duties incumbent on him by law, usage, or the by-laws of the corporation. He must be sworn to the faithful discharge of his duties. (§§ 10, 11.)

A stockholder who shall unlawfully receive a loan from the corporation or a sum unlawfully withdrawn or refunded from the capital stock thereof, or who shall knowingly accept or receive a dividend unlawfully made, shall, to the amount by him received, be individually liable for the debts of the corporation then existing or afterwards contracted, until the same is repaid. (P. S. 150, § 7.)

Every stockholder, except in banks and railroads, shall be liable for all debts and contracts of the corporation until the whole amount of the capital fixed and limited by the corporation, or in the event that the corporation has voted to issue stock to an amount less than the whole amount of its authorized capital, the amount which the corporation has voted to issue, shall have been paid in, and a certificate thereof, under oath, signed by the treasurer and a majority of the directors, has been filed and recorded by the clerk of the city or town where such corporation has its principal place of business. (Laws of 1915, ch. 80.)

Every corporation, except insurance companies, railroad corporations, and public utility corporations making annual returns to the public service commission, banks, and building and loan associations, shall annually on or before March first make return under oath of the treasurer and a majority of the directors, to the secretary of state and clerk of the town in which its principal business is carried on if within this State, of the amount of all assessments voted by the corporation and actually paid in, the amount of all debts due to and from the corporation, and the value of all the property and assets of the corporation, so far as the same can be determined as existing on the first of January; and if any such corporation shall fail so to do, the treasurer and directors shall be individually liable for all the debts and contracts of the corporation then existing, or which shall be contracted until the return is made. (Laws of 1915, ch. 10.)

Stockholders in corporations complying with all provisions of law are liable only to the amount of the par value of the stock for which they subscribed.

When a domestic corporation is party to, or garnishee in, any legal proceeding in the State, any non-resident director, officer, or agent may, by order of the superior court, be summoned to appear and testify in such proceeding, or give his deposition for use therein before a special commissioner appointed by said court, and to produce all corporate books and papers in his control material to such proceeding. The summons may be served by attested copy within or without the State, and if the summons is willfully disobeyed the superior court may, in its discretion, appoint a receiver for the corporation until the court's reasonable orders are complied with. (Laws of 1903, ch. 37.)

Foreign corporations cannot acquire land for hunting, fishing, and similar purposes without becoming reincorporated by New Hampshire laws (Laws of 1901, ch. 9), but may hold title to land with this exception. They are taxed only on property within the State, which is taxed like other property of same nature.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for New Hampshire.

Curtesy. — The husband is entitled to curtesy in deceased wife's realty, as at common law. See Descent and Distribution; Married Women.

Deeds. — Deeds and other conveyances of real estate must be signed and sealed by the grantor, attested by one or more witnesses, acknowledged before a justice, notary public, or commissioner, whether within or without the State (but if before a justice without the State his official character should be authenticated by the clerk of a court of record or by the secretary of state). In foreign countries deeds may be acknowledged before any consular officer of the United States, a notary public, or a commissioner or other agent of this State having power to take acknowledgments of deeds. (Laws of 1917, ch. 53.) They should be recorded at length in the registry of deeds in the county in which the lands are situated. Conveyances by husband or wife should be signed, sealed, attested, and acknowledged by the other spouse in the manner above described, in order to bar rights of dower, curtesy, or homestead (though acknowledgment by the wife is probably unnecessary where her only interest is dower), and it is advisable to insert in such conveyances a clause expressly releasing these rights.

The identity of the grantors need not be certified by the magistrate.

A scroll is not a sufficient seal upon a deed or any other instrument required to be sealed.

[Certificate of Acknowledgment by Husband and Wife.]

STATE OF }
COUNTY OF } ss.

Personally appeared the above-named George Crittenden and Jane E. Crittenden, his stead, at her decease the life estate of the surviving husband, not exceeding the value of five hundred dollars, is exempt to him. A homestead of the value of five hundred dollars is also exempt to an unmarried person owning the same. (P. S. ch. 138.)

Husband and Wife. — See Curtsey; Descent and Distribution; Divorces; Dower; Homestead Exemptions; Married Women.

Inheritance Taxes. — A tax of five per cent. is imposed on all property within the jurisdiction of the State, real or personal, belonging to inhabitants of the State, and all real estate within the State belonging to persons who are not inhabitants of the State, passing, by inheritance or gift to take effect on the grantor's death, to any person in trust or otherwise other than to or for the use of the father, mother, husband, wife, brother, sister, lineal descendant, adopted child, the lineal descendant of any adopted child, the wife or widow of a son or the husband of a daughter of a decedent, or to or for the use of educational, religious, cemetery, or other institutions, societies, or associations of public charity in this State, or upon trust for any charitable purpose in the State, or for the care of cemetery lots, or to a city or town in this State for public purposes. The tax is a lien on all the estate of the deceased until paid. The probate court has jurisdiction of all questions relating to the tax. The collection of this tax is in the hands of the state treasurer, J. Wesley Plummer.

Insolvent Law. — See Assignments.

Interest. — The rate of interest is six per cent. per annum, unless a lower rate is stipulated. If any person, upon any contract, receives interest at a higher rate than six per cent., he forfeits three times the excess to the person aggrieved and suing therefor; but no contract is invalidated by reason of any stipulation for usurious interest; the money actually advanced may be recovered with legal interest. (P. S. ch. 203.)

Interest upon all judgments is at the rate of six per cent. per annum. Interest upon unpaid taxes is at the rate of ten per cent. before sale of property taxed, and twelve per cent. thereafter, until time of redemption. Upon current accounts, interest commences from date of demand for payment, unless controlled by the custom of trade, which is a question of fact to be determined by a trial thereof. "Annual" interest is not usurious. (47 N. H. 300, 313.)

Judgments — Are not a lien upon real estate, and hold the property only as above stated. See Attachments; Executions.

Foreign judgments are proven in accordance with the provisions of the United States statutes upon this subject.

Attorney's fees cannot be taxed in the judgment in any case.

In case there is no defense, or in the event of a final finding upon trial, judgments are entered up as of the last day of the term of the court at which they are rendered, unless ordered, for cause shown, at an earlier day.

When no defense is made, judgment may ordinarily be obtained in the superior court within six months, and in justice and police courts within one month after the action is commenced.

Legal Separation. — See Divorces.

License. — Commercial travelers are not required to take out a license. Itinerant vendors and peddlers are. (Laws of 1917, ch. 28.)

Liens. — Any person to whom a tax is assessed upon the property of any other person has a lien upon the property and its income until the tax is paid.

Boarding-house and lodging-house keepers have a lien upon the baggage and goods of their guests, save seamen, for their fare, board, and room-rent. (Laws of 1909, ch. 80.)

Keepers of domestic animals have a lien thereon for their pasturing or board. (P. S. ch. 141, § 2.)

Laborers on vessels have a lien thereon for four days after the vessel is completed. (P. S. ch. 141, § 9.)

Laborers on buildings, and persons furnishing materials to the amount of fifteen dollars or more, by virtue of a contract with the owner thereof, have a lien on the buildings and on the lot of land on which they stand, for the space of ninety days after the labor is performed or materials are furnished. (P. S. ch. 141, §§ 10, 16.)

Laborers or contractors furnishing work on wood, bark, logs, lumber, or bricks have the same lien as laborers on buildings, and for the same time. (P. S. ch. 141, §§ 11, 12, 16.)

The several liens of laborers may be secured by attachment within the times specified which take precedence of all other attachments. (P. S. ch. 141, § 17.)

No lien of vendor upon conditional sale of personal property (excepting leases of household goods containing an option to purchase at a specified time) shall be valid against attaching creditors or subsequent purchasers where the property passes into the possession of the vendee, unless the vendor takes and has recorded as hereinafter directed a memorandum in writing signed by the purchaser, stating the lien and the sum due thereon, to which there is attached an affidavit signed by the vendor and purchaser, in substance as follows: "We severally swear that the foregoing memorandum is made for the purpose of witnessing the lien and the sum due thereon, as specified in said memorandum, and for no other purpose whatever, and that said lien and the sum due thereon were not created for the purpose of enabling the purchaser to execute said memorandum, but said lien is a just lien, and the sum stated to be due thereon is honestly due thereon, and owing from the purchaser to the vendor." This memorandum should be recorded, within twenty days after the delivery of the property, in the office of the town clerk of the town where the purchaser resides, if in this State, otherwise in that of the town where the vendor resides; but a record made at a later date will render the lien valid as against subsequent purchasers and attaching creditors. Any member of a partnership may make and subscribe the affidavit in behalf of the firm, and any director or other authorized person in behalf of a corporation. See Conditional Sales.

Limitations. — Actions for the recovery of real estate, upon notes secured by mortgage, and upon judgments (whether domestic or foreign), recognisances, and contracts under seal, must be brought within twenty years from the time the right to recover accrues. (P. S. ch. 217, §§ 1, 4, 5.)

Actions for trespass to the person and defamatory words must be brought within two years, and all other personal actions within six years after the cause of action accrues. (P. S. ch. 217, § 3.)

Where there is any legal disability, real actions must be brought within five years and all personal actions within two years after the removal of such disability. (P. S. ch. 217, §§ 2, 7.)

Writs of error may be sued out within three years after judgment. Scire facias against indorsers of writs and bail are limited to one year. In all personal actions, if the defendant has been absent from the State the time of absence is excluded from the computation. (P. S. ch. 217, §§ 6, 8.)

A debt is revived by any new promise, verbal or written.

Married Women — May hold real or personal estate, and convey, sell, devise, and bequeath the same as freely as if they were sole. They are entitled to absolute control of their own earnings, and are not liable for the debts of the husband. They may make contracts in their own name, buy goods, give notes, and transact any business whatever, as if sole, and bind their own property, both real and personal, in the course of such business, for their own sole benefit and without the intervention of the husband. But a married woman or her separate estate cannot be held upon a contract or conveyance made by her as surety or guarantor for the husband, nor is any undertaking by her for him or in his behalf binding upon her.

The husband is not liable for debts contracted by the wife before her marriage, nor can he in any way incumber or exercise authority over her property. The wife may constitute the husband her agent, and may maintain an action against him upon any contract made by her with him. It has also been holden that she may maintain trover against the husband if he converts her property. The wife is entitled to homestead and dower; the husband is entitled to curtesy as at common law in the lands of the wife.

The husband is liable for debts of the wife contracted after marriage as at common law. The husband cannot convey his improved real estate without the consent of the wife so as to bar her rights of dower and homestead therein.

A wife deserted by her husband, or separated from him, or doing business in her own name, or when the husband is a spendthrift, insane, or under guardianship, has all the rights of a feme sole.

Real estate may be conveyed directly by husband to wife or wife to husband, in all cases when the same thing might lawfully be done through the intervention of a third person. (Laws of 1899, ch. 16.)

Women become of age at twenty-one. See, also, Dower; Descent and Distribution.

Mechanics' Liens. — See Liens.

Mortgages (see Chattel Mortgages). — Mortgages of real estate can secure only the liability actually existing at the time of their execution, and the condition must be expressed, stating distinctly the sum of money to be secured or the thing to be done, and they must be executed with the same formalities as deeds. See Deeds. Mortgaged lands may be redeemed after condition broken and before foreclosure, by performance of the condition and payment of all damages and costs following the breach. (P. S. ch. 139.)

The rights of the mortgagor and all claiming under him may be foreclosed, — 1st. By entry and possession for one year under process of law. 2d. By peaceful entry upon the premises and actual peaceable possession for one year, and publication of notice in some newspaper in the county three weeks, stating the time of taking possession, the object thereof, the names of the parties, the date of the mortgage, and a description of the premises, the first publication to be at least six months before the right of redemption is foreclosed. 3d. By publication as aforesaid, by the mortgagee in actual possession, giving notice that from and after a certain specified day, not more than twenty-eight days after the last publication, possession is to be holden for the purpose of foreclosure, and by retaining actual peaceable possession of the premises for one year from and after the day specified in the notice or publication. (P. S. ch. 139, § 14.) Holder of note secured by mortgage may maintain suit upon the note and suit to foreclose at the same time.

Power of sale mortgages are valid, but method of foreclosure is prescribed by statute. (Laws of 1899, ch. 19; Laws of 1905, ch. 2.)

Mortgages of real estate are discharged by the mortgagee writing upon the back thereof the date and the words, "I discharge the within mortgage," and signing the same; and the wife of the mortgagee need not join. This discharge should be recorded on the margin of the record of the mortgage in the registry of deeds of the county. Assignments of mortgages need not be recorded.

Mortgage or deed of trust purporting to be given as security for notes or bonds thereafter to be issued or other expectant future obligations, may become lawful security for such notes, bonds, etc., to the extent that the same shall actually be issued or come into existence as valid obligations of the mortgagor. And the affidavit required in chattel mortgages may be modified accordingly. (Laws of 1917, ch. 120.)

Notaries Public — Are appointed by the governor, with advice of the council, for the term of five years. Their jurisdiction extends throughout the State. They have the usual powers of the office, and the same powers as a justice of the peace in relation to depositions, acknowledgments of deeds and other instruments, and the administration of oaths. Their official character may be certified by the secretary of state or the clerks of the supreme or superior courts. It is usual and advisable to affix the notarial seal to acknowledgments and jurats, though there is no statute expressly requiring it. Women may be appointed Notaries in New Hampshire. (Laws of 1917, ch. 71.)

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The uniform "Negotiable Instruments Law" has been in effect since January 1, 1910. (Laws of 1909, ch. 123.)

When a promissory note is payable on demand, it is considered as maturing in sixty days from date, without grace. (P. S. ch. 202, § 5; Neg. Inst. Law, § 71.)

Sight drafts and bills only are entitled to grace (three days). All negotiable paper maturing on Sunday, January 1st, February 22d, May 30th, July 4th, Thanksgiving, Fast, Christmas, Biennial Election Day, or Labor Day, is due and payable on the next succeeding secular or business day. (Laws of 1897, ch. 9, §§ 1, 2; Laws of 1909, ch. 96; Neg. Inst. Law, § 85.) Paper maturing Saturday must be presented on the next succeeding business day, except that demand paper may be presented before twelve o'clock noon on Saturday, at holder's option. (Neg. Inst. Law, § 85.)

Judgment notes are not allowed.

Practice — Is in accordance with the common law.

Proof of Claims. — Parties not resident in the State may prosecute claims against any person resident here upon the same terms and in the same way as if all parties were resident; provided only that a non-resident plaintiff must furnish security for costs by procuring some responsible person resident here to indorse his writ. Parties (whether resident or non-resident) must prove their claims by competent evidence. Parties non-resident may act and qualify as executors or administrators, but must furnish resident bondsmen.

Records. — All deeds and mortgages of real estate must be recorded in the registry of deeds of the county wherein the real estate is situate; and all chattel mortgages in the records of the town wherein the mortgagor resides. Conveyances required by law to be recorded have no effect whatever until they are placed in the office of the register or clerk for record, so far as third parties are concerned, unless such third parties have actual or constructive notice thereof.

The official having charge of the county records is styled the "Register of Deeds," and of the town records, the "Town Clerk," and they are chosen by popular vote. City clerks are chosen by the board of mayor and aldermen. See Chattel Mortgages; Conditional Sales; Deeds; Liens; Mortgages.

Redemption. — Real property set off on execution or taken upon mortgage may be redeemed at any time within one year from the date of possession taken by the creditor or mortgagee, and the right to redeem inures to the debtor or mortgagor, his heirs, or other legal representatives, or to a subsequent mortgagee or grantee.

Replevin — Lies against the impounder of beasts while in the pound; an officer attaching on mesne process the goods of another than the defendant, or goods that are exempt therefrom; and also when any goods or chattels are unlawfully taken or detained from the owner or person entitled to the possession. The plaintiff must give a bond in double the value of the property replevied. (P. S. ch. 241.)

Reports. — Smith's Decisions, 1 vol.; N. H. Reports, 20 vols.; Foster's Reports (N. H. Reports, vols. 21-31), 11 vols.; N. H. Reports (vols. 32-77), 45 vols.; Morrison's Digest of Reports, 1 vol.; Ray & Walker's Citations; Shepard's Citations.

Revision. — The last revision of the general laws of the State — the "Public Statutes" — was made in 1891, and took effect January 1, 1892. The latest Session Laws cover acts passed by legislature of 1917.

Sales. — The sale in bulk of the whole or part of a stock of merchandise, otherwise than in the ordinary course of business and excepting judicial sales, is void as against the seller's creditors unless the purchaser obtains from the seller a sworn list in writing of their names and addresses and notifies each creditor therein named, personally or by registered mail, of the proposed sale and its terms, at least five days before taking possession or making payment. (Laws of 1909, ch. 69.) See, also, Conditional Sales; Liens.

Service. — Service upon individuals and corporations must be made fourteen days before return day. Service against counties must be made upon one of the county commissioners and the clerk of the superior court for the county; against cities, upon the mayor or one of the aldermen and the city clerk; against towns, upon one of the selectmen and the town clerk; against school districts, upon any one of the prudential committee and the district clerk; against corporations, upon the clerk, treasurer, cashier, or one of the directors, trustees, or managers, if any one of them resides in the State, otherwise upon any agent, overseer, or other person having charge of the property or business of the corporation, or any principal member or stockholder; and against railroad corporations, upon any person selling passenger tickets at any station upon their road; and against manufacturing corporations, by leaving an attested copy of the writ at their office or counting-room. An attested copy is to be served in all cases, — either personally upon the proper individual or by leaving the same at his abode. (P. S. ch. 219.)

When the defendant is non-resident, his estate being attached in this State, an attested copy of the writ and the return thereon may be given him, left at his abode, or with his tenant, if land is attached; or the court may order publication in any newspaper in the State in its discretion. (P. S. ch. 219, § 5.)

Service "against unincorporated associations, joint-stock companies, syndicates, orders, or any mutual association of persons, other than a copartnership, having not more than four members within this State, may, except when otherwise provided, be made upon any officer thereof; or if it have no officer, then upon any two members thereof." (Laws of 1917, ch. 138.)

Stay of Execution — Is not made in any case except by special order of court.

Supplementary Proceedings. — Any person who has been arrested upon an execution (see Arrest) may give bond with two sufficient sureties, who are residents of the State, in double the amount of the debt, conditioned to take the poor debtor's oath within one year or surrender himself to prison, as provided by law, and will thereupon be discharged from actual arrest for the time being. Or, he may apply at once to the superior court, and have two justices of the peace (one to be of the quorum) appointed, to whom he may make application to take the poor debtor's oath. If it appears to such justices that the debtor had no property at the time of his arrest, except such as was exempt from attachment, and that he has not been guilty of any deceit, fraud, or falsehood in relation to his property, they may permit him to take the poor debtor's oath, whereupon he shall be forever discharged from arrest or imprisonment on that claim. If the debtor has given bond as aforesaid, he may at any time within a year from the date of the bond apply to take the poor debtor's oath as above stated. If he is not permitted to take the oath, he must surrender himself to jail on the next day after the expiration of the year, or, if that day be Sunday, on the Monday following, and remain there from twelve o'clock noon till three o'clock in the afternoon, to give the creditor an opportunity to have him committed. If he takes the poor debtor's oath or surrenders himself to jail, as above, it will discharge the bond. (P. S. chs. 235, 236.)

Tax Law. — Tax or collectors' deeds are given to the purchaser after one year from the sale of the land at public auction, if the land has not been redeemed by tender or payment of the amount of the tax and costs of sale, with twelve per cent. interest thereon from the time of the sale to the time of the tender of payment.

Taxes become a lien upon the realty simultaneously with their assessment (April 1 of each year). They are payable on or before December 1, and become delinquent January 1.

Every person or corporation shall fill out and make oath to a blank inventory to be furnished by the selectmen or assessors and return the same to the assessors on or before April 15. Such inventory shall contain a description of all real estate, and the gross amount or quantity of each class of taxable personal property owned on April 1. (P. S. ch. 57.) See also, Inheritance Taxes.

Testimony. — No party or other person interested in the result of a suit is excused or excluded from testifying by reason thereof; but neither party shall testify, when the adverse party is an executor, administrator, or insane person, to facts which occurred in the lifetime of the deceased, or prior to the ward's insanity, unless the executor, administrator, or the guardian of the insane party elects to testify, or unless it clearly appears to the court that injustice may be done without the testimony of the party, the ruling of the court being subject to exception and revision; and in an action brought by an indorsee or assignee of a promissory note, bill of exchange, or mortgage against an original party thereto, the defendant shall not testify in his own behalf, if either of the original parties to such note, bill, or mortgage is dead or insane, unless the plaintiff elects to testify himself or offers the testimony of an original party. (P. S. ch. 224.)

Husband and wife are competent witnesses for or against each other, whether joined as parties or not, in all cases, civil and criminal, except as to statements or communications with each other or to other persons where it clearly appears to the court that the examination of either would lead to the violation of marital confidence. (P. S. ch. 224, § 20.)

No person is incompetent to testify on account of conviction of an infamous crime, but the record of such conviction may be used to affect his credibility. (P. S. ch. 224, § 26.)

Persons charged with crime may, at their own request, and not otherwise, be witnesses in the trial of any indictment, complaint, or other proceeding against them.

The opinions of witnesses as to the value of any property may be received as evidence thereof, when it appears to the court that they are qualified to judge of its value. (P. S. ch. 224, § 22.)

The admissibility of evidence in other cases is determined by the rules of the common law. See, also, Corporations.

Trust Deeds — Must be executed with the same formalities, and are subject to the same statutory provisions, as conveyances in fee.

Trustee Process. — Analogous to Garnishment in other States. This is a writ of attachment and summons, and is served upon the defendant and trustee like a writ of summons. It may be used to reach money, goods, rights, or credits of the defendant in the hands of another, save in actions of replevin, trespass to the person, defamation, or malicious prosecution. See Attachments.

No clerk, cashier, or other employee of the principal defendant is chargeable as trustee for any funds by him held in such capacity.

Any non-resident doing business in this State may be trusted in this State for money, goods, etc., in his hands in this State belonging to the principal defendant, by duly serving the writ upon his clerk or agent having charge of such business. (P. S. ch. 245, § 5.)

Wills. — Wills, to be effectual to pass real estate or personal property, must be made by persons of the age of twenty-one years, of sound mind, in writing, signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his express direction, and attested, and subscribed in his presence by three or more credible witnesses, who should be other than devisees or legatees or the husbands or wives of devisees or legatees. (P. S. ch. 186.)

Married women may dispose of their property by will.

Nuncupative wills are valid only when declared in the presence of three witnesses who were requested by the testator to bear witness thereto, in his last sickness, and in his usual dwelling, except when the testator is taken sick away from home and dies before his return, and except when the property bequeathed is personal estate of less value than one hundred dollars. A memorandum thereof must be reduced to writing within six days and presented for probate within six months. (P. S. ch. 186, § 17.)

All wills are recorded in the office of the register of probate for the particular county.

Domestic wills must be proved and allowed by the court of probate in order to pass any estate, but a duly authenticated copy of a will made out of this State and of its probate in another State or country may by decree of the probate court be filed and recorded here, and thereupon shall have the same effect as if executed, proved, and allowed in this State.

Wills executed outside this State in accordance with the law of the place of execution are as effective as if executed according to the laws of this State.

The amount a testator can leave to charity or will away from his family is not limited, except that the husband or wife may waive the will and take his or her statutory share. (See Descent and Distribution.) Children can be disinherited by express provision to that effect, but not by implication.

NEW JERSEY LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., and Edward L. Katzenbach, of Trenton.

The next legislature convenes January 14, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — Within the State of New Jersey an acknowledgment or proof of deed, mortgage, etc., must be made before the chancellor, or a justice of the supreme court, a master in chancery, notary public, attorney at law of New Jersey, a judge of the court of common pleas, a commissioner of deeds, clerk of the court of common pleas, deputy county clerk, surrogate, deputy surrogate, or register of deeds. (P.L., 1916, p. 299.)

Out of this State and in some other State or Territory, before a judge of the United States Supreme Court, a master in chancery or attorney at law of New Jersey, any judge of a United States Circuit or District Court, a judge of the supreme or superior courts, or the chancellor of any State or Territory, foreign commissioner of deeds for New Jersey with his seal, the mayor or chief magistrate of a municipal corporation with a corporate seal, or a judge of the court of common pleas, duly certified under the seal of the State or of the county court that he is such judge (all of these, except the judge of the United States Supreme Court and a master in chancery of New Jersey and attorney at law of New Jersey, being within the State or District or city for which he was appointed), or before any officer in the State or Territory, or District of Columbia, authorized at the time by the laws of that State, Territory, or District to take acknowledgments of deeds for lands lying there, provided in such case that the certificate of acknowledgment or proof shall be accompanied by a certificate under the great seal of the State, etc., or under the seal of some court of record of the county wherein it was made; that the officer before whom such proof or acknowledgment was made was at the time of taking the same authorized by the laws of such State, etc., to take acknowledgment and proof of deeds or conveyances for lands, tenements, or hereditaments in such State, etc. (Laws 1906, pp. 524, 528.) A notary public must have such a certificate, and need not affix his seal to an acknowledgment.

In foreign countries, before any public ambassador, minister, consul, vice-consul, consular agent, chargé d'affaires, or other representative of the United States for the time being at any foreign court or government, or before any court of law, notary public, or mayor or other chief magistrate of any city, borough, or corporation of the said foreign kingdom, state, nation, or colony in which the said party or witnesses happen to be, certified by said officers in the manner such acts are usually authenticated by them. It is not necessary that the United States consul should certify the official character of the officer (Laws 1898, p. 679), but the acknowledgment or proof made before a foreign court, notary public, or mayor or chief magistrate of a municipality must be accompanied by a certificate under the great seal of such foreign state, nation, or colony, or a court of record thereof, certifying the authority of such officer to take acknowledgments for conveyances of lands therein. (P.L. 1912, p. 429.)

In all cases the identity of the grantor must be established to the satisfaction of the officer. He must certify that he is satisfied, and that he made the contents known. See form below. The acknowledgment may be written or printed on the deed, or on a paper securely attached thereto.

During the war or within one year thereafter a person on the high seas or in a foreign state may have acknowledgments taken before a captain in the army or a lieutenant in the navy or higher commanding officers. (P.L. 1918, ch. 61.)

An examination of the wife separate from her husband was formally necessary except to assignments and release of mortgages (P.L. 1912, p. 158) and to certificates of incorporation. (P.L. 1912, p. 110.) It is not necessary now. (P.L. 1916, p. 321.) Practitioners will probably continue to use the forms as heretofore and as hereinafter contained using the now unnecessary "married women's clause" contained in the second paragraph of the form next given. Signature of wife must be acknowledged. It cannot be proved by subscribing witness. P.L. 1918, ch. 37, provides for the acknowledgment of a feme covert, and further, that an acknowledgment taken as prescribed is a bar to dower.

(P. S. ch. 186.)

Married women may dispose of their property by will.

Nuncupative wills are valid only when declared in the presence of three witnesses who were requested by the testator to bear witness thereto, in his last sickness, and in his usual dwelling, except when the testator is taken sick away from home and dies before his return, and except when the property bequeathed is personal estate of less value than one hundred dollars. A memorandum thereof must be reduced to writing within six days and presented for probate within six months. (P. S. ch. 186, § 17.)

All wills are recorded in the office of the register of probate for the particular county.

Domestic wills must be proved and allowed by the court of probate in order to pass any estate, but a duly authenticated copy of a will made out of this State and of its probate in another State or country may by decree of the probate court be filed and recorded here, and thereupon shall have the same effect as if executed, proved, and allowed in this State.

Wills executed outside this State in accordance with the law of the place of execution are as effective as if executed according to the laws of this State.

The amount a testator can leave to charity or will away from his family is not limited, except that the husband or wife may waive the will and take his or her statutory share. (See Descent and Distribution.) Children can be disinherited by express provision to that effect, but not by implication.

NEW JERSEY LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., and Edward L. Katzenbach, of Trenton.

The next legislature convenes January 14, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — Within the State of New Jersey an acknowledgment or proof of deed, mortgage, etc., must be made before the chancellor, or a justice of the supreme court, a master in chancery, notary public, attorney at law of New Jersey, a judge of the court of common pleas, a commissioner of deeds, clerk of the court of common pleas, deputy county clerk, surrogate, deputy surrogate, or register of deeds. (P.L., 1916, p. 299.)

Out of this State and in some other State or Territory, before a judge of the United States Supreme Court, a master in chancery or attorney at law of New Jersey, any judge of a United States Circuit or District Court, a judge of the supreme or superior courts, or the chancellor of any State or Territory, foreign commissioner of deeds for New Jersey with his seal, the mayor or chief magistrate of a municipal corporation with a corporate seal, or a judge of the court of common pleas, duly certified under the seal of the State or of the county court that he is such judge (all of these, except the judge of the United States Supreme Court and a master in chancery of New Jersey and attorney at law of New Jersey, being within the State or District or city for which he was appointed), or before any officer in the State or Territory, or District of Columbia, authorized at the time by the laws of that State, Territory, or District to take acknowledgments of deeds for lands lying there, provided in such case that the certificate of acknowledgment or proof shall be accompanied by a certificate under the great seal of the State, etc., or under the seal of some court of record of the county wherein it was made; that the officer before whom such proof or acknowledgment was made was at the time of taking the same authorized by the laws of such State, etc., to take acknowledgment and proof of deeds or conveyances for lands, tenements, or hereditaments in such State, etc. (Laws 1906, pp. 524, 528.) A notary public must have such a certificate, and need not affix his seal to an acknowledgment.

In foreign countries, before any public ambassador, minister, consul, vice-consul, consular agent, chargé d'affaires, or other representative of the United States for the time being at any foreign court or government, or before any court of law, notary public, or mayor or other chief magistrate of any city, borough, or corporation of the said foreign kingdom, state, nation, or colony in which the said party or witnesses happen to be, certified by said officers in the manner such acts are usually authenticated by them. It is not necessary that the United States consul should certify the official character of the officer (Laws 1898, p. 679), but the acknowledgment or proof made before a foreign court, notary public, or mayor or chief magistrate of a municipality must be accompanied by a certificate under the great seal of such foreign state, nation, or colony, or a court of record thereof, certifying the authority of such officer to take acknowledgments for conveyances of lands therein. (P.L. 1912, p. 429.)

In all cases the identity of the grantor must be established to the satisfaction of the officer. He must certify that he is satisfied, and that he made the contents known. See form below. The acknowledgment may be written or printed on the deed, or on a paper securely attached thereto.

During the war or within one year thereafter a person on the high seas or in a foreign state may have acknowledgments taken before a captain in the army or a lieutenant in the navy or higher commanding officers. (P.L. 1918, ch. 61.)

An examination of the wife separate from her husband was formally necessary except to assignments and release of mortgages (P.L. 1912, p. 158) and to certificates of incorporation. (P.L. 1912, p. 110.) It is not necessary now. (P.L. 1916, p. 321.) Practitioners will probably continue to use the forms as heretofore and as hereinafter contained using the now unnecessary "married women's clause" contained in the second paragraph of the form next given. Signature of wife must be acknowledged. It cannot be proved by subscribing witness. P.L. 1918, ch. 37, provides for the acknowledgment of a feme covert, and further, that an acknowledgment taken as prescribed is a bar to dower.

Wills. — Wills, to be effectual to pass real estate or personal property, must be made by persons of the age of twenty-one years, of sound mind, in writing, signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his express direction, and attested, and subscribed in his presence by three or more credible witnesses, who should be other than devisees or legatees or the husbands or wives of devisees or legatees. NEW JERSEY LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., and Edward L. Katzenbach, of Trenton.

The next legislature convenes January 14, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — Within the State of New Jersey an acknowledgment or proof of deed, mortgage, etc., must be made before the chancellor, or a justice of the supreme court, a master in chancery, notary public, attorney at law of New Jersey, a judge of the court of common pleas, a commissioner of deeds, clerk of the court of common pleas, deputy county clerk, surrogate, deputy surrogate, or register of deeds. (P.L., 1916, p. 299.)

Out of this State and in some other State or Territory, before a judge of the United States Supreme Court, a master in chancery or attorney at law of New Jersey, any judge of a United States Circuit or District Court, a judge of the supreme or superior courts, or the chancellor of any State or Territory, foreign commissioner of deeds for New Jersey with his seal, the mayor or chief magistrate of a municipal corporation with a corporate seal, or a judge of the court of common pleas, duly certified under the seal of the State or of the county court that he is such judge (all of these, except the judge of the United States Supreme Court and a master in chancery of New Jersey and attorney at law of New Jersey, being within the State or District or city for which he was appointed), or before any officer in the State or Territory, or District of Columbia, authorized at the time by the laws of that State, Territory, or District to take acknowledgments of deeds for lands lying there, provided in such case that the certificate of acknowledgment or proof shall be accompanied by a certificate under the great seal of the State, etc., or under the seal of some court of record of the county wherein it was made; that the officer before whom such proof or acknowledgment was made was at the time of taking the same authorized by the laws of such State, etc., to take acknowledgment and proof of deeds or conveyances for lands, tenements, or hereditaments in such State, etc. (Laws 1906, pp. 524, 528.) A notary public must have such a certificate, and need not affix his seal to an acknowledgment.

In foreign countries, before any public ambassador, minister, consul, vice-consul, consular agent, chargé d'affaires, or other representative of the United States for the time being at any foreign court or government, or before any court of law, notary public, or mayor or other chief magistrate of any city, borough, or corporation of the said foreign kingdom, state, nation, or colony in which the said party or witnesses happen to be, certified by said officers in the manner such acts are usually authenticated by them. It is not necessary that the United States consul should certify the official character of the officer (Laws 1898, p. 679), but the acknowledgment or proof made before a foreign court, notary public, or mayor or chief magistrate of a municipality must be accompanied by a certificate under the great seal of such foreign state, nation, or colony, or a court of record thereof, certifying the authority of such officer to take acknowledgments for conveyances of lands therein. (P.L. 1912, p. 429.)

In all cases the identity of the grantor must be established to the satisfaction of the officer. He must certify that he is satisfied, and that he made the contents known. See form below. The acknowledgment may be written or printed on the deed, or on a paper securely attached thereto.

During the war or within one year thereafter a person on the high seas or in a foreign state may have acknowledgments taken before a captain in the army or a lieutenant in the navy or higher commanding officers. (P.L. 1918, ch. 61.)

An examination of the wife separate from her husband was formally necessary except to assignments and release of mortgages (P.L. 1912, p. 158) and to certificates of incorporation. (P.L. 1912, p. 110.) It is not necessary now. (P.L. 1916, p. 321.) Practitioners will probably continue to use the forms as heretofore and as hereinafter contained using the now unnecessary "married women's clause" contained in the second paragraph of the form next given. Signature of wife must be acknowledged. It cannot be proved by subscribing witness. P.L. 1918, ch. 37, provides for the acknowledgment of a feme covert, and further, that an acknowledgment taken as prescribed is a bar to dower.

STATE OF }
COUNTY OF } ss.

Be it remembered that on this day of January, A.D. 19 before me, the subscriber (here insert name and title of officer), personally appeared John Doe and Mary B. Doe his wife, who I am satisfied are the grantors named in and who executed the within indenture, and, I having first made known to them the contents thereof, they did thereupon severally acknowledge that they signed, sealed, and delivered the same as their voluntary act and deed, for the uses and purposes therein expressed.

And the said Mary B. Doe, wife of the said John Doe, being by me privately examined separate and apart from her said husband, did further acknowledge that she signed, sealed, and delivered the same as her voluntary act and deed, freely without any fear, threats, or compulsion of or from her said husband. (This paragraph may now be omitted. P.L. 1916, p. 321.)

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal the day and year aforesaid.

[Seal.]

(Signature and title.)

Proof by Subscribing Witness. — For the purposes of recording there may be a proof by a subscribing witness instead of a certificate of acknowledgment. The proof must be made before an officer authorized to take acknowledgments (not affidavits). The following are the usual forms of proofs for individuals and corporations: —

STATE OF }
COUNTY OF } ss.

Be it remembered that on this day of January, A.D. 19 before me (here insert name and title of officer) personally appeared Charles Dutcher, who being by me duly sworn according to law, on his oath saith, that he saw John Doe, the within named grantor, sign, seal, and deliver the within indenture as his voluntary act and deed, and that he the said Charles Dutcher subscribed his name to the same, at the same time, as an attesting witness.

In witness whereof, etc.

(Signature and title.)

The deed of a corporation must be executed by an officer with express authority.

The attestation clause is as follows: "In witness whereof the said (the corporation) hath caused its corporate seal to be affixed and its president (or other executive officer) to sign his name to these presents the day and year first above written."

The proof must be made by the subscribing witness. It is best that this should be the secretary, and it should be some one familiar with the seal.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, }
COUNTY OF } ss.

Be it remembered that on the day of in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and before me, a master of the court of chancery of the State of New Jersey, personally appeared to me known, who being by me duly sworn according to law, on his oath doth depose and say: that he is (the secretary, or is acquainted with the seal) of the corporation, the grantors in the foregoing deed named; that the seal affixed to the said deed is the corporate seal of the said (corporation), that it was so affixed by order of the said (corporation); that is the (president or other executive officer) of the said (corporation); that he saw the said as such sign the said deed, and heard him declare that he signed, sealed, and delivered the same as the voluntary act and deed of the said by their order; and that this deponent signed his name thereto, at the same time, as a subscribing witness.

Subscribed and sworn before me, the day and year above written.

When acknowledgments for deeds are taken outside of the State they should have certificate of a court of record as follows: —

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said court the day of A.D. 19 .

(Signature and title.)

Actions. — Actions at law are commenced by writs of summons, capias ad respondendum, or warrant, attachment, and replevin. Suits in equity are begun by bill and in some cases by petition.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — An oath is usually taken as at common law by kissing the book of the gospels, but may be taken by laying the hand upon the book, or, if the deponent requests it, by the ceremony of lifting up the hand, swearing by the ever-living God. An oath required or authorized for any lawful purpose in this State (except official oaths and depositions required to be taken on notice), when taken out of this State may be taken before a notary public of the State or country where it is taken, or before any officer authorized by the laws of this State to take acknowledgments of deeds in such State or country. Affidavits in ex parte chancery proceedings should not be taken without the State before an attorney at law of New Jersey. If another officer is procurable it is generally better not to take affidavits before an attorney at law, although P.L. 1916, p. 89, now gives them liberal powers. The officer must recite in the jurat that he is such officer of that State or country, and annex his official designation to his signature, and affix his official seal. When any other certificate is required to be annexed to the certificate of such officer other than a notary public, for the recording of a deed acknowledged before him, a like certificate must be annexed to his certificate of the taking such oath. A foreign notary public must use seal. He needs no certificate.

Aliens — Whether resident or non-resident, may hold and transmit real estate. (Rev. p. 23.) No alien may be a private detective. (P.L. 1918, ch. 97.) Alien enemies are, during the war, subject to the provision and limitations of the federal laws and orders issued thereunder.

Appeals — May be taken within one year by petition of appeal from final decree in chancery, except from certain judgments affecting the possession of or title to lands, for which appeal must be taken within three months (P.L. 1914, ch. 86); from the decree of the chancellor to the court of errors and appeals; from the judgment of the circuit court to the supreme court, or court of errors and appeals; and from the judgments of the supreme court to the court of errors and appeals. An appeal from a decree or judgment must be taken within three months instead of one year, if a lis pendens has been filed, or on a bill to quiet title. In the case of an infant or lunatic the time is reckoned from the time of removal of the disability. From decrees nisi in divorce cases an appeal must be taken within six months. From any order or decree in chancery other than a final decree an appeal must be taken within forty days. A rehearing may be had in chancery, and motions for a new trial or in arrest of judgment made at law. An appeal lies from the judgment of a justice of the peace to the court of common pleas before the next term. The district courts may grant new trials on applications made within thirty days, and questions of law, including admission and rejection of evidence, may be reviewed in the supreme court on appeal within twenty days, P.L. 1915, p. 549, on giving security.

An appeal lies from the orphans' court to the prerogative court within thirty days from a decree respecting the probate of a will or right of administration or the fairness of an inventory, and within three months from any other order or decree. Proceedings of surrogates respecting probate of wills are subject to appeal to orphans' court within three months, or within six months if the appellant resides out of the State at the death of testator. Proceedings of surrogates in proving inventory or granting letters are subject to appeal to orphans' court within twenty days. All other proceedings of surrogate are subject to an appeal to the prerogative court within six months. Ch. 178 of Laws of 1909 gives an appeal from the court of chancery to the court of errors and appeals in a case of contempt where act of contempt is not committed in presence of court.

Ch. 231, P.L. 1912, provides the following: Bills of exception and writs of error in civil cases are abolished. In lieu of a writ of error an appeal may be taken in any case in which the appellant would heretofore have been entitled to that writ. Subject to rules, such appeal shall be in the nature of a rehearing upon any question of law involved in any ruling, order, or judgment below. An appeal is a step in the case, and is deemed to remove to the appellate court the entire record of the case and all orders, proceedings, and documents made, taken, or filed therein, whether or not they are actually included in the transcript of record sent to that court.

No judgment shall be reversed or new trial granted on the ground of the improper admission or exclusion of evidence, or error as to the method of pleading or procedure, unless, after examination of the whole case, it shall appear that the error injuriously affected the rights of a party.

Upon appeal or on application for a new trial the court in which the appeal or application shall be pending may, in its discretion, take additional evidence by affidavit or depositions or by reference. This procedure can be taken in certain cases in the act provided.

The same act also provides certain rules stating that appeals shall be taken by notice to be served and at least thirty days before the appeal is argued. The notice of appeal shall state the part of the judgment appealed from, and in lieu of an assignment of errors may state the grounds of appeal. No petition of appeal shall be used, and the ground of appeal, if not stated in said notice, shall be served and filed within thirty days from filing notice of appeal.

Arrests. — A capias ad respondendum shall not be issued in any action founded upon contract, except upon proof made upon oath or affirmation before a justice of the supreme court, or supreme court commissioner, of one of the following particulars in addition to the debt or demand: 1st. That the defendant is about to remove any of his property out of the jurisdiction of the court in which an action is about to be commenced, with intent to defraud his creditors. 2d. That the defendant has property or rights in action which he fraudulently conceals. 3d. That he has assigned, removed, or disposed of, or is about to assign, remove, or dispose of any of his property, with intent to defraud his creditors. 4th. That the defendant fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation respecting which suit is brought. (1903, p. 511.) Freehold security in double the amount of the debt sworn to is required for bail. A body execution in tort may not be issued from a district court or justice court on a judgment for conversion of goods lawfully acquired under a conditional sale. (1902, chs. 113, 114.) (As to arrests in justices' courts for two hundred dollars and under, see 1903, p. 254.)

Assignments — Insolvent Law. — Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors. — A general assignment made by a debtor of his entire estate, in trust to an assignee for the creditors of such debtor, must be for their equal benefit in proportion to their several demands, and all preferences of one creditor over another are deemed fraudulent and void, and render the assignment void. The assignment should be executed and proved or acknowledged in the same manner as deeds of real estate. The debtor must annex thereto an inventory under oath or affirmation of his estate, either real or personal, together with a list of his creditors and the amount of their respective claims according to the best of his knowledge. The assignee must record the assignment in the county where the debtor resides and give public notice by advertising for four weeks, making known that the assignment has been made, and that claims of creditors must be presented under oath or affirmation within three months or be barred of a dividend, and he must also mail a copy of the notice to every creditor within thirty days and file an inventory with the surrogate and give bond to the ordinary. At the end of the three months he must file a list of the creditors who have proved their claims. The time may be extended by the orphans' court.

Creditors who do not exhibit their claims within three months from the date of the assignment, or such other time as may be fixed by the court, are barred from a dividend, but upon petition and notice to creditors before final dividend, belated claims may be admitted.

The assignor is not discharged from his liability to creditors who may not choose to exhibit their claims either in regard to the person of the assignor, or to any estate real or personal, not assigned, but creditors who come in and exhibit their demands are wholly barred from having afterwards any action at law or equity against the assignor or his representatives, unless upon a trial the creditors shall prove fraud in the assignor with respect to the general assignment or concealing his estate, whether in possession, held in trust, or otherwise.

A mortgage, attachment, levy, or lien caused or permitted to be put upon property within two months of assignment with intent to give preference is void. (Laws 1899, p. 153.)

An assignment made under this statute is an act of bankruptcy, and the operation of the statute has been practically suspended since the enactment of the bankruptcy act of 1898.

The insolvent laws provided for the discharge of a person under arrest for debt or damages, on his delivering up to his creditors all his property, both real and personal. An assignee is appointed with ample title and powers. He acts under the direction of the court.

Attachment. — Non-resident or Absconding or Fraudulent Debtors. — Under the attachment act an attachment may be issued at the suit of any creditor, whether resident in the State or not, against the rights, credits, and property of non-resident debtors and of absconding debtors and of fraudulent debtors in certain cases.

If the debtor has absconded or is non-resident the writ will issue on affidavit by the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, that he verily believes "that the debtor absconds from his creditors, and is not to deponent's knowledge or belief resident in this State at the time," or "that the debtor is not to deponent's knowledge or belief resident in this State at this time," and that he owes to the plaintiff a debt, specifying as nearly as practicable the amount thereof, or has incurred a penalty under a statute, which penalty and statute must be specified. With respect to fraudulent debtors the provision is that an attachment may be issued upon the order of a judge or commissioner upon such proof of fraud as would warrant an order for a capias ad respondendum. See Arrests, supra. (Laws 1901, p. 158, and 1907, p. 273.)

Wages or other compensation for services due to a non-resident employee may not be attached at the suit of a non-resident creditor or his assigns, nor is the personal property of a non-resident, being in this State, liable to attachment at the suit of a non-resident creditor when said property is exempt from liability for debts by the law of the State of which the debtor and creditor are residents.

The claim of the plaintiff must, it is thought, be a debt and not unliquidated damages. Attachments may be issued against women, whether married or not, as well as men, and against corporations not created or recognized as corporations of this State, and against joint stock associations; but a foreign corporation which has duly appointed and filed with the secretary of state the name of a resident agent on whom process may be served is not subject to attachment (see Goldmark v. Magnolia Co. (N.J. Sup. Ct.) 65 N.J.L. 341); nor will an attachment be allowed in any case against a non-resident debtor if process or summons can be readily served upon him. (Ibid.)

An attachment may be issued against the estate of a deceased debtor if a writ might have been issued just before his death, and where a cause of action existed against a decedent which survives against his heirs or devisees, and that such heirs or devisees, or some of them, are unknown or non-resident, and that there is property in this State which is by law liable to answer such cause of action.

Other creditors than the original plaintiff, whether their debts are due or not, may be admitted under the attachment as applying creditors. The plaintiff is first paid his debts and costs. Applying creditors are paid pro rata. No bond is required of the plaintiff or of the applying creditors. Under the writ of attachment the property and estate of the defendant may be seised and sold and garnishee process issued against his debtors. Judgment by default may be entered after three months from the return of the writ. Real estate may not be sold until six months from the time of entering the writ in the clerk's office. The rents may be collected by the auditor.

An attachment may be dissolved by the debtor entering appearance and giving freehold security in double the amount of the claim; and the debtor may appear and defend without giving bond.

The practice act (Laws 1903, p. 537; 1907, p. 273), without repealing the attachment act, declares that suit may be begun by attachment against the property of any person or corporation or organization against whom a summons might issue upon proof before a judge or commissioner (1) of the facts which would entitle the plaintiff to an order for bail, i. e. fraud in the contracting of the debt or disposing of property and some cases of tort where the defendant is non-resident or absconds, or (2) that the plaintiff has cause of action the nature and particulars of which he shall specify and that the defendant absconds or is non-resident and that summons cannot be served; and (3) where a cause of action survives against heirs or devisees, some of whom are non-resident or unknown. Under this act the attachment is for the benefit of the plaintiff alone, and it extends to cases of tort and unliquidated damages.

A general assignment for the benefit of creditors will not affect a levy made under an attachment prior to such assignment.

Chattel Mortgages. — A chattel mortgage not accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by an actual and continued change of possession of the things mortgaged is absolutely void as against creditors and subsequent bona fide purchasers and mortgagees, unless said mortgage, duly acknowledged in the same manner as deeds of real estate, be recorded with the clerk or register, if any, of the county where the chattels are at the time of the execution thereof. (Revision of 1902, Laws 1902, p. 487.) The mortgage so recorded remains a lien until it is canceled of record. An affidavit or affirmation made and subscribed by the holder or holders of said mortgage, his, her, or their agent or attorney, stating the consideration of said mortgage and as nearly as possible the amount due and to grow due thereon, must be annexed to the mortgage.

There is no specified time within which they must be foreclosed. They may be foreclosed by advertising and selling the property, or by filing a bill in the court of chancery. Five days' notice in writing stating the amount due must be given before foreclosing a mortgage on household goods. (Laws 1895, ch. 256.) If the mortgage is duly filed there is no objection to the mortgagor remaining in possession.

A chattel mortgage or conditional sale of household goods, unless given for the purchase-money, must be signed by both husband and wife.

A chattel mortgage on a stock of merchandise does not cover after-acquired property without an express agreement that it shall; but such an agreement in the absence of fraud is valid in equity, and the mortgage will be held good against the property acquired. See Smithhurst v. Edmunds, 14 N.J. Eq. 408; Lister v. Simpson, 38 N.J. Eq. 438. Affidavit as to consideration must specify how debt arose, to be valid against prior creditors. (Wilkinson, Goddis & Company v. Bohlen, 97 Atl. 279.)

Under an act (P.L. 1910, ch. 269) no person can engage in business of loaning money and receiving as security pledges of personal property, chattel mortgages, or assignments of wages and salary without a license granted by the governing body of the municipal division, and such is subject to the regulations of said act.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — The orphans' court, or surrogate of the proper county, may order executors or administrators to give public notice to the creditors of the estate of the decedent to bring in their debts, demands, and claims against the same, under oath, within nine months from the date of said order. Such notice must be set up in five of the most public places in the county for two months, and also be advertised for the like space in one or more of the newspapers published in this State designated in said order. (Laws 1898, p. 738.)

All claims must be exhibited to the executor or administrator in writing, under oath, specifying the amount claimed and the particulars of the claim. There is no difference between residents and non-residents as to mode of proof. Non-resident may act as executor or administrator, but must give bond. (Laws 1898, p. 739.)

If any claim be disputed by executor or administrator, he must give written notice that he disputes the same to the creditor or claimant, or his attorney or agent, and, if such notice be given, said creditor must commence suit within three months after receiving such notice, or be barred. (Laws 1898, p. 740.) Persons neglecting to present their debts, demands, and claims before said order has expired are barred of their action against the executor or administrator, but legatees and distributees are required to give refunding bonds, and such creditors are entitled to be paid out of any property afterwards found unaccounted for, or out of any surplus remaining undistributed. (Laws 1898, p. 740.)

The physician's and nurse's bill during the last sickness, funeral expenses, and judgments recovered during the lifetime of the decedent are to be first paid and have preference. (P.L. 1916, p. 62.) Except for funeral expenses no action may be brought against the executors or administrators within six months from the death of the decedent, unless by special leave of the court. (Laws 1898, p. 738.) Debts due the United States are also preferred. (U.S. Rev. Stat. §§ 3466, 3467.) The operation of the statutes of limitations is suspended during this period of six months.

Administrators and executors are required to settle their accounts in the surrogate's office within one year from the date of their appointment, or at the first regular term of the orphans' court after the expiration of one year (Laws 1898, p. 757), and if they neglect to render an account within two years it is the duty of the surrogate to issue a citation to them to do so; but an executor or an administrator under a will, who is entitled to all the personal estate after payment of debts and special bequests, need not file an account, provided that within one year he files full receipts and discharges from the persons entitled to the specific bequests. (Laws 1898, pp. 757-759.)

In granting letters of administration the widow and next of kin are preferred. The next of kin are the persons entitled to distribution. See Descent and Distribution. In case of the death of a married woman intestate, the husband is entitled to administration.

(P.L. 1917, p. 531.) If injured party dies testate, his representatives bring action for his death; if intestate, an administrator ad prosequendum, appointed by the surrogate (P.L. 1917, p. 533), sues; but payment of the judgment is made directly to the general administrator.

Non-residents may take out letters of administration. On granting letters the surrogate must take of the administrator, whether resident or non-resident, a sufficient bond with two or more sureties to the ordinary of the State in such penalty as may be reasonable, regard being had to the value of the estate.

Executors of a domestic will are not required to give security except for special cause shown. As to foreign executors, see Wills.

The wearing apparel of any person who may die leaving a family residing in this State, and goods and chattels, money and effects, of the estate of such deceased to the value of two hundred dollars are reserved to the use of the family against all creditors and before any distribution or other disposition thereof. This is so whether the estate is insolvent or not. (Laws 1898, p. 736.)

An attachment may be issued against the estate of a deceased debtor in certain cases. See Attachments.

Claims, Proofs of. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — The New Jersey supreme court in Lauter and Company v. O'Toole, 77 N.J.L. 29, decided that the provisions of the Conditional Sales Act of 1889 (P.L. 1889, p. 421), touching rights of purchasers in good faith, were not altered by § 71 of an "Act Respecting Conveyances" (P.L. 1898, p. 699), and that such Conditional Sales Act was not repealed by the "Act to repeal sundry acts respecting conveyances" (P.L. 1898, p. 711), as in neither case was such object expressed in the title of the act. The Conditional Sales Act (P.L. 1889, p. 421), as amended (P.L. 1895, p. 302), provides, that in every contract for the conditional sale of goods and chattels, accompanied by an actual delivery and followed by an actual and continued change of possession of the things contracted to be sold, all conditions and reservations providing that the ownership of such goods and chattels is to remain in the vendor, or any person other than the one contracting to buy, until the goods and chattels are paid for, or until the occurring of any future event or contingency, shall be absolutely void as against the judgment creditors of the persons so contracting to buy the same, and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees thereof in good faith, unless the contract for sale with the conditions and reservations be recorded in the clerk's office of the county wherein the person contracting to buy, if a resident of the State, shall reside at the time of the execution thereof, and if not a resident of the State, then in the clerk's office of the county where the property conditionally bought shall be at the time of the execution of such instrument, provided that in counties where the office of register of deeds exists, the contract should be recorded there.

Contracts for conditional sales of goods and chattels cannot be recorded unless acknowledged or proved. Contracts so recorded shall be valid as against the creditors of the person contracting to buy and against subsequent purchasers and mortgagees, from the time of recording thereof until the record be canceled as provided for the cancellation of real estate mortgages.

Sales in bulk of the whole or a large part of the stock of merchandise and fixtures, or merchandise or fixtures, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade are void against creditors of seller unless list of creditors of seller be obtained and notice personally or by registered letter be given at least five days before the consummation of the sale to each of the said creditors by the purchaser. (Laws 1915, ch. 208.) No proceedings to invalidate sales can be brought after the expiration of ninety days from the consummation thereof.

Consignments. — By an act approved May 19, 1890 (Laws 1890, ch. 207), it is provided that if any person shall sell, pledge, pawn, or secrete any property which he has borrowed, hired, leased, or purchased under an agreement in writing, where the title of said property is not to pass until the agreement is fulfilled, he or she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not more than three hundred dollars or imprisonment not to exceed one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Corporations. — By an amendment to the Constitution adopted in 1875 corporations are created only under general laws. The latest revision of the general corporation act was made in 1896. (Laws 1896, ch. 185.)

Formation. — Three or more persons may become a corporation for any lawful purpose or purposes whatever other than a savings bank, a building and loan association, insurance, surety, railroad, telegraph, telephone, turnpike company, or company needing to possess the power to condemn lands, or banking trust and safe deposit companies, by executing, recording, and filing a certificate setting forth, 1, the name of the corporation; 2, the location (town or city, street and number, if number there be) of its principal office in this State; 3, the object or objects for which the corporation is formed; 4, the amount of the authorized capital stock (not less than two thousand dollars), the number of shares into which it is divided and the par value of each, the amount of capital stock with which it will commence business (not less than one thousand dollars), and if there be more than one class of stock, a description of the different classes with the terms on which they are created; 5, the names and post-office address of the incorporators and the number of shares subscribed for by each (the aggregate of these is the amount of capital stock with which the company will commence business); 6, the period, if any, limited for the duration of the company; 7, the certificate may also contain provisions for regulating the business of the company, or defining the powers of the company, its directors and stockholders, or providing for cumulative voting. (Laws 1900, ch. 172.) The certificate must be duly proved or acknowledged as required for deeds of real estate and must be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county where its principal place of business in this State is located, and afterwards filed with the secretary of state.

Powers. — Every corporation as such shall be deemed to have power: 1, to have succession by its corporate name; 2, to sue and be sued; 3, to make and use a common seal and alter the same at pleasure; 4, to hold, purchase, or convey such real and personal estate as may be necessary for the purposes of its business, not exceeding the amount limited in its charter, and also to hold such property as may have been acquired under mortgages or judgments for bona fide debts; 5, P.L. 1917, p. 568, a corporation may now purchase stock of another corporation as is "necessary and desirable" but it cannot do this to the extent of substantially lessening competition or creating a monopoly (see also P.L. 1913, p. 32); 6, to appoint requisite officers and agents; 7, to make by-laws; 8, to wind up or dissolve itself, or to be wound up or dissolved according to law.

Any corporation of this State may conduct business in other States or in foreign countries, and have one or more officers out of this State, and may hold, purchase, mortgage, and convey real and personal property out of this State, provided such powers are included in the objects set forth in its certificate and incorporation.

Every domestic or foreign corporation doing business in New Jersey must maintain a principal office in the State so that the agent in charge may be served. (P.L. 1916, p. 507.)

The laws of New Jersey are specific against "trusts" (P.L. 1913, p. 25) and discrimination in trade (P.L. 1913, p. 29; also P.L. 1917, p. 565). There are also prohibitions against issue of stock except for actual value requiring filing of a statement of the property purchased for stock and its value (P.L. 1913, p. 28) and corporations for fraudulent purposes. (P.L. 1913, p. 29.) The board of public utility commissioners still approve corporate mergers. (P.L. 1903, p. 33.) Corporations of New Jersey or of New Jersey and other States may merge under the provisions of P.L. 1918, ch. 27.

Directors and Officers. — The business of every corporation shall be managed by its directors, who shall be shareholders. There must be at least three directors chosen annually by the stockholders, and it is customary for one to be a resident of this State; but any company, by so providing in its original certificate of incorporation, may classify its directors so as to elect their several classes for different terms, not more than five years nor less than one, the terms of at least one class expiring each year. By so providing in the certificate of incorporation one class of stock may elect directors to the exclusion of others. (P.L. 1915, p. 362.) Directors' meetings may be held outside of the State if the certificate of by-laws so provide.

Every corporation shall have a president, secretary, and treasurer, who shall be chosen either by the directors or stockholders, as directed by the by-laws, and shall hold their offices until others are chosen and qualified. The president must be a director. The secretary shall be sworn to the faithful discharge of his duty and the treasurer shall give bond in such sum and with such surety as required by the by-laws.

Stock and Stockholders. — Every stockholder shall have a certificate signed by the president or a vice-president and either the treasurer or assistant treasurer or the secretary or an assistant secretary, certifying to the number of shares owned in corporation. P.L. 1916, p. 398, stock can be transferred only by indorsement and delivery or delivery and deed of assignment even when the articles of incorporation are to the contrary. (Uniform Stock Transfer Act.) Shares are assessable until fully paid and may be sold for failure of owner to pay assessments. Stockholders are liable for debts to the amount of their unpaid subscriptions.

Corporations may purchase property necessary for the business of the corporation or the stock of any company and issue stock to the amount of the value thereof in payment therefor and such stock is considered full paid stock when properly issued under restrictions mentioned before. (Rev. of 1896, § 49.) After the payment of each installment of the total amount of the capital stock authorized, there shall be filed within ten days with the department of state a certificate of the amount of the capital so authorized and paid in, stating whether paid in cash or by the purchase of property, which certificate shall be signed and sworn to by the president and treasurer and a certificate of purchase of property for stock shall be filed.

Corporations are not permitted to deal in securities of other corporations except certain investments in non-competing corporations and purchases for investment but not for vote. (P.L. 1915, p. 180.)

A corporation may change the nature of its business, change its name, increase its capital stock, decrease its capital stock, change the par value of its shares of capital stock, extend its corporate existence, create one or more classes of preferred stock and make any other lawful amendment or change, by resolution of the directors declaring the advisability of said change and calling a meeting of stockholders to take action thereon, and by the vote of two thirds of each class of stockholders. A certificate setting forth the change shall be filed, with the written consent of two thirds of each class of stockholders annexed, with the secretary of state. Stockholders' meetings must be held in this State at the principal office where the books are kept. A majority in interest is a quorum unless it is otherwise provided in the certificate of incorporation or in by-laws made by the stockholders. (Laws 1902, ch. 52.) Stockholders may vote by proxy.

Associations not for pecuniary profit may change objects. P.L. 1918, ch.

Books. — Every corporation shall keep, at its registered office in this State, transfer books and stock books. Other books may be kept outside of the State subject to be brought in this State upon the order of a court. There must be prepared ten days before election an alphabetical list of stockholders, showing number of shares held by each, which during business hours shall be open for examination to any stockholder.

Reports. — Every domestic corporation and every foreign corporation doing business within this State must file in the office of the Secretary of State, within thirty days after the first election of directors and officers, and annually thereafter within thirty days after the time appointed for holding the annual election of directors, a report authenticated by the signatures of the president and one other officer, or by any two directors of the company, stating 1, the name of the corporation; 2, the location (town or city, street and number, if number there be) of its registered office in this State and the name of the agent upon whom process against the corporation may be served; 3, the character of its business; 4, the amount of its authorized capital stock, if any, and the amount actually issued and outstanding; 5, the names and addresses of all the directors and officers of the company and when the term of office of each expires; 6, the date appointed for the next annual meeting of the stockholders for the election of directors; 7, whether the name of such corporation has been at all times displayed at the entrance of its registered office in this State, and whether such corporation has kept at this registered office in this State a transfer book in which the transfers of stock are made, and a stock book containing the names and addresses of the stockholders and the number of shares held by them respectively, open at all times to the examination of the stockholders as required by law, but this does not apply to foreign corporations nor to any railroad or canal corporation, nor to such corporations as are now by law under the supervision of the department of banking and insurance. For failure to file said report the corporation shall forfeit two hundred dollars to the State. Officers or directors who willfully neglect or refuse to file such report cannot be elected or appointed to any office during the ensuing year. (P.L. 1900, p. 313.) It is a misdemeanor to knowingly make a false report. (P.L. 1912, p. 435.) It must also file reports of property purchased with stock. (P.L. 1913, p. 28.) It must also file reports of its change of office or agent. (P.L. 1916, p. 507.)

Every certificate filed by a corporation in the office of the secretary of state must set forth the location (town or city, street and number, if number there be) of its principal office in this State, and the name of the agent therein and in charge thereof, and upon whom process against the corporation may be served. This office may be given as the address of any incorporator, stockholder, director, or officer whose address is required to be given.

Fees and Taxes. — Upon filing a certificate with the secretary of state there must be paid for the use of the State twenty cents for each thousand dollars of the total amount of capital stock authorized, but in no case less than twenty-five dollars. Upon an increase of capital stock twenty cents for each one thousand dollars of the authorized increase, but in no case less than twenty dollars; consolidation and merger same for capital authorized beyond authorized capital of consolidated companies; for extension or renewal of corporate existence, same as for original certificate; for dissolution of corporation, change of name, change of nature of business, amended certificate of organisation, decrease of capital stock, increase or decrease of par value or number of shares, twenty dollars; for changing location of office, five dollars; filing list of officers, one dollar; issuing certificate to foreign corporation to transact business, ten dollars; for other certificates not above provided for, five dollars.

For Purposes of Taxation. — Corporations of this State are regarded as inhabitants of the taxing district where their principal office is located, and their real and personal property is taxed the same as that of individuals.

Foreign corporations regularly doing business here are taxed in respect to the business so done and assessed for the capital usually employed here. (P.L. 1918, ch. 236.)

A state tax provides for an annual tax by way of license upon certain corporations. Telegraph, telephone, cable, electric light companies, express, gas, palace-car and sleeping-car companies, oil or pipe line companies, and insurance companies pay a certain percentage on their gross income. See P.L. 1918, ch. 148, as to taxation of railway, traction, gas, electric light, heat and power corporations using streets or highways. Corporations using public streets and highways (except municipal, railroad, and canal) are taxed as in act amended P.L. 1918, ch. 240. All other companies incorporated under the laws of this State pay a license fee of one tenth of one per cent. of the amount of the capital stock on all amounts issued and outstanding up to and including three million dollars; on all sums over three million, and not exceeding five million, one twentieth of one per cent., and the further sum of fifty dollars per million or any part thereof on all amounts in excess of five million dollars. The act does not apply to railway, canal, or banking corporations, or savings banks, cemeteries, or religious corporations, or purely charitable or educational associations, or manufacturing or mining companies at least fifty per cent. of whose capital stock issued and outstanding is invested in mining or manufacturing carried on in this State which shall have stated in their annual return to the state board of assessors where their mine or manufacturing establishment is located, the character of the ores mined and goods manufactured, the total amount of the capital stock and the amount actually employed in New Jersey in carrying on such mining or manufacturing business. (Laws 1906, p. 31.) Such companies having less than fifty per cent. so invested are entitled to a deduction from the capital stock of the assessed value of the property so used. (Laws 1891, ch. 93.) A statement dated January 1 must be filed with the state board of assessors at Trenton before the first Tuesday in May. Blanks are furnished.

Foreign corporations other than municipal, may purchase and convey, hold and use for the purpose of their business such real estate in this State as may be devised or conveyed to them. (Laws 1903, p. 41.) Foreign land companies may carry on business in this State. Foreign banking, savings, trust, guarantee, safe deposit, indemnity, mortgage, investment, loan, and building corporations or associations are required to file a copy of the certificate of organization with the secretary of state, to make annual reports, to deposit the securities required by the banking commissioners and if by the report it appears that the company has a well-invested and unimpaired capital stock of one hundred thousand dollars, it may be admitted to do business upon obtaining a certificate of the banking commissioners, which is only to be issued upon compliance with all the terms of the statute. Blank forms are furnished by the secretary of state. Process against such corporations may be served on the secretary of state. No foreign banking, savings, trust, or safe deposit corporation shall transact any business in this State except to the extent that similar corporations of New Jersey are permitted to transact business in the foreign state or country. (Laws 1907, p. 68.) A foreign corporation other than banking, insurance, and railroad corporations may not do business in this State until it has filed in the department of state a copy of its charter or certificate attested by its president and its secretary under its corporate seal, and also a statement by the same officers, also under the seal, setting forth the amount of capital stock authorized, the amount issued, the nature of the business, and the name of a citizen or corporation of this State as its agent on whom process may be served. The agent must have an office in this State, and if he dies or removes another must be appointed. If by the laws of the State where the company is incorporated a statement must be filed by New Jersey corporations, a similar statement must be filed by the company in this State before doing business here. (Laws 1904, p. 384.) No such corporation may bring an action on a contract made in this State until it has obtained a certificate from the secretary of state that it has complied with this law.

Transfers of property made by a corporation in contemplation of insolvency are void as against creditors, except bona fide purchasers for value without notice, before the company has actually suspended its ordinary business.

There are especial requirements for banking, railroad, and other public service companies, and too much care cannot be exercised in consulting the law with reference to the particular character of company.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for New Jersey.

Deeds. — The common law forms of general and special warranty, bargain and sale, and quitclaim are usually used. A short form is provided by Laws 1899, p. 531; 1902, p. 688. Deeds must be under seal. A scroll is now sufficient. See Laws 1875, p. 56; 1880, p. 154; 1888, ch. 199. If the attestation clause and the acknowledgment recite that the deed is sealed, it will have the effect of a sealed instrument, even though there be no seal. (Laws, 1904, p. 203.) One witness is usual, but not necessary. The word "heirs" is not necessary to convey the fee. (P.L. 1912, p. 522.) And the word "heirs" is omitted from the short form in the act of 1899, and the tendency is to construe the grantor as conveying all his estate unless the contrary intention is expressed. Husband and wife should join in a conveyance of the estate or right of dower of the wife. But see Dower and Married Women. Husband should join in deed of wife's land. Leases for more than ten years must be acknowledged or proved and recorded in the same manner as deeds. For acknowledgments and forms thereof, see Acknowledgments. Respecting recording see P.L. 1914, ch. 164.

Depositions of Absent Witnesses or Parties — May be taken by commission on written interrogatories or de bene esse by oral questions upon notice. (Act concerning evidence (Revision of 1900), Laws 1900, p. 373 et seq.; 1902, p. 459; P.L. 1913, p. 105; P.L. 1915, p. 141.)

Depositions by Commission. — The commissioners must first take and sign the oath of office that they will "faithfully, fairly, and impartially execute the commission," a form of which is printed on the back of the commission. Any one duly authorized to administer oaths where the commissioner resides may administer this oath, and should sign the jurat. If an affirmation, it should be stated that the deponent is conscientiously scrupulous of taking an oath. The form of oath must also state the official title of the officer administering it, and that he is lawfully authorized thereto.

When the examination is completed and reduced to writing, it is to be annexed as a schedule to the commission and interrogatories. The form of return printed on the commission is then to be filled up, signed, and sealed by the commissioners. The seals must be wax or wafer.

The schedule containing the examination must show that the commissioners were duly sworn in the form prescribed; that the officer administering such oath was lawfully authorized thereto in the place where the commission is executed; the time and place of examination; that each witness was sworn or affirmed by the commissioners; and, if affirmed, that he "declared himself conscientiously scrupulous of taking an oath." The examination of each witness is to be signed by him, and a proper jurat added and signed by the commissioners. If exhibits are produced and proved before the commissioners, they are to mark them with letters or numbers, and indorse upon them a short certificate of their being so produced and proved. The commissioners are then to annex the schedule and the several exhibits to the commission and interrogatories, fold the whole up together, and inclose them in an envelope; then seal the envelope on the outside with their respective seals, writing each his name across or opposite his seal; then on the back of the package address the same to the chancellor or judges of the court out of which the commission issued, at the place of holding such court. Next add, also on the outside of the package, a certificate, signed by the commissioners, that at such a time and place they deposited the package in such a post-office, or delivered the same to such a person (who may be either the party in the commission or his attorney or agent).

There is no provision for taking the testimony by a stenographer when it is taken under a formal commission. But see Depositions de bene esse.

Depositions de bene esse. — Depositions of witnesses or parties who reside out of New Jersey may be taken de bene esse in any civil cause pending in any court of New Jersey before any judge of a supreme, circuit, or district court, or court of common pleas, commissioner of deeds of New Jersey resident in the State where such witness is, or commissioner appointed by the court in which such suit is pending, or any judge thereof, or before a master in chancery of this State. Such testimony is to be taken on oath or affirmation previously administered, and upon interrogatories then and there put by the parties or either of them, or by any person authorized on their behalf, and such interrogatories and answers reduced to writing by the officer taking such testimony or taken stenographically by him or in his presence, and subscribed by the deponent in the presence of the officer. In case the testimony is taken by a stenographer other than the officer, he must before taking the same be sworn by the officer before whom the testimony is taken "to carefully, faithfully, and impartially take such evidence and to make a true and correct transcript thereof, which oath shall be in writing and shall be attached to and be a part of the return of such officer." The proper certificate of his authority should be attached. See Affidavits.

The testimony must be certified, sealed up, indorsed, directed, and forwarded in the same manner as heretofore directed in cases of commissions. (Rev. p. 383.)

Any documentary evidence exhibited need not be annexed to and returned with the commission or depositions, but may, if so requested by the party offering it, be marked as an exhibit in the cause, and returned to such party. (Rev. p. 385; Laws 1900, p. 377.)

STATE OF }

Be it remembered that on this day of in the year at before me, C. D. (style of office), resident in said State appeared I. K. and L. M., produced before me as witnesses in a suit now pending in the (supreme or other) court of the State of New Jersey, wherein E. F. is plaintiff and G. H. is defendant.

And I, having first taken an oath fairly and impartially to take the depositions of witnesses in said cause before A. B. (style of office), who is lawfully authorized to administer oaths in this State and county, proceeded pursuant to the notice, a copy whereof is hereto annexed, to take the testimony of said witnesses hereinafter named, upon interrogatories put by O. P. Esq., who appeared on behalf of the plaintiff, and R. S. Esq., who appeared on behalf of the defendant (or as the case may be), and reduced such interrogatories and the answers thereto to writing, and caused each witness to subscribe his deposition in my presence as follows. (Signed) C. D. (official designation.)

I. K., a witness produced on the part of the plaintiff (or defendant), being by me first duly sworn according to law, doth depose and say (or alleging himself conscientiously scrupulous of taking an oath, doth solemnly, sincerely, and truly declare and affirm) as follows. Interrogatories and answers on part of plaintiff.

Adjournments should be noted, and each deposition subscribed by the officer taking the same as well as by the witness.

When the deposition is taken before an officer having an official seal, he should affix the same to his jurats and certificates. If the testimony is taken before a commissioner appointed by a special order, a certified copy of the order should be annexed to his return.

A subpoena may be obtained in New Jersey, on application to a judge of the supreme court, to compel the attendance of a witness before a commissioner or other person who is to take testimony, on commission or on notice, to be used in another State, either in a state or federal court. (P.L. 1914, ch. 98.)

The party requiring such examination or deposition shall in the first instance be at the sole expense thereof, and said expense may be made a part of the taxed bill of costs of the prevailing party if so ordered by the court. (P.L. 1908, p. 277.) P.L. 1913, p. 105, provides for an elective examination de bene esse of a party to an action in which case his evidence concerning transaction with other parties may be read notwithstanding the death of the latter before conclusion of suit. P.L. 1913, p. 102, provides that depositions of non-resident witnesses to a will may be taken before certain officers including a notary public. P.L. 1914, ch. 96, provides that after issue and before trial a party to a suit may examine an adverse party before certain officers.

Descent and Distribution of Property. — Descent of Real Estate. — Real estate descends to (1) children, and if any child be dead, his issue per stirpes to the remotest degree; (2) brothers and sisters of the whole blood and the issue of any of them as above; (3) father and mother by the entirety (P.L. 1918, ch. 270) in fee simple. If the mother shall not survive then (4) father in fee except that the inheritance which came to the person seized from the part of either parent shall not go to the other parent, but as though decedent had survived other parent; (5) to mother in fee, except as aforesaid (P.L. 1918, ch. 270); (6) brothers and sisters of the half blood or their issue as above, but if the land came by descent, devise, or gift, those who are not of the blood of the ancestor cannot inherit; (7) all persons of equal degree of consanguinity, whether of the whole or the half blood (Laws 1905, ch. 195), to the person dying seized, however remote the common degree may be. They share as tenants in common. Those of the blood of the ancestor from whom the land may have come are preferred. This seventh class does not include lineal ascendants. The effect of P.L. 1917, p. 844, is to reestablish dower and curtesy. The husband has no estate by curtesy initiate during the extends act to cover salaries of state officers. (Russell v. Mechanics Realty Co., 96 Atl. Rep. 657.) The Act of 1915 applies to previously acquired judgments.

Bank-notes, bills, or other evidences of debt circulated as money, or any share or interest in any bank, insurance company, or other joint-stock company, incorporated under authority of this State or of the United States, may be taken and sold in execution. Money may be levied on and collected without sale. See Stay of Execution; Redemption.

Exemption. — All goods and chattels, not exceeding in value the sum of two hundred dollars exclusive of wearing apparel, and all wearing apparel the property of any debtor having a family residing in this State, are exempt from seizure by virtue of execution or other civil process, except for the purchase-money. (Gen. Statutes, p. 1421.) In addition thereto, by conforming to the provisions of the homestead exemption act, the lot and buildings thereon occupied as a residence and owned by the debtor, being a householder and having a family, to the value of one thousand dollars, may be exempted from sale or execution for debt. (Gen. Statutes, pp. 2297, 2298.)

Garnishment. — See Attachment; Executions.

Inheritance Taxes. — By P. L. 1909, ch. 228, a tax is imposed upon the transfer of any property, real or personal, of the value of five hundred dollars or over, or of any interest therein, or income therefrom, in trust or otherwise, to persons or corporations in the following cases: (1) When transfer is by will or intestate law of the State, from any person dying, seized or possessed while a resident of this State; (2) when the transfer is by will or intestate law of real or personal property within this State, or of shares of corporations of this State, or of national banks located in this State, and decedent was a non-resident of this State; (3) when the transfer is by a resident or is of property in this State, or of shares of corporations of this State, or of national bank stock when bank is located in this State, by a non-resident made in contemplation of death or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after such death; (4) when any person or corporation comes into possession by a transfer from a resident or non-resident (when property is located in this State) of an estate in expectancy, or of property transferred pursuant to a power of appointment contained in any instrument taking effect after January of Act P.L. 1909, ch. 228.

Executors, administrators, donees, trustees, etc., are personally liable until tax is paid. Certain religious and charitable institutions organized under the laws of this State or operating solely within this State are exempt. Also exempt is property to the amount of five thousand dollars passing to father, mother, husband, wife, child, or lawful lineal descendant, brother or sister, or the wife of a son, or the husband of a daughter.

Bonds and mortgages securing them upon real estate located in the State of New Jersey, and which were actually physically present within New Jersey at the time of the owner's death, are property within the State of New Jersey within the meaning of P.L. 1909, p. 325, and are taxable thereunder even though taxed under a like statute in State where decedent owner resided. (Hopper v. Edwards, 96 Atl. Rep. 667.)

The taxes are somewhat complicated. They are generally five per cent of the clear market value. When transferred to relatives, before enumerated, the scale is sliding. It is payable to the state treasurer. Inquiry should be made in any given case of Newton A. K. Bugbee, comptroller of the treasury, State House, Trenton, New Jersey. Blanks will be furnished for filling out in any given case. The statute, which was effective July 4, 1909, was amended by ch. 151, P.L. 1914, and supplemented by chs. 58 and 59, P.L. 1914. See also ch. 57, P.L. 1914. (Maxwell v. Edwards, 99 Atl. 138.) Calculations of the value of life estates and future estates are made. There are issued waivers in proper cases, and when the act has been complied with for the payment of bank accounts and the transfer of stock. The comptroller should be furnished with full information, including copy of the will or other instrument, and the affidavits of the value of stock and property, — the amount of the estate, — age of life tenants, and all other data which would naturally enter into the assessment of a tax of this character.

Insolvent Laws. — See Assignments.

Interest. — Legal interest on debts and judgments is six per cent. (Gen. Statutes, p. 3704.) Usury is punishable by forfeiture of all interest and costs. (Gen. Statutes, p. 3703.) Interest on an open account accrues on each item from its date, as at common law. The rate of interest was changed from seven to six per cent. July 4, 1878. Interest proper for money lent or forborne before July 4, 1878, continues to run as seven per cent.; but interest by way of damages for tort or breach of contract or not paying for goods bought, etc., "changes as the statutory rate changes, during the accrual of the damages." (See Wilson's Ex'rs v. Cobb's Ex'rs, 4 Stew. 91; and Jersey City v. O'Callaghan, 12 Vroom, 349.) Corporations may not plead usury in any action begun since April 3, 1902.

Judgments. — See Limitations. A judgment is a lien on lands from the time of the actual entry thereof in the minutes of the court, and remains a lien for the period of limitation. Two judgments entered on the same day would be concurrent, but quære whether this rule is changed by the act of 1904, ch. 117, requiring the clerk to record the hour and minute of entering judgment? Where there are several judgments, that under which there is a prior levy takes the priority, though subsequent in date. Foreign judgments are proved according to the laws of the United States.

If there is no defense, a judgment in a justice's court may be obtained five days after service of process. In the higher courts, judgment may be obtained in ten days after personal service of summons and declaration if no affidavit of merits be filed, and in twenty days after service at the residence if no plea be filed. Personal service may be made upon an officer, director, or authorized agent of a corporation. (Laws 1906, p. 677.)

A judgment in the circuit court is a lien on land of defendant in the same county, and may be docketed in the supreme court. A judgment recovered or docketed in the supreme court is a lien on all lands of defendant in the State.

Personal property of the defendant in any part of the State may be sold under a circuit court judgment by docketing the judgment in the supreme court and issuing execution out of that court to the county where the property is. Judgments in a district court may be docketed in common pleas. (P.L. 1914, ch. 115.)

Under Workmen's Compensation Act 1911 (supplement P.L. 1915, p. 364), judgment entered in common pleas may be docketed in supreme court and execution and supplementary proceedings issued; if order for compensation is not complied with the whole sum becomes due.

License. — No license is required of commercial travelers.

It is necessary for all persons intending to be married within the State to obtain first a marriage license from the registrar of vital statistics, if one, and, if not, then from clerk of municipality. (P.L. 1910, ch. 274.) Soldiers and sailors may be married by army and navy chaplains without license under P.L. 1918, ch. 182. This is during the war only.

Certain professional students must have a required academic training.

Municipalities may prohibit the sale of liquor (P.L. 1918, ch. 2) or regulate the same (P.L. 1918, ch. 3).

Liens. — See Mechanic's Lien; Judgments.

Limitations. (Gen. Statutes, p. 1972.) — "All actions of trespass quare clausum fregit, all actions of trespass, detinue, trover, and replevin for taking away goods and chattels, and actions of debt not founded on specialty, and all actions of account and on the case, except actions for slander," shall be commenced and sued within six years. Actions for slander, within two years, and "all actions for injuries to persons caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default" of any person or corporation within this State, within two years. Trespass for assault, battery, or imprisonment, within four years. Actions against surety on bond of sheriff or of city, county, or township collector, within nine years from date of bond; on bond of constable, four years. Action for rent on lease under seal, on specialty for the payment of money only, or on award under seal, within sixteen years. Judgments twenty years, except judgments on forfeited recognizances, on which the limitation is ten years. (Laws 1886, ch. 18, 196.) In all these cases the statute is suspended during the non-residence of defendant, unless plaintiff also is a non-resident and the cause of action accrued out of the State. (1 Zab. 714-751; 2 Vroom, 171.) Recognizances are void after six years. (Laws 1885, ch. 18.) Metlar v. Williams, 97 Atl. Rep. 961, statute of limitations does not run on the claim of one sponsor against the other during the continuance of the marital state. Debts may be revived by a new promise, which must be in writing, or by part payment.

The right of entry into lands is barred by lapse of twenty years. The time during which the person entitled to any of the above rights of action, etc. (except on sheriffs' or constables' bonds), may be under twenty-one, or insane, is not computed as part of the period of limitation. Attachments not proceeded on cease to bind property after twenty years. (P.L. 1901, p. 172.) See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Actions against railway companies for personal injuries must be brought within two years; such actions for damage by fire, within one year. Actions by personal representatives for injuries causing death must be brought within twenty-four calendar months. Certain notices of injury are required from employees.

Married Women. — The real and personal property of a married woman which she shall own at the time of her marriage, or shall receive by gift, grant, descent, devise, or bequest, and the rents, issues, and profits thereof, shall not be subject to the disposal of her husband, nor be liable for his debts, but shall continue her sole and separate property as if she were a single female.

Wife may insure her husband's life.

A married woman has the right to bind herself by contract in the same manner and to the same extent as though she were unmarried, and her contracts may be enforced by or against her at law or in equity, in her own name, apart from her husband; but she cannot become an accommodation indorser, guarantor, or surety, nor is she liable on any promise to answer for the debt, default, or liability of any other person. She cannot convey or incumber real estate without her husband, either in person or by power of attorney, unless she is living in a state of separation from her husband under a decree in chancery. She may convey and release certain interests in certain lands when living in state of separation without decree, if no children. If her husband is a lunatic or under other mental incapacity, the court of chancery may order conveyance or mortgage. If her husband neglects or refuses to support her, or they have been living separate more than seven years, or the husband shall have been a fugitive from justice for three years, during which time the wife shall have lived in a state of separation, she may convey by order of the court of chancery. (See Gen. Statutes, p. 2012. Laws 1896, ch. 83; 1903, ch. 224; 1910, ch. 197.) A woman's paraphernalia is her sole property. Dower and curtesy exist. For acknowledgment see P.L. 1918, ch. 37.

A married woman having title to or power to sell lands as an executrix, administratrix, trustee or guardian, may make a valid deed without joining her husband. (Laws 1904, p. 42.)

A wife's separate property is not liable for debts contracted for the support of herself or her children by her as her husband's agent. Her separate property is not liable for the expenses of the family if the contract is made by her husband, or by her on his behalf; but it is liable on such a contract made by her in her own name. She may sue without her husband for all breaches of contract and for the recovery of all debts, wages, earnings, money, and all property, real or personal, which by the statute is declared to be her separate property, and for all damage done thereto, and she has in her own name the same remedies for the recovery and protection of such property as if she were an unmarried woman. (Gen. Statutes, p. 2014.) A married woman may maintain an action in her own name without joining her husband therein for all torts committed against her or her separate property. (Ch. 138, P.L. 1909.) And by P.L. 1912, p. 416, she may sue or be sued without joining her husband in any case in which he will be an unnecessary party if not her husband. Women become of age at twenty-one. A wife's mortgage executed to secure the husband's debt is good and may be foreclosed. (Colonial v. Griffin, 96 Atl. Rep. 901.) See, also, Dower; Wills.

Mechanic's Lien. — Every building erected or built within this State is liable for the payment of any debt contracted and owing to any person for labor performed or materials furnished for the erection and construction or the alteration thereof, which debt shall be a lien on such building, and the land whereon it stands, including the lot or curtilage, provided a claim is filed as stated below. Additions to buildings and fixtures for manufacturing purposes are considered as buildings. There is a lien for repairs, also for alterations. Lien extends (P.L. 1915, p. 641) to docks, wharves, and piers on navigable rivers. When a building is erected by contract, the contractor only has a lien, provided that the contract with the specifications or a copy thereof be filed in the office of the county clerk. If in such a case a laborer, journeyman, sub-contractor (Laws 1905, p. 311), or material-man be not paid, after demand upon the contractor, he may give notice in writing to the owner (if material-man, who furnished materials to sub-contractor, he gives notice to owner and master contractor; P. L. 1917, p. 821), who may hold the amount due, and if after notice to the contractor the owner is satisfied of the justice of the claim he may pay it, and will be entitled to an allowance for it in the settlement of accounts between him and the contractor. If the contractor disputes the claim he must notify the laborer or material-man within five days, and request him to establish his claim by judgment, and he must begin suit within sixty days. (Laws 1899, p. 348.) In order to establish the lien it is necessary to file a claim in the office of the county clerk, and also issue a summons and complaint (P.L. 1912, p. 470) in a suit to enforce the lien within four months from the date of the last work done or materials furnished for which such debt is due. (Laws 1896, ch. 140; 1910, ch. 135.) The issuing of the summons must be indorsed on the lien claim "within four months from such last date," and the suit must be prosecuted diligently within one year from the date of issuing the summons and complaint. Mortgages for advances registered before the filing of the lien have priority to the extent of the money actually advanced and applied to the erection of any new building, or to alterations or repair of, or additions upon, old buildings on the premises. Mortgagees or judgment creditors who are affected by the lien must be made defendants in the suit brought to enforce it.

A lien may be filed against the moneys due for a public improvement contracted for by any city, town, township or other municipality. (P.L. 1918, ch. 280; P.L. 1892, p. 369, as amended and supplemented.) Liens have priority over assignments. (P.L. 1915, p. 138.) By P.L. 1917, p. 120, real estate may be freed from lien by filing a bond with the county clerk.

Mortgages. — Mortgages follow the common law form generally, but P.L. 1918, ch. 226, suggests a form. They must be under seal; a scroll is sufficient. Wife must join, except in purchase-money mortgage. The only recognized mode of foreclosing a mortgage is by suit in equity. There is no redemption after sale under the decree, except a suit be brought on the bond for deficiency, which opens up the foreclosure. They are usually accompanied by bonds. See Deeds. The suit to foreclose the mortgage must be brought first; a suit may then be brought on the bond for the deficiency within six months, but such a suit opens the foreclosure. See Laws 1881, ch. 147. Suit for redemption must be within six months after entry of judgment. (P.L. 1915, p. 339.) This law, however, has been declared to be unconstitutional as to previous mortgages.

Cancellation of the record of mortgage will be made by the clerk of the county on application to him made by the mortgagor or the person redeeming, paying, and discharging the mortgage, and producing to him the mortgage canceled, or a receipt thereon, signed by the mortgagee, his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, or a certificate signed by him or them and acknowledged or proved and certified in the same manner as is required for conveyances, specifying that the mortgage has been paid or otherwise satisfied and discharged. (Gen. Statutes, p. 2107.) See P.L. 1915, pp. 152 and 383, for further provision for cancellation. See Chattel Mortgages. They should be recorded. (P.L. 1914, ch. 164.) All instruments recorded must be in English. (P.L. 1916, p. 447.) P.L. 1918, ch. 67, provides that mortgage may be canceled by the "Alien Enemy Property Custodian."

Notaries Public. — Notaries public are appointed by the governor for a term of five years. They have power to take affidavits, and also acknowledgments of deeds, for this State. They have official seals, but use of seal is not required within the State. Their jurisdiction is coextensive with the State. A certificate of their official character will be furnished by the secretary of state or county clerk, if required.

Notes and Bills of Exchange, etc. — Promissory notes were placed on the same footing with foreign bills of exchange, by a statute similar to the English statute 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9.

Inland bills of exchange are in general subject to the law of foreign bills; they must be protested. The three days of grace are not allowed on bills or notes made after July 4, 1895. Drafts, checks, bills, and notes payable on Saturday or Sunday or other legal holidays are payable on the next business day following. Twenty-four hours' additional time after the note is payable is allowed for notice of dishonor. Notice of protest may be given by mail in all cases. The action required to hold indorser is the same as under general mercantile law. The legal holidays are, besides Sundays, January 1, February 12, February 22, Good Friday, May 30, July 4, Labor Day (first Monday in September), October 12, December 25, any general election day in this State; any day appointed by the president or governor for thanksgiving, fasting, or prayer, and every Saturday after twelve o'clock noon. If any of these days happen on Sunday, Monday is the holiday.

The Negotiable Instruments Act, which has been adopted in many other States, was adopted in New Jersey in 1902, taking effect July 4, and governs negotiable papers made on or after that day.

Judgment notes are allowed in this State under the Negotiable Instruments Act, but are not in common use. As to authenticity of signature and indorsements, see P.L. 1914, ch. 319.

Partners. — Any person transacting business using the designation "and Company" or "and Co." must file with the county clerk of the county in which they transact business a statement showing the nature of the business and the full names and residences of all persons who are members of the partnership. (Laws 1906, p. 513.) The dissolution may likewise be filed with the county clerk.

Practice. — Practice used to be and to some extent is under the common law, but greatly modified by statute. (Laws 1903, p. 537, and amendments thereto. Especially by P.L. 1912, ch. 231; P.L. 1913, pp. 621, 642; and P.L. 1914, p. 151.) P.L. 1915, p. 184, contains the latest changes in chancery practice. P.L. 1916, p. 109, abolishes bills of exemptions and writs of error in civil cases substituting appeal.

Proof of Claims. — An attorney in New Jersey should be furnished with the christian names, surnames, and residences of the proposed plaintiffs and defendants; if either party is a partnership the same particulars as to each member of the firm. A non-resident plaintiff must, if the defendant demands it, provide resident freehold security for costs to the amount of one hundred dollars, or deposit the amount in cash with the clerk of the court. In any action on a record or a contract, express or implied, the attorney must be furnished with a bill of particulars of the demand, or a copy of the record, bond, note, or other writing. See Evidence; Mechanic's Lien; Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

If no defense is interposed, claims may be proved by an affidavit taken before a proper officer, either within or without the State. This affidavit is made at the time of entering judgment. No affidavit is required at the beginning of a suit. If a defense is made, the plaintiff's claim must be proved by evidence in court, or by evidence de bene esse, taken in another State, on notice to the defendant.

Recording Deeds, Mortgages, Leases, etc. (Laws 1898, pp. 677, 690; 1902, p. 487; P.L. 1913, p. 346; P.L. 1914, p. 306.) — Conveyances, releases, declarations of trust, mortgages, and defeasible deeds, assignments of mortgage, or judgment, letters of attorney for sale of land, leases of not less than two years and assignments thereof, agreements for sale of land, and some other papers relating to land, and also chattel mortgages and assignments thereof and agreements of conditional sale and deeds of trust to literary, charitable, religious or benevolent institutions, when duly acknowledged, may be recorded in the office of the clerk (or register, if any) of the county where the lands or chattels lie, and until so recorded are void against subsequent judgment creditors without notice and against all subsequent bona fide purchasers and mortgagees for valuable consideration not having notice thereof whose deed or mortgage shall be first recorded. (See Chattel Mortgages, as to record of.) Recorded agreements for the sale of land are void as against subsequent judgment creditors and purchasers and mortgagees for value unless suit for specific performance or rescission be brought within three months from date of performance and notice of such suit be filed. (Laws 1907, p. 454.)

The records are kept by the clerk of the county in all the counties except Essex, Camden, Hudson, Passaic, Bergen, and Union; in those by a register. Instruments must be in English. (P.L. 1916, p. 447.)

Redemption. — There is no redemption after sale in any case except in case of judgment for deficiency on the bond after sale of mortgaged premises under foreclosure, when the property may be redeemed by payment of full amount of decree; provided suit for redemption be brought within six months after such judgment for deficiency.

Replevin. — If the goods of any person are taken and wrongfully detained, they may be replevied. Any unlawful detention from the person entitled to possession is deemed a "taking." Plaintiff must give bond with sufficient surety, in double the value of the goods, ascertained by sworn appraisement, or must make a deposit of that amount. The statute does not say freehold security, but the sheriffs usually require it. If the defendant claims property, he may give bond with one or more freehold sureties in double the value of the goods, within twenty-four hours, and retain possession. If the plaintiff does not wish to take possession before judgment he need not give a bond. (Laws 1890, ch. 263.) Replevin may be brought in the district courts for goods valued at not more than five hundred dollars. (P.L. 1908, p. 384. But see new practice, P.L. 1912, ch. 231.)

Reports, Judicial. — There are two series — Law and Equity; "New Jersey Law Reports," 90 volumes; "N.J. Equity Reports," 87 volumes, more commonly known by the name of the reporter. Law: Coxe, 1 vol.; Pennington, 2 vols.; Southard, 2 vols.; Halsted, 7 vols.; Green, 3 vols.; Harrison, 4 vols.; Spencer, 1 vol.; Zabriskie, 4 vols.; Dutcher, 5 vols.; Vroom, 56 vols.; Gummere, 5 vols. Equity: Saxton, 1 vol.; Green, 3 vols.; Halsted, 4 vols.; Stockton, 3 vols.; Beasley, 2 vols.; McCarter, 4 vols.; C. E. Green, 12 vols.; Stewart, 18 vols.; Dickinson, 21 vols.; Robbins, 4 vols.; Buchanan, 16 vols.; Stockton, 2 vols. Digests: Halsted's, 1843; Stewarts, 1887; Stewart's Supp., 1876-87; Wall's Digest, 1887-97; Hartshorne's Index Digest, 1885. The New Jersey Digest, 1903, with supplement, 8 vols. in all, compiled under direction of Charles W. Parker, associate justice of supreme court.

Service. — Summons in court for the trial of small causes must be served by a constable, by reading the same to defendant and delivering to him a copy thereof, if he or she shall be found, or, if not found, by leaving a copy at his or her house or place of abode, in the presence of some person of the family of the age of fourteen years, who shall be informed of the contents thereof.

In the other courts of law a copy must be served by the sheriff on the defendant in person, or by leaving it at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode.

Upon a domestic corporation, summons may be served in personal actions upon the president or other head officer or agent in charge of its principal office in this State, or left at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode; and in case the president or other head officer or agent cannot be found to be served with process, and has no dwelling-house or usual place of abode, the summons shall be served on the clerk or secretary, if any there be, and if no clerk or secretary, then on one of its directors, or left at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode.

Against a foreign corporation, summons may be served in personal actions upon any officer, director, agent, clerk, or engineer of such corporation, either personally or by leaving a copy thereof at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode, or by leaving a copy at the office, depot, or usual place of business of such foreign corporation, provided, that in case there is no officer, director, agent, clerk, or engineer of said corporation residing in the State, process may be served upon any motorman, conductor, or servant of said corporation while in the discharge of his duties. (P.L. 1908, p. 176.)

In district courts, if the defendant is a domestic corporation the summons shall be served on the president, or head officer, or agent in charge of its principal office, or any employee or clerk employed in any of its offices in the county, or left at his or her dwelling-house or abode. If defendant is a foreign corporation, summons shall be served upon any officer, director, agent or clerk or engineer of such corporation, either personally or by leaving a copy thereof at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode in such county, or by leaving a copy at the office, depot, or usual place of business of such foreign corporation in such county. In law actions the sheriff must serve promptly, and to the summons is annexed the complaint. (P.L. 1912, p. 468 and p. 377.) Subpoena to answer in chancery must be served by the sheriff on defendant personally or at residence five days before the return day. Service in chancery on a corporation is made on president, vice-president, a director, or the designated agent or other officer thereof. (Laws 1907, p. 76.)

Notice to absent defendants may be given by publication in cases in chancery, and in certain cases at law under Acts 1878, ch. 81; 1891, ch. 253; 1895, ch. 201. Where plaintiff is ignorant of the name or part of the name of a defendant, he may designate defendant by a fictitious name, with description tending to identify him, and if the defendant's residence is not known, service may be made by publication.

A valid personal judgment for the payment of money cannot be obtained without service of process within the State.

Statutes. — A revision of the statutes was passed March 27, 1874, and took effect January 1, 1875. A supplement to the Revision (Supp. Rev.) was published in 1886. The General Statutes (3 volumes) published in 1896 include the Revision and all later general acts. Several important acts were revised in 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1911, 1914, and 1918. The latest session laws are those of 1917. The Compiled Statutes of New Jersey, 1709-1910, 5 vols., and a supplement to 1915, is now out.

Stay of Execution. — Execution may issue immediately, except that in a justice's court or a district court when defendant appears on the return day of the summons, or on the day judgment is rendered, and procures a good and sufficient freeholder, resident in the county, to join with such defendant in the confession of judgment to the adverse party with costs, execution is stayed as follows: If the judgment be not more than fifteen dollars, or less than five dollars, execution shall not issue after one month; if judgment be more than fifteen dollars and less than sixty dollars, execution shall not issue until after three months; when the judgment shall exceed sixty dollars, no execution shall issue until after six months. (Gen. Statutes, p. 1875; Laws 1903, p. 206.)

Supplementary Proceedings. — If execution is returned unsatisfied, the judgment debtor may be required to make discovery under oath of his property and things in action; and the court, on receiving proper proof, may forbid payment to him of debts due him otherwise than for personal service of himself or his family, restrain the transfer of property held in trust for him and for his benefit, and appoint a receiver. This receiver collects the money for the benefit of the creditor under whose judgment he was appointed, although prior judgments may remain unsatisfied. Upon such proceedings, the judge may in certain cases direct the debtor to make payments in installments out of his income. (La. 1901, p. 372.) Execution against wages, income, etc. (P.L. 1915, p. 470.) P.L. 1916, p. 243, tends provision to state officers.

Tax Law. — All property real and personal not expressly exempted is subject to taxes at its true value. Denville &c. v. St. Francis &c., 98 Atl. 254, exempts certain property used for charitable purposes though owned by a corporation of a sister State.

The entire subject of taxes underwent revision in an act entitled "An act for the assessment and collection of taxes, revision of 1918, P.L. 1918, ch. 236." This act provides for a poll tax to be levied against every male inhabitant twenty-one years of age, except "paupers, idiots, and insane." All property shall be assessed as of October 1st. The following property shall be exempt: bonds and securities of the United States; bonds, securities, improvement certificates, and evidences of indebtedness by any county, taxing district, or school district in the State; personal property outside the State; public property, property used for military purposes, schools, colleges, churches, and libraries; corporation stock expressly exempted or taxable against the corporation; burying-grounds, property of fire companies, poll taxes for certain firemen, soldiers and sailors. Certain personal property used by crippled soldiers, household furniture not exceeding one hundred dollars, bank stock, which is taxed under other laws, railroad and canal property, taxed under other laws, and turnpike road where there is no payment of tolls, are exempted. Personal tax is assessed in the taxing district where the person resides. There is a deduction allowed for sworn debts. No mortgage shall be assessed for taxation unless a deduction therefor shall have been claimed by the owner of the property and allowed by the assessor. Corporations are inhabitants of the tax district where their chief office is located, and their personal property shall be there assessed. Foreign corporations shall be assessed and taxed for the business done by them, and except insurance companies shall be assessed for the amount of capital usually employed in this State in the doing of such business, and in otherwise taxing real or personal property by virtue of the act. Life insurance companies shall be assessed and taxed upon the full value of their property exclusive of real estate situate in New Jersey and securities to the value of five hundred thousand dollars, deducting from such amount the amount of their debts and liabilities. Fire insurance companies shall be assessed in the taxing district where their office is located upon the full amount of capital paid in and accumulated surplus.

To avoid taxation upon mortgages the parties should agree that no deductions shall be made therefor from the taxable value of the lands.

Taxes are payable one half the 1st of June, one half the 1st of December. In selling all property the taxes are apportioned to the date of the sale unless agreement has been otherwise.

Appeals are to the County Board of Taxation and from there to the State Board of Taxation. P.L. 1918, ch. 237, revision of 1918, make taxes a first lien upon real estate, and provide for the collection of the taxes. This is known as the "Tax Sale Revision."

Testimony. — See Evidence.

Trust Deeds — In the nature of mortgages are unusual. They may be foreclosed by public sale, but the safer method is by bill in chancery.

Wills — By any person within the age of twenty-one years, by any idiot, lunatic, or persons of non-sane memory, shall not be held or taken to be good or effectual in law.

A married woman may make a will of her separate estate as if she were a feme sole, but cannot defeat her husband's interest in real estate. His consent in writing to the will does not affect his life estate in her land. (47 N.J. Eq. 293.)

All wills and testaments since 1850 must be in writing and signed by the testator (by a mark at least with his own hand), which signature shall be made by the testator, or the making thereof acknowledged by him, and such writing declared to be his last will, in the presence of two witnesses, present at the same time, who shall subscribe their names thereto in the presence of the testator as witnesses.

A will must be proved and recorded in the surrogate's office of the county where the testator resided when he died, or in the office of the secretary of state in Trenton.

By P.L. 1917, p. 112, if the devisee dies before the testator and testator is without heirs, the estate goes to the children of the devisee.

Will attested by devisee or legatee may be proved by him, but his legacy or devise is void. (Gen. Statutes, p. 3758.)

One's whole estate may be left to charity, but the will of a husband does not affect the wife's dower, nor the will of the wife the husband's estate for the term of his natural life, if there be a child or children of the marriage. Children may be disinherited. But a will made when testator had no children, and not providing for or mentioning possible issue, is void if he die leaving a child or issue; if there was issue, after-born children or their descendants unprovided for inherit as in case of intestacy.

If it appears from the record that a foreign will was executed in accordance with the laws of this State, and an exemplified copy thereof with the letters testamentary or of administration with the will annexed be filed in the office of any surrogate in the State, the will and letters shall have the same effect as if issued in New Jersey. (P.L. 1912, p. 320.) A copy of a foreign will may be recorded, for the purpose of making title to lands in this State, upon the recording in the surrogate's office of an exemplified copy of the record of the foreign will with the certificate of probate and letters granted thereon. (P.L. 1913, p. 355.) See P. L. 1915,

Service. — Summons in court for the trial of small causes must be served by a constable, by reading the same to defendant and delivering to him a copy thereof, if he or she shall be found, or, if not found, by leaving a copy at his or her house or place of abode, in the presence of some person of the family of the age of fourteen years, who shall be informed of the contents thereof.

In the other courts of law a copy must be served by the sheriff on the defendant in person, or by leaving it at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode.

Upon a domestic corporation, summons may be served in personal actions upon the president or other head officer or agent in charge of its principal office in this State, or left at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode; and in case the president or other head officer or agent cannot be found to be served with process, and has no dwelling-house or usual place of abode, the summons shall be served on the clerk or secretary, if any there be, and if no clerk or secretary, then on one of its directors, or left at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode.

Against a foreign corporation, summons may be served in personal actions upon any officer, director, agent, clerk, or engineer of such corporation, either personally or by leaving a copy thereof at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode, or by leaving a copy at the office, depot, or usual place of business of such foreign corporation, provided, that in case there is no officer, director, agent, clerk, or engineer of said corporation residing in the State, process may be served upon any motorman, conductor, or servant of said corporation while in the discharge of his duties. (P.L. 1908, p. 176.)

In district courts, if the defendant is a domestic corporation the summons shall be served on the president, or head officer, or agent in charge of its principal office, or any employee or clerk employed in any of its offices in the county, or left at his or her dwelling-house or abode. If defendant is a foreign corporation, summons shall be served upon any officer, director, agent or clerk or engineer of such corporation, either personally or by leaving a copy thereof at his dwelling-house or usual place of abode in such county, or by leaving a copy at the office, depot, or usual place of business of such foreign corporation in such county. In law actions the sheriff must serve promptly, and to the summons is annexed the complaint. (P.L. 1912, p. 468 and p. 377.) Subpoena to answer in chancery must be served by the sheriff on defendant personally or at residence five days before the return day. Service in chancery on a corporation is made on president, vice-president, a director, or the designated agent or other officer thereof. (Laws 1907, p. 76.)

Notice to absent defendants may be given by publication in cases in chancery, and in certain cases at law under Acts 1878, ch. 81; 1891, ch. 253; 1895, ch. 201. Where plaintiff is ignorant of the name or part of the name of a defendant, he may designate defendant by a fictitious name, with description tending to identify him, and if the defendant's residence is not known, service may be made by publication.

A valid personal judgment for the payment of money cannot be obtained without service of process within the State.

Statutes. — A revision of the statutes was passed March 27, 1874, and took effect January 1, 1875. A supplement to the Revision (Supp. Rev.) was published in 1886. The General Statutes (3 volumes) published in 1896 include the Revision and all later general acts. Several important acts were revised in 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1911, 1914, and 1918. The latest session laws are those of 1917. The Compiled Statutes of New Jersey, 1709-1910, 5 vols., and a supplement to 1915, is now out.

Stay of Execution. — Execution may issue immediately, except that in a justice's court or a district court when defendant appears on the return day of the summons, or on the day judgment is rendered, and procures a good and sufficient freeholder, resident in the county, to join with such defendant in the confession of judgment to the adverse party with costs, execution is stayed as follows: If the judgment be not more than fifteen dollars, or less than five dollars, execution shall not issue after one month; if judgment be more than fifteen dollars and less than sixty dollars, execution shall not issue until after three months; when the judgment shall exceed sixty dollars, no execution shall issue until after six months. (Gen. Statutes, p. 1875; Laws 1903, p. 206.)

Executions are stayed by appeal or application for a new trial. (P.L. 1912, ch. 131.) By writ of error. (P.L. 1914, ch. 189.)

Supplementary Proceedings. — If execution is returned unsatisfied, the judgment debtor may be required to make discovery under oath of his property and things in action; and the court, on receiving proper proof, may forbid payment to him of debts due him otherwise than for personal service of himself or his family, restrain the transfer of property held in trust for him and for his benefit, and appoint a receiver. This receiver collects the money for the benefit of the creditor under whose judgment he was appointed, although prior judgments may remain unsatisfied. Upon such proceedings, the judge may in certain cases direct the debtor to make payments in installments out of his income. (Laws, 1901, p. 372.) Execution against wages, income, etc. (P.L. 1915, p. 470.) P.L. 1916, p. 243, tends provision to state officers.

NEW MEXICO LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Catron & Catron, of Santa Fé.

(Directed by Frank J. Lavan, Esq., of the firm.)

The next regular session of the Legislature will convene on January 14, 1919, at Santa Fé, N. M.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — Civil actions in district courts must be brought: (1) All transitory actions, in the county where plaintiffs or defendants or some one of them resides; or in the county where the contract sued on was made or is to be performed, or where the cause of action originated or indebtedness sued on was incurred; or in any county in which the defendants or any of them may be found, in the judicial district where the defendant resides. (2) Against defendants liable to civil action for criminal act, in the county where the offense was committed, or in which defendant may be found, or in which the plaintiff resides. (3) Suits for the recovery of personal property other than money may be brought in as above provided or in the county where the property may be found. (4) When lands or any interest in lands are the subject of any suit, in whole or in part, the suit must be brought in the county where the land or some portion of it is situated. (5) Suits for trespass on land may be brought as provided by paragraph 1 or 4. (6) Suits against transient persons or non-residents may be brought in any county of the State.

Civil actions in such courts are commenced by filing a complaint, upon which summons issues directing the defendant to answer the plaintiff's complaint within twenty days after service thereof, if served in any county in the district in which he is sued; otherwise, within thirty days after service. Every pleading subsequent to the complaint must be filed and served within twenty days after the service of the pleading to which it is an answer, demurrer, or reply. When a pleading is verified, every subsequent pleading except a demurrer must also be verified.

Judgment may be had if the defendant fail to answer the complaint within the time specified in the summons.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits — May be taken before a judge or clerk of a court of record, a justice of the peace, or a notary public. Affidavits executed out of the State should be certified under the seal of the custodian of the record evidence of the election or appointment and qualification of the officer taking such affidavit.

Aliens. — There is no legal restriction upon the ownership or sale of property by aliens in the State.

Appeals. — Within ten days from the rendition of any judgment of a justice of the peace, an appeal may be taken to the district court of the county provided the appellant files a bond to the adverse party in a sum sufficient to secure the judgment appealed from and costs. Trial in the district court is de novo. If either party is prevented from appealing or is unable to take an appeal within ten days, a review may be had upon certiorari issued out of the district court upon good cause shown to the judge thereof at any time within thirty days after the rendition of judgment. If the justice shall wrongfully refuse an appeal, the clerk of the district court is authorized, upon a proper showing by affidavit made to him within thirty days after such refusal, to issue a writ to the justice of the peace, commanding him to transmit to the district court all original papers, together with a complete transcript of all proceedings had before him, the issuance of which writ operates to stay all further proceedings on the judgment in the justice court.

An appeal may similarly be taken from any judgment of a probate court to the district court of the county at any time within ninety days after the rendition of the same, provided the party appealing gives bond conditioned to diligently prosecute his appeal and pay all costs; trial is de novo in the district court.

Within six months from the entry of any final judgment in a civil action, any party aggrieved may appeal therefrom, or sue out a writ of error, to the supreme court of this State. Appeals and writs of error are also allowed, if application therefor be made within twenty days, from any interlocutory judgment, order or decision of a district court which practically disposes of the merits of the action. If within sixty days from the date of entry of any final judgment, and within thirty days from the date of entry of any interlocutory judgment, order or decision of a district court, the appellant shall give a bond to the adverse party in double the amount of such judgment, conditioned for the payment of same if his appeal be dismissed or decided against him the judgment is superseded and execution stayed pending the final determination of the action in the supreme court.

If there is no judgment to supersede, or execution to be stayed, appellant must, within thirty days from taking an appeal or suing out a writ of error, file a bond conditioned for the payment of all costs that may be adjudged against him and in default of filing such bond, the appeal or writ of error shall fail. No supersedeas or cost bond is required where the appellant or plaintiff in error is an executor or administrator, as such, the State or a county or other municipal corporation.

Arrest. — Imprisonment for debt is not permitted in New Mexico.

Assignments — Are either voluntary or involuntary, but either has the effect to vest in the assignee the legal title to the debtor's property for the benefit of all creditors. The debtor is entitled to his exemptions. In neither form of insolvency is the debtor relieved of any of his obligations.

Attachments. — Creditors may sue in the district court by attachment in the following cases, namely: (1) When the debtor is not a resident of nor resides in this State. (2) When the debtor has concealed himself, or absconded or absented himself from his usual place of abode in this State, so that the ordinary process of law cannot be passed upon him. (3) When the debtor is about to remove his property or effects out of the State, or has fraudulently concealed or disposed of the same, so as to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors. (4) When the debtor is about fraudulently to convey, or assign, conceal, or dispose of his property or effects so as to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors. (5) When the debt was contracted out of this State and the debtor has absconded or secretly removed his property or effects into this State with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors. (6) When the defendant is a corporation whose principal office or place of business is out of the State, unless such corporation has a designated agent in the State upon whom service of process may be made in suits against it. (7) When the defendant fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation respecting which the suit is brought or obtained credit from the plaintiff by false pretenses. Attachment may issue upon a demand not yet due. Attachment will not lie where the debt or obligation or the cause of action is founded upon the sale or purchase of intoxicating liquors.

The attaching creditor must file with the clerk of the court and have approved by him, a bond with two or more sureties, residents of the State, or with some bonding company duly qualified to transact business in the State, as surety, in a sum at least double the amount sworn to, and he must also make affidavit, or some person for him, that the defendant is justly indebted to the plaintiff, after allowing all just credits and offsets, in the sum sued on, and on what account, and shall also state that affiant has good reason to believe and does believe in the existence of one or more of the grounds of attachment as above enumerated; the form of both the bond and affidavit is statutory.

Chattel Mortgages and Conditional Sales. — Personal property of every description, including growing crops, is subject to mortgage, and every such instrument of writing having the effect of a mortgage or a lien upon personal property, when acknowledged by the owner or mortgagor in the same manner as conveyances affecting real estate, or a copy thereof, must be filed — and in addition it may be recorded, or both — in the office of the clerk of the county wherein the property is situate, and when so filed, has the full force and effect of the recording of an instrument affecting real estate. Any such chattel mortgage or other instrument in writing so filed becomes void as against the creditor of the mortgagor, or against subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, after the expiration of six years from and after the date of the execution thereof. When paid in full it is the duty of the mortgagee to cause satisfaction of such chattel mortgage to be filed, and such satisfaction must be under oath; the same applies equally to any other instrument of writing having the effect of a mortgage or lien upon personal property. Refusal to do so upon demand of the mortgagor or his successor in interest subjects the offender to one hundred dollars damages to be recovered in a civil suit.

By chapter 74, Laws of New Mexico, 1917, which became effective June 9, 1917, all conditional sales, leases, purchase leases, sale leases, or other instruments of writing having the effect of a mortgage or lien upon personal property, or that are intended to hold the title in the former owner, possessor, or grantor until the value or purchase price is fully paid, when similarly acknowledged must be filed or recorded in the office of the clerk of the county where is situate the property so affected. Failure to so acknowledge and file or record any such instrument in writing renders the same void as to subsequent mortgagees in good faith, purchasers for value without notice, and subsequent judgment or attaching creditors without notice; and as against subsequent general creditors without notice, such unrecorded instrument shall not be valid until the same is duly filed or recorded as above provided.

Claims against Estates — Must be entitled in the name of the claimant against the executor or administrator as such, and be stated in detail, sworn to, and filed with the proper probate court within one year from the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator; and also within such time five days' notice of the hearing upon such claim and a copy of the claim must be served upon the executor or administrator, unless the claim be approved in writing signed by the executor or administrator, in which case the claim may be allowed by the court without such notice. All claims so filed, not expressly admitted in writing signed by the executor or administrator, are considered denied by the executor or administrator; but the court may consider and allow or reject the same. If allowed, the executor or administrator may within six months after the allowance, but not to exceed eighteen months after the appointment of such executor or administrator, appeal from such allowance to the district court. If the claims be rejected the claimant may with like limitations as to time either appeal to the district court or bring his action in that court against the executor or administrator.

Payments of claims against estates are made from the proceeds of the estate as follows: (1) Expenses of administration. (2) Charges of last sickness and funeral of deceased. (3) Any allowance which may be made by the court for the maintenance of the widow, and of the children under fifteen years of age, sufficient to maintain them for six months from the death of decedent. (4) Claims entitled to preference by express provision of the United States or State laws. (5) Taxes. (6) All other debts pro rata. (7) Legacies pro rata.

Preference in appointment of administrators is given: (1) To the surviving husband or wife of deceased. (2) If there be no surviving husband or wife, then to those entitled to distribution of the estate, or some one or more of them, whom the probate judge shall believe will best manage the estate. (3) If no such person apply within thirty days after the death of deceased, then any creditor of the estate. (4) If none of these apply for letters, then the probate judge may select such discreet person as he may choose, or he may direct the sheriff of his county to take possession of the estate, sell the same, and after payment of debts deliver any remainder of proceeds to the treasurer of the county, who shall hold the same for one year, when any such balance, in the absence of any application to be appointed administrator of such estate, escheats to the county.

Before any administrator can act as such he must give bond to the State of New Mexico, with two or more sureties, residents of the county where letters of administration are granted, in such sums as the probate court shall deem sufficient, but not less than double the estimated value of the estate, such bond to be conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as administrator, which bond must be recorded in the probate clerk's office before the letters of administration are delivered to the administrator.

The administrator must account to the probate court at the first term after the end of one year from the date of his letters of administration, and yearly thereafter.

In suits against the heirs, executors, and administrators, or assigns of deceased persons, an interested party to the suit cannot obtain judgment on his own testimony in respect to any matter occurring before the death of the deceased, unless such evidence be corroborated by some other material evidence.

Conditional Sales. — Instruments of writing evidencing same must be acknowledged and filed or recorded in the same manner as chattel mortgages, q.v.

Corporations. — The general corporation law of New Mexico was taken almost verbatim from the laws of New Jersey.

With the exceptions hereinafter noted, any three or more persons may organize themselves as a corporation for any lawful purpose or purposes whatever, and be issued a charter by the State Corporation Commission, upon executing, filing and recording a certificate of incorporation signed by all of the subscribers to the capital stock either in person or by attorney, in the same manner as instruments affecting real estate are acknowledged, and setting forth: (1) The name of the corporation; (2) the location of its principal office in the state; and the name of the agent therein and in charge thereof upon whom process against the corporation may be served; (3) the objects for which the corporation is formed; (4) the amount of the total authorized capital stock which shall not be less than three thousand dollars, the number of shares and the par value of each; (5) the names and post-office addresses of the incorporators and the number of shares subscribed for by each, and the aggregate of such subscriptions — which shall not be less than two thousand dollars — shall be the amount with which the corporation commences business; (6) the period limited for the duration of the corporation, not exceeding fifty years. Such certificate with a certified copy of the articles of incorporation must also be recorded in the office of the clerk, and published twice in some newspaper of general circulation, in the county where such corporation maintains its principal office. At least one director of every such corporation must be a resident of the State. In the case of foreign corporations qualifying to do business in the State, such recordation is not required.

The foregoing provisions do not govern the formation of corporations for the construction and operation of railroads, telegraph lines, express companies, savings banks, commercial banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance, surety and irrigation companies (which are governed by special acts) except when they are formed for maintenance and operation outside of the State.

No stockholders' liability for unpaid stock shall attach to any stock issued by any corporation organized under the general law, provided, that at the time of filing its certificate of incorporation a separate certificate shall be executed, acknowledged, recorded and published in the same manner as the certificate of incorporation, declaring that there shall be no stockholders' liability on account of any stock issued, but every corporation taking advantage of this provision must add to its corporate name in the certificate of incorporation, and in every other certificate, report, or record, required by law, and in every contract or other corporate instrument, the words "No Stockholders' Liability."

Foreign corporations may qualify to do business in the State by filing with the State children inherit from the mother and the mother from the children; they inherit from the father whenever they have been recognized by him as his children, but such recognition must have been general and notorious, or else in writing signed by the reputed father in the presence of two witnesses and must show upon its face that it was so signed by him with the intent of recognizing such children as heirs.

Divorce — Can be granted only for abandonment; adultery; impotency; when the wife at the time of the marriage was pregnant by another than her husband, such husband being ignorant thereof; cruel and inhuman treatment; neglect on the part of the husband to support the wife according to his means, station in life, and ability; habitual drunkenness; and conviction of felony and imprisonment in the penitentiary subsequent to marriage. An applicant for divorce must have been an actual resident, in good faith, of the State for one year next preceding the filing of complaint.

Dower — Does not obtain in New Mexico.

Evidence. — No person is excluded from giving testimony in any suit in court on account of interest, and persons interested as parties or otherwise may be compelled to testify. But no person can be compelled to answer any question calculated to criminate him or subject him to prosecution for any penalty or crime, and no husband or wife can be compelled to disclose any communication made to each other during their marriage.

In case a party to any suit, upon being served with subpoena or cited to testify in a cause or before a commissioner appointed to take his deposition, shall refuse to appear and testify, such refusal shall be taken as an admission or confession, and such party may be non-suited, or judgment rendered against him, or the court may postpone the trial.

A witness may be impeached by general evidence of bad moral character.

Executions — May issue at any time within five years or the judgment must be revived; if, however, one execution has been issued and duly returned, then another may be taken out at any time during the life of the judgment which is seven years. Executions are issued by the clerks of the district court to the sheriffs of their respective counties, but the party in whose favor any judgment is returned shall have execution therefor in conformity to such judgment. Executions may issue out of the district court at any time after judgment and are returnable sixty days after delivery to the sheriff; all property of the debtor not exempt is liable to execution. Executions issued out of justice court after ten days after judgment, are returnable in thirty days, but do not run against the lands of the judgment debtor.

Exemptions. — Every person who has a family, and every widow, may hold exempt from attachment, execution, and sale (except for taxes) a homestead not exceeding one thousand dollars in value, and in lieu thereof, personal property to be selected not exceeding five hundred dollars in value, and in addition wearing apparel, certain household furniture and utensils, tools, implements of trade, or profession. The proceeds of any life insurance are exempt except by special contract in writing. Eighty per cent of a person's wages for the previous thirty days are exempt, unless such wages exceed seventy-five dollars per month, in which event garnishment may be had for the full amount of the excess above seventy-five dollars provided, that no exemption whatever shall be claimed where the debt was incurred for the necessities of life and the defendant is not the head of a family residing in this State.

Garnishment. — The writ may issue: (1) In any case where an original attachment may issue. (2) When plaintiff in any suit for a debt makes affidavit that such debt is just, due and unpaid, and that defendant has not within his knowledge property in his possession within the State subject to execution sufficient to satisfy the same, and that the garnishment is not sued out to injure either the defendant or the garnishee, in both of which cases the writ issues as ancillary to the original suit. (3) When plaintiff has a judgment against defendant in some court of the State and makes affidavit similar to the one required in the second case, in which latter event a separate suit must be brought, but no bond is required; in either of the first two cases a bond must be furnished in double the amount sued for. The procedure is similar to attachment. No garnishment will lie where the debt or cause of action is founded on the sale or purchase of intoxicating liquors. With the exception of school districts and officers thereof any public officer may be garnisheed if the claim is in the form of a judgment issued out of some court of the State. See Exemptions.

Inheritance Taxes. — There is no inheritance tax in New Mexico.

Insolvents. — See Assignments.

Interest. — The rate of interest is any amount that may be agreed upon by the parties, not exceeding twelve per cent., but when none is expressed the law allows six percent. per annum. All open running accounts bear six per cent. from six months after the date of the last item. Judgments bear the same rate of interest as the obligation or agreement sued on, when expressed in the judgment; otherwise, six per cent. It is a misdemeanor punishable by fine to charge, collect, or receive a higher rate of interest than twelve per cent. per annum, as interest, or by means of discount, commission, agency, or any other subterfuge, and any person or corporation forfeits to the person of whom such interest was collected or received, or his executors, administrators, or assigns, double the amount so collected or received, upon action brought for the recovery of same within three years after the cause of action accrued.

Judgments. — Any money judgment rendered in the supreme or district court shall be docketed by the clerk of the court in a book kept for the purpose, and shall be a lien on the real estate of the judgment debtor from the date of the filing of a transcript of the docket of such judgment in such book in the office of the county clerk of the county in which such real estate is situate. Judgments by confession may be entered by the clerk in a summary proceeding without action in court.

License. — Commercial travelers are not required to take out a license.

Liens. — A person not an original contractor, who performs work or furnishes materials for the erection or repair of any building, has a lien upon such building and the land upon which the same is situate, for the value of such work or material provided he shall file in the office of the county clerk, within sixty days after the work is done or material furnished, a just and true account of the amount due him, verified by oath of himself or some other person, with a true description of the property to be charged with such lien. An original contractor may file his lien at any time within ninety days after completion of contract. Suit to enforce such lien must be commenced within one year after the claim for lien was filed; otherwise the lien is discharged.

Artisans and mechanics including blacksmiths have a lien on articles made or repaired by them for the amount due for the work, and any person who stores any motor vehicle, or who furnishes gasoline, oil, lubricant, or any accessories or supplies therefor, has a lien thereon for the amount due, and all of such artisans, mechanics and garage keepers may retain possession of the thing made or repaired or of the motor vehicle stored or for which supplies are furnished until the amount due is paid, together with all costs incurred in enforcing such lien; the voluntary parting with possession of the chattel does not destroy the lien but it may be enforced at any time it lawfully comes into the possession or under the control of such lien claimant.

Inn and livery-stable keepers have a lien upon the property of their guests and patrons, under similar conditions, until the amount due is paid.

Landlords have a lien on the property of their tenants which remains in the house rented for the rent due, or to become due by the terms of any lease or other agreement in writing, and said property may not be removed without the consent of the landlord until the rent is paid or secured.

Common carriers have a lien on the things carried for the freight due if payment was to have been made on delivery of the things carried; any person carrying goods for another for hire is a common carrier within the provisions of this section.

Limitations. — Actions upon all judgments of any court of the State, or of any court of record of any other Territory or State of the United States, or of any federal court, must be brought within seven years after the rendition of such judgment.

Actions may be brought upon bonds, notes, or other contract in writing, within six years; open accounts and unwritten contracts, for injuries to property, for the conversion of personal property, or for relief upon the ground of fraud, and all other actions not otherwise provided for, within four years. Against sureties on official bonds and against sheriffs or other public officers, for or on account of any liability incurred by the doing of any act in an official capacity, or by the omission of an official duty, and for injuries to the person or reputation, within two years. In actions for relief upon the ground of fraud or mistake, and in actions for injuries to or conversion of property, the cause of action shall not be deemed to have accrued until the fraud, mistake, injury, or conversion complained of shall have been discovered by the party aggrieved. Actions on bonds of New Mexico municipal corporations or coupons attached thereto must be brought within ten years of the maturity of such bonds or coupons.

In actions on open accounts the cause of action accrues upon the date of the last item thereof, as proven at the trial.

The provisions of the act do not apply to causes of action arising out of trusts, when the defendant has fraudulently concealed the facts constituting the cause of action from the party entitled thereto.

If a person entitled to a cause of action dies within one year previous to the expiration of the period of limitation, the representatives of such persons have one year after the death of such person to commence such action.

If after the commencement of an action the plaintiff fail for any cause except negligence in its prosecution, another suit may be commenced within six months.

Absence of defendant from the State or concealment within the State after the cause of action accrues or indebtedness is incurred or after entry of judgment in New Mexico against a debtor is not included in computing the period of limitation, and the statute extends the time as to minors and persons insane or under any legal disability, so that they have one year after the termination of such disability in which to bring suit.

The filing in the proper clerk's office of papers upon which process may lawfully issue with intent, presumed until the contrary is shown, that process shall issue thereon, is a commencement of an action.

Causes of action founded on contracts are revived by an admission that the debt is unpaid as well as by a new promise to pay the same, such admission or new promise to be in writing, signed by the party to be charged therewith.

Suits to call in question any privilege or franchise granted by any municipal corporation must be brought within six years from date of granting same. Suits for indebtedness due the State compromised by any territorial official, or district attorney, or any official charged with collection of same, may be brought within four years from the date of any such compromise.

Title to real estate may be acquired by uninterrupted adverse possession for ten years, with color of title in good faith, and payment of all taxes lawfully assessed against same title, except as to persons imprisoned, of unsound mind, or under the age of twenty-one years, who are allowed one year after the removal of such disabilities in which to bring suit.

Title to real estate, the title to which was granted by the governments of Spain, Mexico, or the United States, may also be acquired by possession for ten years under deed, devise or other assurance purporting to convey a title in fee simple, where no claim by suit at law or in equity effectually prosecuted shall have been set up within that period, except that persons who may be infants, imprisoned, or non compos mentis shall have one year additional from the time of the removal of their disabilities.

No cumulative disabilities allowed.

Married Women. — There is no dower for the wife or tenancy by the courtesy for the husband in New Mexico. The wife may convey her separate property without the consent of her husband. Community property cannot be charged with a debt by the wife without the consent of the husband. The earnings of a wife are not chargeable with the debts of her husband, and her earnings and the earnings of her minor children in her custody, while she is living separate from her husband, are her separate property. The separate property of the husband is not chargeable with the debts of the wife contracted before marriage, and the separate property of the wife is not chargeable for the debts of the husband, but is liable for her own debts. The husband must support the wife unless she abandons him or is living separate from him by agreement not stipulating for such support, and if he does not support her others may, and recover the cost of support from the husband. When the husband is unable from infirmity to support himself, a wife must support her husband out of her separate property if he has not deserted her, if he has no separate property and if there be no community property. Marriage settlement contracts and contracts for separation must be in writing, and acknowledged and recorded in like manner as conveyances of real estate.

When the husband is non compos mentis, has been sentenced to imprisonment for more than one year for a felony, has abandoned and left his wife and family without support, is an habitual drunkard or is incapacitated to manage the community property, the wife may, by proceedings in the district court, secure control of such community property by being substituted instead of her husband as the head of such community, under such limitations as the court may adjudge.

By statute, marriages of males under twenty-one, and of females under eighteen, without consent of parents or guardians, are forbidden, and all marriages of males under eighteen and of females under fifteen are absolutely invalid; but such marriage can be declared void only by decree of a district court in a direct proceeding for that purpose. No party to such marriage over the prohibited age can apply for or obtain such a decree. The party to such marriage who is a minor may do so; but such minor, if a female, may be granted alimony until she becomes of age, or remarries. All children of such marriages declared void are legitimate, with right to inherit from both parents. If the parties to such voidable marriage live together until they arrive at legal age, such marriage then becomes legal and binding. A female becomes of age at twenty-one.

Mortgage and Trust Deeds. — There is no statutory form for either, though both are recognized by the statutes governing foreclosures, time of sales, redemption, etc., and their execution, acknowledgment, and recordation are governed by the provisions of law relating to instruments affecting the title to real estate. A real estate mortgage is not barred until six years after the date of maturity of the note which it is given to secure; when paid it must be released of record by the mortgagor or he subjects himself to the payment of a fine and damages. Such release must be acknowledged and entered of record in the office of the clerk of the county where such mortgage is recorded.

Notaries Public — Are appointed by the governor of the State for the term of four years, and have "power and authority anywhere in the State to administer oaths, certify to acknowledgments, and perform all other duties required of them by law." They have an official seal and must use it in the performance of all official acts as notary, and in taking acknowledgments certifying to any oath or other matter shall, disconnected from such seal, state the date of the expiration of commission.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law is in force in New Mexico; in any case not provided for therein the law merchant governs.

Proof of Claims. — Accounts duly verified by the oath of the party claiming the same, or his agent, and promissory notes and other instruments in writing, shall be sufficient evidence in any suit to enable the plaintiff to recover judgment for the amount thereof, unless the defendant or his agent shall deny the same under oath.

Record of Deeds. — Deeds properly executed and acknowledged may be recorded in the office of the clerk of the probate court of the county where the real estate conveyed is situated, and such record is notice to all persons of the contents of such deeds. All conveyances of real estate to bind purchasers for value without notice must be recorded.

Redemption. — Real estate sold under any judgment may be redeemed by the mortgagor, or, by any person interested in the real estate, by paying to the purchaser or his assign, the amount paid with interest from date of purchase at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum, at any time within nine months from the date of sale; but no real property can be sold upon foreclosure of any mortgage under decree of a court, until ninety days after the date of such decree, within which time the mortgagor, or any one for him, may pay off the decree and discharge the mortgage and avoid the sale. Any real property sold under mortgage, by virtue of a power of sale contained therein, that is to say by summary, as distinguished from court proceedings, may be redeemed by the mortgagor or his assignee, or by any other parties interested in the realty, by paying the purchaser at such sale or his assignee the amount paid with interest at twelve per cent. per annum, at any time within one year after the date of such sale.

No real property can be sold under execution in any case at law for less than two thirds of its appraised value, exclusive of liens and incumbrances. When any property is sold subject to liens and incumbrances, the purchaser may pay the liens and incumbrances and hold the property discharged from all claims of the defendant, who may, however, at any time within one year after the sale, redeem the property by paying the purchaser the purchase price with legal interest, that is to say six per cent., unless a greater rate were specified in the judgment.

Real estate sold for taxes may be redeemed by the former owner at any time within three years by the payment to the purchaser of the purchase money with interest thereon at the rate of one per cent. per month, with all taxes paid by said purchaser in the meantime, together with interest thereon at the same rate.

Replevin. — Any person having a right to the immediate possession of any chattels, wrongfully taken or wrongfully detained, may replevin the same at any time within one year from the date the cause of action accrued by filing affidavit and giving bond in double the value of the property; the form of both affidavit and bond is statutory; the defendant may retain or recover possession of the property at any time within five days by giving a similar bond to the officer serving the writ.

Revision. — All laws of a permanent and general nature are contained in the New Mexico Statutes, known as the 1915 Codification, save and except such amendments and repeals thereof and additions thereto as were adopted by the legislature at its 1915 and 1917 regular sessions, and at a special session held in May 1917.

Sales. — There is a Bulk Sales Law in force in New Mexico.

Service — Of summons may be made by the sheriff or other officer, or by any person over the age of eighteen years not a party to the suit; the sheriff's return is by certificate; in any other case return must be by affidavit. Service of summons in the State must be made as follows: (a) On real persons: (1) By reading the original to the defendant and delivering a copy thereof if required; or (2) by delivering a copy of the original process to the defendant; or (3) if the defendant be absent, by delivering a copy to some person residing at the usual place of abode of the defendant, over fifteen years old; or (4) if no such person be found willing to accept such copy, then by posting the same in the most public place of defendant's premises. Refusal of any defendant to hear process read or to receive a copy thereof is deemed good service on such defendant. In suits brought against partnerships as such, service of summons on one of the members thereof personally is sufficient service on the firm. (b) On corporations: On the president or other head officer or agent in charge of its principal place of business, or left at his place of abode; in case such officer or agent cannot be found or has no place of abode within the State, the clerk or secretary may be served, and if neither of these, then on one of the directors, either in person or by leaving a copy at his place of abode. On foreign corporations: On any officer, director or agent, either personally or by leaving a copy at his place of abode or at the office or place of business of such foreign corporation. In case any corporation, either domestic or foreign, shall fail to file an annual report, or shall fail to designate an agent for process, or he cannot with due diligence be found, service of summons and process in suits against the corporation may be made on the Secretary of State. Service upon any railroad company may be made upon any station agent at any station or depot, and if it has no stations or agents within the county, then service may be made upon any conductor of a passenger or freight train. (c) By publication and by service of process out of the State: Upon proper showing under oath that a defendant in any suit resides or has gone out of, or has concealed himself within the State, or has avoided service of process upon him, or is so situated that process cannot be served upon him, or that his name or place of residence is unknown, or his whereabouts cannot be discovered, it is the duty of the clerk of court to publish notice of the pendency of such suit in some newspaper published in the county where the cause is pending, or, if no newspaper be published in such county, then in some newspaper published in the State, which notice shall be published at least once a week for four consecutive weeks, the last publication to be at least twenty days before the day on which defendant is notified to appear. When the residence of the defendant is known, the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall mail, postage prepaid, to such defendant at such place a copy of the complaint and summons in such cause. Personal service out of the State of a copy of such complaint and summons is equivalent to publication and deposit as above, and in either case service of the summons shall be deemed complete at the expiration of the time prescribed for publication. When service is by publication or by personal service out of the State, the defendant is required to appear within twenty days after the completion thereof, in the same manner and under the same penalties as if personally served with summons in the county within which suit is pending; but in actions where service of the summons is by publication and no answer has been filed, the court must require proof to be made of the demand mentioned in the complaint. See Actions; Corporations.

Taxes. — On or before the last business day in February of each year all taxable property as it existed on the first day of January, immediately preceding, must be returned for taxation, under oath, by the owner thereof or his agent. The first half of taxes assessed for each year becomes due and delinquent on the first day of December of that year, and the second half on the first day of June following. Failure to return property for taxation subjects one to a penalty of twenty-five per cent.; delinquent taxes draw interest at the rate of one per cent. per month.

Testimony. — See Evidence ; Depositions.

Wills. — Any person of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, and in sound mind, may dispose by will of all his property, except what is sufficient to pay his debts and what is given by law as privileged property to his wife or family; wills may be either written or oral; two or more witnesses are necessary. Witnesses to a written will must be present, see the testator sign the will, or some one sign it for him at his request as and for his last will and testament, and must sign as witnesses at his request, in his presence, and in the presence of each other. In the case of an oral will two witnesses must testify that the testator, at the time of making his will, was in possession of a sound mind and entire judgment. A will executed in a foreign jurisdiction, sufficient to convey the title of real estate in such jurisdiction, is valid in this State to the same extent as in the jurisdiction where made. Single persons may dispose of all their property by will, and any married person may dispose of all his or her separate property. Such disposition may be to charitable or other purposes, and children may be disinherited; but no device to a charitable or religious use is valid unless the same be in writing. If a testator die, leaving a child or children, or, in case of their death, descendants of such child or children, not named or provided for in his will, such testator shall, as regards such child or children, or their descendants not provided for, be deemed to have died intestate; which applies whether such descendant be living or posthumous.

Any person having the custody of a will must, as soon as he is informed of the death of the testator, file it with the clerk of the probate court. The probate judge or clerk shall then fix a day for proving the will, which day must be during a term of the probate court, and the clerk shall give notice of the time so fixed, which notice shall be served personally on all persons interested, who may be residents in the State, at least ten days before the day of hearing, and shall be mailed by the clerk to all such persons who are non-residents, and whose residence is known to the clerk, and shall also be posted at the door of the court house at least three weeks previous to the day fixed, and published in a newspaper published in the county, if there be one, once a week for three consecutive weeks, the last publication to be at least ten days before the time fixed. If the probate judge finds the execution and validity of the will to be proved, he approves the will; if not he indorses his opinion on the will and transmits it, with the testimony and a transcript of the proceedings, to the clerk of the district court, when the matter shall then stand for hearing de novo in the district court; but either party, on demand therefor, may have the right to a trial by jury. After a will has been proved, the matter may be reëxamined in the same court at any time within one year, upon the petition of any person interested, and citation served the same as the notice of the probate of the will, except that no publication is required. The probate of a will after it has become final has the same effect as a final decree in chancery.

NEW YORK LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Hughes, Rounds, Schurman & Dwight, of New York.

The next legislature convenes January 1, 1919.

Abbreviations: C. P. for Code of Civil Procedure; L. for laws; C. L. for Consolidated Laws of 1909; c. for chapter. If references to former statutes are desired, see Directory for 1910. See Revision.

Accounts. — A pleading need not set forth items of account therein alleged; an itemized account, verified, if pleading is verified, must be served within ten days after written demand. (C. P. § 531.)

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — Common law forms of action are abolished. A civil action, legal or equitable, is commenced by the personal service of a summons upon the defendant. Defendant must appear, or, if complaint is served with summons, must plead, in courts of record, within twenty days after service, except that in the city court of New York six days only is allowed; in a justice's or district court, within not less than six nor more than twelve days after summons issued. If defendant is an infant under fourteen years, service must be made upon father, mother, or guardian, or, if none be within the State, upon the person having control of infant, or with whom he resides, or upon his employer; and the court shall, in the defendant's interest, make an order requiring a copy of summons to be also delivered, in behalf of defendant, to a person designated in order; if defendant is non compos, or a lunatic, for whom a committee has been appointed, upon both defendant and committee; if defendant is an infant over fourteen, or non compos, or incapable of adequately protecting his rights, the court may require service upon some other person designated. A resident may by acknowledged and recorded instrument designate a person to receive service during his absence from the State of New York. (C. P. §§ 426-430.) A domestic corporation is served by delivering copy of summons to president or other head, secretary or clerk to the corporation, cashier, treasurer, director, or managing agent. A foreign corporation may be served personally within the State by delivering copy of summons (1) to president, vice-president, treasurer, assistant treasurer, secretary, or assistant secretary, or, if it lack either of those officers, to officer performing corresponding functions; or (2) to person designated by recorded instrument under corporate seal; or (3) if such designation is not in force, or if person designated, or officers above specified cannot be found, and corporation has property within the State, or if the cause of action arose therein, to its cashier, director, or managing agent. (C. P. §§ 431, 432; Grant v. Cananea Consolidated Copper Co., 189 N.Y. 241.) When resident defendant other than a municipal corporation avoids service, or his place of sojourn cannot be found, the court may direct summons to be served by leaving one copy at his residence or principal place of business if defendant be a corporation or association and mailing another, or, if no residence can be found, otherwise at its discretion. (C. P. §§ 435, 436.)

An order may be obtained for personal service of summons upon defendant by publication: (1.) Where defendant is a non-resident or a foreign corporation, or an unincorporated association of seven or more persons having a president and treasurer, neither of whom is a resident, or, being a domestic corporation, when after diligent effort service cannot be made within the State, or after diligent inquiry his name or residence remains unknown to plaintiff. (2.) Where resident defendant is absent from or concealed within the State with intent to defraud creditors or avoid service. (3.) Where resident adult defendant has been without the State of New York more than six months, and has designated no representative to receive service. (4.) In actions to annul a marriage or for divorce or for separation. (5.) In actions to divest defendant of lien or interest, vested or contingent, in specific real or personal property, within the State, or to enforce, regulate, or define such interest or lien in favor of either party, or otherwise affecting title to such property. (6.) Where defendant is a resident or a domestic corporation and summons has been issued to sheriff under C. P. § 399 within sixty days preceding application, to avoid statute of limitations. (7.) In actions authorized by state law against stockholders of corporation or joint-stock company of which defendant is a stockholder. (C. P. § 438. See 1918 amendment of C. P. §§ 440 and 2528, as to service by publication upon defendant in country with which United States is at war.)

To obtain an order for publication, a verified complaint must be presented and also proof made by affidavit of the additional facts above stated, and where the application is made under (1), (4), (5), or (7), that plaintiff has been or will be unable with due diligence to personally serve summons. (C. P. § 439.) A defendant served by publication, or in any other manner than personally, or without the State, and not appearing personally or by his representative, on sufficient cause shown before final judgment, must be allowed to come in and defend; such defendant must also be allowed to defend after final judgment within one year after personal service of written notice thereof; or, without such notice, within seven years after judgment roll filed. Restitution may be compelled, but title to property sold under judgment to bona fide purchaser is not affected. (C. P. § 445.) In an action for a divorce, court may permit such defendant to come in on terms at any time. (Brown v. Brown, 58 N. Y. 609.) In nearly all actions judgment by default cannot be taken against a non-resident defendant or a foreign corporation served otherwise than personally within the State and not appearing, unless property has been attached. Undertaking for restitution may also be required. Such judgment is ineffectual against unattached property. (C. P. § 1217; 88 N. Y. 216.) Judgment by default cannot be taken against any defendant served otherwise than personally within the State and not appearing, in actions for damages for breach of promise to marry. (C. P. §§ 635, 1216, 1217.) In an action for a sum of money against joint debtors, if summons be served upon one or more, but not upon all defendants, judgment may be taken against all, but it is effectual only against joint property, and individual property of defendant served. In docketing such a judgment, the clerk must write "not summoned" after the names of defendants not served. (C. P. §§ 1932-1936.) An action may be brought to charge individual property of joint debtors not served with the amount of such judgment remaining unpaid. (C. P. § 1937.) Where a liquidated debt of over fifty dollars is claimed adversely by different persons, the debtor may bring suit and petition the court for an order permitting him to pay the sum due into court and be discharged from all liability as to any of the defendants. (C. P. § 820-a added by L. 1908, c. 285.)

Pleadings. — The only pleadings in civil actions are: (1.) Complaint containing concise statement of cause of action. (2.) Defendant's demurrer or answer. Answer must contain general or specific denial of material allegations of complaint, or of knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief, and statement of new matter constituting defense or counter-claim. Counter-claim must be a cause of action in favor of defendant, or, if defendant is sued in representative capacity, in favor of person represented, and against plaintiff, or, if plaintiff is suing in representative capacity, against person represented: (a) arising out of contract or transaction set forth in complaint as the foundation of plaintiff's claim, or connected with subject of action; or (b) in action upon a contract, any other cause of action upon contract existing at the commencement of the action. (C. P. §§ 478-501.) (3.) Plaintiff's demurrer or reply to answer. Reply is necessary when answer contains counter-claim; if answer contains new matter, court may permit or direct reply; otherwise reply is improper. (4.) Defendant's demurrer to reply.

If the complaint is verified, subsequent pleadings must be verified, except demurrer or general answer of infant by guardian ad litem, answer in action for absolute divorce, or where the party pleading would be privileged from testifying as to matters pleaded. (C. P. §§ 523, 1757.) Verification may be made by party, or by guardian ad litem of infant plaintiff, or one of several parties united in interest, or, if party is a domestic corporation, by an officer thereof, or, if party is a foreign corporation, or not within the county where attorney resides, or where action is brought upon a written instrument for payment of money only, in the possession of agent or attorney, or where all material allegations of pleading are within the personal knowledge of agent or attorney, by such agent or attorney. Verification made by person other than party must set forth grounds of belief as to matters not pleaded upon knowledge, and reason for party's not making it. (C. P. §§ 525, 526.) All actions must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest (C. P. § 449), except that executor, administrator, or trustee of express trust, or person with whom or in whose name contract is made for another's benefit, or person authorized by statute, may sue alone. Action cannot be maintained upon a judgment for a sum of money rendered in a court of record of the State, between the original parties thereto, unless ten years have elapsed since the docketing of such judgment, or it was rendered upon default and summons served otherwise than personally, or court grants leave upon notice to adverse party. (C. P. § 1913.)

Action or special proceeding (L. 1891, c. 284) does not abate by any event if the cause of action survives or continues. (C. P. § 755.) A foreign corporation or non-resident cannot sue a foreign corporation, except (1) to recover damages for breach of contract made within the State, or relating to property situated within the State at the time of the making thereof; or (2) to recover real property situated within the State, or chattels replevied within the State; or (3) where the cause of action arose within the State, except where the object of the action is to affect title to real property situated without the State; or (4) where a foreign corporation is doing business within this State. (C. P. § 1780.) The courts of New York are open to actions on contract brought by non-residents against non-residents, if jurisdiction of the defendant is obtained, although the cause of action arose outside the State. (Smith v. Crocker, 14 App. Div. 245, aff'd in 162 N. Y. 600.)

Costs. — The successful plaintiff in courts of record is allowed costs in common law actions, except that in actions for certain specified injuries to person and character, and in replevin, if recovery is less than fifty dollars, costs cannot exceed the damages, and in actions to recover a sum of money only, other than those above referred to, plaintiff is not entitled to costs unless he recovers fifty dollars or more. (C. P. § 3228, and see sub-section 5 for limitation of costs where action in supreme court of Kings, New York, Albany, Rensslaer, Bronx, and Queens might have been brought in city court of New York or county court of other counties or in the municipal court of the city of New York (amended L. 1916, c. 50). In common law actions, unless plaintiff recovers costs, defendant is entitled to them. (C. P. § 3229.) In equity actions, costs are in court's discretion. (C. P. § 3230.)

Security for Costs. — Defendant in an action in a court of record may require two hundred and fifty dollars bond as security for costs where plaintiff was when action commenced, (1) a non-resident of the State, or, if suit was brought in specified local courts of record, a non-resident of the city or county in which such courts are located; or (2) a foreign corporation; or (3) a person imprisoned for a crime; or (4) the official assignee of a person so imprisoned, or of a debtor or an assignee in bankruptcy suing as such. (C. P. § 3268.) Defendant in justice's court may require security for costs of a foreign corporation plaintiff. (C. P. § 3074.) Defendant may require security after commencement of action where (1) the plaintiff ceases to be a resident of the State, or, if suit was brought in specified courts of record, of the city or county where such courts are located; or (2) is adjudicated a bankrupt or discharged from his debts, or exonerated from imprisonment under the law of the State or United States; or (3) is sentenced to the state prison for a term less than life. (C. P. § 3269.) If there are two or more plaintiffs, defendant cannot require security for costs unless he is entitled to require it of all the plaintiffs. In actions by or against executors or administrators, or trustees of express trusts, or persons expressly authorized by statute to sue or be sued, or by official assignee, or by the assignee of a receiver or committee of a person judicially declared to be non compos, the court may, in its discretion, require plaintiff to give security for costs.

Where defendant is entitled to require security for costs, plaintiff's attorney is liable for defendant's costs to an amount not exceeding one hundred dollars until security is given. Plaintiff's attorney may relieve himself from liability by filing proper undertaking. (C. P. § 3278.) In no case shall an attorney be surety on any undertaking. (Rule 5 General Rules of Practice.) Such security, if given without objection, is not void. (16 Abb. Pr. N. S. 308.)

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Adoption. — See Descent and Distribution.

Affidavits. — Within the State affidavits may be taken before a judge, clerk, deputy clerk, or special deputy clerk of a court, a notary public, mayor, justice of the peace, city magistrate or police justice, surrogate, special county judge, special surrogate, county clerk, deputy county clerk, special deputy county clerk, or commissioner of deeds, within the district in which the officer is authorized to act, except that a justice of the peace may take such oath or affidavit anywhere in the county containing the town or city in which he is authorized to act, and when certified by the officer to have been taken before him, they may be used in any court or before any officer or other person. (C. P. § 842.)

An affidavit taken in another State or without the United States may be made before an officer authorized by the laws of the State of New York (Ross v. Wigg, 34 Hun, 198) to take and certify the acknowledgment and proof of deeds to be recorded in the State of New York, and when certified to have been taken before him, and accompanied with a like certificate of his official character and the genuineness of his signature as required to entitle a deed, acknowledged before him, to be recorded within the State of New York, may be used as if taken and certified in said State. (C. P. § 844.) An affidavit may be taken in another State or Territory of the United States or in Canada before any officer authorized by the laws thereof to take the proof and acknowledgment of deeds, and when properly certified may be read in evidence in any court of the State of New York. (C. P. § 844; L. 1909, c. 52; C. L. c. 50, § 301.) See Deeds.

[Certificate of clerk, etc., attached to affidavit taken without the State of New York, but in the United States or Canada.]

STATE OF } COUNTY OF }

I, C. D., clerk (recorder, register, or prothonotary) of said county (or of the court of said county, the same being a court of record and having a seal), do hereby certify that A. B., before whom the foregoing affidavit was taken, was, at the time of taking of such affidavit, a notary public (or other officer) residing in said county, and duly authorized by the laws of said State to take and certify the acknowledgment and proof of deeds to be recorded in the said State, and that the said affidavit is taken and certified in all respects as required by the laws of said State; that I am well acquainted with the handwriting of said A. B. (or that I have compared the signature attached to the foregoing affidavit with that deposited in my office by said A. B.), and verily believe the signature attached to the foregoing affidavit is the genuine signature of said A. B.

Witness my hand and official seal, this day of 19

[Seal.]

C. D., Clerk, etc.

Aliens. — Common law rules govern, except as modified by statute. Aliens cannot vote at public elections, or serve as jurors (L. 1909, c. 22; C. L. c. 17; C. L. c. 30); in the construction of public works preference must be given to citizens over aliens, but aliens may be employed where citizens are not available. (L. 1915, c. 51.) Aliens not inhabitants of the State cannot act as executors or administrators. (C. P. § 2564.)

Alien friends are empowered to take, hold, transmit, and dispose of real property within this State in the same manner as native-born citizens, and their heirs and devisees take in the same manner as citizens. (L. 1909, c. 52; C. L. c. 50, § 10; §§ 12, 13, and 14 repealed 1913.)

The title to real property in this State of any person entitled to hold the same cannot be questioned or impeached by reason of the alienage of any person through whom such title may have been derived. The heirs of an Indian to whom real property was granted for military services rendered during the revolutionary war may take and hold such real property by descent as if they were citizens at the time of the death of their ancestors. (L. 1909, c. 52; C. L. c. 50, §§ 10-17, and L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, §§ 92-95.)

Commissioners of land office may, within forty years after escheat of lands by reason of alienage, release such lands, if under ten thousand dollars in value, to person entitled to succeed to the lands but for such alienage or existence of other alien heir, on such terms as commissioners may deem just. (L. 1909, c. 52; C. L. c. 50.)

Appeals. — The jurisdiction of the court of appeals in civil actions and proceedings is confined to the review of actual determinations made by the appellate division of the supreme court in either of the following cases, and no others: Appeals may be taken as of right from final judgments or orders of the appellate division where is directly involved the construction of the State or Federal Constitution, or where there is a dissent in the appellate division, or where the judgment or order is one of reversal or modification; or from orders granting new trials on exceptions where appellant consents to judgment absolute against him upon affirmance. The appellate division may allow an appeal to the court of appeals on any question of law which it thinks ought to be reviewed; and the court of appeals may itself allow an appeal from a final order or judgment where the appellate division refuses to certify the desirability of review. No appeal can be taken to the court of appeals from a unanimous decision of the appellate division that there is evidence supporting or tending to support a finding of fact or a verdict not directed by the court; nor where the case commenced in any court other than the supreme court, court of claims, county court or surrogate's court, unless the appellate division allows it and certifies a question of law for review. [Const. Art. VI, § 9; C. P. §§ 190, 191.]

Appeals lie to the appellate division of the supreme court from all courts of record of original jurisdiction unless an appeal to some other court is expressly given by statute. The appellate division supersedes the general terms of the supreme court and the so-called superior city courts now abolished. (See Courts.) (C. P. §§ 1340-1354.) Appeals are taken from the municipal court of the city of New York to the appellate division, or to not less than three supreme court justices in each of the first and second judicial departments who shall be known as the appellate term of the supreme court in said departments which said justices the appellate division sitting in said departments shall designate, and a further appeal to the appellate division may be allowed by such justices. (C. P. § 1344.) The appeal powers of the superior court of Buffalo are exercised by the appellate division of the fourth department. (Id.) The provisions as to time within which appeals must be taken, security, etc., remain as before.

The court of appeals is the court of last resort, except where a question under the United States Constitution is involved. An appeal to that court must be taken within sixty days after service of a copy of the judgment or order appealed from with notice of entry. No such appeal is effectual for any purpose unless appellant gives undertaking with at least two sureties that he will pay all costs and damages that may be awarded against him on the appeal, not exceeding five hundred dollars. The execution of the judgment or order appealed from is not stayed, except where it is specially prescribed by law that an appeal may be taken, unless the appellant gives additional undertaking that if judgment or order appealed from is affirmed, or appeal is dismissed, he will pay the sum directed to be paid by the judgment or order, or will deliver the property, or make the conveyance, or do the act required by the judgment or order appealed from. (C. P. §§ 1325-1327, 1333.) When the judgment affects real property there are additional requirements. (C. P. § 1331.)

Appeals to appellate division of supreme court from judgments or orders of county courts, etc., or trial or special terms, must be taken within thirty days after service of copy with notice of entry (in case of orders of county courts, etc., sixty days). Security is not required to perfect appeal, but execution is not stayed, except by direction of the court, unless the appellant gives the security required to obtain a stay on appeal to the court of appeals. Writs of error are abolished. Where the final judgment or order is reversed or modified on appeal, the appellate court may make or compel restitution of property, or of a right lost, by means of the erroneous judgment or order, but not so as to affect the rights of a bona fide purchaser for value. (C. P. §§ 1293-1361.)

Arrest. — Defendant in a civil action can be arrested only when action is brought: (1.) To recover a fine or a penalty. (2.) To recover damages for a personal injury; or injury to property, including the wrongful taking, detention, or conversion of personal property; breach of promise to marry; misconduct or neglect in office or in a professional employment; fraud or deceit; or to recover a chattel where complaint alleges that it or a part thereof has been disposed of to defeat recovery; or to recover money or property received, or damages for the conversion or misapplication of property, where complaint alleges that money was received or property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied by public officer or by attorney, officer, or agent of a corporation or banking association, in the course of his employment, or by factor, agent, broker, or other person in fiduciary capacity. Plaintiff cannot recover unless such allegation is proved, and judgment for defendant is not a bar to a new action to recover the money or chattel. (3.) To recover property held or owned by the State or in behalf of public or governmental interest by municipal or other public corporation, board, officer, or agent of the State, or of city, county, division, or department of the State, which defendant has without right obtained or disposed of, or to recover damages for so obtaining or disposing of the same. (4.) In an action on contract, other than a promise to marry, where complaint alleges that defendant was guilty of fraud in contracting the liability or since the making of the contract, or in contemplation of making the same, has disposed or is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud creditors. Plaintiff cannot recover unless fraud is proved on the trial, and judgment for defendant does not bar new action to recover upon contract only. (C. P. § 549.) (5.) In an action where the judgment requires the performance of an act, neglect or refusal to perform which would be contempt of court, and defendant is a non-resident, or being a resident is about to depart from the State, and there is danger that by reason of such non-residence or departure the judgment or order will be rendered ineffectual. (C. P. § 550.) Women cannot be arrested except in case (5), or where the action is to recover damages for willful injury to person, character, or property. (C. P. § 553.) Except in cases (3) and (5), plaintiff, on applying for order, must give an undertaking with two sureties in a sum not less than two hundred and fifty dollars, and at least equal to one tenth of the bail required by the order, to secure defendant's costs and damages. (C. P. § 559.) In case (5), security, if required, must be such as the court prescribes. If plaintiff unreasonably delays trial, or neglects to enter judgment or issue execution within a specified time, or in any way by delay attempts to produce an extended imprisonment, defendant will be discharged. (C. P. § 572.) Order may be granted upon affidavits showing sufficient cause of action against defendant, and the other matters extrinsic thereto, as above specified. Affidavits should also contain a statement tending to determine amount of bail. Order may be granted at any time after action commenced, and also to accompany summons, by judge of the court in which action is brought, or by any county judge, except in (5), when it must be granted by the court. It may be directed to the sheriff of a particular county, or to the sheriff of any county. A person sued in a representative capacity cannot be arrested except for his personal act. Recovery of judgment in a court not of the State, on the same cause of action, or where the action is founded upon fraud or deceit, for the price or the value of property obtained thereby, does not affect plaintiff's right to arrest defendant. Defendant may at any time before final judgment, or within twenty days after arrest, apply to vacate the order or to reduce the amount of bail, or to increase the security. Application may be founded on the papers upon which the order was granted, or upon proof by affidavit on defendant's part; in the latter case it may be opposed by new proof on plaintiff's part tending to sustain ground of arrest recited in order, and no other, unless defendant relies upon a discharge in bankruptcy or in insolvency, in which case plaintiff may show matter in avoidance thereof. Defendant, at any time before he is in contempt in case (5), or in other cases at any time before execution against his person, must be discharged from arrest on giving bail or depositing the sum specified in the order. Bail is given by delivering to sheriff a written undertaking, executed by two or more sufficient bail, each of whom must be a resident and a householder or freeholder within the State, and worth the sum specified in the order, exclusive of property exempted from execution, but the judge may on justification allow more than two bail to justify severally in sums less than that specified in order, if the whole justification is equivalent to that of two sufficient bail. If defendant is confined in jail by order of arrest, he may, after final or interlocutory judgment, and before execution against person, elect to give bond for jail liberties, or to give bail or deposit. (C. P. §§ 556-601.) (See Judgment and Execution.) Prohibition against actual confinement of defendant under execution, or other mandate, for longer than six months (C. P. § 111), does not apply to confinement under an order of arrest. (Levy v. Salomon, N. Y. Ct. App. 19 Abb. N. C. 52.) Persons privileged from arrest will be discharged upon application to a judge of the court granting order, or county judge. (C. P. § 564.)

Assignments and Insolvency. — Except as affected by the National Bankruptcy Act of 1898, the following statutes respecting assignments are in force. Voluntary general assignments for the benefit of creditors are upheld, but are regulated by statute. (L. 1909, cc. 17, 240; C. L. c. 12; amended L. 1914, c. 360, and L. 1915, c. 469, and L. 1918.) These statutes do not apply to transfers of specific property for the benefit of designated creditors, but only to general assignments. (101 N.Y. 504.) By law, wages and salaries of employees, probably including sums due truckmen for payment of freight and cartage (L. 1909, c. 17; C. L. c. 12, § 22), rendered within three months prior to the general assignment, are preferred before any other debt. Preferences are allowed, but only to an amount equal in value to one third of the assigned estate less claims preferred by law as above and the cost and expenses of executing assignment. If such one third of the estate is insufficient to pay in full the preferred claims, it is applied pro rata. (§ 23.) A preference exceeding one third does not invalidate the assignment but will be reduced to one third. (Bank v. Seligman, 138 N.Y. 435.) Preferences by transfers and confessions of judgment, in anticipation of subsequent general assignment, are deemed part of the assignment. (23 Abb. N.C. 1, 7.) Limited partnerships and corporations may make general assignments, but they must be without preferences. (Bowers Bank Case, 5 Abb. Pr. 415; L. 1909, c. 61; C. L. c. 59, § 80.) An assignment may be executed and acknowledged by a properly authorized agent. (Lowenstein v. Flauraud, 82 N.Y. 494.) One partner cannot make copartnership assignment unless he is a sole survivor, or duly authorized, or other partner has absconded. (Welles v. March, 30 N.Y. 344; Klumpp v. Gardner, 114 N.Y. 153.) General assignments must be in writing stating specifically the residence and corporate business within the State. (Plimpton v. Bigelow, 93 N. Y. 592.) Officers of corporations or debtors of the defendant, or persons holding property, including bonds, notes, or instruments for the payment of money, belonging to defendant, must furnish certificate specifying the rights or shares held by defendant, or amount, nature, and description of the property held for defendant's benefit, or of defendant's interest in property so held or of the debt or demand owing to defendant, as the case requires. If certificate is refused, or there is reason to suspect that it is untrue or fails fully to set forth the facts, an order may be made directing such persons to be examined under oath concerning the same. (C. P. §§ 650, 651.) Books of account, vouchers, and papers relating to attached property may be seized. (C. P. § 644.) Sheriff collects debts and reduces choses in action to possession, preserves property, but cannot sell, unless property is perishable, until execution on judgment in plaintiff's favor is issued. If action is commenced without personal service of summons and without appearance, sheriff, or plaintiff in his name and sheriff's jointly, may before judgment compel discovery of debtor's property, and may maintain any action against debtor and others that judgment creditor might maintain. (C. P. §§ 655, 656, 674.) Attachments have priority according to time of delivery to the sheriff. Insolvency proceedings do not affect attachment. If property levied upon is claimed by a person other than defendant, and a sheriff's jury determines in favor of claimant, plaintiff may give undertaking with two sureties to indemnify the sheriff for the detention of such property, in which case the sheriff detains the property as belonging to the defendant, leaving the claimant to his action, but upon application by the claimant made within five days after levy of the attachment accompanied by an undertaking to indemnify the sheriff, the judge must discharge the attachment. (C. P. §§ 657, 658 a, 1419.) By C. P. §§ 658, 1419, in New York County, justification of indemnitors and court's approval of undertaking relieve sheriff from liability by reason of seizure. If action is brought by claimant against sheriff, upon an order of the court, indemnitors may be substituted as defendants. (C. P. § 1421.) A transfer of tangible property may be thus attacked on the ground of fraud. Fraud in the transfer is a sufficient defense in an action by claimant against the sheriff and his indemnitors. In cases of bonds, notes, instruments for the payment of money, and other choses in action, however, no levy can be made after transfer by defendant, even though transfer was fraudulent. In such case, choses in action can be reached only by creditor's bill. (Thurber v. Blanck, 50 N. Y. 80; Anthony v. Wood, 96 N. Y. 180.) Defendant, or any person who has acquired a lien upon or interest in property after it has been attached, may at any time before its actual application to the payment of a judgment recovered in the action apply to vacate or modify the warrant, or to increase the security given by plaintiff. Such application may be made upon the papers on which the warrant was granted, or upon proof by affidavit on the part of the defendant, in which latter case it may be opposed by proof on plaintiff's part tending to sustain any ground of attachment recited in the warrant and no other, unless defendant relies upon a discharge in bankruptcy or insolvent proceedings, in which case plaintiff may show matter in avoidance thereof. (C. P. §§ 682, 683.) Defendant may at any time after he has appeared obtain discharge of attachment by giving security equal to plaintiff's demand or the value of the property attached or to value of portion for which discharge is asked. If application made after final judgment, defendant must give security required to perfect appeal to court of appeals. (C. P. §§ 687, 688.) If warrant is levied upon interest of one partner in partnership property, any of the other partners not defendants in the action may obtain a discharge of the same on giving undertaking to pay the amount of any judgment which may be recovered against defendant partner, in a sum not less than the value of such defendant's interest. (C. P. §§ 693, 694.) A warrant of attachment is annulled when the action in which it was granted abates or is discontinued, or a final judgment in favor of plaintiff is fully paid, or is rendered in favor of defendant. In the case last specified, stay of proceedings suspends effect of annulment, and reversal or vacating of judgment revives warrant. (C. P. § 3343.) Judgment in action in which warrant issued must be satisfied (1) from personal property attached; (2) from personal property unattached; (3) from real property attached; (4) from real property unattached. (C. P. § 1370.)

Chattel Mortgages and Conditional Sales.—Every mortgage, and conveyance intended to operate as a mortgage, of goods and chattels, unaccompanied by immediate delivery and not followed by an actual and continued change of possession, is absolutely void as against mortgagor's creditors (including those whose claims antedate the mortgage, 136 N. Y. 316), and as against subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, unless the mortgage or a true copy thereof is filed in the town or city where mortgagor resides at the time of execution; or, if not a resident of the State, in the town or city where the property mortgaged is at such time. But this law does not apply to agreements for lien on stocks where the stocks are to be delivered on same day. (C. L. c. 33, §§ 230, 232; L. 1915, c. 27; L. 1916, c. 348.) In the city of New York, including Brooklyn, it must be filed in the register's office in the appropriate county; in other cities and towns having a county clerk's office, in such office; in all others, in the office of the city or town clerk, if no county clerk is there. (C. L. 33, §§ 92, 95, 232, 235; L. 1915, co. 27, 608.) For special provisions relating to the county of Bronx, see L. 1915, c. 608. Mortgage must be promptly filed. (136 N. Y. 316.) If more than one mortgagor, the mortgage, or a certified copy, must be filed in each city or town in the State where each mortgagor resides at such time. Mortgages so filed cease to be valid against creditors of mortgagor, and against subsequent bona fide purchasers or mortgagees, after the expiration of the first or any succeeding term of one year, reckoning from the time of the first filing, unless, (1) within thirty days next preceding the expiration of each such term a statement containing a description of such mortgage, the names of the parties, the time when and place where filed, the interest of the mortgagee or of any person who has succeeded to his interest in the property claimed by virtue thereof, or, (2) a copy of such mortgage and its indorsements, together with a statement attached thereto or indorsed thereon, showing the interest of the mortgagee or of any person who has succeeded to his interest in the mortgage, is filed in the proper office in the city or town where the mortgagor then resides, if he is then a resident of the town or city where the mortgage or copy thereof or such statement was last filed; if not such resident, but a resident of the State, a true copy of such mortgage, together with such statement, shall be filed in the proper office of the city or town where he then resides; and if not a resident of the State, then in the proper office of the city or town where the property so mortgaged was at the time of the execution of the mortgage. Where chattels mortgaged were in the city of New York when mortgage was executed, a copy thereof and its indorsements and a statement attached or indorsed, showing mortgagee's interest or a successor's, must be filed in the same office where original mortgage or copy was filed. Except in New York City, the officer with whom such statement or copy is filed must give receipt on request. (C. L. c. 33, §§ 92, 95, 232, 235; L. 1915, cc. 27, 608.) Mortgages on canal-boats, steam-tugs, scows, or other craft navigating the canals of the State, are filed as above provided, in the office of the comptroller. Refiling is not necessary. Chattel mortgages need not be under seal. If not filed as above provided, they are void as against existing creditors, and as against subsequent creditors before filing, irrespective of notice, and against subsequent purchasers or mortgagees without notice. Such mortgages are valid between the parties. Mortgages may be made of property to be acquired. (McCaffrey v. Woodin, 65 N. Y. 459.) Any person who fraudulently sells, assigns, secretes, or otherwise disposes of personal property mortgaged by him shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three times the value of the property so disposed of, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or both by fine and imprisonment. (L. 1871, c. 77.) Chattel mortgages may be discharged of record by filing certificate executed by mortgagee, his assignee or legal representative, that mortgage is satisfied.

Conditional Sales. — A vendee of personal property sold upon the express condition that title shall not pass until the purchase price is fully paid, although in possession, cannot give title to bona fide purchaser. (Ballard v. Burgett, 40 N. Y. 314.) If, after sale, delivery is made upon condition that it shall not become complete until purchase price is paid, the purchaser may nevertheless pass title to a bona fide transferee. (Comer v. Cunningham, 77 N. Y. 391.) The distinction is between conditional sale and conditional delivery. Sales on the installment plan generally come under first class. But in every contract for the conditional sale of chattels, accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by actual and continued change of possession, all conditions and reservations providing that ownership of goods and chattels is to remain in vendor or other person than vendee until said chattels are paid for, or until the occurrence of a future event or contingency, are absolutely void as against subsequent purchasers, pledgees, and mortgagees in good faith, and as to them sales are deemed absolute, unless the contract for sale with said conditions and reservations, or a true copy thereof, is filed in the town or city where vendee resides at the time of the execution of such contract, or, if not a resident of the State, in the town or city where the property is at the time. Every contract for the sale of chattels attached or to be attached to a building is void against subsequent purchasers or incumbrancers of the premises unless such contract containing a description of the premises is filed with the register of the city or county, or with the county clerk of the county (where there is no register), in which the premises are situated. In the city of New York and in the county of Kings, such instruments must be filed in the register's office; in other cities and towns where there is a county clerk's office, in such office; and in other towns, in the office of the town clerk. The provisions (supra) as to the filing, etc., and the discharge of record of chattel mortgages apply to conditional sales. Whenever articles are sold upon the condition that the title thereto shall remain in the vendor, or in some other person than the vendee, until the payment of the purchase price, or until the occurrence of a future event or contingency, and the same are retaken by the vendor or his successor in interest, they shall be retained for a period of thirty days from the time of such retaking, and during such period the vendee, or his successor in interest, may comply with the terms of such contract, and thereupon receive such property. After the expiration of such period such articles may be sold at public auction. Unless such articles are so sold within thirty days after the expiration of such period, the vendee or his successor in interest may recover of the vendor the amount paid on such articles under the contract for the conditional sale thereof. (L. 1909, c. 45; C. L. c. 41, § 65.) But not less than fifteen days before such sale printed or written notice thereof must be served personally upon the vendee or his successor in interest, or, if he is not within the county where the sale is to be held, such notice must be mailed to him at his last known place of residence. The notice must state the terms of the contract, the amount unpaid thereon, the amount of expenses of storage, and the time and place of sale, unless such amounts are sooner paid. The proceeds of the sale are to be applied to the amount due on the contract and expenses incurred, and the surplus is to be held for the vendee for thirty days, when it is to be deposited with the treasurer or chamberlain of the city or village, or the supervisor of the town, where the sale is held, if in the mean time it has not been demanded. A sale by the conditional vendee passes merely his right to complete the payments and acquire title to the property conditionally sold. He has no leviable interest in the property until the price is fully paid. (85 Hun, 125.) Conditional sales of railroad equipment and rolling stock, to be valid against subsequent judgment creditors and bona fide purchasers from the vendee, lessee, or bailee, must be in writing, duly acknowledged and recorded in the book in which real estate mortgages are recorded in the county in which is located the principal office or place of business of the vendee, lessee, or bailee, and each locomotive or car so sold must have the name of the vendor, lessor, or bailor, or of his assignee, plainly marked upon both sides thereof, followed by the word owner, lessor, bailor, or assignee, as the case may be.

Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons. — The surviving husband or wife and children are entitled to have certain wearing apparel and furniture awarded them exempt from the claim of creditors, but are entitled to no other allowance in case the estate is insolvent. (C. P. §§ 2670–2671.)

Executor or administrator shall pay out of the first moneys received, the reasonable funeral expenses of the deceased which have preference over all claims against deceased. It must be paid within sixty days after letters are granted. (C. P. § 2686.)

Executors or administrators must pay debts of deceased in the following order: 1st, debts preferred under the laws of the United States and the State of New York; 2d, taxes assessed previous to death; 3d, judgments docketed and decrees enrolled according to priority; 4th, all recognisances, bonds, sealed instruments, notes, bills, and unliquidated demands and accounts. Debts not due may be paid after deducting rebate of interest for unexpired term. Debts due have no preference over debts not due, and debts to executor or administrator have no preference over other debts of the same class. The commencement of a suit or recovery of a judgment against an executor or administrator gives no priority. Preference may be given, in surrogate's discretion, to rents accruing on leases held by deceased. At any time after letters are granted, executor or administrator may publish a notice once a week for six months in a newspaper of the county, and in such other newspapers as surrogate deems most likely to give notice to creditors, requiring all persons having claims against deceased to exhibit the same with vouchers to such executor or administrator, at his place of residence or business therein specified, at or before the day named, which shall be at least six months after first publication. (C. P. §§ 2677, 2682.)

A claim presented should be accompanied with proper vouchers and affidavit that it is justly due, that no payments have been made thereon, and that there are no offsets against the same to the knowledge of the claimant. In case of suit brought upon a claim not so presented within six months after first publication, or, if no notice be published within one year after the date of issue of letters, executor or administrator is not chargeable for assets theretofore disbursed. (C. P. §§ 2677, 2678.) If the claim presented is disputed or rejected, claimant must sue executor or administrator within three months after the dispute or rejection, or, if debt is not due, within two months after part thereof becomes due, or be barred from every other remedy to enforce payment, and in such case the claim shall be tried and determined upon the judicial settlement. (C. P. § 2681.) No legacy shall be paid before the completion of the publication of notice to creditors, or, if none be published, until a year after letters are granted, unless otherwise directed by the will or by special decree of surrogate, and in such case a bond may be given conditioned that the legacy shall be refunded if needed to pay debts. Bequests of specific articles of property other than securities may be delivered at any time in discretion of the executor. (C. P. § 2688.) Where an account is judicially settled and any part of the estate or fund remains and is ready to be distributed, the decree must direct the payment and distribution thereof to the persons entitled according to their respective rights. (C. P. § 2735.) If there be not sufficient assets, an abatement of the general legacies shall be made in equal proportion, such payment being enforced by the surrogate. (C. P. § 2688.) An intermediate accounting is compulsory, at any time after letters issued, by special proceeding upon a petition for a judicial settlement of the executor's or administrator's account, or by direction of the surrogate. (C. P. § 2721.) If legatee is a minor and has no general guardian, legacy shall be paid into or deposited with the surrogate's court. Legacy to a minor under the value of one hundred and fifty dollars may be paid to the father, mother, or some competent person, for the use of the minor. If of the value of one hundred and fifty dollars or more, surrogate may direct payment to general guardian of minor, if proper security given. Otherwise, legacy is invested in permanent securities under direction of surrogate, interest on which may be directed to be used for minor's support. If assets are insufficient to pay all legacies, general legacies abate ratably. (C. P. §§ 2688, 2739.)

For collateral inheritance tax, see Descent and Distribution.

Where a person dies seized of lands after making contract for their conveyance, his executor or administrator may make a deed reciting the contract and conveying the lands. The executor or administrator, or the vendee or his successor in interest, may file petition to confirm the deed, or for a decree that such deed be made. Persons interested shall be cited. A deed delivered in pursuance to these provisions is valid to convey decedent's interest. (C. P. § 2697.)

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Composition Deeds. — A joint debtor may make separate composition with his creditor, who must execute release to the one compounding. A member of a partnership cannot thus compound for a partnership debt until the partnership has been dissolved. In such case, instrument executed must exonerate him from all liability incurred in connection with the partnership. Such composition releases only the debtor making it, and rights against remaining joint debtors are unimpaired unless an intent to discharge latter appears affirmatively upon the face of the composition agreement. (L. 1909, c. 17; C. L. c. 12, §§ 230, 231.)

Conditional Sales. — See Chattel Mortgages.

Consignments. — Common law rules govern, with few exceptions. The consignor remains the general owner of the goods, subject to consignee's lien for advances. A factor may himself sue for the price of consigned goods sold, if the contract is made in his name though the consignor be known to vendee. (C. P. § 449.) Pledges of consigned goods to a bona fide pledgee for the factor's own debt are valid against the owner if the factor is voluntarily intrusted with documentary evidence of title, or with possession of the merchandise for purpose of sale, or as security for advances. (See 119 N. Y. 380.) A factor thus wrongfully pledging goods for his own debt is liable to civil arrest (see Arrest), and guilty of larceny. (Penal Code, § 1528.) A factor may sell consigned goods, contrary to consignor's instructions, to liquidate his advances, after repayment thereof has been demanded and refused. (Marfield v. Goodhue, 3 N. Y. 62.) A factor can sue consignor only for balance of advances after proceeds of consigned goods have been exhausted. (Gibon v. Stanton, 9 N. Y. 476.)

Corporations. — Corporations may be formed under general laws, but not by special act, except for municipal purposes, and where in the judgment of the legislature the object of the corporation cannot be otherwise attained. The legislature cannot grant special charters for banking purposes. (Const. art. 8, §§ 1, 4.) Business corporations are now governed by chapters 4, 23, and 59 of the C. L.

General Corporation Law. (L. 1909, c. 28; C. L. c. 23.) — All corporations are either (1) municipal; (2) stock, comprising moneyed (i. e. banking and insurance), transportation (railway or otherwise), and business corporations; (3) non-stock, comprising religious and membership (including benevolent and memorial) corporations; or (4) mixed (i. e. those which may or may not have capital stock at their option), comprising cemetery, library, coöperative, board of trade, agricultural, and horticultural corporations. All incorporators must be natural adult persons, two thirds citizens of the United States, and at least one a resident of New York. The name of a corporation other than a religious or charitable corporation must clearly indicate its corporate character. Certificates of incorporation of all corporations, except moneyed, municipal, fire department, religious, and cemetery corporations, must be filed in the office of the secretary of state and with the clerk of the county where principal place of business is situated. When a certificate of other than stock corporation must be filed in two or more public offices, certified copies of the filed original may be used. Defects in certificates may be corrected by filing an amended certificate, or by application to the court if necessary to set forth corporate object and purpose. No corporation shall exercise any corporate power until all fees and taxes on incorporation have been paid. All corporations are granted the usual powers of succession, to have a common seal, to acquire by grant, gift, purchase, devise, or bequest, and to hold and dispose of such property as corporate purposes require, not to exceed the amount limited by law, and (excepting municipal corporations) to appoint necessary agents and officers, and make by-laws governing the management of property, regulation of affairs, transfer of stock, the calling of meetings, and necessary stockholders' quorum, together with the powers necessarily incident to the foregoing. Non-stock corporations may take and hold property to any amount unless there is a limitation upon them contained in some general or special law heretofore passed, or in some certificate of incorporation. If there be such a limitation, then they can hold property of the value of ten million dollars or less or yielding a yearly income of one million or less, notwithstanding any such limitation. Domestic corporations transacting business in foreign states and countries may acquire and convey necessary real property therein. Corporations other than banking corporations are prohibited from exercising banking powers, or using words like bank, trust, casualty, surety, etc., in their names unless incorporated under the insurance law. Stockholders can vote to close transfer books not over forty days before the next stockholders' meeting. Cumulative voting for directors is permitted. Except as otherwise provided, every member of a corporation, except religious corporations, may vote at any meeting by written proxy, which, unless otherwise specified, becomes invalid in eleven months from execution, and is meantime revocable at pleasure. Voters at meetings in person or by proxy may be challenged and required to take oath of the existence of the above-mentioned qualifications. The supreme court has power to inquire in a summary way concerning corporate elections, and to grant necessary relief. At least one director of every corporation shall be a citizen of the United States and a resident of this State. Corporations are not dissolved by failure to elect directors at times fixed for the election. A special meeting may be called for this purpose. Upon dissolution of a corporation, its directors shall be trustees for the creditors and stockholders with full power to settle the corporate affairs. All corporations, except railroad, turnpike, plank road, and bridge companies, must be organized and commence business within two years from date of incorporation, or their corporate powers shall cease. Provision is made for the extension of corporate existence at the will of two thirds of the stockholders or members thereof, and for revival of corporate existence when immatured bonds are unpaid. A corporation or joint-stock company is forbidden to contribute money or property for political purposes. A director or officer may be compelled to account for or refund property improperly appropriated or wasted; or be suspended or removed for misconduct; and his improper alienation of property set aside or restrained. (L. 1909, c. 28, § 90; C. L. c. 23.)

Stock Corporation Law. (L. 1909, c. 61; C. L. c. 59.) — A stock corporation is a corporation having capital stock divided into shares, and which is authorized by law to pay dividends from surplus profits. All subscriptions to capital stock must be accompanied by cash payment of ten per cent. of the amount subscribed. Stock subscribed and all payments thereon may be forfeited by failure to pay subsequent installments as directors may require. In addition to powers conferred by the General Corporation Law (supra), every stock corporation has power to borrow money; any stock corporation other than a banking or insurance corporation may now mortgage its property in any amount. And to contract debts when necessary for prosecution of business or for exercise of corporate rights or lawful purposes of incorporation, and to issue and dispose of its obligations for any amount so borrowed, and, upon written consent, acknowledged and filed, of two thirds of stockholders, to mortgage its property and franchises to secure payment of such obligations or debts. Authorized mortgage obligations may be convertible into corporate stock after two and not more than twelve years after the mortgage was given. Special provisions are made for reorganization after foreclosure, judicial and execution sales of corporate property and franchises, and for alteration of business and powers of existing corporations, so as to include any purposes and powers which may have originally been conferred in the certificate of incorporation, and for increase or reduction of capital stock or of the number of shares. Consent of two thirds of the holders of capital stock at a meeting called for the purpose is necessary to issue preferred stock, if charter does not provide for it, or unanimous consent of the stockholders in writing, to be filed with secretary of state and county clerk, cannot be obtained. With the consent of two thirds of the stock, the corporate property and franchises of a corporation other than a railroad corporation may be sold to a domestic corporation engaged in business of same general character, dissenting stockholders being paid appraised value of their stock. Directors shall be stockholders unless otherwise provided in the certificate or in a by-law adopted by a stockholders' meeting, and at least one fourth shall be elected annually. Vacancies in the board shall be filled as prescribed by the by-laws. Officers and agents are appointed by the directors. Domestic stock corporations and foreign stock corporations doing business within the State are prohibited from combining with any other corporation or persons to create a monopoly or an unlawful restraint of trade, or to prevent competitions in any necessary of life; from declaring dividends except from surplus profits of business or from net assets on dissolution; from in any way paying to stockholders any part of the capital, or from reducing the capital, except as prescribed by law; from issuing stock or bonds except at a fair valuation and for money, labor done, or property actually received for the lawful use of such corporation; and from making any transfer of any of its property or any payment, or suffering any judgment or creating any lien or security when actually or imminently insolvent, with the intent of preferring particular creditors, and from making any direct or indirect transfer of property to any officers, directors, or stockholders, upon any other consideration than its full value paid in cash. Stock corporations, other than money corporations, are prohibited from making any loans to stockholders and from discounting any notes or evidences of debt, or receiving the same in payment of stock installments, or to enable any stockholder to withdraw any moneys paid in by him on his stock. No banking corporation shall make any transfer of its property, exceeding in value one thousand dollars, except promissory notes and other evidences of debt and specie payments made by its officers in the ordinary course of business, without a previous resolution of the directors. Stock corporation, domestic or foreign, other than money corporation, by its original and supplementary certificate of incorporation, may be authorized to acquire, hold, and dispose of stocks and bonds of any domestic and foreign corporation in exchange for its own stocks, bonds, or obligations, or may so acquire, hold, and dispose of the stock of any corporation engaged in similar business, or in the manufacture, use, or sale of property, or the construction and operation of works, necessary or useful, in the business of such corporation, or in connection with which the product or property of such corporation is or may be used, or with which such corporation may be authorized to consolidate, and the officers of such stockholding corporations are eligible as directors in such other corporations, with same powers as any individual stockholder. All acts of directors holding over after the first year, because of their neglect to provide by the by-laws for an annual election of directors, designed to charge upon the corporation any liability for services of such directors, officers, attorneys, or counsel appointed by them, are fraudulent and void. All directors assenting to, declaring, or paying any dividend, or permitting capital stock to be impaired in violation of the above provisions, are jointly and severally liable to the corporation and to creditors for the full amount of capital so withdrawn or reduced. Directors consenting to the creation of any unsecured debt, in excess of paid-up capital stock, or to overissues or unlawful issues of secured corporate bonds and obligations, are personally liable for the amount of such obligations, and for all damages sustained by the holders thereof. Officers or directors loaning corporate funds to stockholders or receiving or discounting stockholders' papers in violation of the above prohibitions are jointly and severally liable to the extent of such loan and interest for all corporate debts contracted before repayment of the sum loaned, and to the full amount of the notes or other evidences of debt so illegally received or discounted, with interest. All directors and officers concerned in making prohibited transfers of corporate property are personally liable to corporate creditors and stockholders for any loss sustained respectively thereby. Every stock corporation shall keep correct books of the corporate business, and a stock book, showing names and residences of all stockholders, number of shares held by them respectively, time when they became the owners thereof, and amount paid thereon, which book shall be open to all the judgment creditors and to stockholders who have been such for six months, or who hold five per cent. of the stock, or who are authorized by holders of five per cent., who may make extracts therefrom; or in default thereof the corporation shall forfeit to the People fifty dollars for every day it shall neglect to keep such books open for inspection, and to any parties injured fifty dollars for every such neglect, and all damages sustained. Any officer or agent neglecting to make proper entries in said books, or to exhibit the same, or to allow them to be inspected and extracts taken therefrom, shall incur the same penalty to any party injured. Transfers of stocks are not valid, except to impose liability upon transferee, until duly entered in stock book. Every stock corporation, domestic and foreign, except moneyed and railroad corporations, shall annually during January, or, if doing business without the United States, before May 1, make a report as of January 1, stating the amount of its capital stock, the proportion actually issued, the amount of its debts, or their maximum limit, the amount of its assets, or their minimum limit, and the names and addresses of all directors and officers, and if a foreign corporation, the person designated upon whom process may be served. (L. 1909, c. 61; C. L. c. 59, §§ 16, 34; C. P. 432.) The report must be signed by the president, vice-president, secretary, or treasurer, and is filed in the secretary's of state office. If not so made and filed, any such officer who refuses within ten days after written request by a creditor or stockholder shall forfeit fifty dollars a day to the People. All officers and directors signing any certificate, report, or public notice containing false material representations are jointly and severally liable to any person who has become a creditor or stockholder upon the faith of such paper or representation, therein communicated to him directly or indirectly, for all loss and damage sustained thereby, irrespective of the ignorance of such officer or director of the falsity of the statement. (Huntington v. Attrill, 118 N. Y. 365.) See, also, infra, Foreign Corporations. Stockholders are jointly and severally liable for all debts due any creditor, servant, or employee, other than contractors, for service performed, if notified of the claim in writing within thirty days after the termination of such service, and if action be commenced within thirty days after return of execution unsatisfied against the corporation upon a judgment for such service. (158 N. Y. 157, 526.) Stockholders are liable not to exceed amount unpaid on stock held by them and not for its par value (155 N. Y. 145), and only for corporate debts contracted while such unpaid stock was so held. But stockholders in corporations organized under the bank law, or subject to it, are liable for an amount equal to the face of their stock in addition to the amount invested. Persons holding stock as collateral or in representative capacity are not subject to this liability; but the pledgors, and estates and funds represented, are chargeable. If trustees voluntarily invest trust funds in such stock, they are personally liable. Stockholders are not liable for any corporate debt unless payable within two years from the time it is contracted, nor unless suit is commenced against the corporation within two years after maturity and judgment is recovered and execution issued and returned wholly or partly unsatisfied. No action shall be brought against a stockholder for any corporate debt unless brought within two years from the time he has ceased to be stockholder. Stockholders owning five per cent. of stock of any other than moneyed corporation, or three per cent. if capital exceeds one hundred thousand dollars, may require a verified detailed statement of the company's financial condition upon thirty days' notice. The owner of a lost or destroyed certificate of stock may compel issuance of duplicate upon application. During pendency of foreclosure of any corporate mortgage, a stockholder may become pro tanto interested in and protected by such mortgage by paying to the mortgagee such part of the amount due as is proportionate to his holding of stock. All transfers of stock by stockholders to any persons in contemplation of the company's insolvency are void. Stock may be issued without par value for fair market value or such consideration as shall be consented to by two-thirds of stock outstanding, or as may be prescribed in the certificate of incorporation.

Business Corporation Law. (C. L. c. 4.) — Three or more persons may become a stock corporation for any lawful business purposes other than a moneyed corporation, or a corporation provided for by the banking, the insurance, the railroad, and the transportation corporation laws, by signing, acknowledging, and filing a certificate containing the name of the corporation, the purposes for which it is formed, the amount of its capital stock, common and preferred, the number of shares, each of which shall not be less than five nor more than one hundred dollars, and the amount of capital, not less than five hundred dollars, with which the corporation will begin business, the location of its principal business office, its duration, the number of its directors, not less than three, the names and post-office addresses of the directors for the first year; and the post-office addresses of the subscribers and a statement of the number of shares of stock which each agrees to take. The certificate may contain any other provision regulating the company's business and affairs, and limiting its powers and those of the directors and stockholders, which does not exempt them from the performance of any obligation or duty imposed by law. No such corporation shall incur any debts until the amount of capital specified in its certificate of incorporation, as the amount of capital with which it will begin business, shall have been paid in in money or property. One half of the capital stock of such corporation shall be paid in within one year from incorporation or the corporation shall be dissolved, and a certificate to that effect, signed and acknowledged by a majority of the directors, and verified by the president or vice-president and secretary or treasurer, shall be filed within thirty days after such payment. Any corporation organized under this act may become a full liability corporation, rendering all its stockholders severally and individually liable to its creditors for all debts and liabilities, by a statement to that effect in the certificate of incorporation, or by filing a supplemental certificate, executed and acknowledged by the president and treasurer, or by the board of directors, together with a resolution, adopted by a two-thirds vote of the board of directors and the written consent of all the stockholders of the corporation, authorizing and consenting to the change. Provision is made for the reorganization under this act of existing corporations, and for the consolidation of two or more business corporations carrying on business of a similar nature.

The liabilities of directors and stockholders of all stock corporations enumerated above apply to those of corporations formed under this act.

Expense of Organization. — Every stock corporation formed under any law of this State must pay to the state treasurer, before it can have any corporate powers, a tax of one twentieth of one per cent. upon its authorized capital stock (minimum tax ten dollars), or five cents a share on non par value stock (L. 1917, cc. 493, 501), and a like tax upon any subsequent increase thereof for the privilege of organization. State and national banks, building, mutual loan, accumulating fund, and coöperative associations are excepted from this provision. (L. 1909, c. 62; C. L. c. 60.)

Taxes. — For the privilege of doing business or exercising its corporate franchises in this State, every corporation, joint stock company, or association doing business in this State, except banks, savings banks, savings institutions, title guaranty, insurance, or surety corporations, trust companies organized or authorized under a law of this State, laundry corporations, manufacturing corporations to the extent only of the capital actually employed in this State in manufacturing and in a sale of the product so manufactured, mining corporations, wholly engaged in mining ores within this State, agricultural and horticultural societies or associations and corporations, joint stock companies or associations operating elevated railroads, or surface railroads not operated by steam, or formed for supplying water or gas or for electric or steam heating, lighting, or power purposes, and liable to a tax under L. 1909, c. 62; C. L. c. 60, §§ 185, 186, shall pay annually in advance a state tax to be computed upon the basis of the amount of its capital stock employed during the preceding year within the State as stated below; the measure of capital stock employed in this State to be the proportion of gross assets employed in this State to gross assets wherever employed.

If the dividends declared by such company during any year ending October 31 amount to six per cent. or more upon the par value of its capital stock, then the tax must be one quarter of a mill for each one per cent. of dividend so declared; or if dividends declared do not amount to six per cent. as aforesaid, and if assets do not exceed liabilities, excluding capital stock, or if average selling price of stock did not equal or exceed par, or if no dividend was declared, then tax must be three fourths of one mill per dollar of the amount of capital stock employed in this State determined as above. If such dividend is less than six per cent. and if assets exceed liabilities, excluding capital stock, by amount equal to or greater than par value of capital stock, or if the average selling price of such stock was equal to or greater than par, the rate is one and one half mills per dollar of the valuation of the capital stock employed in this State, but such valuation shall not be less than (1) its par value, (2) the difference between assets and liabilities, excluding capital stock, (3) the average selling price during said year. Corporations having more than one kind of capital stock are taxed upon each stock in accordance with the dividends paid thereon, as above provided. The tax must be paid on or before January 15. As a basis of valuation, officers are required to furnish verified statements of the company's condition. Their examination may be compelled at instance of state tax department. (L. 1909, c. 62; C. L. c. 60, §§ 181-185; L. 1915, c. 317, § 179; and see L. 1910, c. 340, L. 1915, c. 317, and L. 1917, c. 490, amending § 181 as to license tax on foreign corporations.)

In case dividend is less than six per cent. and assets exceed liabilities, excluding capital stock, by amount equal to a greater than par value of capital stock, or if average selling price of stock during past years equals or exceeds capital stock at par, officer shall forward to state tax department an appraisal which shall not be less than a specified minimum. (L. 1909, c. 62; C. L. c. 60, §§ 181-185.)

Corporations not taxable as above shall be taxed at least one and one half mills per dollar of capital stock.

But by L. 1917, c. 726, mercantile and manufacturing corporations, except transportation and public utility corporations liable to tax under §§ 184, 185, or 186 of C. L. c. 60, shall pay a franchise tax of three per cent of their net income, payable January first, and are exempt from personal property tax, capital stock tax of § 12, and above franchise tax of §§ 182 and 183, and reports of §§ 27, and 192.

By L. 1917, c. 707, investment companies are taxable one and one-half mills per dollar of capital stock and one per cent on surplus and undivided profits.

Stock transfers. — A tax of two cents on each share of one hundred dollars of face value or fraction thereof is imposed on all sales, agreements to sell, and memoranda of sale of shares in any corporation, except where shares are issued without designated monetary value, in which cases tax is two cents for each share. The tax is paid by means of stamps on the books of the company; or affixed to the transfer certificate, bill, or memorandum of sale or agreement when not transferred directly on the books. The comptroller may refund tax erroneously paid. He has power to ascertain whether tax has been paid. (L. 1909, c. 62; C. L. c. 60, 276.) A transfer of stock without such payment is a misdemeanor, and there is an additional civil penalty of not less than five hundred or more than one thousand dollars. No sale without payment of the tax can be made the basis of any action or legal proceeding. Each seller of stock shall record the transaction and date.

Apart from the above provisions, the general scheme of taxation of corporate property other than real estate is to assess the capital at its actual value, and the surplus fund, deducting therefrom the value of real estate, and shares of other corporations held by them which are liable to taxation. Real estate is assessed in the town or ward where situated; personal estate by the assessment of the entire capital and surplus, as aforesaid, without regard to the situs of the property.

Dissolution. — Involuntary. — In either of the following cases an action to procure a judgment dissolving a corporation may be maintained: First, where the corporation has remained insolvent for at least one year; second, where it has neglected or refused for at least one year to pay its notes or other evidences of debt; third, where it has suspended its ordinary business for at least one year; fourth, if it has banking powers, where it becomes insolvent or has violated any provision of the act under which it was incorporated.

The action may be maintained by the attorney-general in the name of the People, or if the attorney-general fails to bring the action for sixty days after receiving from a creditor or stockholder a written statement of facts, verified by oath, showing the grounds for an action, such creditor or stockholder may apply to the proper court for leave to commence such an action and then sue accordingly. (C. L. c. 23, §§ 101, 102; L. 1912, c. 204.) The attorney-general, whenever he is so directed by the legislature, must bring an action for the dissolution of the corporation. (L. 1909, c. 28; C. L. c. 23, § 130.) The attorney-general must bring an action for the dissolution of a corporation whenever, in his opinion, the public interests require it, under the preceding provisions. (C. L. c. 23, § 304.) (General provision relating to involuntary dissolution, L. 1909, c. 28; C. L. c. 23, §§ 90, 309.)

Voluntary. — Dissolution of a corporation may be effected by a petition of the directors, trustees, or other officers in certain cases; if the assets of the corporation are not sufficient to pay all just debts, or afford a reasonable security to those who may deal with it, or if the directors deem it beneficial to the interests of the stockholders that the corporation should be dissolved, they may present a petition to the supreme court praying for a final order dissolving the corporation. (L. 1909, c. 28; C. L. c. 23, §§ 170–173.) The petition must contain seven certain schedules setting forth its assets and liabilities. (L. 1909, cc. 28, 240; C. L. c. 23, §§ 174, 175.) In case a corporation is solvent, no receiver need be appointed. (L. 1916, c. 53; C. L. c. 23, § 191.) Any stock corporation, except a moneyed or railroad corporation, may be dissolved upon favorable action, first by a majority of the board of directors and then by two thirds of the stockholders. Certain prescribed notice must be given of the meeting of both directors and stockholders. The corporation shall then file its consent and also consent of stockholders in office of secretary of state. Thereupon secretary of state issues certificate of the filing of such papers and corporation is dissolved. After paying debts of corporation, directors on consent of two thirds of stockholders may sell remaining assets to another corporation for bonds and stock of that corporation. (L. 1909, c. 28; C. L. c. 23, § 221; 160 N. Y. 500.)

Foreign Corporations. — No foreign stock corporation, other than a moneyed corporation, shall do business in this State without first procuring from the secretary of state a certificate that it has complied with all the requirements hereinafter stated, and that the business of the corporation to be carried on here is such as may be lawfully carried on by one or more corporations incorporated under the laws of this State for such or similar business. No action shall be maintained or recovery had in the courts of this State without having procured receipt for license fee within thirteen months of time of beginning business. No foreign stock corporation doing business in New York can sue here on a contract made here unless it has procured such certificate prior to the making of the contract. This applies to an assignee of the corporation or a person claiming through either. (C. L. c. 23, § 15; L. 1917, c. 594.) Selling goods through a factor within the State is not covered by this prohibition where sales are in factor's name. (7 Misc. 123.) Before granting such certificate, such foreign corporation must file in the office of the secretary of state a sworn copy of its charter or certificate of incorporation, and a statement, under its corporate seal, particularly setting forth its business or objects, or what is proposed to be carried on by it within the State, and its principal place of business within the State, and designating, as prescribed by section 16 of the General Corporation Law, a person upon whom process against the corporation may be served within this State, which person must have an office or place of business within the State where the principal place of business of such corporation is located. (L. 1909, c. 28, C. L. c. 23, § 16.) Every foreign corporation (except banking and fire, marine, casualty and life insurance companies, coöperative fraternal insurance companies, and building and loan associations) doing business in this State shall pay to the state treasurer a license fee of one eighth of one per cent. for the privilege of exercising its corporate franchises or carrying on its business in this State, to be computed upon the amount of capital stock employed within this State during its first year of business here and to be not less than ten dollars. Same license fee on increase of capital stock within this State. The measure of amount of capital stock employed in this State is the proportion of gross assets employed in the State to gross assets wherever employed. For these purposes capital invested in stock of another corporation is deemed assets located where property represented by such stock is located. All such foreign corporations hereafter authorized to do business within this State shall pay the same fee, computed on the capital stock employed during the first year of so doing business. This fee corresponds to the organization tax on domestic corporations above mentioned. Any foreign corporation doing business in New York created under the laws of the United States, or any State or Territory thereof or of any foreign state which borders on the United States and which by its laws confers similar privileges on New York corporations (L. 1910, c. 68), may acquire and convey necessary real property in this State, and any foreign corporation may purchase any real property within this State at a judicial or foreclosure sale pursuant to any mortgage held by it or judgment for debts due it, and may take by devise, and may hold such property for not to exceed five years thereafter, and convey by deed or otherwise in the same manner as a domestic corporation. This provision does not affect the right of foreign corporations to engage in real estate business in this State. (140 N. Y. 576.) As to annual reports and the keeping of a stock book, the requirements are substantially the same for foreign stock corporations, except moneyed and railroad corporations doing business with the State, as for domestic stock corporations. (L. 1909, c. 61; C. L. c. 59.) For these provisions see supra, under Stock Corporation Law.

Foreign insurance, mortgage, loan, coöperative loan and building, investment, and trust companies, desiring to carry on business within the State, and all foreign corporations receiving deposits of money or assuming obligations in this State, are under the supervision of the New York Insurance and Banking Departments, and must strictly comply with the provisions of the Banking, Insurance, and Trust Company Acts relating to filing of certificates, obtaining licenses, annual reports, making of deposits, etc. These provisions cannot be here set forth at length. See L. 1909, c. 10; C. L. c. 2, § 28.

Any corporation or person who acts as agent within the State of any foreign moneyed corporation, or of any foreign corporation represented to be moneyed, is guilty of a misdemeanor if such foreign corporation is not properly licensed and authorized to do business within the State. (L. 1909, c. 88; C. L. c. 40, § 663.)

For special provisions in reference to other classes or corporations, banking, railroad, insurance, etc., reference is made to L. 1909, cc. 10, 12, 25, 28, 33, 38-a, 38-b, 40, 53, 61, 219; C. L. cc. 2, 4, 20, 23, 28, 33, 35, 51, 59, 63.

Deeds. — Conveyances of a fee or freehold must be subscribed by the grantor or his lawful agent, and must be acknowledged previous to delivery, or execution and delivery must be attested by at least one witness. Conveyances take effect on delivery. Every conveyance, including a lease for more than three years, not recorded in the office of the clerk of the county in which the real estate is situated, or, in the counties of New York, Kings, and Westchester, in the office of the register, is void as against subsequent bona fide purchaser or incumbrancer for value whose conveyance is first duly recorded. To be recorded it must state the residence address of the purchaser (L. 1910, c. 227) and must be acknowledged by the party executing the same or proved by subscribing witness thereto as follows: —

(1.) Within the State, before a justice of the supreme court anywhere within the State; or, within the district wherein such officer is authorized to act officially, before a judge, clerk, deputy clerk, or special deputy clerk of a court, a notary public, or the mayor or recorder of a city, a justice of the peace, surrogate, special surrogate, special county judge, or commissioner of deeds.

(2.) Without the State and within the United States, before the following officers, acting within their jurisdiction: Judges of the United States courts, and of the supreme, superior, or circuit court of any State or Territory; mayors of cities, and commissioners of the State of New York; any officer of the State or Territory in which the acknowledgment is taken authorized by the laws thereof to take the acknowledgment or proof of deeds to be therein recorded; any officer of the District of Columbia authorized by the laws of the United States to take the acknowledgment or proof of deeds to be recorded in said district. A certificate of the commissioner must also state the day on which, and the city, town, and county in which such proof and acknowledgment was taken.

(3.) In Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands, Cuba, or in any other place over which the United States exercises sovereignty, before: 1. A judge or clerk of a court of record acting within his jurisdiction. 2. A mayor or other chief officer of a city acting in such city. 3. A commissioner appointed for the purpose by the governor of this State and acting within his jurisdiction. 4. An officer of the United States regular army or volunteer service, of the rank of captain or higher, or an officer of the United States navy of the rank of a lieutenant or higher while on duty at the place where such party or parties are or reside. Certificate of acknowledgment taken before any of the officers mentioned in sections 1, 2, or 3 must have attached thereto the seal of the court or officer, if he have a seal; and if such officer have no seal, then a statement to that effect. Certificate of acknowledgment taken before an officer mentioned in section 4 must state his rank, the name of the city or other political division where taken, and the fact that he is on duty there, and must be authenticated by the secretary of war or the secretary of the navy, as the case may be, of the United States. (L. 1909, c. 52; C. L. c. 50, § 300.)

minister plenipotentiary, minister extraordinary, minister resident, or chargé d'affaires of the United States residing and accredited within the country: (b) a consul-general, vice-consul-general, deputy-general, vice-consul, or deputy consul, a consular or vice-consular agent, a consul or commercial or vice-commercial agent of the United States residing within the country; or a secretary of legation at the post, port, place, or within the limits of his legation; (c) a commissioner of the State of New York acting within its jurisdiction; (d) a person specially authorized by a commission issued under the seal of the supreme court; (e) also, in the Dominion of Canada, before any judge of a court of record, or before any officer of a province or territory of such Dominion authorized by its laws to take the acknowledgment or proof of deeds to be therein recorded; (f) and, also, in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and its dominions, before the mayor, provost, or other chief magistrate of the city or town therein; (g) if in the German Empire or Italy before a judge of a court of record under the seal of such court, or before a notary public under the seal of his office, and of the city or town where he resides; (h) if within the empire of Austria, kingdom of Hungary, and kingdoms, states, territories, and provinces comprising the monarchy of Austria-Hungary, it may also be made before a judge or clerk of a court of record under the seal of such court or before an imperial royal notary or royal notary under the seal of his offices and the seal of the city or town in which such notary resides; (i) if within the kingdom of Norway, Sweden, or Denmark or dependencies, before a judge or clerk of a court of record, before a mayor, with the seal of the city, before a sheriff, before a notary with the seal of the city in which he resides, or before a consular agent of these kingdoms duly accredited to the place in which acknowledgment is taken. (C. L. c. 50, § 301; and additions of L. 1912, c. 70; L. 1915, c. 28; L. 1916, c. 395.)

A certificate of acknowledgment taken before a commissioner appointed by the governor, or before the mayor or other chief magistrate of a city or town without the United States, or before an officer specified in subdivisions (a) and (b) (supra), (except an ambassador, minister plenipotentiary, or minister extraordinary), must be under his seal of office or the seal of the consulate to which he is attached. (C. L. c. 50, § 308.) If the acknowledgment is taken before a commissioner of the State it must be authenticated by the secretary of state; if by a judge of a court of record in Canada, it must be authenticated by the clerk of the court; if by an officer of a State, or of the Dominion of Canada authorized by its laws to take the acknowledgment or proof of deeds to be recorded therein, it must be authenticated by the secretary of state of the State, the provincial secretary, deputy provincial secretary, assistant provincial secretary of the province, or commissioner of the territory of the Dominion of Canada, or the clerk, register, recorder, or prothonotary of the county, city, or parish in which the certificate purports to be made, or by the clerk of any court of that county, city, or parish having by law a seal. (C. L. c. 50, § 311; L. 1913, c. 209.)

The word county is to apply to and include the District of Columbia for purposes of this section.

If the acknowledgment is taken before a notary public, it must be authenticated by the clerk of the county where the notary resides. An acknowledgment before a commissioner of deeds must be authenticated by the city clerk, except that in the city of New York authentication must be by the clerk of a county in whose office has been filed a certificate executed by the city clerk. An officer authenticating the certificate of acknowledgment or proof must subjoin or attach to the original certificate a certificate under his hand, and if he has, pursuant to law, an official seal, under such seal. A clerk's certificate authenticating an acknowledgment taken before a judge of a court of record in Canada must specify that there is such a court; that the judge taking the acknowledgment or proof was, when it was taken, a judge thereof; that such court has a seal; that the officer authenticating is clerk thereof; that he is well acquainted with the handwriting of the said judge, and verily believes his signature is genuine. In all other cases such certificate of authentication must specify that at the time of taking the acknowledgment or proof the officer taking it was duly authorized to take the same; that the authenticating officer is acquainted with the former's handwriting, or has compared the signature to the original certificate with that deposited in his office by such officer, and that he verily believes the signature to the original certificate is genuine; and if the original certificate is required to be under seal, he must also certify that he has compared the impression of the seal affixed thereto with the impression of the seal of the officer who took the acknowledgment or proof deposited in his office, and that he verily believes the impression of the seal upon the original certificate is genuine. In all cases the officer's certificate must show that he knows or has satisfactory evidence that the person making acknowledgment or proof is the person described in and who executed the instrument, or was a subscribing witness thereto. An officer must set forth by indorsement on conveyances the matters required to be done, known, or proved, together with the names of the witnesses examined by him, their places of residence, and the substance of their evidence. A recorded conveyance is deemed to have been duly acknowledged or proved and authenticated when thirty years have elapsed since recording, saving the rights of bona fide purchasers from grantor with deeds recorded before expiration of the thirty years. (L. 1909, c. 52; C. L. c. 50, § 306.) Married women acknowledge in the same manner as if single. Seal need not be affixed by officer taking proof or acknowledgment, except when so stated above; and all officers authenticating certificate of proof or acknowledgment must affix seal. (L. 1909, c. 52; C. L. c. 50.)

An acknowledgment may be written, printed, or pasted on an instrument.

up his hand, in his discretion. Or if the witness shall declare that he has conscientious scruples against taking an oath or swearing in any form, he shall be permitted to make his affirmation in the following form: "You do solemnly, sincerely, and truly declare and affirm," omitting the words "So help you God." Any other form of swearing the witness which is most obligatory on the witness may be adopted. (C. P. §§ 845, 849.) (4.) The general style or title of depositions must be drawn up in the following manner: —

G. W., Commissioner.

(11.) All the depositions and exhibits must be annexed to the commission, or to a certified copy of the order for taking the depositions, and then the commission, the directions, the interrogatories, cross-interrogatories, depositions, and exhibits must be folded into a packet and bound with tape. The acting commissioners are to set their seals at the several meetings or crossings of the tape, indorse their names on the outside, and direct it thus: —

In case of returning the commission by a vessel, it is to be deposited by one of the acting commissioners in the letter bag of such vessel, he making upon the commission the following indorsement: " Deposited in the letter bag of the now lying at

(C. P. §§ 900-903.) G. W., Commissioner.

The commissioner is not required to proceed from day to day, but may adjourn the matter in his direction, provided the depositions be taken and returned within the time fixed by the order. (C. P. § 898.) Where a commission to take testimony within the State has been issued from a court of another State or of a foreign country in which the action, suit, or special proceeding is pending, or where a notice has been given or other proceeding has been taken for the purpose of taking testimony within the State pursuant to the law of the State or country wherein the court is located, the supreme court, or the county court, or a judge of either court, shall in a proper case, on the presentation of a verified petition, issue a subpoena to the witness commanding him to appear before the commissioner named in the commission; or before a commissioner within the State for the State, Territory, or foreign country in which the notice was given or the proceeding taken, or before the officer designated in the commission or notice by his title of office; at a time and place specified in subpoena to testify in the action, suit, or special proceeding. If the witness fails to obey the subpoena or refuses to subscribe his deposition, the court or judge issuing the subpoena shall, if it is determined that a contempt has been committed, prescribe the punishment as in the case of a recalcitrant witness in the supreme court. The officer before whom a witness appears in cases above specified, takes the testimony in writing, and must annex thereto copies of all books and papers produced, or such parts thereof as are required, and must certify and transmit it to the court in which the action, suit, or special proceeding is pending, as the practice of that court requires. (C. P. §§ 915, 919; Rule 17 of Sup. Ct.)

Descent and Distribution. — Descent. — Real estate, not devised, descends as follows: first, to decedent's lineal descendants; second, to his father; third, to his mother; and fourth, to his collateral relatives.

If lineal descendants are all of equal degree of consanguinity to intestate, they share equally; if of unequal degree, the descendants of the dead take the shares which their parents, if living, would have taken. In default of lawful descendants, father takes the fee unless inheritance came on part of the mother, in which case, if the mother is dead, he takes life estate, with reversion to such brothers and sisters of intestate as may be living, and descendants of those dead. If none are living to take reversion, he takes the fee. If there is no father, or inheritance came on part of mother, she takes life estate, with reversion to brothers and sisters of intestate and their descendants. If there are no such reversioners, she takes the fee. If there are no descendants, and no father or mother capable of inheriting the estate, it descends to collaterals, in the following order: 1st, to the brothers and sisters of the intestate and their descendants; 2d, if the estate came on the part of the father, to the father's brothers and sisters and their descendants, and if none such, to the mother's brothers and sisters and their descendants; 3d, if the estate came on the part of the mother, to the mother's brothers and sisters, and their descendants, and if none such, to the father's brothers and sisters and their descendants; 4th, if the estate did not come on the part of either father or mother, to the brothers and sisters both of father and mother and their descendants; 5th, if there be no brothers or sisters of father or mother, or descendants of such brothers and sisters, and the estate came on the part of the father, to the father's parents then living in equal parts, and if dead, to the mother's parents in equal parts. If the estate comes on the part of the mother, to her parents then living in equal parts, and if dead to the father's parents then living in equal parts. If the estate comes on the part of neither father nor mother, to the living grandparents in equal parts. Collaterals, when all are of equal degree of consanguinity to intestate, take per capita; if of unequal degree, they take per stirpes. The estate of an illegitimate intestate, dying without issue, descends to the mother, if living; if she be dead, to his relative on her part, as if he had been legitimate. Illegitimate children inherit both real and personal property from mother, as if legitimate, if mother has no lawful descendants. Relatives of the half blood inherit equally with those of the whole blood, unless the inheritance came to intestate by descent, devise, or gift of an ancestor, in which case all those not of the blood of such ancestor are excluded. In cases not provided for, estate descends according to course of common law. Posthumous children inherit as if born in the lifetime of the intestate. (L. 1909, c. 1880; C. L. c. 13, §§ 81-93.) The alienage of an ancestor does not preclude inheritance by any person otherwise capable of inheriting. (L. 1896, ch. 547.) A legally adopted child of an intestate shares in real and personal estate as if his legitimate child; and the person so adopting stands, for purposes of inheritance, in relation of parent to such adopted child. But adoption does not deprive a child of his rights of inheritance and succession from his natural parents. (C. L. c. 14, § 114; L. 1916, c. 453.)

Distribution. — Personal property in case deceased left no will is distributed, after payment of debts, as follows: 1st, one third to the widow, and the residue in equal portions to the children, and the persons legally representing such children as are deceased; 2d, if there be no children nor legal representatives of them, one half of the whole surplus goes to the widow, and the other half to the next of kin; 3d, if there be a widow and no descendant, parent, brother or sister, nephew or niece, the widow takes the whole surplus, but if there be a brother or sister, nephew or niece, and no descendant or parent, the widow takes half of the surplus as above stated, and the whole of the residue where it does not exceed two thousand dollars; if it exceeds that sum, she takes in addition to her half two thousand dollars, and the remainder is distributed to the brothers and sisters and their representatives; 4th, if there be no widow, the whole surplus goes equally to the children and such as legally represent them; 5th, if there be no widow, and no children, nor representatives of children, the whole surplus goes to the next of kin in equal degree to the deceased and their legal representatives; 6th, if there be no children nor representatives of them, nor father, the half not given to the widow goes in equal shares to the mother, if surviving, and the brothers and sisters or their representatives; if there be no widow, the whole surplus is distributed in like manner to the mother and to brothers and sisters or the representatives of such brothers and sisters; 7th, if deceased leave a father and no child or descendant, father takes half, if there be a widow, and the whole if there be no widow; 8th, if deceased leave a mother and no child, descendant, father, brother, sister, or representative of the brother or sister, mother takes half if there be a widow, and the whole if there be no widow; 9th, when an illegitimate decedent leaves a mother and no child or descendant or widow, the mother takes the whole, and is exclusively entitled to letters of administration; if the mother be dead, the relatives of such deceased on her part take as if deceased had been legitimate, and are entitled to letters of administration in same order; 10th, descendants or next of kin, when all are of equal degree to deceased, share equally; 11th, when they are of unequal degree, the surplus is apportioned among them according to their respective stocks, so that those who take in their own right receive equal shares, and those who take by representation receive the share to which their parent whom they represent, if living, would have been entitled; 12th, representation is admitted among collaterals as in case of real estate, but no representation is admitted among collaterals after brothers' and sisters' descendants; 13th, relatives, of the half blood take equally with those of the whole blood in the same degree, and representatives of such relatives take in the same manner as representatives of the whole blood; 14th, descendants and next of kin begotten before death, but born thereafter, take in the same manner as if they had been born in lifetime of deceased and had survived him; 15th, a woman's illegitimate children inherit her personal property as if legitimate when she leaves no legitimate children; 15a, if there be no husband or wife surviving and no children or representatives thereof, and no next of kin, then whole surplus goes to surviving children of husband or wife of deceased; 16th, if there be no surviving husband or wife and no children, or representatives of children, and no next of kin and no children of the husband or wife of the deceased, the whole surplus shall be equally distributed among the next of kin of the husband or wife, as case may be, and such next of kin shall be such for all purposes; but such surplus shall not be construed to embrace any personal property except such as was received by deceased from such husband or wife, by will or by laws of distribution of personal property of deceased. (L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, § 98; L. 1913, c. 489.)

The preceding provisions apply to the personal estate of married women dying leaving descendants them surviving, and the husband of any such deceased married woman takes to the same extent as the widow takes as above provided. (L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, § 100.) If a married woman dies intestate, leaving no descendants, the husband takes all her personal estate. (Robins v. McClure, 100 N.Y. 328.)

Advancements. — If any child of intestate shall have been advanced by deceased by settlement or portion of real or personal estate, the value thereof is reckoned as part of the real and personal estate of such intestate descendible to his heirs, and to be distributed to his children, and if such advancement be equal or superior to the amount of the share to which such child would be entitled of the real and personal estate of deceased as above reckoned, then such child and his descendants are excluded from sharing in the real and personal estate of the intestate; but if such advancement be not equal to such share, such child and his descendants receive so much only of the personal estate and inherit so much only of the real estate as will be sufficient to make all the shares of the children in such real and personal estate and advancement equal. Value of advancement to be that which was acknowledged by such child by an instrument in writing; otherwise to be estimated according to worth of property when given. Maintenance or education or gift of money to child without a view to portion or settlement in life is not to be deemed an advancement. (L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, §§ 96, 97, 99.)

Tax on Inheritance and other Transfers. — (L. 1908, c. 62; C. L. c. 60, §§ 220 et seq. as amended by L. 1911, cc. 308, 800; L. 1916, cc. 323, 548, 551; L. 1917, cc. 53, 128, 700.) For transfer tax law on estates of persons dying before July 11, 1910, see Directory for 1910. For transfer tax law on estates of persons dying between July 11, 1910, and July 21, 1911, see Directory for 1911. Under the new transfer tax law a tax is imposed upon the transfer of any property, real or personal, of the value of more than five hundred dollars, or of any interest therein or income therefrom in trust or otherwise to persons or corporations not exempt from taxation on real or personal property; when the transfer is by will or by the intestate laws; when the transfer is made by deed, grant, bargain, sale, or gift in contemplation of death or intended to take effect at or after death. There is a provision for the transfer tax on powers of appointment. The tax shall be on the clear market value of the property at the date of death. When property, real or personal, of the value of not more than five thousand dollars passes by any of the transfers above mentioned to the use of a father, mother, husband, wife, child, adopted child, or of not more than five hundred dollars to any lineal descendant, such transfer is not taxable, but all property in value in excess of such amounts to such persons is taxable one per cent. on amounts up to twenty-five thousand, two per cent. on the next seventy-five thousand or any part thereof; three per cent. on the next one hundred thousand or any part thereof; four per cent. on the balance. When the transfer is over five hundred dollars and is made to a brother, sister, wife or widow of a son, or husband of a daughter, or to any child to whom the transferor stood in mutually acknowledged relation of a parent, beginning before child was fifteen and continuing ten years, the rate is two per cent. to and including twenty-five thousand dollars, three per cent. on the next seventy-five thousand or any part thereof, four per cent. on the next one hundred thousand or any part thereof, and five per cent. on the balance. Transfers of over five hundred dollars to any person or corporation other than those enumerated are taxed at five per cent. up to and including twenty-five thousand dollars, six per cent. on the next seventy-five thousand or any part thereof, seven per cent. on the next one hundred thousand or any part thereof, and eight per cent. on the balance. There are exemptions for property devised or bequeathed for religious ceremonies, observances, and religious, educational, missionary, benevolent, hospital, or infirmary institutions, etc.

Taxes are payable to county treasurer or state comptroller, and are a lien upon the property transferred. Executors, administrators, trustees, and transferees are personally liable for the tax. If tax is paid within eighteen months of transfer, no interest; otherwise ten per cent. interest from time of death is added, or, if delay is unavoidable, six per cent. If paid within six months from death, a discount of five per cent. is allowed. Executor, administrator, or trustee must deduct amount of tax from legacy or property distributed, and in case of specific legacy must not deliver until tax is paid. When a foreign executor, administrator, or trustee transfers any stock or obligation standing in the name or in trust for decedent subject to such tax, the tax must be paid to proper officer. A safe deposit company, bank, or other institution or person holding securities or assets of decedent, who delivers them to legal representatives of decedent except upon at least ten days' notice to state comptroller, and after opportunity given for examination of such securities or assets, is liable for the tax thereon and a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty-five thousand dollars. The statute provides for the proper appraisal of property and for mode of collection of the tax.

Executors and Administrators. — Executors. — Letters testamentary are issued to the person named as executor in a will who is competent at law to serve, and appears and qualifies, unless before the granting thereof a creditor of decedent, or some person interested in the estate, files a verified statement of legal objection. The disqualifications are adjudged incompetency, infancy, alienage of person not inhabitant of State, conviction of infamous crime, incompetence by reason of drunkenness, dishonesty, improvidence, or want of understanding. Where objection is on the ground (1) that person's circumstances do not afford adequate security to creditors or persons interested, or (2) that he is not a resident of the State, though a citizen of the United States, such person is entitled to letters on giving a bond. (C. P. §§ 2564, 2567.) Executor from whom bond is required, or administrator with will annexed, must, before letters are issued, qualify as prescribed in the case of administration upon estate of intestate, except that in fixing penalty of bond the surrogate considers the value of real property or proceeds thereof which may come into the hands of such executor or administrator by virtue of any provision in will. (C. P. § 2605.)

Administrator with Will annexed. — If no executor is named in will or selected by virtue of a power therein, or if at any time there is no executor or administrator with the will annexed, qualified to act, a creditor or person interested in the estate or having a lien on realty on which the estate has a lien and upon notice to creditors and to persons interested in the estate, as the surrogate decrees proper, letters of administration with the will annexed are granted to (1) an executor or administrator of a sole legatee and devisee or of a sole residuary legatee and devisee named in a will; (2) one or more of residuary legatees; (3) if no residuary legatee or none will accept, then to a specified legatee; (4) husband, wife, next of kin or heir; (5) public administrator, and if none for county, to the county treasurer or petitioner in discretion of the surrogate, and if neither will accept, to any creditor or competent person designated by the surrogate. (C. P. § 2603.)

Administrators. — In case of intestacy administration is granted to relatives of deceased who would be entitled to succeed to his personal estate, if they or any of them accept, in following order: (1) to surviving husband or wife; (2) to children; (3) to grandchildren; (4) to father; (5) to mother, (6) to brothers; (7) to sisters; (8) to any other next of kin who would be entitled to share in personal estate. If persons entitled are minors, administration is granted to their guardians. If none of said persons accept, it is granted (a) to the public administrator; (b) to the county treasurer or the petitioner in the discretion of the surrogate; (c) to any other person or persons. Provision is also made for the appointment of an administrator for the purposes of a suit brought or to be brought, in which the intestate if living would be a proper party. When several are kindred of the same degree, males are preferred to females; relatives of whole blood to those of half blood; and unmarried women to such as are thousand dollars, and the remainder is distributed to the brothers and sisters and their representatives; 4th, if there be no widow, the whole surplus goes equally to the children and such as legally represent them; 5th, if there be no widow, and no children, nor representatives of children, the whole surplus goes to the next of kin in equal degree to the deceased and their legal representatives; 6th, if there be no children nor representatives of them, nor father, the half not given to the widow goes in equal shares to the mother, if surviving, and the brothers and sisters or their representatives; if there be no widow, the whole surplus is distributed in like manner to the mother and to brothers and sisters or the representatives of such brothers and sisters; 7th, if deceased leave a father and no child or descendant, father takes half, if there be a widow, and the whole if there be no widow; 8th, if deceased leave a mother and no child, descendant, father, brother, sister, or representative of the brother or sister, mother takes half if there be a widow, and the whole if there be no widow; 9th, when an illegitimate decedent leaves a mother and no child or descendant or widow, the mother takes the whole, and is exclusively entitled to letters of administration; if the mother be dead, the relatives of such deceased on her part take as if deceased had been legitimate, and are entitled to letters of administration in same order; 10th, descendants or next of kin, when all are of equal degree to deceased, share equally; 11th, when they are of unequal degree, the surplus is apportioned among them according to their respective stocks, so that those who take in their own right receive equal shares, and those who take by representation receive the share to which their parent whom they represent, if living, would have been entitled; 12th, representation is admitted among collaterals as in case of real estate, but no representation is admitted among collaterals after brothers' and sisters' descendants; 13th, relatives, of the half blood take equally with those of the whole blood in the same degree, and representatives of such relatives take in the same manner as representatives of the whole blood; 14th, descendants and next of kin begotten before death, but born thereafter, take in the same manner as if they had been born in lifetime of deceased and had survived him; 15th, a woman's illegitimate children inherit her personal property as if legitimate when she leaves no legitimate children; 15a, if there be no husband or wife surviving and no children or representatives thereof, and no next of kin, then whole surplus goes to surviving children of husband or wife of deceased; 16th, if there be no surviving husband or wife and no children, or representatives of children, and no next of kin and no children of the husband or wife of the deceased, the whole surplus shall be equally distributed among the next of kin of the husband or wife, as case may be, and such next of kin shall be such for all purposes; but such surplus shall not be construed to embrace any personal property except such as was received by deceased from such husband or wife, by will or by laws of distribution of personal property of deceased. (L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, § 98; L. 1913, c. 489.)

The preceding provisions apply to the personal estate of married women dying leaving descendants them surviving, and the husband of any such deceased married woman takes to the same extent as the widow takes as above provided. (L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, § 100.) If a married woman dies intestate, leaving no descendants, the husband takes all her personal estate. (Robins v. McClure, 100 N.Y. 328.)

Advancements. — If any child of intestate shall have been advanced by deceased by settlement or portion of real or personal estate, the value thereof is reckoned as part of the real and personal estate of such intestate descendible to his heirs, and to be distributed to his children, and if such advancement be equal or superior to the amount of the share to which such child would be entitled of the real and personal estate of deceased as above reckoned, then such child and his descendants are excluded from sharing in the real and personal estate of the intestate; but if such advancement be not equal to such share, such child and his descendants receive so much only of the personal estate and inherit so much only of the real estate as will be sufficient to make all the shares of the children in such real and personal estate and advancement equal. Value of advancement to be that which was acknowledged by such child by an instrument in writing; otherwise to be estimated according to worth of property when given. Maintenance or education or gift of money to child without a view to portion or settlement in life is not to be deemed an advancement. (L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, §§ 96, 97, 99.)

Tax on Inheritance and other Transfers. — (L. 1908, c. 62; C. L. c. 60, §§ 220 et seq. as amended by L. 1911, cc. 308, 800; L. 1916, cc. 323, 548, 551; L. 1917, cc. 53, 128, 700.) For transfer tax law on estates of persons dying before July 11, 1910, see Directory for 1910. For transfer tax law on estates of persons dying between July 11, 1910, and July 21, 1911, see Directory for 1911. Under the new transfer tax law a tax is imposed upon the transfer of any property, real or personal, of the value of more than five hundred dollars, or of any interest therein or income therefrom in trust or otherwise to persons or corporations not exempt from taxation on real or personal property; when the transfer is by will or by the intestate laws; when the transfer is made by deed, grant, bargain, sale, or gift in contemplation of death or intended to take effect at or after death. There is a provision for the transfer tax on powers of appointment. The tax shall be on the clear market value of the property at the date of death. When property, real or personal, of the value of not more than five thousand dollars passes by any of the transfers above mentioned to the use of a father, mother, husband, wife, child, adopted child, or of not more than five hundred dollars to any lineal descendant, such transfer is not taxable, but all property in value in excess of such amounts to such persons is taxable one per cent. on amounts up to twenty-five thousand, two per cent. on the next seventy-five thousand or any part thereof; three per cent. on the next one hundred thousand or any part thereof; four per cent. on the balance. When the transfer is over five hundred dollars and is made to a brother, sister, wife or widow of a son, or husband of a daughter, or to any child to whom the transferor stood in mutually acknowledged relation of a parent, beginning before child was fifteen and continuing ten years, the rate is two per cent. to and including twenty-five thousand dollars, three per cent. on the next seventy-five thousand or any part thereof, four per cent. on the next one hundred thousand or any part thereof, and five per cent. on the balance. Transfers of over five hundred dollars to any person or corporation other than those enumerated are taxed at five per cent. up to and including twenty-five thousand dollars, six per cent. on the next seventy-five thousand or any part thereof, seven per cent. on the next one hundred thousand or any part thereof, and eight per cent. on the balance. There are exemptions for property devised or bequeathed for religious ceremonies, observances, and religious, educational, missionary, benevolent, hospital, or infirmary institutions, etc.

Taxes are payable to county treasurer or state comptroller, and are a lien upon the property transferred. Executors, administrators, trustees, and transferees are personally liable for the tax. If tax is paid within eighteen months of transfer, no interest; otherwise ten per cent. interest from time of death is added, or, if delay is unavoidable, six per cent. If paid within six months from death, a discount of five per cent. is allowed. Executor, administrator, or trustee must deduct amount of tax from legacy or property distributed, and in case of specific legacy must not deliver until tax is paid. When a foreign executor, administrator, or trustee transfers any stock or obligation standing in the name or in trust for decedent subject to such tax, the tax must be paid to proper officer. A safe deposit company, bank, or other institution or person holding securities or assets of decedent, who delivers them to legal representatives of decedent except upon at least ten days' notice to state comptroller, and after opportunity given for examination of such securities or assets, is liable for the tax thereon and a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty-five thousand dollars. The statute provides for the proper appraisal of property and for mode of collection of the tax.

Divorce. — See Matrimonial Actions.

Dower and Curtesy. — A widow is endowed of the third part of all the lands of which her husband was seized of an estate of inheritance at any time during marriage. Curtesy exists as at common law in so much of the realty of the wife as remains at her death undisposed of and undevise.

Executors and Administrators. — Executors. — Letters testamentary are issued to the person named as executor in a will who is competent at law to serve, and appears and qualifies, unless before the granting thereof a creditor of decedent, or some person interested in the estate, files a verified statement of legal objection. The disqualifications are adjudged incompetency, infancy, alienage of person not inhabitant of State, conviction of infamous crime, incompetence by reason of drunkenness, dishonesty, improvidence, or want of understanding. Where objection is on the ground (1) that person's circumstances do not afford adequate security to creditors or persons interested, or (2) that he is not a resident of the State, though a citizen of the United States, such person is entitled to letters on giving a bond. (C. P. §§ 2564, 2567.) Executor from whom bond is required, or administrator with will annexed, must, before letters are issued, qualify as prescribed in the case of administration upon estate of intestate, except that in fixing penalty of bond the surrogate considers the value of real property or proceeds thereof which may come into the hands of such executor or administrator by virtue of any provision in will. (C. P. § 2605.)

Administrator with Will annexed. — If no executor is named in will or selected by virtue of a power therein, or if at any time there is no executor or administrator with the will annexed, qualified to act, a creditor or person interested in the estate or having a lien on realty on which the estate has a lien and upon notice to creditors and to persons interested in the estate, as the surrogate decrees proper, letters of administration with the will annexed are granted to (1) an executor or administrator of a sole legatee and devisee or of a sole residuary legatee and devisee named in a will; (2) one or more of residuary legatees; (3) if no residuary legatee or none will accept, then to a specified legatee; (4) husband, wife, next of kin or heir; (5) public administrator, and if none for county, to the county treasurer or petitioner in discretion of the surrogate, and if neither will accept, to any creditor or competent person designated by the surrogate. (C. P. § 2603.)

Administrators. — In case of intestacy administration is granted to relatives of deceased who would be entitled to succeed to his personal estate, if they or any of them accept, in following order: (1) to surviving husband or wife; (2) to children; (3) to grandchildren; (4) to father; (5) to mother; (6) to brothers; (7) to sisters; (8) to any other next of kin who would be entitled to share in personal estate. If persons entitled are minors, administration is granted to their guardians. If none of said persons accept, it is granted (a) to the public administrator; (b) to the county treasurer or the petitioner in the discretion of the surrogate; (c) to any other person or persons. Provision is also made for the appointment of an administrator for the purposes of a suit brought or to be brought, in which the intestate if living would be a proper party. When several are kindred of the same degree, males are preferred to females; relatives of whole blood to those of half blood; and unmarried women to such as are married. Substantially the same disqualifications exist as in case of executors. (C. P. § 2588.) Before letters are issued the person appointed must execute to the People a joint and several bond of himself and two or more sureties, in a penalty fixed by the surrogate, not less than the value of the personal estate of decedent, and of probable amount to be recovered by reason of rights of action granted to executor or administrator by any provision of law; except that where the person or persons about to be appointed is or are entitled to the whole estate, the surrogate will dispense with a bond or fix the penalty at such sum as will adequately protect the rights of all creditors. When all next of kin consent, penalty need not exceed twice claims of creditors presented to the surrogate after due publication of notice; but bond so given cannot be under five thousand dollars. (C. P. § 2591.)

Temporary Administrator. — Creditor or person interested in the estate may apply for temporary letters of administration when (1) delay in issuing letters of administration or testamentary or in probating a will; (2) person disappears so that his abode cannot be ascertained after diligent search, and under circumstances affording reasonable ground to believe him dead, lunatic, or secreted, confined, or made way with, and it is necessary to appoint temporary administrator to protect his property for creditors and persons interested, if he is dead. From two to ten days' notice of application must be given to parties who have appeared. Application is by petition in same way as if by a creditor, by county treasurer of the county where deceased last resided; or if a non-resident of this State, of the county where any of his real or personal property is located. Temporary administrator must qualify in same way as an administrator in chief. (C. P. § 2596.)

If proceeding is pending for probate of will or realty, and there is delay in granting letters or in trustee named qualifying, order appointing him may give him authority to take possession of and receive the rents and profits of land in the same or another county; or to lease it for not over one year or to do any other act, including the mortgaging, leasing, or selling of the property under certain restrictions which, in surrogate's opinion, is necessary for execution of will or preservation of the property. For either purpose, he may maintain an action or special proceeding. (C. P. § 2600.)

Ancillary Administration. — When a will of personalty made by person not resident of the State at the time of its execution or of his death has been probated in foreign country or in State where made, or where decedent resided at time of death, the surrogate having jurisdiction must, on proper application, accompanied by copy of will and foreign letters, if any, properly authenticated, record will and foreign letters and issue thereupon ancillary letters testamentary, or ancillary letters of administration with will annexed, as the case requires. Authentication of foreign record is provided for by L. 1909, c. 304; C. L. c. 13, § 45, and is exceedingly technical. Ancillary letters testamentary are granted to persons competent to act and qualified, appointed in will as executors with respect to personal property within this State; if all are incompetent, or fail to qualify, or, where appointment is not made, ancillary letters testamentary or of administration are granted to the person named in the foreign letters, or person otherwise entitled to property of decedent, unless some other person applies therefor and files with petition a properly executed and acknowledged consent of foreign executor or administrator, or person otherwise entitled as aforesaid. Ancillary letters of administration are granted upon application by the party entitled, or by his duly authorized attorney in fact, to the proper surrogate, and upon the presentation of letters of administration upon the estate of decedent who resided at time of death without the State, but within the United States, granted by a competent court, or where decedent then resided without the United States, upon presentation of satisfactory proof that parties so applying either personally or by attorney in fact are entitled to possession in foreign country of personal estate of decedent. In such case surrogate issues letters, except where ancillary letters have been issued upon foreign probate, or where letters of administration are already granted to, or proper application therefor, not yet disposed of, has been made by a relative of decedent legally competent to act. (C. P. §§ 2629, 2630, 2631.) Person to whom ancillary letters are issued must qualify, as in case of administrator upon estate of decedent, except that the penalty of the bond may, in the discretion of the surrogate, be in such sum, not exceeding twice the amount appearing to be due from decedent to residents of the State, as will effectually secure payment of those debts or sums which resident creditors would be entitled to receive from persons to whom letters are issued upon accounting and distribution, either within the State or within the jurisdiction where letters were issued. (C. P. § 2633.)

Foreign executors and administrators may sue and be sued in any court in their capacity of executors or administrators in like manner as any non-resident, if within twenty days after commencing suit or appearance duly authenticated copies of their letters testamentary or of administration are filed. (C. P. 1836-a.)

Exemptions. — Necessary household furniture, working tools and team, professional instruments, furniture and library not exceeding in value two hundred and fifty dollars, groceries actually provided for family use, and ninety days' necessary food for team, in addition to certain other specified articles, when owned by householder, are exempt from levy and sale under execution, except where the execution is issued upon a judgment recovered for work done in the family as a domestic, or for purchase price of articles exempt by law. (C. P. §§ 1390-1402.) Such exempt property, and the earnings of judgment debtor for his personal services, rendered within sixty days preceding, when necessary for the use of the family wholly or partly supported by his labor, cannot be reached by supplementary proceedings. (C. P. § 2463.) Where judgment has been recovered and where execution issued thereon has been returned wholly or partly unsatisfied, and where any wages, debts, earnings, salary, income from trust funds, or profits are due and owing, or shall thereafter become due and owing to the judgment debtor, to the amount of twelve dollars or more per week, the judgment creditor may, on proof, by affidavit or otherwise, of these facts and also of the fact that no execution issued as hereafter provided is unsatisfied or outstanding, obtain an order from a judge of the court having jurisdiction directing that execution issue against such wages, income from trust funds, etc., to an amount of not more than ten per cent. thereof, and such execution shall be a continuing levy until the execution and expenses thereof are satisfied, or until the order be modified by the court or a judge on the application of either party. Only one such execution may be so satisfied at one time, and if there are more than one are to be satisfied in order of priority in which they were presented to the person from whom the sums are owing. (C. P. § 1391.) A private burying-ground, not exceeding one quarter of an acre, is also exempt. Insurance money, etc., paid or to be paid to a member, or the widow of a member, of a life or casualty corporation doing business upon the cooperative or assessment plan, cannot be reached for any debt or liability incurred before such money, etc., was paid. (L. 1909, c. 33; C. L. c. 28, § 212.)

Homesteads. — The lot and buildings, not exceeding one thousand dollars in value owned and occupied as a residence by a householder having a family, are exempted, if designated and recorded as homestead property in the office of the clerk of the county where it is situated; but such property is not exempted from sale for non-payment of taxes or assessments, or from sale on execution for debts contracted before the property was so designated, or for the purchase-money thereof. Such exemption continues after the owner's death for the benefit of the widow and family, so long as any of them continue to occupy such homestead, until the death of the widow and the majority of the youngest child. No release or waiver of such exemption is valid, unless in writing, subscribed by the householder, and acknowledged by him and recorded. Husband and wife may mortgage the homestead. (C. P. § 1404.) The exemption is not affected by ceasing to occupy the exempted property as a residence, for a period not exceeding one year, in consequence of injury to or destruction of the dwelling-house. A married woman is entitled to the same homestead as a householder having a family. (C. P. §§ 1397-1401.)

Garnishment. — See Attachment and Judgment and Execution.

Inheritance Taxes. — See Tax on Inheritance under Descent and Distribution.

Injunction. — A writ of injunction is abolished. (C. P. § 602.) A temporary injunction may be obtained by order: (1.) In actions for a permanent injunction. (2.) To prevent injury to or loss of the subject of the action, in violation of the plaintiff's rights, by acts tending to render the judgment ineffectual. (3.) To prevent defendant, during the pendency of the action, from fraudulently removing or disposing of his property. (C. P. §§ 603, 604.) Security is required for damages and costs except in special cases. (C. P. §§ 611-625.)

Insolvent Laws. — See Assignments and Insolvency.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest is six per cent. All instruments (except bottomry and respondentia bonds and contracts), and all deposits of goods, or other things, whereupon or whereby a greater rate is preserved, taken, or secured, are absolutely void, even in the hands of innocent third parties. No corporation can plead usury. Usury is a misdemeanor. (C. L. c. 88, § 2400.) The parties may agree in writing for any rate of interest on call loans for sums over five thousand dollars, when warehouse receipts, bills of lading, certificates of stock, or negotiable instruments are given as collateral. (L. 1909, c. 25; C. L. c. 20, § 379; L. 1909, c. 10; C. L. c. 2, § 75.) Excess over the legal rate of interest may be recovered by borrower or his representatives, if action is brought within one year after such payment. Town overseer or county superintendent of the poor has three years thereafter to sue for such excess. Borrower may sue in equity to recover usury paid, or for cancellation of usurious instrument, without paying or depositing the principal sum borrowed, or lawful interest. This privilege is personal to the borrower, and does not extend to his representatives, devisees, or assignees. (Buckingham v. Corning, 91 N. Y. 525.) Individual bankers within the State and state banks have been placed on the same footing as national banks as regards usury, so that if they take or reserve interest over six per cent. the entire interest but not the principal is forfeited. If a greater rate has been paid, twice the amount thus paid may be recovered back if suit is brought within two years. (L. 1909, c. 10; C. L. c. 2, § 74.) The similar provision in the U.S. Rev. Stat. has been construed to mean that twice the amount of the excess, not twice the amount of the interest, may be recovered. (Hintermister v. Bank, 64 N. Y. 212.)

Judgment and Execution. — Judgment may be obtained by action, or without action by confession. Judgment by confession may be entered without action for money due, or to become due, or to secure a person against contingent liability, in behalf of defendant, or both. Defendant must sign and verify a written statement, stating a sum for which judgment may be entered, and authorizing entry thereof. If judgment is for money due or to become due, the statement must set forth concisely the facts out of which the debt arose and show that the sum confessed is justly due or to become due, and if judgment is to secure plaintiff against contingent liability, the facts constituting the liability and showing that the sum confessed does not exceed the amount thereof must be concisely stated. This statement may be filed at any time within three years after it is verified, if defendant is still living, with a county clerk, or, if judgment confessed does not exceed two thousand dollars, exclusive of interest from the time of making statement, with the clerk of the city

399, cited above, an action may be brought against his representatives within eighteen months after his death, unless letters testamentary or of administration are not issued within the State within at least six months before the expiration of the time as above extended, in which case action may be commenced within a year after such letters are issued. (C. P. §§ 402, 403.) If a person dies without the State, against whom a cause of action exists, the time between his death and the expiration of eighteen months after issuance of letters testamentary or of administration, within the State, is not a part of the time limited. (C. P. § 391.) An action not involving title to, or possession of, real property within the State, cannot be brought against one who was a non-resident when the cause of action accrued, after the expiration of the time limited by the laws of his residence, provided that if the period fixed by the laws of his residence is less than that fixed by the laws of this State, the limitation fixed by the laws of this State shall apply. (C. P. 390, as amended 1916.) A cause of action arising outside of the State cannot be enforced in this State after the expiration of the time fixed by the laws of the State where it arose, except when the cause of action originally accrued in favor of a resident of this State. (C. P. 390 a.)

Married Women. — All property, real and personal, now owned by a married woman, or hereafter owned by her, at the time of her marriage, or thereafter acquired by her by inheritance, gift, grant, devise, bequest, or otherwise, remains her sole and separate property, and is not liable for her husband's debts, and is subject to her disposal as if she were single. She may carry on any trade or business in her own name, and her earnings become her separate property. She may act as executrix, administratrix, and guardian as if single. Contracts made by her bind her and her separate property, whether they relate to her separate business or estate or otherwise, a charge upon her separate estate not being necessary. A wife may contract with her husband as freely as with any other person except as to contracts altering or dissolving the marriage relation, or relieving the husband from liability for her support. Contracts between persons in contemplation of marriage remain in full force after marriage. Wife who assumes to carry on business as her husband's partner is liable for firm debt. (Suau v. Caffè, 122 N. Y. 308.)

Transfers of real estate may be made directly by husband to wife, or vice versa, without the intervention of a third person. A husband is liable for his wife's debts contracted before marriage to the extent only of the separate property received from her. Policies of insurance on life of any person in her favor are now, with the assured's written consent, assignable. Acknowledgments of married women are in the same form as in the case of single women. (L. 1909, c. 52; C. L. c. 50.) She appears, prosecutes, or defends alone or joined with others in an action or special proceeding, as if single, and her husband is not a necessary or proper party in any action or special proceeding affecting her separate property. (C. P. § 450.) She may confess judgment. (C. P. § 1273.) Husband not now liable for wife's torts unless committed under his coercion, nor can he sue for torts to person, estate, or character of wife. (C. P. § 450; C. L. c. 14, § 57.) A woman attains majority at twenty-one, and may then, whether married or single, devise real property. She may bequeath personal property at the age of sixteen. Lands conveyed to husband and wife are held by them as tenants in the entirety as at common law (Bertles v. Nunan, 92 N. Y. 152), unless contrary intention is plain. (Jooss v. Fey, 129 N. Y. 17.) As tenancy by the entirety merely gives right of survivorship, the husband is not entitled to all profits of the land during their joint lives, but they are tenants in common of the use. (Hiles v. Fisher, 144 N. Y. 306.) See, also, Dower and Curtesy. The age of legal consent to marry is eighteen for males and females.

Matrimonial Actions. — Annulment. — Woman may obtain decree annulling marriage when married under sixteen without consent of father, mother, guardian, or other person having her legal custody, and if marriage was not followed by consummation or cohabitation, and not ratified by mutual consent after plaintiff reached age of sixteen. (C. P. § 1742.) Husband or wife may obtain decree annulling marriage for either of following causes existing at time of marriage: Want of age; where the marriage was void; idiocy; lunacy; consent obtained by force, duress, or fraud; incurable physical incapacity; and that parties are within degrees of consanguinity set forth in Dom. Rel. L. § 5. (C. P. § 1743.) The age of legal consent is eighteen years. (L. 1909, c. 19; C. L. c. 14, § 7.) Such actions may be maintained, if for want of age, by infant, by either parent, by guardian of infant's person, or, with leave of court, by infant's next friend, but not by a party who was of sufficient age, or where parties after attaining that age freely cohabited (C. P. § 1744); if because former husband or wife living, and former marriage still in force, by either party during the life of the other, or by former husband or wife; if for idiocy, by idiot's relative who has an interest in avoiding the marriage during life of either party (C. P. § 1746); if for lunacy, during the continuance thereof, or, after lunatic's death in that condition, and during life of other party, by lunatic's relative having an interest in avoiding the marriage, or by lunatic after restoration to sound mind, unless the parties freely cohabited after such restoration. (C. P. § 1747.) An action to annul may, with leave of the court, be maintained by next friend of idiot or lunatic, during the lifetime of both parties, except where the marriage might have been annulled at suit of lunatic. (C. P. § 1748.) An action to annul on the ground of force, duress, or fraud may be maintained at any time by party whose consent was so obtained, or during the lifetime of other party, by parent or guardian of the person of the injured party, or by such party's relative having an interest in avoiding the marriage, unless the parties have voluntarily cohabited, or, in case of fraud, have so cohabited with full knowledge thereof. (C. P. § 1750.) An action to annul on the ground of physical incapacity may be maintained by injured party or by the incapable party if he or she was ignorant of incapacity at time of marriage or did not know it was incurable, and must be commenced within five years after marriage. (C. P. § 1752.)

Divorce. — Absolute divorce is granted only for adultery, and in either of the following cases: Where both parties were residents of the State when the offense was committed, or were married in the State, or plaintiff resided in this State when the offense was committed and action commenced, or where offense was committed within the State and party injured resided here when action was commenced. (C. P. § 1756.) Plaintiff cannot take judgment on default without proof of the material allegations of complaint, and that there is no judgment in any court of the State of competent jurisdiction against him in favor of defendant, for a divorce upon the ground of adultery. In actions for divorce on ground of adultery, the co-respondent named may be made a party by the complainant, or such co-respondent may voluntarily appear and demand that he be made a party, at any time before entry of judgment. In case no one of the allegations of adultery controverted by such co-respondent shall be proved, such co-respondent shall be entitled to a bill of costs against the persons naming him as co-respondent. (C. P. § 1757.) Three months must elapse after entry of interlocutory judgment on referee's report or decision of court before final judgment of divorce or separation may be entered. (C. P. § 1774.) The plaintiff, after divorce, may remarry, but defendant cannot until the plaintiff's death, unless judgment of divorce is modified, on satisfactory proof that five years have elapsed since it was rendered, and that defendant's conduct has been uniformly good. (C. L. c. 14, § 8; L. 1915, c. 266.) Remarriage within the State to person other than plaintiff is bigamy. (People v. Faber, 92 N. Y. 146.) If defendant remarries without the State, the marriage, if valid there, will be upheld within the State despite prohibition. (Van Voorhis v. Brintal, 86 N. Y. 18.) Procurement, connivance, or forgiveness, failure to sue within five years after the discovery of offense, and adultery of plaintiff, are defenses. When wife is plaintiff, her inchoate right of dower in real estate of which her husband was seized at or before the judgment is not affected, and husband has no interest, absolute or contingent, in her separate estate acquired before or after judgment. When husband is plaintiff, the judgment does not affect his rights or interests in real or personal property owned by wife at time of judgment, but she is not entitled to dower or to distributive share in personalty. (C. P. §§ 1759, 1760.) Divorce changes tenancy by entirety into tenancy in common. (Stils v. Schreck, 25 Abb. N. C. 133, Special Term, Sup. Ct. 1st Dept. 1890.)

Separation. — Separation from bed and board forever or for a limited time is decreed for cruel and inhuman treatment, conduct rendering it unsafe and improper to cohabit with defendant, abandonment, or, where wife is plaintiff, neglect or refusal to provide for her. (C. P. § 1762.) Such action may be maintained where both parties were residents of the State when action was commenced, or when married in the State and plaintiff was a resident thereof when action commenced, or where the parties, having been married without the State, have become residents thereof, and have continued so at least one year, and plaintiff was such resident when action was commenced. (C. P. § 1763.) Misconduct of plaintiff may be pleaded as a defense. (C. P. § 1765.) In action for absolute divorce, or for separation, a like cause of action against plaintiff may be set in answer by way of counterclaim. (C. P. § 1770.) In matrimonial actions, residence means a party's permanent abode or domicile. (De Meli v. De Meli, 120 N. Y. 485, at p. 491.)

In actions for divorce or separation the court can make such provisions as justice requires for the custody, care, education, and maintenance of the children, and for support of the wife when she is plaintiff. (C. P. § 1771.)

Mechanics' Liens. — Mechanics' liens are now provided for by the Lien Law. (C. L. c. 33.) Any person who, with the consent of the owner or his agent, or any contractor or sub-contractor, performs labor or furnishes materials for the improvement of real property, may obtain a lien for the principal and interest of the value, or the agreed price, of such labor or materials upon the premises to the extent of the owner's right, title, or interest therein existing at the time of filing the notice of lien, and also the interest such owner may have assigned by a general assignment for creditors, within thirty days prior to the filing such notice of lien. The word owner as used in the statute includes the owner of any estate, lessee, vendee in possession, all who have interests which can be sold under execution, and all who have any interest in a municipal franchise. A notice of lien verified by the claimant or his agent must be filed with county clerk during the progress of the work or the furnishing of the materials, or within four months after the completion thereof. An owner may be served with notice of lien in same manner as with summons, and until so served will be protected in any payment in good faith, to any person, claiming lien. The lien continues only for one year from the time notice is filed, unless an action to enforce it is commenced and notice of lis pendens filed within that time, or the lien has been extended by an order and redocketed as of the date of the order. Also a person performing labor for or furnishing materials to a contractor, his sub-contractor, or legal representative, for the construction of a public improvement under a contract with the State or a municipal corporation, may file a lien for the principal and interest of what is owing him, upon the filing of a notice of lien, verified by him and containing the statements enumerated in § 12 of the Lien Law, with the head of the department or bureau having charge of the construction of said improvement and with the Comptroller of the State or with the chief financial officer of the municipal corporation, or other officer or person charged with the custody and disbursements of the State or corporate funds applicable to the contract under which the claim is made, provided said notice of lien is filed within thirty days after the completion and acceptance of the improvement. This lien attaches to the amount due or to become due on the contract with the State or municipal corporation and is a lien against money and not real property. The duration of the lien is three months from the date of filing unless an action to foreclose is begun and a lis pendens filed, except that the court may extend, in its discretion, for periods of not exceeding six months each. (§ 5 et seq., Lien Law, c. 38, L. 1909.) Liens for labor on railroads and against municipal corporations may also be obtained. By L. 1909, c. 38; C. L. c. 33, § 185, manufacturers and throwsters of silk have a lien on silk in their possession for the amount of any account due from owners of such silk for work done or materials furnished. Bailees of motor vehicles have a lien on such vehicles for storage, work done, and materials furnished. (L. 1909, c. 38; C. L. c. 33, § 184.) See Lien Law (L. 1909, c. 38; C. L. c. 33), arts. 2 to 6 for liens on personal property in general. (The Lien Law was considerably amended by L. 1916, c. 507.) Truckmen and draymen also have liens on property in their possession. (L. 1918, c. 366.)

Mortgages. — Mortgages are executed, acknowledged, and recorded in the same manner as deeds. An absolute conveyance shown by any other written instrument to be intended as a mortgage is considered as a mortgage, and must be recorded among mortgages at the same time and together with such instrument of defeasance, and the recording of the conveyance has no effect unless such other instrument be also recorded therewith and at the same time. An assignment of a mortgage must be recorded to protect the assignee against subsequent assignments duly recorded. A mortgagee has no estate in the land but a lien as security for the debt. He cannot bring ejectment to recover mortgaged premises. Foreclosure is by action or advertisement. In a foreclosure action a personal judgment for deficiency arising on the sale may be obtained against the mortgagor or purchaser of the equity of redemption who has assumed the mortgage debt, or against a surety. A person who should have been made a party, but was not, is not affected by the foreclosure and may redeem at any time within twenty years. After final decree, or while foreclosure is pending, leave of the court must be obtained to bring another action for the mortgage debt. Foreclosure by advertisement may be resorted to within the time in which an action could be maintained to foreclose such mortgage, when the mortgage contains a power of sale. (C. P. §§ 2387-2409.) Foreclosure bars redemption by any person properly made a party to the proceeding. Surplus arising on sale is brought into court and distributed among parties appearing entitled thereto. Dower right is paramount to mortgages made during marriage, unless the wife unites in the mortgage or releases dower. Purchase-money mortgages are exceptions to this rule, and are superior to the dower right, although wife does not join in the mortgage. When dower is subject to the mortgage, the wife has an interest in the surplus. A short form for mortgages is provided, and an extra fee is imposed for record of mortgages containing covenants at large. A mortgage is discharged of record by filing with the recording officer a certificate specifying that mortgage has been paid or satisfied, the certificate being executed and acknowledged like a deed to be recorded by the mortgagee, his representative or assignee; but in counties wholly embraced in a city of the first class it is necessary in addition to such certificate to present original mortgage for cancellation by effacing, without obliterating, the signatures thereon. Such original mortgage shall remain on file for ten years. In case of loss or destruction of original mortgage it is necessary to present a certified copy of an order from the supreme court or county court dispensing with its production and directing its cancellation of record. For the certificate of discharge can be substituted, if necessary, receipt for deposit in court. (L. 1909, c. 52; C. L. c. 50, §§ 321, 322.) Where such land lies in more than one county, original mortgage is filed in one, and certified copy with certificate and satisfaction-piece in the other. (C. L. c. 50, § 323.) As to discharge of mortgage by Alien Property Custodian, see L. 1918, c. 58.

Mortgage Tax Laws. — For taxes due prior to July 1, 1906, on mortgages of New York real estate recorded between July 1, 1905, and July 1, 1906, see L. 1905, c. 729, or under Mortgage in Hubbell's Legal Directory for 1906. The amended law (Tax Law, Art. XI) provides that as to mortgages recorded prior to July 1, 1906, where advance is made after that date the tax is imposed on the amount of the principal indebtedness so advanced. Statements for year ending June 30, 1907, must also state advances before July 1, 1906. Owner of any other mortgage recorded before July 1, 1906, may subject it to tax. (§ 254.) The tax is a lien. (C. L. c. 60, § 265; L. 1916, c. 323.)

The statute provides for a recording tax of fifty cents for each mortgage up to one hundred dollars and above that of fifty cents per one hundred dollars and remaining major fraction thereof of principal debt which is or under any contingency may be secured by mortgage of real property situated within the State, recorded on or after July 1, 1906. "Mortgage of real property" is defined as including any mortgage which creates a lien over, or affects the title to, real property, even though personal or other property may form part of the security. (§ 250, L. 1916, c. 323.) Executory contract for the sale of real property under which the vendee has or is entitled to possession are assessed as mortgages at the amount unpaid on such contracts, and agreements for increase of debt under mortgage at amount of such increase. (§ 250.)

Taxes are payable on the recording of the mortgage to the recording officer of the county where the property is situated, and the tax receipt indorsed by him upon the mortgage entitles mortgage and receipt to record in any county. (§ 257.) No such mortgage can be recorded, discharged of record, received in evidence, or foreclosed until the tax upon it has been paid, and a penalty of one per cent. per month is imposed for non-payment. (§ 258; L. 1916, c. 323.) Mortgages made by corporations in trust to secure bonds not yet issued may contain a statement of the amount of indebtedness already advanced, and only the tax on such an amount must then be paid, the tax on amounts thereafter advanced to be paid at or before the time they are advanced, and if not paid mortgages shall not certify bonds and district attorney can recover tax from the corporation. The corporation or trust mortgagor shall file by August 1, annually, a statement of principal indebtedness advanced till maximum is reached; penalty for failure to file of not less than one nor more than one thousand dollars for each thousand dollars of the maximum amount of principal indebtedness which is or may become secured by the mortgage, aggregate penalty not to exceed five thousand dollars. (§ 259; L. 1917, c. 573.) When the property covered by the mortgage is in different counties the amount upon which taxes are payable in each county is apportioned by the state board of tax commissioners, and so if partly in another State, in either case the amount of prior incumbrances upon any portion of the property being considered. (§ 260.) Mortgages taxed under this law are exempt from local taxation, but not from taxes imposed by §§ 24, 187, 188, 189, and art. 10 of the tax law.

Supplemental or additional mortgages are not taxable unless creating new or further obligation. (§ 255; L. 1916, c. 323.) Mortgages for indefinite amounts or contract obligations are taxable on value of property covered thereby. (§ 256; L. 1916, c. 323.) (The Mortgage Tax Law was considerably amended in 1916.)

Notaries Public. — Appointment and Jurisdiction. — Appointed by the governor for two years from March 30 of the year in which they are appointed, with jurisdiction extending over the county for which they are appointed and any other counties in which they file their autograph, together with a certificate of the county clerk of the county for which they are appointed setting forth the fact of appointment; except that to take proof of deeds for record they must file autograph and certificate with register, if any, of the county. (C. L. c. 18, § 103; L. 1915, c. 18.)

Powers and Duties. — To demand payment and acceptance of bills and notes and protest for the non-payment and non-acceptance thereof: to execute such duties as are performed by notaries according to the law of nations, commercial usage or laws of other governments; to administer oaths and affirmations, take affidavits, certify the acknowledgments and proofs of deeds to be read in evidence or recorded in the State in all cases in which commissioners of deeds may certify the same. A county clerk's certificate authenticating the official character and the signature of the notary is necessary where any deed or written instrument so acknowledged before a notary is to be read in evidence or recorded in a county where he has no jurisdiction. A notary may act without a seal in the exercise of his special powers, i. e. administering an oath or affirmation, taking proof and acknowledgments of a deed or other paper for use in this State in all cases in which commissioners of deeds may certify the same. In the exercise of their general powers notaries should use their seals.

Notes and Bills. — A general law, known as the Negotiable Instruments Law, was enacted by L. 1897, c. 612 (now C. L. c. 38). Instruments knowingly made payable to a fictitious or non-existing person as well as those in which the name of the payee does not purport to be the name of any person, or which are indorsed in blank, are payable to bearer. Acceptance of a bill of exchange must be in writing, signed by drawee. An acceptance written on paper other than the bill, and an unconditional written promise to accept a bill before it is drawn, does not bind the acceptor except in favor of a purchaser for value on faith thereof. If an acceptance on the bill is refused, the bill may be treated as dishonored. A drawee who destroys a bill presented to him for acceptance, or refuses within twenty-four hours to return the bill accepted or unaccepted to the holder, is deemed to have accepted the same. Where a check is certified by the bank on which it is drawn, the certification is equivalent to an acceptance. A bill or note must be duly presented for acceptance or payment, acceptance or payment refused, and due notice given, to hold drawer and indorsers. Where a signature is so placed upon a negotiable instrument that it is not clear in what capacity the person making the same intended to sign, he is to be deemed an indorser. (Moore v. Cross, 19 N. Y. 227.) All days of grace are abolished. January 1st, February 12th and 22d, May 30th, July 4th, 1st Monday in September, October 12th, December 25th, and, if either of such days is Sunday, the next day thereafter, any general election day, every Saturday after twelve o'clock noon (called a half holiday), and any day appointed by the governor or president as a day of thanksgiving or fasting and prayer, or other religious observance, are public holidays, and, for the purpose of presentation and protest of bills, notes, and checks, are to be regarded as Sunday.

Negotiable paper, otherwise presentable for payment on any of the said days or on Sunday, shall be presented on the secular or business day next succeeding such holiday or Sunday; but demand paper may be presented on Saturday before twelve o'clock unless the entire day is a holiday. Presentment for acceptance may be made at any time when demand papers might be presented for payment. Negotiable paper given in whole or in part for the right to make, use, or sell a patent must contain the words, "Given for a patent right." If the consideration of a negotiable instrument consists in whole or in part of the purchase price of, or of a contract to purchase, any farm product at a price at least four times the fair market value thereof at the time in the locality, or of the membership in an association, etc., to produce or sell any such product at a fictitious rate, the words, "Given for a speculative consideration," or other words showing the nature of the consideration, must appear upon the instrument. Any instrument is subject to all equities in the hands of any holder. One who knowingly negotiates an instrument given for such a consideration is guilty of a misdemeanor. (C. L. c. 40, §§ 1520, 1521.)

Practice. — See Revision and Actions.

Proof of Claims. — Parties sending claims for collection should furnish full name or names of the party or parties in whose name suit is to be brought. If the claim belongs to a firm, the full name of each member should be given. An itemised account showing dates of sales, loans, description of goods sold, terms of credit, etc., should also be sent, and the name and residence of the witness or witnesses to prove the claim should be stated. In an action on contract for liquidated damages, if the defendant makes default in appearing or pleading, judgment may be entered at once on sworn complaint. If the complaint is not verified, the clerk assesses the damages on proper proof. See Assignments and Insolvency and Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Recording Acts. — Every conveyance of real estate is void as against a subsequent purchaser in good faith and for a valuable consideration of the same real estate, or any portion thereof, whose conveyance shall be first duly recorded in the office of the clerk of the county where the land is situated, except in the counties of New York, Westchester, and Kings, where it must be recorded in the register's office. The recording of an assignment of a mortgage is not notice of such assignment to a mortgagor, his heirs or representatives, so as to invalidate payments made by them to the mortgagee, but it is such notice to a purchaser from the mortgagor. (31 Abb. N. C. 308.) The word "conveyance" embraces every instrument by which any interest in real estate is created, aliened, mortgaged, or assigned or by which title thereto is affected in law or equity, except wills, leases for terms not exceeding three years, executory contracts for sale or purchase of land, instruments containing a power to convey real property. Powers of attorney and executory contracts may be recorded so as to be conveniently used for evidence, but not for purpose of constructive notice. (See Deeds and Mortgages for Short Form, C. L. c. 50; and L. 1917, c. 681.)

Redemption. — See Mortgages and Taxes.

Replevin. — Chattels may be replevied at the time of or before the issuance of a summons, or at any time before answer, or, in case of default in appearing or pleading, before final judgment, upon the plaintiff's delivering to the sheriff a requisition to replevy and an undertaking in double the value of the property and an affidavit made by himself or by his attorney. Affidavit must describe the property, showing his ownership, or the facts entitling him to possession of the chattel by virtue of special property therein, and that it is wrongfully detained by the defendant; the alleged cause of detention; that it has not been taken under a warrant against plaintiff for collection of a tax, assessment, or fine under a statute of the State or of the United States, or, if taken under such a warrant, that the taking was unlawful, and that it has not been taken by virtue of an execution or a warrant of attachment against plaintiff, or a person through whom plaintiff has derived title since the seizure, or, if so seized, the facts showing that it was exempt, or its detention unlawful, and its actual value. Within three days after the chattel is replevied and a copy of the papers served, defendant may require the return thereof, upon delivering to the sheriff an undertaking in double the value of the property, and an affidavit showing the facts upon which defendant claims to be entitled to possession. A third party claiming the property replevied may, before its delivery to either party, deliver to the sheriff an affidavit specifying the property, and stating facts on which his right depends. In that case, if the sheriff is not indemnified, he may deliver the property to the claimant. In an action by such a claimant against the sheriff for delivering property, the summons must be issued within three months after such delivery, and be served within three months after it is issued. Where the sheriff has only part of the property plaintiff may, at any time before answer or default, require him to replevy any other part, upon delivering a requisition, undertaking, and affidavit as above. If defendant has been arrested pursuant to an order, chattel with respect to which order was granted cannot be replevied. If order granted, but defendant has not been arrested, subsequent replevying of the chattel supersedes the order. Plaintiff's action is not affected by his failure to replevy, and judgment may be obtained for the recovery of the chattel or its value. Where chattel recovered has been injured or depreciated in value while under control of defendant, plaintiff may recover damages in the replevin action. Title in a third person is a good defense to such action. (C. P. §§ 1690-1736.)

Revision. — Consolidated Laws enacted in 1909 now present the statute law of the State in convenient form. They do not purport to be more than a transcript of the statutes already in force and do not change the substance of the law. The last revision was finished January 30, 1830. On May 1, 1877, a partial revision went into effect relating to courts, officers of justice and civil proceedings and code of remedial justice. Its operation was suspended from May 22, 1877, until September 1, 1877, at which time with many amendments, it became a law, under the name of "The Code of Civil Procedure." Nine additional chapters relating to actions to recover real and personal property, matrimonial and corporation actions, special proceedings, surrogates' courts, justices' courts, certain city courts, costs and fees, were adopted May 6, 1880, and went into effect as a part of this Code, September 1, 1880. Chapter 23, relating to proceedings for condemnation of real property and sale of corporate real estate, took effect May 1, 1890. (L. 1890, c. 95.) The Constitution was revised in 1894, and went into effect January 1, 1895, except as therein otherwise provided. The Code of Criminal Procedure and a Penal Code were passed in 1881; the former took effect September 1, 1881, and the latter, December 1, 1882. (L. 1882, c. 102.)

Amendments to the Code of Civil Procedure and the Code of Criminal Procedure were enacted in chapters 65 and 66 of the Laws of 1909. As in the case of the Consolidated Laws, these amendments are not intended to be a change in substance, only a rearrangement.

An annotated edition of the Consolidated Laws edited by Birdseye, Cumming & Gilbert is published by The Banks Law Publishing Co.

Sales. — Article V. of the Personal Property Law enacted in 1911 is substantially the Uniform Sales Act.

Seal. — The private seal of a person may consist of a seal affixed, the word "Seal" or the letters "L. S." opposite the signature, or any scroll or mark intended as a seal.

Service. — See Actions.

Stay of Execution. — An execution may be stayed by order of the court or a judge (C. P. §§ 775, 1343, 1351); or by security given on appeal. (C. P. §§ 1310, 1341. See Appeals.)

Supplementary Proceedings. — (C. P. §§ 2432-2463.) At any time within ten years after return of execution against property wholly or partly unsatisfied, an order may be obtained for the examination of the judgment debtor concerning his property, or of a third person in debt to or having property of judgment debtor, upon an affidavit or other competent written evidence showing above facts. Witnesses may also be examined, books required to be produced, transfer of the debtor's property enjoined, and property discovered at once by an order applied in payment of the judgment. After the issuing and before the return of such execution, upon an affidavit or other competent written evidence showing that the judgment debtor has property which he unjustly refuses to apply towards the satisfaction of the judgment, an order may also be obtained requiring him to be examined concerning his property. By this proceeding, debts, choses in action, and tangible property may be reached, but not articles exempt (see Exemptions), earnings for sixty days prior to order necessary for use of a family supported by him, and property held under a trust created by a person other than the judgment debtor. A receiver may be appointed to take charge of property discovered, and to reduce choses in action to possession.

Taxes. — (See L. 1909, c. 62; C. L. c. 60.) All real property within this State, and all personal property situated or owned within this State, is taxable unless specially exempt from taxation by law. This includes the personal property of non-residents situated within the State (except negotiable securities deposited as collateral or money deposited by or debts owing to non-residents). Capital invested by non-residents in business in the State is taxed as personal property. Owner and holder of stock in trust company liable to taxation is not taxable individually thereon. Taxes on personal property are enforced by sale of debtor's personal chattels, by action on short notice. Taxes on real property not paid for one year from the first day of February following the date on which the tax was laid are enforced by sale by state comptroller. Lists of such lands are sent to the county treasurer eighteen weeks before sale, and published weekly for ten weeks previous to sale in two newspapers of the county where the land is situated, and notice of sale, which always takes place at Albany, is published for twelve weeks preceding, in county newspapers. Sufficient of each parcel of land to pay taxes, interest, and expenses of sale is sold at the time advertised; the surplus, if any, is held in trust for the former owner. Purchaser at tax sale receives certificate describing the property and the amount paid therefor; if no previous redemption, the purchaser is entitled to a deed at the expiration of one year from the last day of sale. The comptroller must publish, in two newspapers of the county where the land is situated, designated to publish the session laws, a description of the land and the amount necessary to be paid for redemption, weekly for six weeks; the last notice must appear at least six weeks before the expiration of the time for redemption. Land may be redeemed within one year from the time of sale on payment of the amount paid by the purchaser, with ten per cent. interest; if no redemption, comptroller then executes conveyance vesting in the purchaser absolute estate in fee simple. If at the time of such conveyance the lands are in the immediate occupancy of persons other than the purchaser, the latter must serve notice upon such occupant of the sale and conveyance within one year after the time for redemption expires. At any time within six months after such notice and proof of service thereof is filed in the state comptroller's office, the occupant or any other person may redeem on payment of the consideration mentioned in the conveyance, with thirty-seven and one half per cent. on such sum, and charge of executing the deed. The purchaser shall, within one year from expiration of time to redeem, give notice to mortgagees, requiring them to redeem such lands within six months by payment of the purchase price with interest. If payment is made, it is deemed to be included in the mortgage. Taxes paid on erroneous or illegal assessments will be refunded as prescribed in L. 1909, c. 62; C. L. c. 60, § 296. For tax on transfer of stock, see Corporations. For tax on mortgages, see Mortgages.

Provision is made by C. 802 (L. 1909, c. 62; C. L. c. 60, § 330) of the laws of 1911 for making certain "secured debts," excluding bond, etc., of the state or secured by property in the State, tax exempt by paying to the state comptroller twenty cents per year on each one hundred dollars or fraction for not exceeding five years. The exemption does not apply to franchise and transfer taxes. (See L. 1917, c. 700, c. 811.)

Testimony. — Parties and persons interested in the event of a suit are competent witnesses. (C. P. § 828.) There are, however, some exceptions, e. g. party or person interested, or predecessor of such person, is not a competent witness in his own behalf or interest, or in behalf of his successor in interest against the executor, administrator, or survivor of a deceased person, or the committee of a lunatic, or the successor in interest of such decedent or lunatic, concerning a personal transaction or communication between the witness and decedent or lunatic, unless executor or other person named is examined in his own behalf, or testimony of decedent or lunatic concerning the transaction or communication is given in evidence. (C. P. § 829.) Husbands and wives may be witnesses for or against each other, except that in actions founded on adultery they are incompetent, except to prove the marriage or to disprove allegation of adultery. However, if upon such trial or such hearing, the party against whom the allegation of adultery is made produces evidence tending to prove any of the defences thereto mentioned in C. P. § 1758, the other party is competent to testify in disproof of any such defense. Neither can be compelled, or, without the consent of the other, if living, allowed, to disclose confidential communications made during marriage: in criminal conversation, plaintiff's wife is a competent witness for defendant but not for plaintiff, and cannot disclose confidential communications. (C. P. § 831.) Conviction of crime does not render witness incompetent. (C. P. § 832.) Fact may be shown to affect credibility. Clergymen, physicians, professional or registered nurses and attorneys and counselors, and the latter's clerks, etc., are not allowed to disclose communications made to them respectively in their professional character, in the course of discipline enjoined by the rules or practice of their church, professional information acquired in attending patient, and necessary to enable physician to act in a professional capacity, communications made to them by clients, and their advice given thereon in course of professional employment. (C. P. §§ 833-835.) These provisions may be waived by the person confessing or the patient or the client. (§ 836.) Physician or professional nurse may also disclose information as to mental or physical condition of decedent, except confidential communications or disgraceful facts, upon a waiver by the personal representatives of decedent, or of executors named in will whose validity is attacked, or of surviving husband, widow, heir, next of kin, or any other party in interest. (C. P. § 836.) Witness is not required to give an answer tending to criminate him or expose him to penalty or forfeiture, but is not privileged because the facts established thereby render him liable to civil suit. (C. P. § 837.) A seal on an executory agreement is only presumptive evidence of sufficient consideration. (C. P. § 840.) Seven years' absence from State or United States affords presumption of death in an action or proceeding concerning real property of which he was possessed or upon whose life an estate in real property depends. (C. P. § 841.) For rules as to taking depositions, see title Depositions.

Transfers in Bulk. — Transfer of stock in bulk or of part thereof out of regular course of business, except by executors, receivers, etc., is presumptively void as against transferor's creditors unless they are duly notified by prospective transferee. (C. L. c. 41, § 44; L. 1914, c. 507.)

Trust Deeds. — Trust deeds are rarely used in this State for securing payment of money lent. See Mortgages.

Usury. — See Interest.

Warehouse Receipts. — A general law known as the Warehouse Receipt Act was enacted by L. 1907, c. 732 (now L. 1909, c. 25; C. L. c. 20, §§ 90-143). Any warehouse can issue receipts in any form embodying location of warehouse, date of issue, number, statement to whom deliverable, rate of charges, description of goods, signature of warehouseman, nature of ownership, and amount of advances, etc., on which lien claimed. Omission of required terms renders warehouseman liable. He can insert other consistent terms not impairing his obligation to exercise reasonable care. Receipts running to specified persons are non-negotiable and must be plainly so marked; receipts to bearer or order are negotiable, even despite provisions to contrary; and duplicates must be plainly so marked. For not marking warehouseman is liable.

Warehouseman must deliver goods (or show legal excuse) on demand of holder or depositor offering to satisfy lien, to surrender negotiable receipt with necessary indorsements, and to sign, on request, acknowledgment of delivery. He is justified in delivering to a person entitled to possession or to delivery under terms or indorsement of non-negotiable receipt (or under written authority); or to holder of negotiable receipt so entitled under its terms or indorsement. Otherwise, or if forbidden by proper person, or informed delivery will be improper, he is liable in conversion. Unless on partial or complete delivery of goods negotiable receipt is marked accordingly, he is liable to bona fide purchaser. Alteration does not excuse warehouseman from fulfilling original terms of receipt. But if alteration is with authority he is held to altered terms. If negotiable receipt is lost or destroyed, court may order goods delivered on proof of loss, etc., and bond to protect warehouseman, who, however, is still liable to bona fide holder. The warehouseman cannot set up title in himself, but can bring interpleader; he has a reasonable time to determine validity of claims, but otherwise, and except where delivery was justified or goods were lawfully sold, adverse title is no defense for him. He is liable to receipt-holder for non-existence of goods or for misdescription in receipt unless this describes marks or labels, or goods "said to be" so and so. He must take reasonable care of the goods and keep them separate, though, if authorized by agreement or custom, fungible goods may be mingled, the depositors owning proportionately. If goods are delivered to warehouseman by owner, or one who can bind him, and negotiable receipt issued, they cannot be attached or levied on under execution without the surrender of receipt; but creditor can reach the receipt. Warehouseman keeps possession till he or the court gets the receipt. His lien includes storage charges, sale expenses, money advanced, labor, etc., and is enforceable against goods owned by lien debtor, or those deposited by him provided he could validly pledge. Warehouseman loses lien by surrendering possession or dishonoring a valid demand, or (except for storage charges) by issuing negotiable receipt which fails to enumerate the charges. Person demanding goods must satisfy lien against himself. Lien does not preclude other remedies. It may also be satisfied by sale at auction, after proper notice and advertisement, if the goods are not redeemed beforehand. Perishable and hazardous goods may after reasonable notice be sold without advertising, or if sale impossible be otherwise disposed of. Sale relieves warehouseman's liability to deliver.

Negotiable receipts running to bearer or indorsed to bearer or in blank pass by delivery (though holder may make a restrictive indorsement) or by indorsement; otherwise they may by delivery be transferred. The owner or duly authorized holder, or holder of receipt negotiable by delivery, can negotiate it. The person taking by negotiation gets such title as person negotiating and depositor or obligee of receipt could give bona fide purchaser; and also warehouseman's obligation to hold for him. Transferee without negotiation gets title subject to transferor's agreements, and if receipt is non-negotiable he can acquire the direct obligation of warehouseman on notice, thus securing himself against levy by transferor's creditor or notification to warehouseman from transferor's purchaser. Transferee of negotiable receipt by delivery can compel necessary indorsement. Transferor or indorser warrants genuineness, right to transfer, validity so far as he knows, and merchantableness of goods as in sales; but no warranty is implied from accepting payment of a debt. The indorser is not a guarantor. Negotiation is not impaired by breach of duty, fraud, mistake, or duress, as to a bona fide purchaser; who also takes title though under a fraudulent subsequent negotiation. Negotiation defeats vendor's lien.

Frauds in the issuance and negotiation of receipts or delivery of goods are punishable criminally.

Wills. — All persons, except idiots, persons of unsound mind, and infants, can devise real estate, including any estate or interest in real property descendible to heirs. A devise to a corporation not authorized by charter or statute so to take is invalid. Males can bequeath personal property at the age of eighteen, females at sixteen. No nuncupative will bequeathing personal estate is valid unless made by soldier in actual military service, or by mariner at sea. A will must be executed and attested as follows: Must be subscribed by the testator at end of the will in the presence of each of the attesting witnesses, or acknowledged to have been so made to each of such witnesses, and declared by him, at the time of subscribing or of acknowledging the same, to be his last will and testament, and at least two attesting witnesses shall sign their names at the end of the will at the request of the testator. The witnesses must write opposite their names their respective places of residence; such an omission does not invalidate the will, but subjects the witness to a penalty of fifty dollars. A seal is not necessary. While it is usual to admit typewritten wills to probate, the question has not been passed upon by the courts. The following is the usual attestation clause: "Signed, sealed, published, and declared by the said testator as and for his last will and testament, in our presence, who at his request, and in his presence, and in the presence of each other, have hereunto subscribed our names as attesting witnesses." Subsequent marriage and birth of issue revoke the will previously made, unless made in contemplation of marriage. A will executed by an unmarried woman is revoked by her subsequent marriage although no issue. Wills of real and personal property executed as prescribed by the laws of New York, or of personal property executed without the State but in the United States, Canada, or Great Britain and Ireland, according to the laws of the country where executed, or will of personal property executed by person not a resident of the State, according to the laws of his place of residence, may be proved in New York. (L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, §§ 23-25.) Copy of a will admitted to probate in any other State, or of the record thereof, and of the proofs or of the record thereof, or if proofs are not on file any statement on file of the existence of proofs properly authenticated, or, if there are no proofs and no statement, a copy of will or record thereof authenticated and accompanied by a certificate that there are no proofs or statement, may be recorded in the surrogate's office of any county where the real estate affected by the will be situated. Original wills filed in New York may be sent to other States for probate. In case of wills of personalty, the filing of such papers, and of copies of foreign letters properly authenticated, entitle the executors or administrators with the will annexed to ancillary letters. This applies to cases of letters issued by courts of foreign countries as well as of the States of the United States. No person having husband, wife, child, or parent is permitted to devise or bequeath by will to any benevolent, charitable, literary, scientific, or religious society, association, or corporation, in trust or otherwise, more than one half of his or her estate after payment of debts; such devise or bequest is valid to the extent of one half of the estate; the widow's dower and debts must be deducted in ascertaining the value of the estate. (L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, § 17.)

A gift to a subscribing witness who is necessary to the proof of the will is void; the witness is not made incompetent by such gift. But if the witness would have been entitled to any share of the estate, in case the will was not established, then so much of such share shall be saved to him as will not exceed the value of the gift made in the will. (L. 1909, c. 18; C. L. c. 13, § 27.) (This chapter, known as the Decedent Estate Law, is printed in Chase's Pocket Code of Civil Procedure for 1918 as Appendix II.)

NORTH CAROLINA LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by
James H. Pou, Esq., of Raleigh.

The next legislature convenes on Wednesday after first Monday in January, 1919.
Any necessary changes in the present laws will be noted in our supplement.
References by sections are to Revision of 1905.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity is abolished and there is but one form of action, and that is denominated a civil action. All actions in the superior courts must be commenced by the issuing of a summons, which is to be issued by the clerk of the superior court, at the instance of the plaintiff. The summons must be signed by the clerk, who, before issuing it, must take bond with sufficient security for the prosecution of the suit. Guarantee companies may be surety on such bonds. (Revenue Act, ch. 201, Public Laws of 1913.) Actions "upon a bill, note, bill of exchange, liquidated and settled account, or for divorce" stand for trial at the appearance term, if the summons be served and complaint filed thirty days prior to such term. (§ 484.) Other actions do not stand for trial until the succeeding term, except in a few instances, such as controversies over the title to office, taxes, and the like. Action for injury to person survives death of defendant. (Ch. 38, Laws 1915.) This act changes the law as decided in Watts v. Vanderbilt, 167 N. C., p. 567; and that case is no longer an authority. Plaintiff nonsuited must pay costs before bringing new action, unless former suit in forma pauperis. (Ch. 211, Laws 1915.) In all actions involving title to real property, title conclusively deemed out of State, unless State be party to action: Provided, this shall not apply to trials of protested entries laid for the purpose of obtaining grants. (Ch. 195, Laws 1917.)

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits. — Affidavits in another State or country to be used in any judicial proceeding in this State should be made before a commissioner of affidavits duly commissioned by the governor of this State, or before a clerk of a court of record of any other State or a notary public. (§§ 925, 2350.)

Aliens — May take by purchase, descent, or by will, and transmit real estate, whether they are residents of the State or not. (§ 182.)

Appeals. — An appeal can be taken from every judicial order or determination of a judge of a superior court, upon or involving a matter of law or legal inference, whether made in or out of term, which affects a substantial right claimed in any action or proceeding, or which in effect determines the action and prevents a judgment from which an appeal might be taken, or discontinues the action, or grants or refuses a new trial. (§ 587.)

If the judgment is rendered in term time, the appeal must be taken within ten days after its rendition; if rendered out of term time, within ten days after notice thereof. (§ 588.)

Appeals lie from the superior courts to the supreme court, and from justices' courts to the superior court.

In appeals from a justice's court, the appellant must serve a notice of appeal upon the justice and the adverse party within ten days after the rendition of the judgment, unless the adverse party be present in the justice's court, personally or by attorney, at the time of the appeal, in which case no written notice is necessary. (§§ 1491, 1492.)

If the judgment is rendered when process was not personally served, and the defendant did not appear and answer, he shall have fifteen days after personal notice of the judgment in which to serve notice of appeal. (§ 1491.)

Arrests — May be made: 1st. The defendant may be arrested when he is a non-resident of this State, or is about to remove therefrom, in an action for the recovery of damages on a cause of action not arising out of contract, or when the action is for injury to person or character, or for injuring, wrongfully taking, detaining, or converting real or personal property. 2d. In an action for a fine or penalty, or for seduction, or for money received, or for property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied by a public officer, or by an attorney, solicitor, or counselor, or by an officer or agent of a corporation or banking association, in the course of his employment as such, or by any factor, agent, broker, or other person in a fiduciary capacity, or for any misconduct or neglect in office, or in a professional employment. 3d. In an action to recover the possession of personal property unjustly detained, where the property or any part thereof has been concealed, removed, or disposed of, so that it cannot be found or taken by the sheriff, and with the intent that it should not be so found or taken, or with the intent to deprive the plaintiff of the benefit thereof. 4th. Where the defendant has been guilty of a fraud in contracting the debt or incurring the obligation for which the action is brought, or in concealing or disposing of the property for the taking, detention, or conversion of which the action is brought, or when the action is brought to recover damages for fraud or deceit. 5th. When the defendant has removed or disposed of his property, or is about to do so, with intent to defraud his creditors. But no female shall be arrested in any action, except for a willful injury to person, character, or property. Nor shall any arrest be made on Sunday. (§ 727.)

An order for the arrest of the defendant must be obtained from the court in which the action is brought, or from a judge thereof. The order may be made when it shall appear to the court or judge, by affidavit of the plaintiff or any other person, that a sufficient cause of action exists, and that the case is one of those above mentioned. (§§ 728, 729.)

A written undertaking on the part of the plaintiff with sufficient surety to secure to defendant all costs and damages which he may sustain is required. The amount of the undertaking shall not be less than one hundred dollars. Statute does not require sureties to the freeholders. (§ 730.) See Corporations.

Assignments. — See Insolvent Laws and Assignments. — Clerk of the superior court shall make appointment of a trustee in special proceedings, to which all persons in interest are made parties, to executed deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors where the original trustee has died or resigned. (Ch. 176, Laws 1915.)

Attachments. — At the time of the issuing of the summons, or at any time afterwards, an attachment may issue in the following cases, to wit: When the action is to recover a sum of money only, or damages for one or more of the following causes: 1. Breach of contract express or implied. 2. Wrongful conversion of personal property. 3. Any other injury to real or personal property, in consequence of negligence, fraud, or other wrong. 4. Any injury to the person, caused by negligence or wrongful act. (§ 758.)

To entitle the plaintiff to a warrant, he must show by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court granting the same: 1. That one of the causes of action specified above exists against the defendant. If the action is to recover damages for breach of contract, the defendant must show that the plaintiff is entitled to recover a sum stated therein, over and above all counter claims known to him. 2. That the defendant is either a foreign corporation, or a domestic corporation none of whose officers can, after due diligence, be found in this State, or not a resident of the State; or, if he is a natural person and a resident of the State, that he has departed therefrom, with intent to defraud his creditors, or to avoid service of summons, or keeps himself concealed therein with like intent; or, if the defendant is a natural person or a domestic corporation, that he or it has removed, or is about to remove, property from the State, with intent to defraud his or its creditors; or has assigned, disposed of, or secreted, or is about to assign, dispose of, or secrete, property with the like intent. (§ 759.)

The affidavit upon which the warrant is granted must be filed with the clerk of the court to which, or magistrate before whom, the warrant is returnable, within ten days from the issuing of the warrant. (§ 760.)

A written undertaking "with sufficient surety," to secure all defendants' costs and damages, in a sum not less than two hundred dollars, must be given by plaintiff. The statute does not require that sureties to the above undertaking be freeholders, nor does it specify the number required. (§ 763.) But if personal security is given it is best that the sureties be residents and freeholders, for if defendant should require the undertaking to be justified, as he may do, such sureties will be required. (§§ 740, 788.) See Corporations.

The affidavit can be made by plaintiff's agent. (Bruff v. Stern, 81 N. C. 183.)

If several attachments are levied on the same property at different times, they take precedence in the order of their levy. If levied on real property, the officer must certify such levy to the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the land lies. The clerk must note such levy on the judgment docket and index the same on the index for judgments, and the levy is a lien only from the date of such entry by the clerk; but if such levy is indexed and docketed within five days after the levy is made, the lien relates back to the time of the levy. (§ 767.)

Attachments may be issued by a justice of the peace if the cause of action is within his jurisdiction. (§ 769.) See Insolvent Laws and Assignments.

Chattel Mortgages. — A form is prescribed by statute for chattel mortgages, the probate and registration fees on which are less than ordinary chattel mortgages. (§§ 1039, 2773; ch. 69, Laws 1911.)

It is made a misdemeanor to dispose of or to buy property covered by a chattel mortgage with intent to defeat the mortgagee's rights. (§ 3435.)

Party may sell after the day when the note becomes due, but no time is fixed for foreclosure. (§ 1034.)

Chattel mortgages must be recorded in the county where the mortgagor resides; or, in case he does not reside in this State, then in the county where the chattels are situate, unless they consist of choses in action, in which latter case the mortgage must be recorded in the county where the mortgagee resides. There is no statute requiring their renewal. (§ 982.) See Mortgages and Deeds of Trust: Insolvent Laws and Assignments.

Conditional sales must be recorded in the county in which the purchaser resides, or, if he resides out of the State, in the county in which the property, or some part thereof, is situated. (§ 983.) If household or kitchen furniture is mortgaged, it is essential to its validity that the wife of the mortgagor join in the execution of the mortgage, and that her private examination be taken as in cases of conveyances of real estate. (§ 1041.)

Contracts of conditional sales containing no method of sale upon default may be foreclosed in the manner prescribed by law for foreclosure of chattel mortgages executed in the form above referred to. That is, after default the seller or grantor in a conditional sale contract may, without an order of court, sell the property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay off the indebtedness, at public auction, for cash, after having given twenty days' notice thereof at three or more public places in the county where the sale is to be made, and after having mailed a notice of such sale, at least ten days before the day of sale, properly stamped and addressed to the original purchaser, or his assigns, at his or their last known address; and apply the proceeds of such sale to the discharge of the debt, interest on the same, and the costs of foreclosure, and pay any surplus to the person legally entitled to the same. (Ch. 60, Public Laws 1913.) Short form of conditional sale agreement provided, and execution and registration of same simplified. Fee for probate, ten cents; registration, fifteen cents. Privy examination of married women not necessary in original sales of furniture by dealers. Applies only to Durham, Wake, Guilford, Rockingham, Halifax, and Surry Counties.

Chattel mortgages may be foreclosed by suit in court, or by sale if mortgage contain a power of sale. See Mortgages and Deeds of Trust for advertisement of sale.

When by the terms of a chattel mortgage, particularly of a miscellaneous stock of merchandise, the mortgagee is allowed to remain in possession for an unreasonable length of time — say nine months — and deal with the property as his own, a presumption of law arises that the mortgage is fraudulent as to other creditors of the mortgagor; and if fraudulent, it is void as to such other creditors. (Holmes v. Marshall, 78 N. C. 262; Cheatham v. Hawkins, 80 N. C. 161.)

The following is the form prescribed by statute for chattel mortgages (ch. 69, Laws 1911): —

I, _____ of the county of _____ in the State of North Carolina, am indebted to _____ of _____ county, in said State, in the sum of _____ dollars, for which he holds my note to be due the _____ day of _____ A. D. 19____ and to secure the payment of the same I do hereby convey to him these articles of personal property, to wit: (insert description); but on this special trust, that if I fail to pay said debt and interest on or before the _____ day of _____ A. D. 19____ then he may sell said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, by public auction, for cash, first giving twenty days' notice at three public places, and apply the proceeds of such sale to the discharge of said debt and interest on the same, and pay any surplus to me.

Given under my hand and seal this _____ day of _____ A. D. 19____ .
(Signature.) [Seal.]

No special provision is made as to the manner of proof and acknowledgment of chattel mortgages and conditional sales. The probate of such instruments is governed by the laws regulating the probate of deeds and other instruments, a synopsis of which laws appears under the title Deeds.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Claims on the Estates of Deceased Persons. — The personal representative of a deceased person must within twenty days after his qualification advertise for claimants to exhibit their claims at or before a certain day, which must be twelve months from the first publication of the notice. A creditor who neglects to present his claim within the prescribed time may yet recover of the heirs, devisees, legatees, or next of kin. Real estate may be sold for the payment of debts under orders of the court, obtained for the purpose. The clerk of the superior court is the probate judge. Debts are to be paid in the following order: First class. Debts which by law have a specific lien on property to an amount not exceeding the value of such property. Second class. Funeral expenses. Third class. Taxes assessed on the estate of the deceased previous to his death. Fourth class. Debts due to the United States, and to the State of North Carolina. Fifth class. Judgments of any court of competent jurisdiction within the State, docketed and in force, to the extent to which they are a lien on the property of the deceased at his death. Sixth class. Wages due to any domestic, servant, or mechanical or agricultural laborer employed by the deceased; which claim for wages shall not extend to a period of more than one year next preceding the death; or if such servant or laborer was employed for the year current at the decease, then from the time of such employment; for medical services within the twelve months preceding the decease. Seventh class. All other debts and demands. Every debt must be paid pro rata equally in its class. (Rev. ch. 1.) Claims must be proved in the same manner whether creditor lives in or out of the State.

In case of intestacy, letters of administration are to be granted to the persons entitled in the order following: 1. Husband or widow. 2. To the next of kin in the order of their degree; if of equal degree, to one or more of them, at the discretion of the clerk. 3. To the most competent creditor who resides within the State and proves his debt on oath before the clerk. 4. To any other person legally competent. Non-residents may qualify as executors. (§§ 3, 5.)

Administrators and non-resident executors must give bond with two or more sufficient sureties to be justified and approved by the clerk in an amount at least double the value of all the personal estate of the deceased. The clerk may require additional sureties and an increase of the bond from time to time if necessary for the protection of those interested in the estate. (§§ 28, 32.) See Corporations.

Every widow of a resident intestate, or of a resident testator from whose will she has dissented, besides her distributive share in her husband's personal estate, is entitled to an allowance of three hundred dollars, and one hundred dollars additional for every child of deceased or widow, or child towards whom deceased or widow stood in loco parentis, and who was residing with deceased at his death, such children being not over fifteen years of age. This allowance may be increased to a sum sufficient for the support of the widow and her family, according to the estate and condition of her husband; but in no case shall it exceed one half the net annual income of deceased for the three years next preceding his death. These allowances are made whether the husband was solvent or insolvent at his death, but increased allowance is not allowed if estate insolvent or personal estate does not exceed two thousand dollars. (§§ 3091-3107.) If there be no widow, or the widow die before the year's allowance is allotted, each child such as is above described is entitled to have one hundred dollars allotted for its benefit. (§ 3094.) See Dower.

Executors and administrators must file an inventory of all the estate of deceased within three months after qualification; must file annual accounts; and a final account within two years, unless the time is extended by the clerk. All accounts are filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court. (§§ 42, 99, 103.) Amount of bond of public administrator reduced to four thousand dollars. (Ch. 216, Laws 1915.)

Conditional Sales. — See Chattel Mortgages; Insolvent Laws and Assignments.

Consignments. — If any consignee embezzle, or fraudulently or knowingly and willfully misapply or convert to his own use, or take, make way with, or secrete, with intent to embezzle, or fraudulently or knowingly and willfully misapply or convert to his own use, any money, goods, or other chattels, etc., he shall be guilty of felony. (§ 3406.) He may also be arrested and held to bail in a civil action. (§ 727.)

Constitutional Amendments. — Four amendments recited were adopted at election in November, 1916, and became effective January 10, 1917.

General Assembly of 1917 submitted two amendments to be voted on at general election in 1918. First, exempting from taxation notes, mortgages, and other evidences of indebtedness given in good faith for purchase price of home, where they do not exceed three thousand dollars, and made to run for not less than five, nor more than twenty years, and interest does not exceed five and a half per cent. (Ch. 119, Laws 1917.) Second, to amend section 3, article IX of Constitution so as to provide for six months' school term. (Ch. 192, Laws 1917.) Question whether to call constitutional convention or not to be submitted to people at next general election. (Ch. 60, Laws 1917.)

Corporations. — There is a general law by which all corporations, societies, and associations, not unlawful, "except railroads other than street railways, or banking, or insurance," may be created, though they may also be created by special act, for which a tax is required. Stockholders in other than banking corporations are not responsible except for fraud, unless expressly made so in the charter. Shares in all corporations are considered personal property. Two years of non-user are a sufficient cause for declaring a forfeiture of a charter. No body corporate shall exist for a longer period than sixty years, unless otherwise provided in its charter. In case of dissolution by judgment, debts due to and from a corporation are not extinguished. The existence of corporations is continued three years after charter expires, to close their business. Charters of corporations formed under general laws may be amended by proceedings before the secretary of state. For procedure for amending charters of charitable, educational, penal, or reformatory corporations that are not under patronage and control of State see ch. 62, Laws 1917. Foreign corporations may acquire and hold real and personal property for prosecution of its business. (§§ 1193, 1128-1247.) A corporation law was enacted in 1901. It is very similar to the corporation law of New Jersey, and has been changed only slightly since first enacted. It has become a well established system. The charter fees are moderate, and deductions from ad valorem taxes are allowed for investments in stock of other corporations. Meetings may be held out of the State. For procedure for organizing municipal corporations see ch. 136, Laws 1917. For procedure for incorporation of rural communities see ch. 128, Laws 1917.

Savings banks and other state banks can be created under general laws. (Rev. vol. 1, ch. 7.) So can insurance companies (Rev. vol. 1, ch. 100), and street railway companies. (§ 1138.)

Guarantee companies, upon keeping a general agent in this State, obtaining a license and certificate of solvency from the insurance commissioner, and paying a license fee, may be accepted as sufficient surety on all bonds and undertakings required of trustees, assignees, and administrators; or of any party to a civil action or proceeding, either for the prosecution thereof or for any other purpose whatsoever in the course of the action, and on sundry other bonds, and shall be accepted on certain official bonds. Such companies may be surety on the bonds of bonded warehouses. Any insurance or security company whose insurance or guaranty is accepted as security upon the bonds of United States bonded officials, such company having complied with the insurance laws of this State, must be accepted, if tendered, as surety upon the official bonds of county officers. (Rev. ch. 100.) Fiduciaries are allowed premiums paid to such corporations, for becoming surety on bonds, to the extent of one half of one per cent. (§ 277.) Failure to pay judgment within sixty days forfeits right to do business in this State. (For other provisions as to such corporations, Rev. ch. 100.) All foreign corporations, except insurance companies, must file copies of their charters and statements as to their business, etc., with the secretary of state, and pay a license. (§ 1194.)

A commission, known as "The Corporation Commission," is given general supervision of all railroad, steamboat, navigation, and canal companies, and express, telegraph, telephone, and sleeping-car companies, public sewerage systems operated by persons, individuals, or corporations, other than municipal corporations (ch. 194, Laws 1917), and banks and building and loan associations. (§ 1086.) This body is also given extensive powers in relation to street railway, water-works, electric light and power, gas, ferry, bridge, canal, banking, and other corporations. (See §§ 1094-1112, for further powers of this commission.)

An insurance department and commissioner is created, and the insurance business, and corporations engaged therein, regulated. Special provision made for organization of insurance corporations under general law. License fees prescribed, and many other important provisions with reference to insurance companies. (Rev. ch. 100.)

There is no express provision as to: 1, the amount of capital stock which must be paid in at the time of organization; 2, the personal liability of stockholders, except that stockholders are not personally liable for the debts of the corporation in the absence of express provision to that effect or fraud.

There must be at least three directors, who must be shareholders; and one at least must be an actual resident of this State. (§ 1147.)

Every corporation "having property and doing business in this State," whether incorporated in this State or not, must have an officer or agent in this State upon whom process may be served. A failure to comply with this law warrants service upon the secretary of state and subjects the corporation to a repeal of its charter and a revocation of its license to do business in this State. (§ 1243.)

Every corporation authorized to transact business in this State must file annually, within thirty days after every election of directors, in the office of the secretary of state, a statement containing the names of all the directors and officers, date of their election, term of office, residence and post-office address of each: the character of its business, and location, giving street and number, if any, of its principal office in this State; and the name of the agent in charge, upon whom process may be served. Blanks for this purpose must be furnished by the secretary of the State. Those corporations which are required to file a similar statement with the corporation commission or the commissioner of insurance are exempted. A failure to file the statement subjects the corporation to a penalty of one hundred dollars. (§ 1152.)

Domestic corporations may hold, purchase, and convey real and personal estate, without limit, in and out of the State, and may take such property by devise or bequest. Any corporation created by any other State or foreign government may acquire by devise or otherwise and may hold, mortgage, lease, and convey real estate in this State "for the purpose of prosecuting its business or objects, or such real estate as it may acquire by way of mortgage or otherwise in the payment of debts"; provided the foreign government under whose laws such corporation was created be not at war with the United States at the time of purchasing such real estate. (§§ 1128, 1193.) Special provisions are made for the holding, etc., of real estate by insurance companies.

The cost of organizing a corporation under general laws is usually about thirty-five dollars. Such cost depends somewhat upon the length of the articles of agreement. (§ 1233.)

All foreign building and loan associations are required to list the shares of residents of this State, for taxation, with the state auditor, and, it seems, also in the city, county, etc., in which such shareholders reside, under penalty of being debarred of doing business in this State. The taxes on such shares must be paid by the association. They are also required to file with the insurance commissioner, on or before June 1 of each year, a statement of business standing and financial ability. They must also file copy of charter or articles of association or other statement showing mode of doing business. (Further provision as to taxation of such associations is made by Rev. ch. 83.)

All express and telegraph corporations doing business in this State are required to make an annual report to the corporation commission between the 1st and 20th of May, and between the same dates all of the following corporations doing business in this State must make reports to the corporation commission, viz.: telegraph, sleeping-car, refrigerator and freight car, street railway, waterworks, electric light and power, gas, ferry, bridge, canal, and other corporations exercising the right of eminent domain. Telephone corporations to make report between 1st and 20th day of June of each year. These reports are very elaborate and differ somewhat in each case. They generally consist of a statement of capital, number of shares, principal place of business, value of shares, property owned in this State, etc. The penalty for failure to file these reports is one hundred dollars for each day after May 20. (Laws of 1917.) The corporation commissioners assess the property for taxation. The state taxes must be paid to the state treasurer, except the state school tax. Property taxes are paid to the sheriffs and other municipal officers. These taxes are payable the first Monday in October and are in addition to the license taxes required. A penalty of fifty per cent. is fixed for non-payment, also attorney's fees.

Railroad, telegraph, telephone, and street railway, canal and steamboat companies, domestic and foreign (doing business in this State), are required to make report to the corporation commission. This report is of property for taxation. Taxes due the State by railroads must be paid to the state treasurer within thirty days after July 1. (Revenue and Machinery Act 1917.)

Every steam railroad company and every person operating such railroads in this State must file a statement of gross earnings with the state auditor on or before July 30 of each year.

Express, telegraph, and telephone companies must also make reports of gross earnings to the state treasurer by the 10th of January, April, July, and October of each year. Steamboat and canal companies are governed by the same regulations as railroads in many respects. State banks must pay a license tax of one dollar for each thousand dollars of capital. All banks must list their real estate, in May, in the county, city, etc., in which it is situate and pay the state and municipal taxes assessed thereon. They must also list, in June, with the state auditor, in the names of their shareholders, the shares of capital stock, and pay the state tax thereon within thirty days after July 1. They must also pay the sheriffs the county taxes on the stock of non-residents. Corporations not elsewhere specially required to make reports must, on or before July 1, make an elaborate report to the state auditor. This report is required only of domestic corporations. But all corporations must make report to corporation commission, domestic, in May or June and foreign in July. (§ 82, Revenue Act 1917.)

Insurance companies of various kinds are required to make reports to and take out license from the insurance commissioner. They must also pay a license tax to the commissioner. Foreign companies must deposit a copy of their charter with the commissioner and pay a fee of twenty dollars; must satisfy him of their legal capacity and financial ability; must appoint the commissioner their attorney for purpose of service of process; must file an annual statement, of financial and business standing, on or before March 1, and additional statements within first thirty days of January and July of each year, of gross receipts; must pay to the commissioner, within the first fifteen days of February and August of each year, a tax of two and one half per cent. upon gross receipts, which may be reduced, by investments in the State, to one per cent. or one quarter per cent. A license fee varying in amount from ten to two hundred and fifty dollars is also required. There are other fees, etc., which must be paid. Application for removal to United States courts, of a case connected with a policy, forfeits the right to do business in this State. (Rev. ch. 100.)

The statute law on the subject of insurance is too voluminous to incorporate a full synopsis. The statute law may be had in pamphlet form upon application to the insurance commissioner, Hon. J. W. Young, Raleigh, N. C.

The laws regulating the duties of foreign and domestic corporations as to reports, listing for taxation, payment of taxes, etc., are very voluminous and not always free from difficulty in their interpretation; therefore no full synopsis of such laws is here given. Foreign corporations intending to do business in this State should apply to the corporation commission, state treasurer and auditor, insurance commissioner, or secretary of state, all at Raleigh, for information. See License.

Charters of corporation heretofore adjudged bankrupt forfeited unless stockholders determine to continue corporate existence and certify such resolution to secretary of state within ninety days. Charters forfeited in future adjudications, unless stockholders take action within sixty days after adjudication. Corporation to pay accrued privilege taxes and fee of one dollar to secretary of state. (Ch. 134, Laws 1915.)

Foreign corporation cannot act as trustee under a will or as executor. No corporation organized elsewhere than in North Carolina eligible or entitled to qualify in any fiduciary capacity created under a will. Use of word "trust" in corporate name or in business limited to corporations under supervision of corporation commission. (Ch. 196, Laws 1915.) This act does not in any way forbid the appointment of a foreign corporation as trustee under a deed.

Act for domestication of foreign corporation amended by striking out exemption of railroad, banking, express, and telegraph companies. Companies heretofore domesticated not affected. Fees for domestication and withdrawal regulated. (Ch. 263, Laws 1915.)

Relief provided for minority stockholders of certain corporations. Holders of one tenth of stock, on non-payment of dividend for two years, may petition for dissolution. (Ch. 137, Laws 1915.)

Individual purchasers of entire property of a corporation are not incorporated. Applies to Cumberland County. (Public Local Laws 1915.)

Formation of security-selling companies under § 1137 of the Revisal. Fee of one dollar for investigation of loan authorised, but no fee to be charged for renewal. (Ch. 189, Laws 1915.)

Section 1131 of the Revisal, making the property of corporation liable for judgments for labor and torts, and giving such judgments priority over mortgage debts of the corporation, amended so as to include in such priority judgments rendered for clerical services. (Ch. 201, Laws 1915.)

Constitutional Amendments. — The general assembly of 1915 submitted to the people to be voted on in November, 1916, four amendments to the constitution, the purpose of which is to limit local legislation and restrict the passage of acts creating corporations and allow corporations of all kinds to be organized under general laws; and to provide for the appointment of special, emergency, or temporary judges. Such of these amendments as may be approved by a majority of the people at the election in 1916 will become parts of the organic law.

Eminent Domain. — In addition to ordinary powers of eminent domain given to public service corporations, grist-mills, flumes, etc., allowing condemnation of lands (except dwelling-houses, surrounding curtilage, graveyards, etc.), extended powers have been given in three instances: 1. Where it is necessary for location of union railroad station within town or city, residence property may be condemned both for location of station and to provide access for various railroads to the same. (Ch. 465, Laws 1907.) 2. Where necessary to straighten line, alter location, construct double track, and enlarge and improve yards and terminal facilities, residence property, gardens, and yards may be condemned. (Ch. 458, Laws 1907.) 3. Where a public service corporation owns a dam site, and owns or controls three fourths of the lands which would be covered by its proposed pond or reservoir, it may condemn within said basin and within the remaining one fourth, property used as residences, gardens, yards, etc. (Ch. 108, Laws 1917.)

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for North Carolina.

Deeds. — All conveyances are presumed to be in fee simple, unless the contrary be expressed. (§ 946.)

Corporations may convey lands, and all other property which is transferable by deed, by deed of bargain and sale, or other proper deed, sealed with the common seal and signed by the president or presiding member or trustee and by two other members of the corporation, and attested by a witness; or by deed of bargain and sale or other proper deed sealed with the common seal and signed by the president or presiding member or trustee and attested by the secretary of the company. (§ 1130.) Common law method also holds. (Bason v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 417; 118 N. C. 712; 121 N. C. 339.) All conveyances of property by a corporation, whether absolute or on condition, in trust or by way of mortgage, are void as to torts committed by the corporation, its agents, etc., if such torts were committed prior to, or at the time of, the execution of such conveyances; provided such injured persons or creditors commence actions within sixty days after the registration thereof, and so as to execution on judgments for labor performed. (§§ 1130, 1131.) For probate of corporation deeds, see forms, post, under this title.

Conveyance of lands, contracts to convey, and leases of land for more than three years, to be good and available in law as against purchasers for value or creditors, shall be acknowledged by the grantor or proved on oath by one or more witnesses, as hereinafter directed, and registered in the county wherein the land lies, and all deeds so executed and registered shall be valid, and pass estates in land without livery of seisin, attornment, or other ceremony. (§ 976.)

All deeds and instruments affecting the rights of any married woman in real estate must be executed by both husband and wife, and due proof or acknowledgment thereof made as to the husband, and due acknowledgment thereof must be made by the wife, and her private examination touching her voluntary assent thereto taken separate and apart from her husband. It is not essential that the proof or acknowledgment as to the husband and the acknowledgment and private examination of the wife be had at the same time or place or before the same official; but the probate of the instrument as to the husband and the acknowledgment and private examination of the wife may be taken before different officers, whether both said officials reside in this State, or only one in this State and the other in another State; and it is immaterial whether the probate of the instrument as to the husband is anterior or posterior, in point of time, to the acknowledgment and private examination of the wife. Both husband and wife must execute the same instrument. The husband's written indorsement of assent to the wife's execution of an instrument is not sufficient. (§§ 952, 953.)

The private examination of the wife may be taken by any official authorized by the laws of this State to take the proof and acknowledgment of deeds and other instruments. Such examination and the certificate thereof must conform to the laws of this State. (§ 955.) It is the duty of the official, when taking the private examination of the wife, "to explain the same to her, and see that the provisions of the statutes are strictly complied with; a failure to do this vitiates the deed. (121 N. C. 214.)

The execution of all deeds of conveyance, contracts to buy, sell, or convey lands, mortgages, deeds of trust, assignments, powers of attorney, covenants to stand seized to the use of another, leases for more than three years, releases and all instruments and writings of whatsoever nature which are required or allowed by law to be registered in this State may be proven or acknowledged before any one of the following officials of this State: justices of the supreme court, judges of the superior courts, commissioners of affidavits appointed by the governor of this State, clerks of the supreme, superior, and criminal courts, deputy clerks of the superior court, notaries public and justices of the peace; also before any one of the following officials of the United States, of the District of Columbia, of the several States and Territories of the United States, of countries under the dominion of the United States, and of foreign countries; any judge or clerk of a court of record, notary public, mayor or chief magistrate of any incorporated town or city, any ambassador, minister, consul, or commercial agent of the United States; also before any justice of the peace of any State or Territory of the United States.

A witness to a deed is not necessary when execution of same is acknowledged before officers as designated above. A witness can prove deed of some sole or unmarried man before such officers.

If the probate is had before a justice of the peace of this State, but not of the county in which the instrument is offered for registration, his certificate must be accompanied by a certificate under the hand and official seal of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such justice of the peace resides, to the effect that such justice was, at the time his certificate bears date, an acting justice of the peace of such county and his genuine signature is set to such certificate. A similar certificate from the clerk of some court of record of the county in which the justice of the peace resides must accompany the certificate of non-resident justices of the peace. The form of which certificate is as follows: —

I, A. B. (here give name and official title of the clerk of the court), do hereby certify that C. D. (here give the name of the justice of the peace taking the proof, etc.) was, at the time of signing the foregoing (or annexed) certificate, an acting justice of the peace in and for the county of _____ and State (or Territory) of _____ and that his signature thereto is in his own proper handwriting.

In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and official seal this _____ day of _____ A.D. 19 ____ .

(§§ 989-992.)

The officials named above can take the proof, etc., of instruments, regardless of the county in this State in which the subject-matter of the instrument is situate, and of the domicile, residence, or citizenship of the person or corporation who may be the maker or grantee thereof. (§ 994.)

When husband and wife acknowledge the instrument before the same official, the following is the prescribed form of certificate: —

I, (here give name of official and his official title), do hereby certify that (here give names of grantors whose acknowledgment is taken) personally appeared before me this day and acknowledged the due execution of the foregoing (or annexed) instrument, and the said (here give name of the married woman), wife of (here give name of husband), being by me privately examined, separate and apart from her said husband, touching her voluntary execution of the same, doth state that she signed the same freely and voluntarily, without fear or compulsion of her said husband, or any other person, and that she doth still voluntarily assent thereto.

Witness my hand (and when an official seal is required by law add) and official seal this _____ day of _____ A. D. 19 ____ .

If the husband does not acknowledge before the same official who takes the acknowledgment and private examination of the wife, the following is the prescribed certificate: —

I, (here give name and title of the official), do hereby certify that (here give name of the married woman), wife of (here give husband's name), personally appeared, etc. (Proceed as in form supra.)

All officials who have official seals must affix them to their certificates of probate, except the clerk and deputy clerk of the superior court of the county in which the instrument is to be registered. Private seals of officials who have no official seals are not necessary.

The certificates of all such non-resident officials as have no official seals must be accompanied by the certificate of a clerk of a court of record of the State, Territory, or country in which the official taking the probate resides, of the official position and signature of such official. The clerk's certificate must be under his hand and official seal. The prescribed form of said certificate of the clerk is as follows: —

I, A. B. (here give name and official title of the clerk of a court of record), do hereby certify that C. D. (here give name of the official who took the proof, etc., of the instrument) was at the time of signing the foregoing (or annexed) certificate a (here give the official title of the officer who took the proof, etc.) in and for the county of _____ and State of _____ (or other political division of the State, Territory, or country, as the case may be), and that his signature thereto is in his own proper handwriting.

In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and seal of office, this _____ day of _____ A. D. 19 ____ .

All certificates of probate, except those of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the deed is to be registered, or his deputy, must be examined by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the instrument is offered for registration, or his deputy, and adjudged to be in due form, and the instrument and certificates ordered to be registered, before they can be lawfully registered. The form of such adjudication (which must be entered on the instrument) is as follows: —

The foregoing (or annexed) certificate of (here give the name and official title of the officer signing the certificate passed upon) is adjudged to be correct. Let the instrument and certificates be registered. This _____ day of _____ A. D. 19 ____ .
(§ 1001.) (Signature of officer.)

The following forms of probate for deeds and other conveyances executed by a corporation shall be deemed sufficient, but shall not exclude other forms of probate, which would be deemed sufficient in law. If the instrument is executed by the president or presiding member or trustee and two other members of the corporation, and sealed with the common seal, either of the following forms shall be sufficient: —

This day of A. D. 19 personally came before me (here give the name and official title of the officer who signs this certificate) A. B. (here give the name of the subscribing witness), who, being by me duly sworn, says that he knows the common seal of the (here give the name of the corporation), and is also acquainted with C. D., who is the president (or presiding member or trustee), and also with E. F. and G. H., two other members of said corporation; and that he, the said A. B., saw the said president (or presiding member or trustee) and the two said other members sign the said instrument, and saw the said president (or presiding member or trustee) affix the said common seal of said corporation thereto, and that he, the said subscribing witness, signed his name as such subscribing witness thereto in their presence.

If the deed or other instrument is executed by the president, presiding member, or trustee of the corporation, and sealed with its common seal, and attested by its secretary, either of the following forms of proof and certificate thereof shall be deemed sufficient: —

(1.) This day of A. D. personally came before me (here give name and official title of the officer who signs the certificate) A. B. (here give the name of the attesting secretary), who, being by me duly sworn, says that he knows the common seal of (here give the name of the corporation), and is acquainted with C. D., who is the president of said corporation, and that he, the said A. B., is the secretary of the said corporation, and saw the said president sign the foregoing (or annexed) instrument, and saw the said common seal of said corporation affixed to said instrument by said president (or that he, the said A. B., secretary as aforesaid, affixed said seal to said instrument), and that he, the said A. B., signed his name in attestation of the execution of said instrument in the presence of said president of said corporation.

(Signature of officer.)

(2.) This is to certify that on the day of before me personally came (president, vice-president, or secretary, as the case may be), with whom I am personally acquainted, who, being by me duly sworn, says that is the president (or vice-president), and is the secretary of the corporation described in, and which executed the foregoing instrument; that he knows the common seal of said corporation; that the seal affixed to the foregoing instrument is said common seal, and the name of the corporation was subscribed thereto by the said president (or vice-president), and that said president (or vice-president) and secretary subscribed their names thereto, and said common seal was affixed, all by order of the board of directors of said corporation, and that the said instrument is the act and deed of said corporation.

If the deed, etc., of an individual have no subscribing witness, the execution thereof may be proven before any official authorized to take proof, etc., of deeds by proof of the handwriting of the maker: and if the subscribing witness to a deed, etc., be dead, out of the State, or of unsound mind, the deed, etc., may be proven by proof of the handwriting of the subscribing witness or of the maker. Neither of the above propositions applies to proof of the execution of deeds, etc., by married women. (§ 998.) Makers of, and subscribing witnesses to, deeds, etc., may be summoned to appear and be examined by clerks of the superior courts as to the execution of the deed, etc.. (§ 996.) The governor is empowered to appoint commissioners of affidavits in other States, etc., who are vested with full authority to take probate of deeds. (§ 926.) And every clerk of a court of record in any other State is vested with all the powers of a commissioner of affidavits and deeds of this State. (§ 931.) See Notaries Public, post.

A scroll answers for a seal for a private person or justice of the peace.

Law extended to allow registration of deeds of date prior to January 1, 1885. (Ch. 90, Laws 1915.)

Certain deeds where seal of officer taking probate is omitted are validated. (Ch. 36, Laws 1915.)

Deeds registered prior to January 1, 1915, where acknowledgment and certificate of acknowledgment were complete, but order of registration was omitted, are validated. (Ch. 179, Laws 1915.)

Deeds executed prior to 1835 by representatives or agents of any society, tribe, nation, or aggregation of people under authority of the general assembly and filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state, are presumed to have been properly executed, and recitals presumed to be true. Act applies to pending litigation. (Ch. 75, Laws 1915.)

All deeds and agreements for rights of way and all easements of every kind shall be recorded within ninety days from March 5, 1917, in county where land is situated; provided, where the same were acquired, but no use made of them, need not be recorded until ninety days after beginning of use of same; and following not required to be recorded: 1. Those executed prior to January 1, 1910. 2. Those so defectively executed that they cannot be admitted to probate or registration, provided they were executed prior to March 5, 1917. 3. Decrees of competent courts awarding condemnation or confirming reports of commissioners, where such decrees are on record in such courts, need not be recorded. 4. Act does not apply to local telephone companies operating exclusively in the State, nor to agreements about alleyways. 5. Act does not apply to Surry, Wilkes, Alleghany, Lee, and Harnett Counties. (Ch. 148, Laws 1917.)

Torrens System of Land-Title Registration. — A modified form of land-title registration and assurance. The State does not guarantee the title; but when the proceeding is regular and complete, judgment forecloses all outstanding claims. (P. L. 1913, ch. 90.) Where lands are unoccupied and possession is constructive, rather than actual, this system provides speedy and effective method of having the title and possession judicially decreed and barring all claimants, whether known or unknown, from rights of action on account of claims against land. Proceedings are begun at any time in superior court where land lies, and are not returnable at regular term of court, but at date named in summons, which shall not be less than sixty days. Proceeding is like other special proceedings and under practically same procedure and practice. Clerk to appoint three or more examiners of title, licensed attorneys residing in State. (Ch. 63, Laws 1917.) Proceeding is begun by petition, and clerk refers petition, and any answers filed, to examiner who hears the matter and makes report. Any party may appeal within twenty days after report of examiner to the superior courts. Forms provided for certificate; provision made for registering the proceeding.

Depositions. — Any party in a civil action or special proceeding may take the depositions of persons whose evidence he may desire to use, without any special order therefor, unless the witness shall be beyond the limits of the United States. Written notice of the time and place of taking a deposition, specifying the name of the witness, must be served by the party at whose instance it is taken, upon the adverse party or his attorney. The time for serving such notice shall be as follows: Three entire days when the party notified resides within ten miles of the place where the deposition is to be taken; in other cases, where the party notified resides in the State, one day more for each additional twenty miles, except where the deposition is to be taken within ten miles of a railway in running operation in the State, when one day only shall be given for every one hundred miles of railway to the place where the deposition is to be taken. Where a deposition is to be taken beyond the State, ten days' notice of the taking thereof shall be given, when the party whose deposition is to be taken resides within ten miles of a railway connecting with a line of railway within twenty miles of the place where the person notified resides. In other cases, where there are no railways running as above specified, twenty days' notice shall be given. When objection is taken to the reading of any such deposition, upon the ground that there are no railways or connecting railways to and from the points specified in this section, or that the notice given had otherwise been actually insufficient, it shall devolve upon the party objecting to satisfy the court of the truth of his allegation.

Depositions shall be taken on commission, issuing from the court and under the seal thereof by one or more commissioners, who shall be of kin to neither party, and shall be appointed by the clerk. Depositions shall be subscribed and sealed up by the commissioners and returned to the court, the clerk whereof shall open and pass upon the same, after having first given the parties or their counsel not less than one day's notice; and all such depositions, when passed upon and allowed by the clerk, without appeal or by the judge upon appeal from the clerk's order, shall be deemed legal evidence, if the witness be competent. If the clerk is a party to the action the judge opens and passes upon the deposition. (§ 1602.) Depositions may be taken before notary public of this or any other State or foreign country without commission, after due notice. (Ch. 158, Laws 1911.)

Every deposition, taken and returned as above prescribed, may be read on the trial in the following cases and not otherwise: If the witness is dead, or has become insane since the taking of the deposition; or is a resident of a foreign country or of another State, and is not present at the trial; or is confined in prison out of the county; or is so old, sick, or infirm as to be unable to attend court; or is president of the United States or head of any department thereof, or a judge, district attorney, or clerk of any United States court, and the trial shall take place during the term of such court; or is governor of the State or the head of any department thereof, or the president of the university or the head of any incorporated college in the State; or is a justice of the supreme court, or a judge, presiding officer, clerk, or solicitor of any court of record and the trial shall take place during the term of such court; or a member of Congress or of the state legislature and the trial shall take place during the session of such body; or if after being duly subpoenaed is out of the State at the time of trial, or is more than seventy-five miles by the usual mode of travel from the place where the court is sitting, without the procurement or consent of the party offering his deposition. (§ 1645.)

Depositions taken stenographically and afterwards typewritten are sometimes offered in evidence without objection, but it is safer to have them in writing.

Depositions may be taken under the foregoing rules in actions pending in magistrates' courts, the clerk of the superior court of the county appointing the commissioner. Depositions may be taken by defendant of witnesses in recorder's court. (Ch. 253, Laws 1915.)

No forms for taking depositions are prescribed, but the depositions must be such as to meet the above requisitions. The following form, however, may be used: —

C. D. v. E. F. Deposition of A. B. taken by order of the superior court of county, North Carolina, in the suit of C. D. v. E. F., by J. H. H., commissioner. Also inclose the notice given by the moving party to the other of time and place for taking said deposition.

By § 1649, extensive provisions are made to enforce the attendance and testimony of witnesses before commissioners appointed in other jurisdictions to take depositions in this State; also to enforce production of books and papers.

Descent and Distribution of Property. — Descent. — Where any person shall die seized of any inheritance, or of any right thereto, or entitled to any interest therein, not having devised the same, it shall descend under the following rules: 1. Every inheritance shall lineally descend forever to the issue of the person who died last seized, entitled, or having any interest therein, but shall not lineally ascend, except as hereinafter provided. 2. Females shall inherit equally with males, and younger with older children. Children advanced in real or personal estate shall account for advancements in realty or personalty. 3. The lineal descendants of any person deceased shall represent their ancestor. 4. Lineal descendants failing, the inheritance shall go to the collateral relations of the person last seized, being of the blood of the first purchaser, whether such person last seized derived the estate from the ancestor by descent, or by gift, devise, or settlement. 5. Where the person last seized is the first purchaser, or the blood of such purchaser is extinct, then the estate shall go to the collateral relation capable of inheriting the estate, whether of the maternal or paternal line. 6. Collateral relations of the half blood shall inherit equally with those of the whole blood, and the degrees of relationship shall be computed according to the rules of the common law. If there be no issue of the propositus, nor brother, nor sister, nor the issue of such, the estate shall vest in the father and mother as tenant in common, if both are living, and if only one is living, then in such survivor. (Ch. 9, Laws 1915.) 7. No inheritance shall descend to any person as heir of the propositus, unless he or she be in being at the death of the propositus, or be born in ten lunar months after the death of such propositus. 8. If there be no other person who can inherit to the propositus, his widow shall inherit as his heir. 9. Illegitimates shall inherit from their mother, provided there be no legitimate children of such mother; but shall not claim, as representing their mother, any part of the estate of her kindred, either lineal or collateral. 10. Illegitimates shall be considered legitimate as between themselves and their representatives. And in case of the death of any such child or his issue, without leaving issue, his estate shall descend to such person as would inherit if all such children had been legitimate; provided the mother of an illegitimate may inherit from him as in Rule 6. 11. Estates per autre vie, not devised, shall be deemed an inheritance of the deceased owner, within the meaning and operation of this chapter. 12. The propositus shall be deemed seized, if he had any right, title, or interest in the inheritance. (§ 1556.)

Distribution. — The surplus of the personal estate, in case of intestacy, shall be distributed in the following manner: 1. If there be not more than two children, one third part to the widow of the intestate, and all the residue by equal portions among the children of the intestate, and the representatives of such children as may then be dead. 2. If there be more than two children, then the widow shall share equally with all the children, and be entitled to a child's part. 3. If there be no child, nor legal representative of a deceased child, then the widow shall have half of the estate, and the residue be distributed equally to every of the next of kin of the intestate, who are in equal degree, and to those who legally represent them. 4. If there be no widow, the estate shall be distributed by equal portions among all the children, and such persons as legally represent such children as may be dead. 5. If there be neither widow nor children, nor any legal representative of children, the estate shall be distributed equally to every of the next of kin of the intestate who are in equal degree, and those who legally represent them. 6. But if, after the death of the father, and in the lifetime of the mother, any of his children shall die intestate, without wife or children, every brother or sister, and the representatives of them, shall have an equal share with the mother of the deceased child. 7. If there be no child nor legal representative of a deceased child nor any next of kin, the widow is entitled to all the personal estate (§ 132.) Every illegitimate child of the mother dying intestate, or the issue of any such illegitimate child deceased, shall be considered among her next of kin, and as such shall be entitled to a share of her personal estate. Illegitimate children, born of the same mother, shall be considered legitimate as between themselves and their representatives, and their personal estate shall be distributed in the same manner as if they had been born in lawful wedlock. And in case of the death of any such child or his issue, his estate shall be distributed among his mother and all such persons as would be his next of kin if all such children had been born in lawful wedlock. (§§ 136, 137.) Advancements to a child by a father, whether of realty or personalty, must be accounted for as in the case of descents. (§ 133.)

The father of an intestate, who has left no issue, nor the representative of such, shall take in preference to brothers, sisters, and mother. In case of intestacy a married woman's personalty devolves upon her husband. (§ 4.)

If the tax shall not have been paid at the end of two years from the decedent's death, six per cent. interest is charged. The clerks of the superior courts are to appoint appraisers to value such property for the purpose of this taxation; and such clerks are made state agents or the collection of the tax. Elaborate provisions are made for enforcing payment. (Laws 1917, ch. 231, schedule A. A., §§ 6 to 21 inclusive.)

Divorce. — Marriages may be dissolved and the parties thereto divorced from the bonds of matrimony, on application of the injured party to the superior court, made as by law provided, in the following cases: First, if the husband shall commit adultery (ch. 25, Laws 1917); second, if the wife shall commit adultery; third, if either party at the time of the marriage was and is still naturally impotent; fourth, if the wife at the time of marriage be pregnant, and the husband be ignorant of the fact of pregnancy, and be not the father of the child with which the wife was pregnant at the time of the marriage. (§ 1561.)

If there shall have been a separation of husband and wife, and they shall have lived separate and apart for ten successive years, and they shall have resided within this State for that period. (Ch. 57, Laws 1917.)

The superior courts may grant divorces from bed and board, on application of the party injured, made as provided by law, in the following cases: First, if either party shall abandon his or her family; or second, shall maliciously turn the other out of doors; or third, shall by cruel or barbarous treatment endanger the life of the other; or fourth, shall offer such indignities to the person of the other as to render his or her condition intolerable, and life burdensome; or fifth, shall become an habitual drunkard. (§ 1562.) In cases of divorce from bed and board, alimony may be granted, not exceeding the third of the annual income. (§ 1565.)

Dower. — A wife is now to be endowed according to the rule of the common law. She is entitled upon the death to one third in value of all the land and other real estate of which her husband was seized during her coverture. (§ 3084.) But wife who murders her husband forfeits her right of dower. Dower and all other rights in the husband's estate are forfeited by elopement with an adulterer (§ 3083); or by willful and unlawful abandonment of husband and not living with him at his death, or being divorced from him at his suit. (§ 2110.)

Evidence. — See Testimony; Depositions.

Executions. — All executions issued on judgments in civil actions shall be tested as of the term next before the day on which they issued, and shall be returnable to the term of the court beginning not less than forty days after the issue thereof. (§ 624.) They issue at once from justices' courts; are returnable in sixty days. (§ 1481.)

Exemptions. — Personal property to the value of five hundred dollars, to be selected by any resident of the State, is exempt from execution; and also a homestead, and the dwelling and building, not exceeding one thousand dollars, to be selected by the owner thereof; or, in lieu thereof, any lot in a city, town, or village, with the dwelling and buildings used thereon, owned and occupied by any resident of the State, not exceeding the value of one thousand dollars. There is no exemption from contracts made for the purchase of the homestead, or mechanics' and laborers' liens, or taxes. (Const. art. 10, §§ 1, 2.)

Freeholders. — All persons of full age owning life or greater estate in realty are deemed freeholders irrespective of sex in regard to petitions to hold elections in regard to assessments. (Ch. 22, Laws 1915.)

Garnishee Process. — When a sheriff or other officer serves an attachment on any person supposed to be indebted to the defendant, he shall at the same time summon such person, in writing, to appear at the court to which the attachment is returnable, within twenty days, to answer upon oath what he owes the defendant, what effects of defendant he has or had at date of service of the attachment, or what other person has effects of or is indebted to the defendant, to his best knowledge and belief. Upon the examination of the garnishee judgment shall be entered against him in favor of the plaintiff for the debt or effects of the defendant owing by or in possession of the garnishee, or for so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy plaintiff's claim and costs. Such garnishee shall thereupon deliver or pay over such effects or debt to the sheriff. (§ 779.)

If the garnishee fail to appear a conditional judgment shall be entered against him in favor of plaintiff and a further notice shall issue. If he still fail to appear and make discovery, a final judgment may be entered against him for the whole amount claimed by plaintiff. If upon examination of a garnishee it is discovered that another person has effects of or is indebted to the defendant, an attachment may issue against the property or debt so discovered. (§ 780.)

If a garnishee denies owing defendant or having any of his effects, an issue shall be made up and tried. If garnishee admits having effects of the defendant they shall be appraised and valued by a jury. (§§ 781, 782.)

Holidays. — See Sunday and Holidays.

Inheritance Taxes. — The Inheritance Tax Statute adopted by the general assembly of 1915 applies to "all real and personal property of whatever kind and nature which shall pass by will or by the intestate laws of this State from any person who may die seized or possessed of the same while a resident of this State, whether the person or persons dying seized thereof be domiciled within or out of the State (or if the decedent was not a resident of the State at the time of his death, such property or any part thereof within this State), or any interest therein or income therefrom which shall be transferred by deed, grant, sale, or gift," etc., and subjects the same to the following rates of tax: —

To lineal issue, or lineal ancestor, adopted child, or husband or wife, at the following graduated rate: Above exemption up to twenty-five thousand dollars, one per cent.; excess over twenty-five thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars, two per cent.; excess over one hundred thousand dollars and up to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, three per cent.; excess over two hundred and fifty thousand dollars and up to five hundred thousand dollars, four per cent.; excess over five hundred thousand dollars, five per cent. Exemptions in this class: Widows, ten thousand dollars; each child under twenty-one years of age, five thousand dollars; all other beneficiaries in this class, two thousand dollars each. Provided the grandchildren shall be allowed the exemption of the child they represent.

To the brother or sister or descendant of brother or sister; without exemption at the following rate: Twenty-five thousand dollars or less, three per cent.; excess over twenty-five thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars, four per cent.; excess over one hundred thousand dollars and up to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, five per cent.; excess over two hundred and fifty thousand dollars and up to five hundred thousand dollars, six per cent.; excess over five hundred thousand dollars, seven per cent.

To any other degree of relationship of collateral consanguinity or to strangers in blood or body politic or corporate at the following rate without exemption: Twenty-five thousand dollars or less, five per cent.; excess over twenty-five thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars, six per cent.; excess over one hundred thousand dollars and up to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, seven per cent.; excess over two hundred and fifty thousand dollars and up to five hundred thousand dollars, eight per cent.; excess over five hundred thousand dollars, nine per cent.

Complete exemption on legacies or property passing by will or otherwise, or by the laws of this State to religious, educational, or charitable corporations (not conducted for profit) in this State. Applies to all legacies or property passing by will or laws of this State since March 12, 1913.

The clerk of the superior court in each county is the agent of the State for the collection of the taxes imposed; and the clerk is required to appoint on or before the first day of May, 1915, an assessor of estates for inheritance tax; such appointment to be made for a period of two years to appraise all estates liable for inheritance tax in each county. And the state tax commission is authorized to employ special counsel to assist in the discovery and collection of all inheritance taxes that are overdue and unpaid, the compensation not to exceed five per cent. of the collections made.

Injunction. — The writ of injunction is abolished and injunction by order substituted. A temporary injunction is granted: 1. In actions for permanent injunction. 2. To prevent acts in violation of plaintiff's rights respecting the subject of the action. 3. To prevent defendant's fraudulent disposition of this property during the pendency of the action. (§ 806.) Justified security for costs and damages is required. (§ 817.) See Corporations.

Insolvent Laws and Assignments. — As the insolvent laws of this State are mere provisions by which persons imprisoned under civil process, — in arrest and bail proceedings, see Arrest, — or imprisoned for penalties, fines, and costs in criminal and quasi-criminal proceedings, may be set at large by taking the insolvent debtor's oath, it is deemed unnecessary to continue the synopsis of such laws.

The assignment laws are not considered of sufficient practical value, since the passage of the National Bankruptcy Act of 1898, to continue the synopsis thereof. (See Mortgages and Deeds of Trust.) Clerk of the superior court shall make appointment of a trustee in special proceedings to which all persons in interest are made parties, to execute deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors where the original trustee has died or resigned. (Ch. 176, Laws 1915.)

Interest. — Six per cent. is the prescribed rate of interest. Rate on judgments and open accounts, six per cent. (§§ 1950, 1954.) Penalty for usury is forfeiture of the entire interest; and party paying greater rate than the law allows can, if action is commenced within two years, recover double the amount of interest paid, and usury paid may be set up as an offset or counter-claim. But corporations may sell bonds for less than par. (§ 1951.) Life insurance companies may lend money and as a condition require borrower to take life insurance and deposit as collateral security for loan, without incurring the penalty for usury. (Ch. 8, Laws 1915.)

Money loaned by person, firm, corporation, bank, or credit union for sole purpose of enabling person to cultivate crop, and taking as sole security for advances mortgage on crops to be cultivated and personal property of persons to whom advances are made, may charge in lieu of interest a commission of not more than ten per cent. of money advanced, the money advanced to be paid out in installments agreed upon at the time of the contract. (Ch. 134, Laws 1917.)

Judgments. — When a judgment has been obtained originally in the superior court and docketed in the clerk's office, or has been in any manner properly transferred there, it operates as a lien from that time on the real property of the defendant or defendants in the county in which it is docketed, which lien holds for ten years only. Transcripts of the said judgment may be docketed in any county, and when so docketed constitute a lien on all of defendant's real estate in such county. (§ 574.)

Judgments of United States courts within this State may be docketed as state court judgments are. (§ 576.) Clerks of the superior courts are forbidden to certify transcripts of judgments to be docketed in another county, until after the expiration of the term of the court at which such judgments were rendered. (Superior Court Rules, Rule No. 9.)

All judgments bear date as of the first day of the term at which they are rendered, and if regularly docketed there is no priority between them in the county where they are rendered; in other counties the judgment first docketed has the first lien on real estate. (§ 573.)

Upon judgments obtained before justices, execution may be issued, directed to a constable or other lawful officer, and the sum demanded may be levied out of the personal property of the defendant. No lien is created until a levy is made. For the purpose of having an execution against real estate, a transcript of the judgment must be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein it was rendered. When docketed it shall have the same effect as a judgment obtained in the superior court, and execution thereon may be issued by the clerk. A transcript properly certified may be filed in the clerk's office of any other county when an execution against property of the defendant in that county is desired. (See §§ 1480, 1482.)

Judgments from other States are proved as prescribed in the Act of Congress of May 26, 1790.

If no defense made, judgment will be rendered at the same term of the superior court at which the action was brought. In justice's court, if no defense made, judgment will be rendered at once, upon plaintiff proving his claim. (§§ 556, 1464.)

Entries of satisfaction of judgments in dockets must be made in presence of clerk of court or his deputy, and thereupon clerk, or deputy, shall enter upon cross indexes, after names of parties, words "paid" or "satisfied." (Ch. 76, Laws 1911.)

Where judgment obtained on substituted service shall be set aside, innocent purchasers for value and without notice shall be protected from any change, and trustees and fiduciaries who have distributed funds on faith of original judgment are protected. (Ch. 68, Laws 1917.)

License. — Insurance, bond, and investment companies, associations, or orders must pay license fees and taxes varying in amount from ten to two hundred and fifty dollars, in addition to two and one half per cent. on gross receipts, which may be reduced to one per cent. or one quarter per cent. by investments in this State. These payments must be made to the insurance commissioner. (§ 5175.) Every steam railroad company and every person operating a steam railroad in this State must pay a tax of two dollars to ten dollars per mile according to the gross earnings and must be paid to the state treasurer on or before July 30. (§§ 5185, 5186.) Every express company must pay a tax, and every telegraph company. (§ 5187.) Every telephone company is taxed from two per cent. to one half of one per cent. on gross receipts, according to its investments in this State. (§ 5189.) These taxes must be paid to the state treasurer at different times. (§§ 5185-5189.) Every corporation doing business in this State, except railroads, banks, building and loan associations, insurance companies, telegraph, telephone, and express companies, must pay to the State Treasurer an annual franchise tax graduated according to its capital stock subscribed or paid in. This tax is one twenty-fifth ($\frac{1}{25}$) of one per cent. on the capital stock, with a minimum of five dollars. (Revenue Act 1917, § 82.) License taxes are imposed upon those engaged in the following callings: Theatres, traveling theatrical companies; circuses, menageries, etc.; attorneys, physicians, dentists, auctioneers, real estate and rent-collecting agents; dealers in fresh meats, wood or coal or lumber; photographers; undertakers; dealers in junk or horses; peddlers of clocks, stoves, or ranges; dealers in bicycles and automobiles or theatre tickets; merchandise, ship, and pawnbrokers; livery stables; manufacture or sale of sewing-machines; feather renovators; itinerant salesmen or peddlers of goods, etc.; mercantile agencies; gypsies and fortune-tellers; lightning-rod agents; hotels; cotton compresses; billiard and pool tables and bowling alleys; gift enterprises; prize photographs; slot machines; skating rinks, merry-go-rounds, etc.; agents of packing houses or breweries; bottling works; oil dealers; dealers in futures, or liquor, or rice beer, medicated bitters, etc.; druggists selling liquors; grain distilleries; dealers in pistols, brass knuckles, etc.; selling pianos and organs; manufacturers and dealers in cigarettes; liquor dealers; emigrant agents; itinerant oculists; meat packing houses. All the taxes under this title are in addition to the property taxes assessed. All the license taxes required are not stated above. Any person or corporation intending to engage in any business in the State should make inquiry as to license taxes, from the state treasurer, also of the sheriff of the county and mayor of the town in which it is proposed to operate. These taxes vary in amount. In some instances only a license from the State is required, and no municipal corporation can require a license; in others a license must be taken out in each county, etc. Some of the recent adjudications of the supreme court of the State on the validity of such license taxes, and to what extent the federal interstate commerce law is applicable in such cases, may be found in 115 N. C. 681, 705, 721; Book 25 Lawyers' Reports Annotated, 810; 118 N. C. 328. The statutes imposing these taxes are §§ 5132-5200, schedules B. and C. The statutes are too voluminous to condense accurately here. A tonnage tax of twenty cents is imposed on fertilisers, fertilising material, "concentrated commercial feeding stuff," and on cotton seed meal, and provisions are made as to analysis, etc., of such products. (Rev. §§ 3955-3975.) Oil, gasoline, etc., also subject to inspection tax.

Lien Laws. — Mechanics have a lien on every building built, rebuilt, repaired, or improved by them, and also on the lot on which such building is situated. They have also a lien on any article of personal property made, altered, or repaired by them. The act prescribes the mode by which the lien is made effective. The lien must be filed within six months from the completion of the labor unless a shorter period be prescribed by the act creating the lien. Six months allowed within which to bring action to enforce lien. The lien for work done and material furnished is extended to the property of married women where it appears that buildings were built or repaired on her land with her consent or procurement; in such cases she shall be deemed to have contracted for such improvements. In connection with this statute, see 110 N. C. 70; 109 N. C. 220; 123 N. C. 387; 124 N. C. 610; 130 N. C. 529.

Sub-contractors, laborers, and material-men can take a lien on the building, etc., by notifying owner of the property before he has settled with the first contractor, and filing notice of lien as prescribed for contractors in chief. Contractors required to furnish owner of building or vessel an itemised statement of amounts due laborers, mechanics, or artisans or persons furnishing material, and owner must retain enough out of contract price to pay them. Sums due such laborers, etc., as shown by such statement, are a lien on the building or vessel without filing any lien. By chapter 478, Laws of 1903, there are some changes made in the act of 1887, but such changes now apply only to the counties of Catawba and Buncombe.

Liens are given in favor of mechanics, agricultural laborers, persons making advances to the cultivators of the soil, and the owners of stud-horses, jackasses, and bulls, and against vessels in favor of contractors and others loading, towing, etc., boarding-house keepers and keepers of livery, sale, and feed stables. (Ch. 305, Laws 1911, §§ 2016-2056.)

Limitations. — The State is barred: 1st. By a thirty years' adverse possession of land under known and visible boundaries. 2d. By an adverse possession of twenty-one years under a colorable title. Any person claiming under the State is barred in the same manner as the State. Individuals are barred by an adverse possession of land by another person for twenty years, under known and visible lines and boundaries, or by an adverse possession under color of title for seven years. After an entry to avoid an adverse possession, an action must be commenced within one year after making such entry, and within the time prescribed.

When there has been the relation of landlord and tenant, the possession of the tenant shall be deemed that of the landlord until twenty years after the end of the lease; or, in case of no written lease, until twenty years after the last payment of rent. (§§ 380-387.)

The rights of persons under the disabilities of infancy, insanity, and imprisonment are preserved until the end of three years after the disabilities are removed. (§ 362.) No railroad, plank-road, turnpike, or canal company shall be barred by any statute of limitation whatever in relation to land obtained for its use. (§ 388.)

Power of sale in mortgages and deeds of trust ceases when debts secured are barred. (§ 1044.)

For actions other than for the recovery of real property, different periods are prescribed, as follows: Ten years for actions on judgments or decrees of any court of the United States, or of any State or Territory thereof; for actions on sealed instruments against the principal; actions for the foreclosure of a mortgage, or deed in trust, with the power of sale of real property where the mortgagor or grantor has been in possession; actions for the redemption of a mortgage where the mortgagee has been in possession. Seven years for actions on a justice's judgment, or for actions by a creditor against the personal representative of a deceased person, when due advertisements have been made; and the surety of such deceased persons shall also be protected. Six years for actions on the official bonds of any public officer; or on the official bonds of any executor, administrator, or guardian, counting from the final auditing of his accounts; and for actions for an injury to any incorporeal hereditament. Five years for actions "against any railroad company for damages or compensation for right of way, or use and occupancy of any lands, for use of its railroad," or for damages caused by the construction of the road or repairs thereto. Three years for actions upon any contract, obligation, or liability other than those above mentioned; for actions upon a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture, where no other time is specified; for actions for trespass upon real property; if the trespass is a continuing one, action barred three years from the original trespass (§ 395); for actions for taking, detaining, converting, or injuring any goods or chattels, including actions for their specific recovery; for actions for criminal conversation, or for any other injury to the person or rights of another, not arising in contract, and not otherwise provided for; for actions against the sureties of any executor, administrator, or guardian, on the official bond of their principal, within three years after the breach thereof complained of; for actions against bail, within three years after the judgment against the principal, with the privilege of surrendering their principal at any time before final judgment against them; for fees due to any clerk, sheriff, or other officer, by the judgment of a court, within three years from the time of the judgment rendered, or the issuing of the last execution therefor; for actions for relief on the ground of fraud, counting from the time of the discovery of the fraud by the aggrieved party. One year for actions against a sheriff, coroner, or constable, or other public officer, for a trespass under color of his office; for actions upon a statute for penalty or forfeiture, unless a different time is prescribed; for actions for libel, assault, battery, or false imprisonment; for actions against a sheriff or other officer for the escape of a prisoner arrested or imprisoned on civil process; for a widow's year's provision. Six months for actions of slander. An action for relief, not otherwise provided for, must be commenced within ten years after the cause of action accrued. (§§ 390-399.)

These limitations apply to the State, as to private parties. (§ 375.)

In an action for the balance due upon a mutual, open, current account, the time shall be counted from the latest item proved in the account on either side. (§ 376.)

If when the cause of action accrued against any person he shall be out of the State, such action may be commenced within the terms herein respectively limited, after the return of such person into this State, and if, after such cause of action shall have accrued, such person shall depart from and reside out of this State, or remain continuously absent therefrom for the space of one year or more, the time of his absence shall not be deemed or taken as any part of the time limited for the commencement of such action. (§ 366.)

The statute runs in favor of an undisclosed partner only from the time when such partnership became known to the plaintiff. (§ 373.) Debt barred by the statute of limitations can only be revived by a promise in writing signed by the party. (§ 371.)

In actions against lunatics the plea of the statute is taken in law to be put in, whether pleaded in fact or not. (§ 361.)

Married Women. — The Constitution of the State, in art. 10, § 6, secures to a married woman all her property, real and personal, whether acquired, in any manner, before or after marriage, and provides that such property shall not be liable for the debts, obligations, or engagements of her husband. By the latter part of the same section her property may be devised or bequeathed, and, with the written assent of her husband, conveyed by her as if she were unmarried. (§ 2093.)

Subject to the provisions of § 2107 of the Revisal relating to contracts between husband and wife, a married woman may contract and deal so as to affect her real and personal property with same effect as if she were unmarried, but she cannot convey her real estate without written assent of husband. (Ch. 109, Laws 1911.)

Females become of age at twenty-one. Double first cousins forbidden to marry. (Ch. 135, Laws 1917.)

Every married woman whose husband is insane or a lunatic and is confined in an asylum in this State, and who was living with her husband at time of commitment in such asylum, if she be in needy circumstances, shall have the right to bring special proceedings before the clerk of the court for the sale of her husband's realty, or so much as may be expedient, and apply proceeds for her support. (Ch. 142, Laws 1911.)

A married woman may bring suit in her own name without joining her husband to recover for her personal services, or for damages for personal injuries sustained by her, the recovery in any such suit to belong to her as if she were unmarried.

Mortgages and Deeds of Trust. — No deed of trust or mortgage, for real or personal estate, shall be valid at law to pass any property, as against creditors, or purchasers for a valuable consideration, from the donor, bargainor, or mortgagor, but from the registration of such deed or mortgage in the county where the land lieth; or, in case of personal estate, where the donor, bargainor, or mortgagor, resides; or, in case the donor, bargainor, or mortgagor resides out of the State, then in the county where the said personal estate, or some part of the same, is situate; or in cases of choses in action, where the donee, bargainee, or mortgagee resides. (§ 982.)

Mortgages are foreclosed by action in the nature of a bill of foreclosure, unless a power of sale is given in the mortgage deed, which is the custom. A sale under a power in the mortgage must be advertised for twenty days at the court-house door as well as in the manner prescribed by the mortgage itself. And all advertisements of such sales must describe the property to be sold substantially as it is described in the mortgage. (§§ 1042, 1043.)

When there are two or more mortgagees or trustees, the survivor is authorized to execute power of sale in the mortgage or deed of trust; and so is the executor or administrator of a deceased mortgagee or trustee upon the written request of a creditor secured by the instrument; and the succeeding guardian, when the mortgage or deed of trust was made to his predecessor in the guardianship. (§§ 1031-1033.)

Sales are valid if the mortgagee is not present thereat, but is represented by an agent or attorney. (§ 1035.)

Mortgages on real estate are usually accompanied by notes under seal.

Where a person in debt executes a mortgage on practically his entire property to secure some preëxisting debt, but not his entire indebtedness, the law treats it as an assignment; and unless all the requirements of §§ 967 and 968 of the Revisal are complied with, the transaction is rendered voidable at the instance of any creditor not secured. Briefly, the requirements of these sections are that upon execution of a mortgage or deed of trust for the benefit of creditors a schedule of all preferred debts shall be filed under oath, by the assignor in the office of the clerk of the superior court, stating the name of the preferred creditors, the amount due, when the debt was made and the circumstances under which it was contracted, which schedule shall be filed within five days from the registration of the instrument. And the trustee named in the deed of trust shall, within ten days after the registration of the instrument, file an inventory, under oath, giving a complete, full, and perfect account of all the property that has come into his hands under and by virtue of the said deed of trust; and when other property shall come into his hands, he shall likewise, within ten days thereafter, file a supplemental report.

While these statutes were primarily intended to govern deeds of assignment so common before the Bankruptcy Act was passed, the supreme court, in the case of Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 117 N. C. 446, construed them to apply to cases where an individual executed an instrument in the form of a mortgage on practically his entire estate to secure some, but not all, of his creditors.

Mortgages by corporations are not valid against subsequent debts of the corporation for labor performed; nor against torts subsequently committed by the corporation. (§§ 1130, 1131.) See Deeds.

When satisfied, the mortgagee, or his agent or assigns, is required to enter satisfaction on the book of the register of deeds in the presence of that officer or his deputy. His wife need not join in making the entry unless she is a party to it. (§ 1046 (1).)

Upon exhibition of the mortgage, accompanied by the bond or note secured thereby, to the register of deeds, with the indorsement of payment and satisfaction thereon by the payee, mortgagee, or assignee, or by any chartered banking institution in the State of North Carolina, when so indorsed in the name of the bank by an officer thereof. (Ch. 49, Laws 1917), the register shall cancel the mortgage by entry of satisfaction on the margin. (§ 1046 (2).) See Insolvent Laws and Assignments.

Upon exhibition of mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument intended to secure payment of money, by grantor or mortgagor, his agent or attorney, together with notes secured by same, to register of deeds or deputy where instrument is recorded, said instrument and note being more than ten years old counting from date of maturity of last note, it shall be duty of register or deputy to make proper entry of cancellation of said instrument on the margin of the record where same is recorded whether there be any such entries on original papers or not. (Ch. 50, Laws 1917.)

If in ten days bid be raised ten per cent. on sales of seven hundred and fifty dollars or less, and five per cent. on sales of greater amount, a sale is to be ordered and land resold after advertisement for fifteen days. Raise of bid to be paid in to clerk of superior court, who is to order resale, and may require bond to secure compliance with terms of resale. Act effective from first of April, 1915, and does not apply to transactions of prior date. (Ch. 146, Laws 1915.)

Section 1131 of Revisal, making the property of corporations liable for judgments for labor and torts and giving such judgments priority over mortgage debts of the corporation, amended so as to include in such priority judgments rendered for clerical services. (Ch. 201, Laws 1915.)

Persons lending money on mortgages on crops shall not charge more than ten per cent. over the retail cash price of articles furnished, which ten per cent. shall be in lieu of interest. Violation of act renders mortgage null and void as to articles overcharged. Notwithstanding this section, innocent holder of such mortgages and notes, for value and without notice, has good title. (Ch. 134, Laws 1917.)

In foreclosure of mortgages on lands no longer necessary to file lis pendens. (Ch. 106, Laws 1917.)

Upon application of guardian by petition to superior court showing interest of ward would be promoted by sale or mortgage of any part of estate, proceeding shall be conducted as other special proceedings, and judge may order sale or mortgage of any part of estate upon terms most advantageous to ward, no sale or mortgage to be made until approved by judge and no conveyance of title made until confirmed and directed by judge; provided estate shall not be mortgaged for terms of years exceeding minority of ward. (Ch. 258, Laws 1917.)

Negotiable Instruments. — The negotiable instruments law, which is the same as the New York statute, except that days of grace are allowed on sight drafts, was adopted in 1899, and with slight amendments is found in §§ 2151-2345. For synopsis, see Laws of New York, ante.

Days of grace abolished, except when day of maturity falls on Sunday or a holiday instrument is payable on next succeeding business day.

Notaries Public — In this State are appointed by the governor; their term of office is two years from date of appointment. The clerks of the superior courts are ex officio notaries public and may use the seal of the court in certifying their notarial acts. Notaries public in and out of the State have power to take and certify the acknowledgment or proof of powers of attorney, mortgages, deeds, and other instruments of writing, to take depositions and to administer oaths and affirmations in matters incident or belonging to the duties of their office, and to take affidavits to be used before a court, judge, or other officer, within the State, and shall have power to take the privy examinations of femes covert. A notary's certificates of probate of deeds, etc., and of verification of pleadings, should be attested by his official seal; and after signature shall state the date of the expiration of his commission, though failure to do so will not invalidate his official acts. (§§ 2347-2352.) It is safest for him to certify in all cases under his official seal.

A notary public cannot act if he is interested in matter as attorney or in any other way. Notarial seal proves itself and no certificate is required.

Notaries may take depositions without commission. (Ch. 158, Laws 1911.)

Notes. — Indorsers or sureties to bills, bonds, or notes may give notice in writing to the payee or holder, requiring him to bring suit, and if he fail to do so for thirty days, such indorser or surety shall be discharged; provided that a co-surety not joining in the notice shall not be discharged, and provided further, it shall not apply to a holder who has the note as a collateral security. (§§ 2846-2848.)

Notes containing an authorization to confess judgment, a waiver of homestead and personal property exemptions, or provisions for payment of counsel fees for collection, are negotiable, but such provisions cannot be enforced. (§ 2346.) See Actions.

Partnership. — No person or persons shall transact business in this State under an assumed name or style unless they file in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the business is conducted a certificate setting out the name and style of the business and the full names and post-office addresses of the owners of such business and duly execute and acknowledge the same. Act does not apply to sale of goods by sample or through traveling salesmen or agents, nor to orders forwarded by purchasers through the mails. Neither does it affect corporations, foreign or domestic, nor the right of any person or persons to form limited partnerships under the laws of this State. Penalty for failure, fine not exceeding fifty dollars. (Ch. 77, Public Laws 1913.)

Surviving partner must give bond in a sum to be fixed by the clerk of the court. Collector appointed on failure. Act does not apply to partnerships already dissolved. (Ch. 22, Laws 1915.)

Practice. — The practice is regulated by a Code of Civil Procedure, which is taken almost verbatim et liberatim from the New York Code. (Rev. ch. 12.)

Proof of Claims. — Persons sending claims to North Carolina for collection should be careful to furnish their attorney with the full name, surname, and residence of the party in whose name the suit is to be brought. If the claim belongs to a partnership, the full name, surname, and residence of each member of the firm should be furnished. All accounts should be made out in detail, and time and labor will be saved by furnishing the attorney at once with the names of the witnesses by whom the claim can be established.

An itemized statement of account, of goods sold and delivered, "properly verified" (no other provisions as to affidavit in the act), is admissible in evidence and is made prima facie evidence of the correctness of the account. (§ 1625.) See 131 N. C. 84. See Insolvent Laws and Assignments.

Records. — There is a register of deeds for each county, whose duty it is to record all deeds and mortgages and other instruments allowed by law to be recorded. He has the custody of the records of deeds, mortgages, and other instruments allowed to be recorded. See Deeds.

Redemption. — There is no redemption on property sold on execution or mortgage. See Tax Law.

Replevin. — As a form of action, replevin is abolished. Its place is supplied by "Chain and delivery of personal property." (See §§ 790-802.)

The plaintiff in an action to recover possession of personal property may at the time of issuing the summons, or at any time before answer, claim the immediate delivery of such property, upon affidavit made, by himself or some one in his behalf, before the clerk of the superior court in which the action is required to be tried. The affidavit must show: 1. That plaintiff is the owner of the property, particularly describing it, or is lawfully entitled to the possession thereof by virtue of a special property therein, the facts in respect to which shall be set forth. 2. That the property is wrongfully detained by defendant. 3. The alleged cause of the detention thereof according to his best knowledge, information, and belief. 4. That the same has not been taken for a tax, assessment, or fine, pursuant to a statute, or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is by statute exempt from such seizure. 5. The actual value of the property. An undertaking in a sum double the value of the property as stated in the affidavit, with one or more sureties to be approved by the sheriff, must be given by plaintiff and filed with the sheriff before he proceeds to execute the order for seizure, which order the clerk of the court indorses upon the affidavit. If defendant excepts to the sufficiency of the sureties within three days after service of copies of the affidavit and undertaking upon him, the sureties shall justify, i.e., be examined on oath touching their sufficiency. The statute requires the sureties to be freeholders and residents. (§§ 791-794.) See Corporations.

Report. — The titles of North Carolina Reports are as follows: 1 Haywood; Martin, and 2 Haywood; Taylor, and Conference; Murphy, 3 vols.; Law Repository, and Term; Hawks, 4 vols.; Devereux's Law, 4 vols.; Devereux's Equity, 2 vols.; Devereux & Battle's Law, 4 vols. (third and fourth volumes bound in one); Devereux & Battle's Equity, 2 vols.; Iredell's Law, 13 vols.; Iredell's Equity, 8 vols.; Busbee's Law; Busbee's Equity; Jones' Law, 8 vols.; Jones' Equity, 6 vols.; Winston's Law and Equity; Phillips' Law, Phillips' Equity; 63 N.C. Reports; 64 N.C. Reports, etc., down to and including 172 N.C. Reports, which is the latest published. They are now, by Rules of Supreme Court, designated by numbers from 1 to 172, each succeeding report being given a higher number consecutively.

Revision. — A revival of all the public statute laws now in force and use in this State was made by Thomas B. Womack, Needham Y. Gulley, and William B. Rodman, and published during the year 1905. It went into operation the 1st of August, 1905. It is called "The Revial of 1905," and the references herein given are made to it. The latest session laws are the Laws of 1917. A later revision, unofficial, but in general use and recognised by the profession as reliable, is Pell's Revial of 1908 and supplement, and a later supplement by Gregory.

Committee of two members of Senate and three of House appointed to supervise the compiling, collating, and revision of the public statutes of the State. Committee shall suggest repeal of such statutes and enactment of such new statutes as it thinks proper; and make report to General Assembly of 1919. (Ch. 252, Laws 1917.)

Sales in Bulk. — A law has been passed (Laws of 1907, § 632), and its constitutionality sustained. A sale made contrary to this act is void, not merely voidable. (Pennell v. Robinson et al., 164 N. C. 257.)

Service. — The Code of Civil Procedure provides that the summons in civil actions must be made returnable to the regular term of the superior court of the county where the plaintiffs, or one or more of them, or the defendants reside, and must be executed by the officer to whom it is directed ten days before the beginning of the term to which it is returnable, and must be returned on the first day of the term. (§ 430.) In special proceedings the summons is returnable before the clerk. (§ 713.)

Actions before justices must be commenced by the issuing of a summons, which must be signed and issued by some justice. The summons must be made returnable at some specified time and place within the county, and must be executed by some constable or other lawful officer, to whom it should be directed. The pleadings may be either written or oral, and are to be governed by certain prescribed rules. When defendant lives out of State, service may be made by publication. (See §§ 1445, 442, 1473.)

Stay of Execution. — Judgments in justices' courts only may be stayed, upon security given, if asked for at the trial, as follows: For any sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars, one month; for any sum above twenty-five dollars and not exceeding fifty dollars, three months; for any sum above fifty dollars and not exceeding one hundred dollars, four months; for any sum above one hundred dollars, six months. No stay is allowed in a suit upon a former judgment. (§ 1483.)

Sundays and Holidays. — No process to be executed on Sunday unless for arrest for crime or misdemeanor. (§ 2837.) January 1 and 19, February 22, April 12, May 10 and 20, July 4, December 25, 1st Monday in September, Tuesday after 1st Monday in November when election day and a day appointed by the governor for thanksgiving are legal holidays. If either falls on Sunday the Monday following is the holiday. (§ 2838.) If paper falls due on Sunday it is payable the next business day. (§ 2034.) See Negotiable Instruments.

Supplemental Proceedings. — Upon an affidavit showing: 1. The return of an execution unsatisfied in whole or in part; 2. The want of known property liable to execution; 3. The non-existence of any equitable estates in land within the lien of the judgment; 4. The existence of property, choses in action, and things of value (belonging to the judgment debtor) unaffected by any lien, and incapable of levy, — an order may be obtained for the examination of a judgment debtor concerning his property. Third parties may also be examined if it appear by affidavit that they owe defendant more than ten dollars. Witnesses may be examined. Property discovered may be applied to the execution. A receiver may be appointed and transfers by debtor enjoined. (§§ 668-680.)

Tax Law. — Capitation, property and income taxes (imposed under Schedules A and AA of the Revenue Act) must be listed or "given in" to the local Tax Listers during the month of May; and must be listed by the person liable for the same as of the first day of May. These taxes should be paid to the Sheriff or local Tax Collector as soon as the tax lists have been made out by the County Commissioners, approved and delivered to the sheriff; which delivery must under the law be accomplished on or before the first Monday in October. Usually the delivery to the sheriff is made on the first Monday in October.

Lands are liable for the taxes imposed; and the tax collector looks only to the land. It is therefore advisable when land is sold during the year and before the taxes have been paid for the seller and purchaser to agree that one or the other shall pay the tax; otherwise the purchaser might buy the land subject to a lien; and the seller might be liable for breach of his covenant and warranty of good title. This, however, is a matter of contract between the seller and buyer and does not affect the State, the land being liable for the tax regardless of ownership. Usually if land be sold before the first of July the purchaser pays the tax for the current year; if sold after July first the seller pays, but it can otherwise be agreed upon between the parties. Land is liable for the tax to the State even if not listed. Indeed, when not listed it is liable for tax plus penalty. Taxes seem to be a lien on personal property only from the time of levy. For the time and method of paying License and Inheritance taxes, refer to those subjects in this Synopsis. For corporation and franchise taxes, refer to the section on Corporations.

The sheriffs of the respective counties are the tax collectors. They may sell the lands of delinquent tax-payers after notice published once a week for four weeks in a newspaper published in county where land lies, and personal notice given or mailed to owner. The sale must be made at the court-house of the county where land lies, the highest bidder to be the purchaser. Delinquent may remain on the land for one year, and redeem it within that time by paying the amount bid by the purchaser, and all other taxes on the land which the purchaser may have paid and twenty per cent. per annum in addition. (§§ 2888, 2890, 2913.)

Taxes are a lien on real estate from the time the tax lists are given in as of first day of May, and during month of May the list taken in the several townships where property is situate. A sale is absolute, with a power of redemption as above stated. See License.

Commission, consisting of governor, chairman of state tax commission and four others to be appointed by governor, created to make exhaustive and comprehensive study of system of taxation and report to General Assembly of 1917. (Resolution 46, Laws 1917.)

Resolution requesting the President and both Houses of Congress to appoint representatives, and authorizing governor of State to appoint delegates, to conference to consider establishment of definite lines of division between Federal and State taxes and consider jurisdiction of Federal and State Governments. (Resolution 48, Laws 1917.)

Testimony. — Incompetency for interest and crime has been abolished. Parties to a suit may give testimony for themselves or may be examined by their opponents. Husband or wife may be compelled to give evidence in any civil suit to which either of them is a party, but not in a criminal action. A party cannot give testimony for himself when his opponent is an executor or administrator, or other person, as heir at law, next of kin, etc., who knows nothing of the transaction. (§§ 1628-1631.)

Paper writing or duplicate purporting to be bill of lading competent as evidence upon proof of receipt by mail or delivery to consignor. Paper to be exhibited to adverse party ten days when point of shipment is within the State and twenty days when outside of the State. (Ch. 287, Laws 1915.)

In any action instituted in courts of this State upon account for goods sold and delivered, services rendered or labor performed, or upon oral contract for money loaned, verified itemized statement of such account shall be received in evidence and be deemed prima facie evidence of its correctness. (Ch. 32, Laws 1917.)

Trust Deeds. — Deeds in trust are sometimes used to secure debts. See Mortgages; Insolvent Laws and Assignments.

Trustee. — Foreign corporation cannot act as executor or as trustee under a will. (Ch. 196, Laws 1915.)

Wills. — Wills may be executed in writing by persons of sound mind and over twenty-one years of age, having two or more subscribing witnesses thereto. Holograph wills may be made if written altogether by the testators themselves, and found after their deaths among the valuable papers and effects of the deceased, or were lodged in the hands of some person for safe-keeping. Nuncupative wills, where the estate exceeds two hundred dollars, must be made in the presence of at least two credible witnesses, who must state that they were especially required to bear witness thereto. It must have been made in the testator's last sickness, in his own habitation, or where he had been previously resident for at least ten days, unless he died on a journey or from home. It shall not be proved after six months from the making, unless it was put in writing within ten days from the making. Nor shall it be proved until notice has been given to widow and next of kin to contest it, if they think proper.

Wills made out of the State and conveying real estate situate in this State must be executed according to the laws of this State. In other words, the lex rei sita prevails.

They must be proven and recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the testator was domiciled at or immediately previous to his death. When testator at the time of his death had a fixed place of residence in more than one county, his will may be proven in either of such counties. When testator was not domiciled in this State, and dies out of the State, his will may be proved in any county in which he left assets or to which they subsequently come. When testator, not being domiciled in this State, died in this State, his will may be proven in the county in which he died, if he left assets in this State, or assets belonging to his estate subsequently come into this State. A duly certified copy of the will must be recorded in the office of the superior court clerk of each county in which testator owned real estate devised by the will.

Testator may give his property to whomsoever he pleases, whether in charity or otherwise, but a widow may dissent from her husband's will and take what the law would give her in case of intestacy. (§§ 3080, 3081, 3140.)

Wills may be typewritten. (§ 3765, sub-sect. 10.)

Rights of innocent purchaser from heir at law, made more than two years after death of testator, not affected by subsequent registration of will, unless will was fraudulently withheld from probate. (Ch. 219, Laws 1915.)

Witnesses to wills who live out of State may make affidavit before notary and send to clerk. (Ch. 183, Laws 1917.)

Warehouses. — Uniform system of warehouses similar to one adopted in other States provided for by ch. 87, Laws 1917.

NORTH DAKOTA LAWS.

Revised December 1, 1918, by

Messrs. Watson, Young and Conmy, of Fargo.

The next legislature convenes on the first Tuesday in January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — All civil actions must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest. An executor or administrator, a trustee of an express trust, a person expressly authorized by statute, may sue without joining with him the person for whose benefit the action is prosecuted; but this is not deemed to authorize the assignment of a thing in action not arising out of contract.

Action by the assignee of a thing in action is without prejudice to any set-off or other defense existing at the time of, or before notice of, the assignment, except as to negotiable promissory notes or bills of exchange, transferred in good faith, and upon good consideration, before due.

In the courts of record an action is commenced by serving a summons on the defendant personally, requiring him to answer within thirty days, and notifying him that if he fails to answer judgment will be taken against him; and if the defendant cannot conveniently be found, by leaving a copy thereof at his dwelling-house, in the presence of one or more of the members of the family over the age of fourteen years; or, if the defendant resides in the family of another, with one of the members of the family in which he resides over the age of fourteen years.

Service of summons may be made by publication, upon filing a verified complaint in the action with the clerk of the district court, and an affidavit, stating the place of defendant's residence if known; if not, stating that fact, and further stating, 1. That the defendant is not a resident of the State. 2. That defendant is a foreign corporation, joint-stock company, or association, and has no agent or person in this State upon whom service may be made under the provisions of section 6838. 3. That personal service cannot be made on such defendant within this State to the best knowledge, information, and belief of the person making the affidavit, and in such case affidavit must be accompanied by the return of the sheriff, stating that after diligent inquiry for the purpose of serving such summons he is unable to make personal service thereof upon such defendant. The affidavit must also state, 1. That the defendant has property within this State, or debts owing to him from residents thereof; or 2. That the defendant is a resident of this State, and has departed therefrom with intent to defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a summons, or keeps himself secreted therein with like intent; or, 3. That the relief sought in the action consists wholly or partly in excluding the defendant from some interest or lien in specific real or personal property within this State, or in enforcing, regulating, defining, or limiting such interest or lien in favor of either party to the action, or otherwise affecting the title to such property; or 4. That the action is for divorce or for a decree annulling a marriage; or 5. That the defendant in any of the cases mentioned in the last preceding subdivisions, 1, 2, 3, or 4 is unknown to the plaintiff.

Service by publication is made by publishing the summons six times, once in each week for six successive weeks, in a newspaper published in the county where the action is pending. A copy of the summons and complaint must within ten days after the first publication of the summons be deposited in some post-office in this State, postage prepaid, and directed to the defendant to be served, at his place of residence, unless the affidavit for publication states that the residence of the defendant is unknown. Personal service outside the State after the affidavit for publication and complaint are filed is equivalent to publication and mailing. Service is complete by publication upon the expiration of thirty-six days after the first publication of summons, and, in case of personal service of the summons and complaint upon the defendant outside of the State, upon the expiration of fifteen days after the date of such service, and unless the defendant appears, judgment may be taken after the expiration of thirty days after such service is complete.

A party of record or the officers of a corporation may be examined as if under cross-examination at the instance of an adverse party.

In all actions the defendant, if served by publication, or his representatives, must on sufficient cause be allowed to defend at any time before judgment; and, except in actions for divorce, any such defendant or representatives may, on sufficient grounds and filing an affidavit of merits, be allowed to defend within one year after knowledge of judgment and within three years after its entry; but title to property sold thereunder to a good faith purchaser, if such defendant is successful, is not thereby affected.

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — Administration is granted to, 1. The surviving husband or wife, or some competent person whom he or she may request to have appointed. 2. The children. 3. The father or mother. 4. The brothers. 5. The sisters. 6. The grandchildren. 7. The next of kin entitled to share in the distribution of the estate. 8. The creditors. 9. Any person legally competent. An executor or administrator must be over the age of twenty-one years. A married woman cannot be appointed administratrix, but may act as executrix upon probate of a foreign will. A surviving partner cannot act. Bond must be given in such sum as the court prescribes, with sureties to be approved by the judge. The penalty must not be less than twice the aggregate value, as ascertained by the court, of the personal property and rents, profits, and income of one year of the real property belonging to the estate. All such bonds are joint and several. Debts must be paid in the following order: 1. Necessary expenses of administration. 2. Expenses of last sickness and funeral. 3. Allowance to family in excess of exempt property. 4. Debts having preference under the laws of the United States. 5. Debts which are liens upon specific property, whether by judgment, mortgage, or otherwise, in the order of their priority, to the extent of the proceeds of the property subject to such lien. 6. All other demands against the estate, which includes the deficiency on any secured debts not paid by sale of property under the fifth subdivision. Claims must be filed within six months after notice if the estate exceeds five thousand dollars, and within four months when it does not. There is exempt personal property which would be exempt from sale under execution, including the exemption of fifteen hundred dollars; also the homestead of the value of five thousand dollars, which must be set off to the family.

Affidavits. — An affidavit may be made in and out of this State before any person authorized to administer oaths, and must be authenticated in the same way as certificates of acknowledgment. See Deeds.

Aliens. — Aliens may acquire, hold, and dispose of real and personal property within this State, the same as citizens.

Appeals. — Appeals may be taken from a judgment of the justice's court to the district court within thirty days; from a judgment, decree, or order of the county court to the district court within thirty days; and from a final decision of the district court to the supreme court within six months, and from appealable orders within sixty days. Cases tried by the district court without a jury may be tried de novo in the supreme court on the evidence offered in the district court, which must all be taken down in writing.

Arrest. — Defendant may be arrested in a civil action in the following cases: 1. In an action for the recovery of damages for an injury to person or character, or for injuring or wrongfully taking, detaining, or converting property. 2. In an action for money or property embezzled, or fraudulently misapplied, or converted to his own use by a public officer or an officer of a corporation, or an attorney, factor, broker, agent, or other person in a fiduciary capacity in the course of his employment as such. 3. In an action to recover possession of personal property unjustly detained, when the property or any part thereof has been concealed, removed, or disposed of so that it cannot be found or taken by the sheriff, and with the intent that it should not be found or taken, or with the intent to deprive the plaintiff of the benefit thereof. 4. When the defendant has been guilty of fraud in contracting the debt or in incurring the obligation for which the action is brought, or in concealing or disposing of the property for the taking, detention, or conversion of which the action is brought, or when the action is brought to recover damages for fraud or deceit. 5. When the defendant has removed or disposed of his property or is about to do so with the intent to defraud his creditors. But no female can be arrested, except for a willful injury to person, character, or property. Imprisonment for debt is abolished. An order for arrest may be granted by a judge of the court in which the action is brought, at the time of issuing the summons, or before judgment, when it appears by affidavit that the case is one of those above mentioned. The affidavit may be made by the plaintiff or some other person, and must be either positive or upon information and belief; and when upon information and belief, it must state the facts upon which the information and belief are founded. An undertaking must be given in an amount fixed by the judge, not less than one hundred dollars, that if defendant recovers judgment plaintiff will pay all costs and all damages sustained by defendant by reason of the arrest, with or without sureties. If by plaintiff without sureties, he must justify by affidavit that he is a resident and householder or freeholder within the State, and worth double the sum specified in the undertaking, over all debts and liabilities exclusive of all property exempt from execution by the laws of this State.

Assignments. — See Insolvent Laws.

Attachment. — In an action on a contract or judgment for the recovery of money only, or for the wrongful conversion of personal property, or for damages, whether arising out of contract or otherwise, the plaintiff may have the property of the defendant attached, 1. When the defendant is a non-resident of the State, or is a foreign corporation. 2. When the defendant has absconded or concealed himself. 3. When the defendant has removed, or is about to remove his property, or a material part thereof, from the State, not leaving enough therein for the payment of his debts. 4. When the defendant has sold, assigned, conveyed, transferred, secreted, or otherwise disposed of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, or to hinder or delay them in the collection of their debts, or is about to do the same with that intention. 5. When the defendant is about to remove his residence from the county where he resides, with the intention of permanently changing the same, and fails or neglects on demand to give security for the debt upon which the action is commenced. 6. When the debt upon which the action is commenced was incurred for property obtained under false pretenses. 7. When the defendant is about to remove his property, or a material part thereof, from the State with the intent or to the effect of cheating or defrauding his creditors, or hindering or delaying them in the collection of their debts. 8. In an action to recover purchase-money for personal property sold to the defendant an attachment may be issued and levied on such property. An action may be brought upon a claim before it is due, and the property of the defendant attached in any of the cases mentioned, except in subdivisions 1, 2, and 5, but judgment cannot be rendered in such action until the debt becomes due.

The attachment is issued upon a verified complaint and an affidavit setting forth in the language of the statute one or more of the grounds for attachment. The attachment is issued by the clerk of the court, who must require a written undertaking on the part of the plaintiff with sufficient surety, to the effect that if defendant recovers judgment or the attachment is set aside, plaintiff will pay all costs awarded to defendant, and all damages which he may sustain by reason of the attachment, not exceeding the sum mentioned in the undertaking, which in district court must not be less than two hundred and fifty dollars. Sureties must be residents, and if excepted to must justify in the amount of the undertaking. Pledged or mortgaged property may be attached and sold on execution, subject to the claim of the mortgagee or pledgee; and the purchaser acquires all the rights of the defendant in such property; the entire right and interest of the debtor in all property separately pledged or mortgaged must be sold together as a distinct parcel or thing, and may be sold without taking possession or removing the property from the place where it may be. Attachment is made upon real estate and personal property which, by reason of its bulk or other cause, cannot be immediately removed, by leaving notice of the attachment in the office of the register of deeds; upon personal property capable of manual delivery, by taking possession thereof, and upon other personal property, by leaving a copy of the warrant and notice showing the property attached, with the person holding the same; shares of corporations are attached by leaving such copy and notice with the president or other head of the corporation; the secretary, cashier, or managing agent thereof.

Chattel Mortgages. — A mortgage of personal property can be created only by a writing subscribed by the mortgagor. A mortgage of personal property is void as against creditors of the mortgagor and subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers of the property in good faith and for value, unless it is filed by depositing the original, or an authenticated copy thereof, in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the property mortgaged, or any part thereof, is at such time situated; and it ceases to be valid as against creditors and subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers in good faith after the expiration of three years from the filing thereof, unless within ninety days next preceding the expiration of such term of three years a copy of the mortgage and a statement of the amount of the existing debt for which the mortgagee or his assigns claims a lien, sworn to and subscribed by him, his agent or attorney, are filed anew; this renews for three years more. The term "creditor" is construed to mean one who becomes a creditor after the making and before the filing of the mortgage.

A mortgage on personal property must be signed by the mortgagor in the presence of two persons, who must sign the same as witnesses thereto; or it may be acknowledged by the mortgagor before some officer qualified to take acknowledgments. Every mortgagee must surrender to the mortgagor at the time of the execution of the mortgage a correct copy of the original mortgage so signed, with witnesses or acknowledgment shown thereon; the mortgagor must surrender to the mortgagee a receipt which shall be attached to the original mortgage showing that the mortgagee has surrendered to him a copy of such mortgage, and said receipt must accompany the mortgage when presented to the register of deeds and filed therewith. Otherwise said mortgage shall not be filed as a chattel mortgage by the register of deeds.

A chattel mortgage on merchandise does not cover future acquisitions without a special proviso to that effect. Such a proviso is valid. A chattel mortgage on personal property not yet acquired or not in existence is also valid, and attaches as soon as the property is acquired or comes into existence; but a mortgage on future crops is only valid as to the crop next maturing after the delivery of the mortgage, except where the mortgage is given for the purchase-money of the land upon which the crops are grown.

Chattel mortgages containing power of sale upon default are foreclosed by public sale of the property, on six days' public notice, if published in newspaper, or ten days if posted, or by action in the district court. A chattel mortgage on crops may be foreclosed by sale of crop in any usual market, at market price, without notice, provided a stipulation to that effect is inserted in the mortgage. The mortgagor may, by giving notice at time of sale, redeem personal property sold under foreclosure within five days after sale, released from the lien of the mortgage, by payment of the amount for which the property sold, and interest at seven per cent., and all costs. The person making the sale is required to file report within ten days.

Personal property mortgaged may be taken under attachment or execution issued at the suit of a creditor of the mortgagor. See Attachment. See last paragraph under Mortgages.

It is a felony for any person having in his possession or under his control personal property upon which there is known to him to be a lien, to willfully destroy, remove from the county, conceal, sell, or dispose of such property unlawfully, or materially injure the same, without the written consent of the holder of the lien, if the value of such property exceed one hundred dollars; if its value is less than one hundred dollars, it is a misdemeanor. And when any chattel mortgage or other lien shall have been paid in any manner, the mortgagee or person owning said mortgage or lien shall cause the same to be released of record on demand immediately after such payment shall be made, and any person refusing or neglecting to so release or cause said mortgage or lien to be released shall be liable for all damages sustained by the mortgagor by reason of such refusal and to a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be recovered in a civil action, for the benefit of mortgagor or lienor.

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — At the time of issuing letters, or upon the return of the inventory, the court must direct the executor or administrator to give four weeks' notice by publication, to all persons having claims against the decedent or his estate, of the place where the same may be exhibited to him; and the time within which they must be presented to the administrator or executor for allowance, and the time expressed in the notice must be six months after its first publication when the estate exceeds the value of five thousand dollars, according to the appraisement, and four months when it does not.

All claims of every description must be presented to the court for adjustment within the time specified, but may be presented afterward when it is shown to the satisfaction of the court before final distribution that the holder thereof has been prevented from presenting the claim by reason of his absence from the State, or other sufficient cause.

All claims not so presented are forever barred, but this provision does not prevent or restrict the right to foreclose a mortgage, or other lien upon specific property by civil action, or to foreclose a mortgage on real property by advertisement. If a claim is rejected, the claimant must bring suit in the proper court, to wit, before a justice of the peace or in the district court, according to its amount, against the executor or administrator, within three months after the date of its rejection, if it be then due, or within two months after it becomes due, otherwise the claim is forever barred. No claim barred by the statute of limitations can be allowed.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Corporations. — Corporations may be formed for any purpose for which individuals may lawfully associate themselves, and may be formed by the voluntary association of three or more persons, unless otherwise expressly provided.

Religious corporations cannot acquire or hold real estate of greater value than two hundred thousand dollars; all excess over that sum escheats to the State. No corporation can issue stock or bonds except for money, labor done, or property estimated at its true value actually received by it.

All officers who consent to the issue of stock or bonds for labor or property in excess of its actual cash value are liable to the creditors of the corporation for the difference between the cash value of such labor or property and the par value of such stock or bonds.

Dividends can only be declared from profits, and all directors consenting to the payment of dividends other than from the surplus profits arising from the business, or consenting to the division, withdrawal, or reduction of stock, are jointly and severally liable to the corporation and its creditors, in the event of its dissolution, to the full amount of the capital stock divided, withdrawn, paid out, or reduced, and for debts created beyond the subscribed capital stock. This liability for debts does not extend to policy risks of insurance companies on which no loss has occurred, or any notes, bonds, or debentures of any loan or trust company organized under the law of this State when payment of such notes, bonds, or debentures shall be secured by the actual transfer of real estate by trust deed, or mortgage for the payment of such notes, bonds, or debentures, which said real estate so transferred shall be of twice the par of such notes, bonds, or debentures, or to any guaranty of payment after the transfer of any note, bond, or debenture, when the same is secured by trust deed or mortgage as above stated or certificates issued by "investment companies" on profit-sharing plan. Stockholders are liable for the debts of the corporation to the amount that is unpaid upon the stock held by them, and a creditor of the corporation may institute joint and several actions against such stockholders, and a several judgment must be rendered against each stockholder for the amount unpaid upon his stock at the time the action was commenced. Bonds may be issued by any corporation upon a vote of two thirds of the entire capital stock at a meeting called for that purpose upon due notice; the certificate of which meeting, signed by the chairman and secretary and a majority of the directors, showing a compliance with these requirements, must be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state. Every director, officer, and stockholder of a corporation, who had knowledge of the issue of bonds, contrary to these provisions, and did not dissent therefrom, and cause his dissent to be entered of record on the journal of the corporation, is jointly and severally liable for all the debts created by the issue of such bonds.

The directors, after one fourth of the capital stock has been subscribed, may, for purpose of paying expenses, debts, or conducting business, collect assessments upon the subscribed capital stock, no assessment exceeding ten per cent. of the capital stock, except under special circumstances, and no new assessment must be levied while any part of a previous assessment remains unpaid, unless the power of the corporation has been exercised for the purpose of collecting previous assessments or the collection has been enjoined, or unless the corporation is unable to meet its liabilities, when assessment may be for the full amount unpaid, or for such less amount as will raise the amount to be paid; though railroad corporations may make ten per cent. assessments each month, and insurance companies may assess such percentage as they deem proper. The number of directors must be not less than three nor more than eleven, one of whom must be a resident. The fee for incorporation is fifty dollars where the capital stock does not exceed fifty thousand dollars, with five dollars additional for each ten thousand dollars of stock or fractional part thereof. Property is taxed on its value the same as all other property, and there is no other tax.

The real and personal property is assessed like other property of like nature. See Tax Law.

No foreign corporation, association, or joint-stock company can transact any business within this State, or acquire, hold, or dispose of property, real or personal, within this State until such corporation shall have filed in the office of the secretary of state a duly authenticated copy of its charter or articles of incorporation, and a power of attorney appointing the secretary of state and his successors in office the agent of such corporation upon whom process in any action may be served. Contracts made by corporations not having complied with the law are declared to be void as to the corporation.

Insurance companies must file such articles of incorporation and power of attorney in the office of the commissioner of insurance, instead of the office of the secretary of state, appointing such commissioner such attorney. Failure to comply with these requirements renders each and every officer, agent, and stockholder of any such corporation, association, or joint-stock company jointly and severally liable on any contracts of the corporation, association, or joint-stock company made within this State during the time such corporation, association, or joint-stock company is in default. All contracts made by or on behalf of any such corporation, association, or joint-stock company when in default are wholly void on behalf of such corporation, association, or joint-stock company and its assigns, but such contracts may be enforced against such corporation, association, or joint-stock company.

Foreign insurance companies must have a paid up and unimpaired capital of not less than one hundred thousand dollars, if a stock company, and if a mutual company, not less than two hundred thousand dollars of insurance, in not less than one hundred separate risks.

The property of a foreign corporation within this State, both real and personal, is taxed upon its actual value the same as property of residents of the State. The assessing authority is the town, city, or district assessor, and personal property is assessed in the country, town, or district where the agent resides; real property, where located. Every agent of a foreign corporation is required to furnish to the proper assessor a list of the property in his possession or under his control as such agent, verified by oath, and the assessor fixes the value. This list is made upon demand by the assessor during the months of April and May of each year. This list is made as of the first day of April. Taxes are payable to the county treasurer at the county seat; for dates due, see title Tax Law. For date of delinquency and penalties see title Tax Law.

Conveyances and other instruments affecting real estate may be executed and acknowledged by any officer authorized by the by-laws of the corporation, and in the absence of such by-laws the president or secretary of the corporation, and the president, secretary, treasurer, or cashier of any loan, trust, or banking corporation, may execute or acknowledge such instruments when authorized by resolution of the board of directors. Every grant of corporate power is subject to alteration, suspension, and repeal. The signature of a corporation to any instrument affecting real estate shall be as follows: —

— (full name of corporation).

By — (officer executing with official designation).

Attest —, Secretary.

There are special provisions relating to banking, railroad, and insurance corporations, investment companies, and corporations organized for charitable and cemetery purposes and for some other purposes. The law regarding organization of state banks is substantially a copy of the national banking act, and the state bank examiner makes examinations of all banks, and statements are published the same as regarding national banks. The law regarding investment companies provides for the regulation and supervision of investment companies, both foreign and domestic, by the state examiner and goes into details as to requirements; it requires a detailed statement to be filed with the state examiner, in addition to the statement required of every corporation to be filed with the secretary of state, which shall show its financial condition and the nature of its purpose.

All corporations doing business in this State, which offer their stocks or bonds for sale are subject to examination by the State examiner.

All corporations other than railroads, banks, insurance, religious corporations, and those not organized for pecuniary profit, authorized to do business in the State, must, annually, between the first day of July and the first day of August, report to the secretary of state the location of principal office in this State, names of officers and their residence and post-office address, date of expiration of their respective terms of office, whether or not the corporation is in active business under its charter, the kind of business engaged in. Such report must be under the seal of the company, signed and sworn to by the president, secretary, managing agent, or other officer; or, in case in the hands of an assignee or receiver, by such assignee or receiver; must be transmitted to the secretary of state with the fee

It is a felony for any person having in his possession or under his control personal property upon which there is known to him to be a lien, to willfully destroy, remove from the county, conceal, sell, or dispose of such property unlawfully, or materially injure the same, without the written consent of the holder of the lien, if the value of such property exceed one hundred dollars; if its value is less than one hundred dollars, it is a misdemeanor. And when any chattel mortgage or other lien shall have been paid in any manner, the mortgagee or person owning said mortgage or lien shall cause the same to be released of record on demand immediately after such payment shall be made, and any person refusing or neglecting to so release or cause said mortgage or lien to be released shall be liable for all damages sustained by the mortgagor by reason of such refusal and to a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be recovered in a civil action, for the benefit of mortgagor or lienor.

Claims against the Estates of Deceased Persons. — At the time of issuing letters, or upon the return of the inventory, the court must direct the executor or administrator to give four weeks' notice by publication, to all persons having claims against the decedent or his estate, of the place where the same may be exhibited to him; and the time within which they must be presented to the administrator or executor for allowance, and the time expressed in the notice must be six months after its first publication when the estate exceeds the value of five thousand dollars, according to the appraisement, and four months when it does not.

All claims of every description must be presented to the court for adjustment within the time specified, but may be presented afterward when it is shown to the satisfaction of the court before final distribution that the holder thereof has been prevented from presenting the claim by reason of his absence from the State, or other sufficient cause.

All claims not so presented are forever barred, but this provision does not prevent or restrict the right to foreclose a mortgage, or other lien upon specific property by civil action, or to foreclose a mortgage on real property by advertisement. If a claim is rejected, the claimant must bring suit in the proper court, to wit, before a justice of the peace or in the district court, according to its amount, against the executor or administrator, within three months after the date of its rejection, if it be then due, or within two months after it becomes due, otherwise the claim is forever barred. No claim barred by the statute of limitations can be allowed.

Claims, Proof of. — See Proof of Claims.

Corporations. — Corporations may be formed for any purpose for which individuals may lawfully associate themselves, and may be formed by the voluntary association of three or more persons, unless otherwise expressly provided.

Religious corporations cannot acquire or hold real estate of greater value than two hundred thousand dollars; all excess over that sum escheats to the State. No corporation can issue stock or bonds except for money, labor done, or property estimated at its true value actually received by it.

All officers who consent to the issue of stock or bonds for labor or property in excess of its actual cash value are liable to the creditors of the corporation for the difference between the cash value of such labor or property and the par value of such stock or bonds.

Dividends can only be declared from profits, and all directors consenting to the payment of dividends other than from the surplus profits arising from the business, or consenting to the division, withdrawal, or reduction of stock, are jointly and severally liable to the corporation and its creditors, in the event of its dissolution, to the full amount of the capital stock divided, withdrawn, paid out, or reduced, and for debts created beyond the subscribed capital stock. This liability for debts does not extend to policy risks of insurance companies on which no loss has occurred, or any notes, bonds, or debentures of any loan or trust company organized under the law of this State when payment of such notes, bonds, or debentures shall be secured by the actual transfer of real estate by trust deed, or mortgage for the payment of such notes, bonds, or debentures, which said real estate so transferred shall be of twice the par of such notes, bonds, or debentures, or to any guaranty of payment after the transfer of any note, bond, or debenture, when the same is secured by trust deed or mortgage as above stated or certificates issued by "investment companies" on profit-sharing plan. Stockholders are liable for the debts of the corporation to the amount that is unpaid upon the stock held by them, and a creditor of the corporation may institute joint and several actions against such stockholders, and a several judgment must be rendered against each stockholder for the amount unpaid upon his stock at the time the action was commenced. Bonds may be issued by any corporation upon a vote of two thirds of the entire capital stock at a meeting called for that purpose upon due notice; the certificate of which meeting, signed by the chairman and secretary and a majority of the directors, showing a compliance with these requirements, must be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state. Every director, officer, and stockholder of a corporation, who had knowledge of the issue of bonds, contrary to these provisions, and did not dissent therefrom, and cause his dissent to be entered of record on the journal of the corporation, is jointly and severally liable for all the debts created by the issue of such bonds.

The directors, after one fourth of the capital stock has been subscribed, may, for purpose of paying expenses, debts, or conducting business, collect assessments upon the subscribed capital stock, no assessment exceeding ten per cent. of the capital stock, except under special circumstances, and no new assessment must be levied while any part of a previous assessment remains unpaid, unless the power of the corporation has been exercised for the purpose of collecting previous assessments or the collection has been enjoined, or unless the corporation is unable to meet its liabilities, when assessment may be for the full amount unpaid, or for such less amount as will raise the amount to be paid; though railroad corporations may make ten per cent. assessments each month, and insurance companies may assess such percentage as they deem proper. The number of directors must be not less than three nor more than eleven, one of whom must be a resident. The fee for incorporation is fifty dollars where the capital stock does not exceed fifty thousand dollars, with five dollars additional for each ten thousand dollars of stock or fractional part thereof. Property is taxed on its value the same as all other property, and there is no other tax.

The real and personal property is assessed like other property of like nature. See Tax Law.

No foreign corporation, association, or joint-stock company can transact any business within this State, or acquire, hold, or dispose of property, real or personal, within this State until such corporation shall have filed in the office of the secretary of state a duly authenticated copy of its charter or articles of incorporation, and a power of attorney appointing the secretary of state and his successors in office the agent of such corporation upon whom process in any action may be served. Contracts made by corporations not having complied with the law are declared to be void as to the corporation.

Insurance companies must file such articles of incorporation and power of attorney in the office of the commissioner of insurance, instead of the office of the secretary of state, appointing such commissioner such attorney. Failure to comply with these requirements renders each and every officer, agent, and stockholder of any such corporation, association, or joint-stock company jointly and severally liable on any contracts of the corporation, association, or joint-stock company made within this State during the time such corporation, association, or joint-stock company is in default. All contracts made by or on behalf of any such corporation, association, or joint-stock company when in default are wholly void on behalf of such corporation, association, or joint-stock company and its assigns, but such contracts may be enforced against such corporation, association, or joint-stock company.

Foreign insurance companies must have a paid up and unimpaired capital of not less than one hundred thousand dollars, if a stock company, and if a mutual company, not less than two hundred thousand dollars of insurance, in not less than one hundred separate risks.

The property of a foreign corporation within this State, both real and personal, is taxed upon its actual value the same as property of residents of the State. The assessing authority is the town, city, or district assessor, and personal property is assessed in the country, town, or district where the agent resides; real property, where located. Every agent of a foreign corporation is required to furnish to the proper assessor a list of the property in his possession or under his control as such agent, verified by oath, and the assessor fixes the value. This list is made upon demand by the assessor during the months of April and May of each year. This list is made as of the first day of April. Taxes are payable to the county treasurer at the county seat; for dates due, see title Tax Law. For date of delinquency and penalties see title Tax Law.

Conveyances and other instruments affecting real estate may be executed and acknowledged by any officer authorized by the by-laws of the corporation, and in the absence of such by-laws the president or secretary of the corporation, and the president, secretary, treasurer, or cashier of any loan, trust, or banking corporation, may execute or acknowledge such instruments when authorized by resolution of the board of directors. Every grant of corporate power is subject to alteration, suspension, and repeal. The signature of a corporation to any instrument affecting real estate shall be as follows: —

There are special provisions relating to banking, railroad, and insurance corporations, investment companies, and corporations organized for charitable and cemetery purposes and for some other purposes. The law regarding organization of state banks is substantially a copy of the national banking act, and the state bank examiner makes examinations of all banks, and statements are published the same as regarding national banks. The law regarding investment companies provides for the regulation and supervision of investment companies, both foreign and domestic, by the state examiner and goes into details as to requirements; it requires a detailed statement to be filed with the state examiner, in addition to the statement required of every corporation to be filed with the secretary of state, which shall show its financial condition and the nature of its purpose.

All corporations doing business in this State, which offer their stocks or bonds for sale are subject to examination by the State examiner.

All corporations other than railroads, banks, insurance, religious corporations, and those not organized for pecuniary profit, authorized to do business in the State, must, annually, between the first day of July and the first day of August, report to the secretary of state the location of principal office in this State, names of officers and their residence and post-office address, date of expiration of their respective terms of office, whether or not the corporation is in active business under its charter, the kind of business engaged in. Such report must be under the seal of the company, signed and sworn to by the president, secretary, managing agent, or other officer; or, in case in the hands of an assignee or receiver, by such assignee or receiver; must be transmitted to the secretary of state with the fee of two dollars and fifty cents for filing, and he must not file it until such fee is paid. Failure to file report and pay fee is prima facie evidence that corporation is out of business, and secretary must notify such corporation by registered letter of its default, and, unless within sixty days thereafter it files such report and pays fee, shall enter upon his records the cancellation of its charter or certificate to do business. The secretary is required, on or before the first of June in each year, to mail to every corporation embraced in these provisions proper blanks for making such reports and copy of the statute on the subject and notice as to effect of failure to report.

Any domestic corporation which is engaged in active business under its charter or any foreign corporation authorized to transact business in the State of North Dakota engaged in active business under its certificate of authority to transact business, failing to make said report as required, may be reinstated upon the records of the office of the secretary of state upon the filing of complete annual corporation reports and the payment of a fee of two dollars and fifty cents and in addition thereto the payment of a fee of five dollars for such reinstatement; and filing in the office of the secretary of state an affidavit stating the further fact that such corporation was at the time of such default and still is engaged in active business in the State of North Dakota. Said corporations shall be reinstated at any time upon filing said full and complete annual report within a period of six months from the time of cancellation, and the payment of said fees; and at any time after the said six months upon filing of all and complete annual reports for all years in default with a fee of two dollars and a half for each of said reports and the payment of fifteen dollars for each and every year the said corporation has failed and neglected to file full and complete report.

The secretary of state is required to keep a record, showing all forfeitures, and to publish annually a list of the names and locations of all corporations which have forfeited their right to do business in the State.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for North Dakota.

Deeds. — Conveyance may be made by husband to wife, or wife to husband. All rights of dower or curtesy are abolished. The wife need not join in a conveyance of land belonging to her husband, nor is it necessary that the husband shall join in conveyance of land belonging to his wife. The homestead of a married person cannot be conveyed unless the husband and wife both execute and acknowledge the conveyance. One member of a partnership may execute and acknowledge deeds, releases, and assignments.

An estate in real property, other than an estate at will or for a term not exceeding one year, can be transferred only by operation of law, or by an instrument in writing subscribed by the party disposing of the same, or by his agent thereunto authorized by writing. The execution of a grant of such estate in real property, if it is not duly acknowledged, must, to entitle the grant to be recorded, be proved as provided by law.

A written instrument is presumptive evidence of consideration.

Witnesses or seals are not necessary to the validity of a deed or other instrument affecting title to real property, except wills.

The proof or acknowledgment of an instrument may be made at any place within this State before a judge or clerk of the supreme court or notary public. The proof or acknowledgment of an instrument may be made in the judicial district, county, subdivision, or city for which the officer was elected or appointed, before either a judge or clerk of a court of record, a mayor of a city, a register of deeds, or a justice of the peace or a United States circuit or district court commissioner, or county auditor.

The proof or acknowledgment of an instrument may be made without the State, but within the United States, and within the jurisdiction of the officer, before either a justice, judge, or clerk of any court of record of the United States, or of any State or Territory; a notary public, or any other officer of the State or Territory where the acknowledgment is made, authorized by its laws to take such proof or acknowledgment; or by a commissioner appointed for the purpose by the governor of this State, pursuant to the Political Code.

The proof or acknowledgment of an instrument may be made without the United States before either a minister, commissioner, or charge d'affaires of the United States resident and accredited in the country where the proof or acknowledgment is made; a consul, vice-consul, or consular agent of the United States resident in the country where the proof or acknowledgment is made; a judge, clerk, register, or commissioner of a court of record, or a notary public of such country; an officer authorized by the laws of the country where the proof of acknowledgment is taken. When any of the officers above mentioned are authorized by law to appoint a deputy, the acknowledgment or proof may be taken by such deputy in the name of his principal as deputy, or by such deputy as deputy.

Proof of the execution of an instrument, when not acknowledged, may be made either by the parties executing it, or either of them, or by a subscribing witness, or by other witnesses in certain cases.

Officers taking and certifying acknowledgments or proof of instruments for record must authenticate their certificate by affixing thereunto their signatures, followed by the names of their offices, also their seals of office, if by the laws of the Territory, State, or country where the acknowledgment or proof is taken, or by authority of which they are acting, they are required to have official seals. Judges and clerks of courts of record must authenticate their certificates as aforesaid by affixing thereto the seal of their proper court, and mayors of the cities by the seal thereof. No certificate of the official character of the officer is needed when the acknowledgment is taken out of the State. Notaries public in this State are required to have seals and must indorse date of expiration of his commission after jurat. The certificate of a justice of the peace, when used out of the county in which he resides, must be authenticated by the certificate of the clerk of the district court of the county in which such justice resides. No authentication or certificate other than herein mentioned is required. The form of certificate is prescribed by statute.

No personal property is exempt (except that absolutely exempt) from execution for laborer's or mechanic's wages, or for a debt incurred for property obtained under false pretenses, or for physicians' bills, or for nurses' bills, or for bills for medicine, or for hospital bill, or for bills for wearing apparel, clothing, groceries, and other provisions.

Except those made absolute, the exemptions do not apply to a corporation for profit, to a non-resident, to a debtor who is with his family removing from the State, or who has absconded, taking with him his family. A partnership firm can claim but one exemption of five hundred dollars in value, or the alternative property, when so applicable, instead thereof, out of the partnership property, and not a several exemption for each partner, and such exemption will constitute a part of the exemption to which each partner is entitled from his property. After the debtor's death, such exempt property is set apart for the benefit of the surviving wife or husband, or the minor children, and is not liable for any prior debts or claims against the decedent, except when there are no assets available for the payment of the necessary expenses of his last illness, funeral charges, and expenses of administration.

No property is exempt from execution for the purchase-money of the same property or any part thereof.

Homestead. — A homestead to every head of a family, not exceeding in value five thousand dollars, and if in a town plat not exceeding two acres, and if not, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, to be selected and appraised as provided by statute, is exempt from judgment lien and execution or forced sale, except, 1, on debts secured by mechanic's or laborer's liens, for work done or labor or material furnished exclusively for the improvement of the same; 2, on debts secured by mortgage of the premises, executed and acknowledged by both husband and wife, or by an unmarried claimant; 3, on debts created for the purchase price thereof, and for all taxes accruing and levied thereon.

The "head of a family" is, first, the husband or wife, when the claimant is a married person; but in no case are both husband and wife entitled each to a homestead; second, every person who has residing on the premises with him or her, and under his or her care and maintenance, either, 1, his or her minor child, or the minor child of his or her deceased wife or husband whether by birth or adoption; 2, a minor brother or sister, or the minor child of a deceased brother or sister; 3, a father, mother, grandfather, or grandmother; 4, the father or mother, grandfather or grandmother, of a deceased husband or wife; 5, an unmarried sister or any other of the relatives mentioned in this section who have attained the age of majority and are unable to take care of or support themselves.

The homestead of a married person cannot be conveyed or incumbered unless the instrument by which it is conveyed or incumbered is executed and acknowledged by both husband and wife.

Garnishment. — A creditor may proceed by garnishment in any court having jurisdiction of the subject of the action against any person, including a public corporation, who shall be indebted to, or have any property whatever, real or personal, in his possession, or under his control belonging to the debtor. The proceeding may be commenced at the time of the issuing of the summons in the original action, or at any time thereafter before final judgment in any action to recover damages founded upon contract, or at any time after issuing of execution in any case. The proceeding is commenced by an affidavit to which is attached a garnishment summons, which is served upon the party garnished, who may, in an action in the district court, within thirty days after such service, file his affidavit that he is in no manner indebted to the defendant in the original action, and has no property of his under his control. The plaintiff in the garnishment proceeding may then take issue upon such affidavit, and the question will then be tried in the usual manner. Unless the garnishee files his affidavit of denial, he must within thirty days after the service of summons file an affidavit stating the facts with reference to any liability on his part to defendant in the original action, and with reference to any property of such defendant under his control. If he fail to file an affidavit, as required, judgment may be given against him for the amount of the judgment in the original action. His answer may be traversed, in which case the issues must be tried as in ordinary civil actions. The liability of the garnishee is for the amount of his indebtedness to the original defendant or the property of the original defendant in his hands at the time of the service of the garnishee summons. All property, money, or credits held by him by a conveyance or title, void as to creditors of the defendant, is embraced in such liability. In a justice court the garnishee is summoned to appear and answer under oath touching his indebtedness to the defendant in the original action, and the property belonging to such defendant in his possession or under his control, before the justice issuing the summons, on a day named in the summons, which must be not less than seven nor more than fifteen days after service of the garnishee summons upon him; but such garnishee may answer by affidavit the same as in the district court, in which case the affidavit must be filed by the garnishee with the justice before the time fixed in the summons for him to appear. If plaintiff elects to take issue on affidavit he must file notice, and the justice then adjourns and serves notice fixing time for trial not less than three nor more than ten days thereafter. Judgment cannot be rendered against the garnishee by reason of his liability upon any negotiable paper or for money in his hands as a public officer, or for any sum which is not due at the time of judgment. And no judgment can be rendered against the garnishee in a justice court where the judgment against the defendant is less than ten dollars exclusive of costs, nor where the indebtedness of the garnishee to the defendant or the value of the property belonging to the defendant in his hands or under his control is less than ten dollars.

In all garnishment proceedings in the district courts and in the county courts of increased jurisdiction, the plaintiff, when the garnishment summons is served upon the garnishee, shall tender to the garnishee his traveling fees and fees for one day's attendance, which fees shall be the same as witness fees in the district court. If the same be not paid or tendered to the garnishee, he shall not be obliged to appear and answer or file any affidavit, or be otherwise liable as garnishee in the action. The return of service shall show that such fee was duly tendered to the garnishee at the time of service.

In all garnishment proceedings in justice courts, when the garnishment summons is served upon the garnishee, he may demand his traveling fees and fees for one day's attendance, and if the same be not paid or tendered to him, he shall not be obliged to appear and answer or file any affidavit, or be otherwise liable as a garnishee in the action. Such fees shall be the same as witness fees in justice courts.

Inheritance Taxes. — The new Inheritance Tax Law went into effect March 15, 1913. It does not affect any suit, prosecution, or court proceeding pending at that time. The proper official to be addressed relative to the assessment under this law is the judge of the county court having jurisdiction of the estate. For the previous inheritance tax, see Directory for 1913. Under the new law a tax is imposed upon the transfer of any property or any interest therein or income therefrom, in trust or otherwise, to any or for use of any person, association, or corporation in the following cases: 1. When the transfer is by will or by the intestate laws of this State from any person dying possessed of the property while a resident of the State; 2. When the transfer is by will or intestate laws of property within the jurisdiction of this State, whether the ownership of or interest in such property be evidenced by certificate of stock or bonds of foreign or of domestic corporations, and the decedent was a non-resident of the State at the time of his death; 3. When in either of the above cases the transfer is by deed, grant, bargain, sale, or gift made in contemplation of the death of the grantor, vendor, or donor, or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after such death. The law exempts property without the State subject to inheritance tax in the state where located, provided such State has a similar exemption for the property located in this State belonging to a resident of such State.

The rates of taxation are as follows: Upon transfer to or for use of husband or wife, twenty thousand dollars to one hundred thousand dollars, one per cent.; to father, mother, lineal descendant, adopted child, or lineal descendant of an adopted child, ten thousand dollars to one hundred thousand dollars, one per cent.; to husband, mother, father, wife, lineal descendant, adopted child or lineal descendant of an adopted child, one hundred thousand dollars to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, two per cent.; two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to five hundred thousand dollars, two and one half per cent.; above five hundred thousand dollars, three per cent.; to brother, sister, wife or widow of son, husband of daughter, five hundred dollars to twenty-five thousand dollars, one and one half per cent.; twenty-five thousand dollars to fifty thousand dollars, two and one fourth per cent.; fifty thousand dollars to one hundred thousand dollars, three per cent.; one hundred thousand dollars to five hundred thousand dollars, three and three fourths per cent.; above five hundred thousand dollars, four and one half per cent.; to brother or sister of father, brother or sister of mother, descendant of brother or sister of father or mother, less than twenty-five thousand dollars, three per cent.; twenty-five thousand dollars to fifty thousand dollars, four and one half per cent.; fifty thousand dollars to one hundred thousand dollars, six per cent.; one hundred thousand dollars to five hundred thousand dollars, seven and one half per cent.; above five hundred thousand dollars, nine per cent., to any person of collateral consanguinity other than hereinbefore stated, stranger in blood, body politic or corporation, less than twenty-five thousand dollars, five per cent.; twenty-five thousand dollars to fifty thousand dollars, six per cent.; fifty thousand dollars to one hundred thousand dollars, nine per cent.; one hundred thousand dollars to five hundred thousand dollars, twelve per cent.; above five hundred thousand dollars, fifteen per cent.; to collateral relations or strangers in blood who are aliens, not residing in the United States, or any corporation not chartered by the United States or any State, whatever the amount, twenty-five per cent.; to any one for the following purposes: the relief of the aged, indigent, and poor, maintenance of sick or maimed, or for the support or education of orphans or indigent children, whatever the amount, no tax.

Taxes take effect at death of decedent or donor except when the transfer is contingent, and they are due and payable at the expiration of one year from such death. It is the duty of the executor, administrator, or trustee to pay the taxes over to the county treasurer; and they shall deduct amount of taxes from property of the estate and no property shall be delivered until tax has been paid. Taxes are a lien upon the property transferred. If the tax is not paid within a year after it accrues interest at seven per cent. is charged; if, however, delay is unavoidable, then six per cent. is charged until the cause of the delay is removed, then seven per cent. A foreign executor, administrator, or trustee before making any transfer shall pay tax to the treasurer of the proper county and no assignment or transfer shall be valid until such tax is paid.

Any one holding assets of decedent shall not turn them over to the legal representative until notice has been given to the county treasurer of such transfer. The county treasurer or state tax commission can for a good reason delay such transfer to the legal representative for a period not to exceed ten days from date of notice. A copy of citation upon hearing petition for letters testamentary or of administration must be served upon the county treasurer not less than ten days prior to such hearing.

The statute provides for appraisal of property and for enforcing the collection of the tax.

Insolvent Law. — State insolvency laws are embraced in ch. 40 (§§ 7713 to 7807), Revised Codes of 1905. But see national bankruptcy act of 1898.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest is six per cent. Parties may contract for a higher rate, not to exceed ten per cent. A person taking, receiving, retaining, or contracting for any higher rate of interest than at the rate of ten per cent. shall forfeit all the interest so taken, received, retained, or contracted for, and if paid double the amount may be recovered back. The usury law is the same as the national bank act on usury. Unless there is an express contract in writing fixing a different rate, interest is payable on all moneys at the rate of six per cent. per annum after they become due on any instrument of writing except a judgment, and on moneys lent, or due on any settlement of accounts, from the day on which the balance is ascertained, and on moneys received to the use of another and detained from him.

Interest is payable on judgments recovered in the courts of this State at the rate of seven per cent. per annum.

Every person who is entitled to recover damages certain, or capable of being made certain by calculation, and the right to recover which is vested in him upon a particular day, is entitled also to recover interest thereon from that day, except during such time as the debtor is prevented by law, or by the act of the creditor, from paying the debt.

Judgments. — A judgment of a court of record, or of a justice's court, is a lien on real estate of the defendant except the homestead, in the county where the same is docketed, for ten years from the time of docketing the judgment in the county where it was rendered. Judgments recovered in other States and Territories are proved by an exemplification of the record, attested by the clerk, and the seal of the court annexed, if there be a seal, together with a certificate of the judge, chief justice, or presiding magistrate, that the attestation is in due form.

Judgments may be obtained after thirty days after service of summons and complaint in actions in a district court, after twenty days after service of summons and complaint in actions in county court, and within four days after service of summons in actions in a justice's court, if there be no answer interposed.

Attorney's fees cannot be taxed in judgment. Courts are always open for the rendition and entry of judgments by default. Judgments obtained at the same term of court have priority according to docketing. Judgments may be renewed by filing an affidavit of renewal with clerk, within ninety days next preceding expiration of ten-year period.

Lands, Registration of. — See Registration of Lands.

Liens. — Mechanic's Lien. — Any person performing any labor or furnishing any material, machinery, or fixtures for the construction or repair of any work of internal improvement, or for the erection, alteration, or repair of any building or structure on land, or in making any other improvements thereon, including fences, sidewalks, paving, trees, drains, grades, or excavations under a contract of the owner, his agent, trustee, contractor, or sub-contractor, or with the consent of the owner, has a lien for such labor, materials, machinery, or fixtures upon such building, and erection or improvement and upon the land belonging to such owner on which the same is situated, or to improve which the work was done, or things furnished. When materials, etc., are furnished to contractor or sub-contractor, person furnishing same must notify owner of land by registered letter of such furnishing to entitle him to file such lien. The owner is presumed to have consented to the doing of any such labor or making of such improvements, if he has knowledge of the same and does not give notice of his objections thereto. This law does not apply to the furnishing of lightning-rods. Every person entitled to have a mechanic's lien must file with the clerk of the county a notice in writing, duly signed, giving the name of the possessor of the land, a description of the property to be charged, the date of the contract, and that he will claim and thereafter file a verified account thereof, in the event the same is not paid. The lien is void against the owner or holder of any mortgage or deed or conveyance whose mortgage or deed or conveyance has been filed and recorded prior to the filing for record of such notice. The person claiming such lien must file with the clerk of the district court of the county, within ninety days after all the things have been furnished or labor done, a just and true account of the demand due him, but a failure to make such filing within the ninety days does not defeat his lien except as against purchasers or incumbrancers in good faith and for value, whose rights accrue after the ninety days, and before any lien is filed, or as against the owner, except the amount paid to the contractor after the expiration of the ninety days, and before such filing; he must also file with his lien a statement that owner has consented that said lien may be filed, which statement must be made in duplicate and both signed and duplicate delivered to owner of premises on or before the time first material is furnished. Such notice must be substantially as follows: "I hereby acknowledge that notice has been given me, that a mechanic's lien may be filed for material furnished, under my contract with (name of contractor or person furnishing material) made on this day of 191 , and I hereby consent that such lien may be filed as security for material furnished to me (character of material)." Whoever signs or files a mechanic's lien contrary to provisions of law shall be guilty of misdemeanor. Such liens have priority in the following order: 1, for manual labor; 2, for materials; 3, sub-contractors, other than manual laborers; 4, original contractors. A mechanic's lien may be enforced by suit at any time within six years after the date of last item of claim, but a suit to enforce such a lien must be commenced within thirty days after a demand by the owner of the premises upon the holder of the lien that it be so enforced. Before lien can be enforced notice of intention to enforce it must be given to record owner of property affected, either by personal service or by registered letter; if the former, ten days' notice is required; if the latter, twenty days' notice.

Seed, Grain, and Feed. Under the provisions of an act approved January 30, 1918, each county of the State has a first lien on crops of grain and feed, and also on real estate in some cases, if the county has furnished seed. The lien on real estate has priority over all incumbrances except those existing when the act went into effect.

Limitations. — An action by the State of North Dakota or its grantee respecting real property must be commenced within forty years. An action for the recovery of real property or the possession thereof must be commenced within twenty years. Actions other than for the recovery of real property can be commenced only within the following periods after the cause of action shall have accrued. Within ten years: an action, 1, upon a judgment or decree of any court in the United States, or of any State or Territory within the United States; 2, upon a contract contained in any conveyance or mortgage of, or instrument affecting the title to real property, except a covenant of warranty, an action upon which must be commenced within ten years after the final decision against the title of the covenantor; 3, proceedings to foreclose a mortgage by advertisement. Within six years: actions upon a contract, obligation, or liability, express or implied, excepting those hereinbefore mentioned; actions upon a liability created by statute other than a penalty or forfeiture; for trespass on real property; for taking, detaining, or injuring any goods or chattels, including actions for specific recovery of personal property; an action for criminal conversation, or for any other injury to the person or rights of another, not arising on contract and not hereinafter enumerated; for relief on the ground of fraud, in cases which heretofore were solely cognizable by the court of chancery, the cause of action in such case not to be deemed to have accrued until the discovery, by the aggrieved party, of the facts constituting the fraud; and an action for the foreclosure of a mechanic's lien. Within three years: an action against the sheriff, coroner, or constable, and a liability incurred by the doing of an act in his official capacity and by virtue of his office, or by the omission of an official duty, including the non-payment of money collected upon an execution; and upon a statute for a penalty or forfeiture, when the action is given to the party aggrieved, or to such party and the people of this State, except where the statute imposing it prescribes a different limitation. (But the provision does not apply to an action for an escape.) Within two years: an action of slander, libel, assault, battery, or false imprisonment; actions upon a statute for a forfeiture or penalty to the State; actions for the recovery of damages arising from malpractice. An action for injuries done to the person of another when death ensues from such injuries; and the cause of action shall be deemed to have accrued at the time of the death of the party injured. Within one year: all actions against a sheriff or other officer for the escape of a prisoner arrested or imprisoned on civil process.

In an action for a balance due upon a mutual open and current account, when there have been reciprocal demands, the cause of action accrues from the time of the last item proved in the account on either side. All other actions for relief, in ten years.

These limitations do not affect actions to enforce the payment of bills, notes, or other evidences of debt issued by moneyed corporations, or issued or put in circulation as money. No acknowledgment or promise shall be sufficient evidence of a new or continuing contract, whereby to take the case out of the operation of the statute of limitation, unless the same be in writing, signed by the party to be charged thereby; but this does not alter the effect of any payment of principal or interest. A payment of principal or interest, or acknowledgment in writing, signed by the party to be charged, will revive a debt or claim.

An action is commenced, as to each defendant, when the summons is served on him, or on a codefendant who is a joint contractor or otherwise united with him. An attempt to commence an action is deemed equivalent to the commencement thereof, when the summons is delivered, with the intent that it shall be actually served, to the sheriff or other officer of the county in which the defendant, or one of them, usually or last resided. If when a cause of action shall accrue against any person he shall be out of the State, such action may be commenced within the terms herein respectively limited after the return of such person into this State; and if, after such cause of action shall have accrued, such person shall depart from and reside out of this State, or remain continuously absent therefrom for the space of one year or more, the time of his absence shall not be deemed or taken as any part of the time limited for the commencement of such action, but this exception does not apply to the foreclosure of real estate mortgages by action or otherwise. If a person die before the expiration of the limitation, an action may be commenced by his representatives after such expiration, but within one year from his death; or any action may be commenced against his representatives after such expiration and within one year after the issuing of letters testamentary or of administration.

Married Women. — A married woman may own, in her own right, real and personal property, acquired by descent, gift, or purchase, and manage, sell, convey, and devise the same to the same extent and in the same manner as if she was unmarried. Contracts may be made by a married woman, and liabilities incurred, and the same enforced by or against her, to the same extent and in the same manner as if unmarried. Neither husband nor wife has any interest in the property of the other, but neither can be excluded from the other's dwelling. Either husband or wife may enter into any engagement or transaction with the other, or with any other person, respecting property, which either might enter into if unmarried; subject, in transactions between themselves, to the general rules which control the actions of persons occupying confidential relations with each other as defined by the law of trusts. A husband and wife may hold real or personal property together, jointly, or in common. Neither husband nor wife, as such, is answerable for the acts of the other.

The earnings of the wife are not liable for the debts of the husband; and the earnings and accumulations of the wife, and of her minor children living with her or in her custody, while she is living separate from her husband, are the separate property of the wife. The separate property of the husband is not liable for the debts of the wife contracted before the marriage. The separate property of the wife is not liable for the debts of her husband, but is liable for her own debts, contracted before or after marriage.

A wife's separate property is not liable for debts contracted for the support of herself, her children, or the family, as her husband's agent.

A married woman may buy and sell goods, give notes or other obligations, and sue and be sued, same as if unmarried.

Women attain their majority at eighteen.

Moratorium. — An act was passed by the special session of the Fifteenth Legislative Assembly, January 23 to 29, 1918, which act regulates the civil rights of members of the military and naval establishments of the United States engaged in the present war.

Mortgages. — A mortgage of real property can be created, renewed, or extended only by writing, with the formalities required in the case of grant of real estate; the wife need not join, except in mortgage of homestead. Mortgages containing power of sale may be foreclosed by advertisement, without the intervention of the court, and the premises sold at public auction to satisfy the mortgage debt. Mortgages may be foreclosed by action and a judgment obtained in the same action against the mortgagor for the mortgage debt, and execution issued for any deficiency in the debt and costs arising from the sale of the mortgaged premises. A recorded mortgage may be discharged upon the record by a certificate duly executed, acknowledged, or proved and certified and recorded, same as the mortgage. The mortgagor has possession of the premises during the year of redemption after the sale. The purchaser at foreclosure is entitled to the rents and profits or value of the use of the land during the year of redemption. The homestead of a married person cannot be mortgaged unless the husband and wife both execute and acknowledge the mortgage. The same right of redemption exists as in the case of sale under execution. Real estate of decedents, minors, and incompetents may be mortgaged by order of county court for any purpose for which it might be sold.

A party foreclosing a mortgage is allowed an attorney's fee as follows: If debt does not exceed five hundred dollars, twenty-five dollars; debt over five hundred dollars, and not exceeding one thousand dollars, fifty dollars; over one thousand dollars and not exceeding two thousand dollars, seventy-five dollars; exceeding two thousand dollars, two per cent. additional on the excess, and any agreement for attorney's fee in such mortgage is void. Such attorney's fees are allowed only when proceedings are conducted by attorney authorized to practice in courts of this State. Agent or attorney foreclosing must file with register of deeds power of attorney from owner of mortgage to foreclose, otherwise sale is invalid.

No mortgage shall be received for record by any register of deeds in this State which does not contain the post-office address of the mortgagee, and which does not in full describe the indebtedness secured by the said mortgage as to the amount, rate of interest, when and where due. No assignment of mortgage shall be received for record which does not contain the post-office address of the assignee.

Notaries Public — Are appointed by the governor for the term of six years, and must have a seal containing the words "State of North Dakota, Notary Public," which shall be one and five eighths inches in diameter. They have power and authority anywhere in the State to administer oaths and perform all the duties required of them by law.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — The Negotiable Instrument Law is now in force in this State. An acceptance of a bill must be made in writing by the drawee or by an acceptor for honor. To hold the indorser, the instrument must be duly presented for payment upon the day of its maturity and payment refused and notice of dishonor given to the indorser. If it is a foreign bill of exchange, by notice of its protest; and other negotiable instruments either by notice of protest or by a notice which describes the instrument with reasonable certainty and substantially informs the party receiving it that the instrument has been dishonored.

No days of grace are allowed on any negotiable instrument.

Negotiable instruments payable to order are transferred by indorsement, and those payable to bearer by delivery. Non-negotiable instruments are assignable by indorsement thereon or by other writing, and the action by the assignee is without prejudice to any set-off or other defense existing at the time of or before notice of the assignment. A negotiable note made after July 1, 1899, payable at a bank, is equivalent to an order on the bank to pay the same for account of the maker.

Obligations in writing for lightning-rods, patent rights, stallions or jackasses, or for any patent medicine, or for which the whole or any part of consideration shall be the future cure of any disease, must, before being signed by maker, have stamped or written in red ink across its face the words, "Given for a lightning-rod," or otherwise, as the case may be. And any such obligation so stamped is non-negotiable and subject to defenses in hands of every holder or owner. Violation of this provision is a misdemeanor.

Damages are allowed at prescribed rates as a full compensation for interest accrued before notice of dishonor, reëxchange, expenses, and all other damages in favor of holders for value only, upon bills of exchange drawn or negotiated within this State and protested for non-acceptance or non-payment.

Judgment notes are not allowed.

Practice. — The civil practice of the State is regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure, and the criminal practice by the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Proof of Claims. — Claims sent for collection may be proved by deposition or by oral examination in court. See also Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Persons sending claims to North Dakota for collection should be careful to furnish their attorney with the full name, christian and surname, and residence of the party in whose name the suit is to be brought. If the claim belongs to a partnership, the full name, christian and surname, and residence of each member of the firm should be furnished. The attorney should be furnished with the names of the witness or witnesses by whom the claim can be established. The affidavit of the party is not admissible evidence to prove any fact. If the claim is disputed, it must be proved and established by the testimony of witnesses taken upon deposition after notice, or by oral examination of witnesses in court.

Records. — Every conveyance of real property, other than a lease for a term not exceeding one year, is void as against any subsequent purchaser or incumbrancer, including an assignee of a mortgage, lease, or other conditional sale of the same property, or any part thereof, in good faith and without notice and for a valuable consideration, whose conveyance is first duly recorded. All instruments of conveyance of real property must be recorded with the register of deeds of the county in which the real property affected thereby is situated.

Redemption. — All real property sold on execution, foreclosure of mortgage, or under decree, is subject to redemption, or any part sold separately, and may be redeemed by the following persons or their successors in interest: 1. The judgment debtor or his successor in interest. 2. A creditor having a lien by judgment or mortgage on the property sold, or on some share or part thereof, subsequent to that on which the property was sold. The persons mentioned in the second subdivision of this section are, in this chapter, termed redemptioners.

The judgment debtor or redemptioner may redeem the property from the purchaser within one year after the sale, on paying the purchaser the amount of his purchase with twelve per cent. interest thereon, together with the amount of any assessment or taxes which the purchaser may have paid thereon after the purchase, and interest at the same rate on such amounts; and if the purchaser be also a creditor having a prior lien to that of the redemptioner, other than the judgment under which such purchase was made, the amount of such lien, with interest. If property is so redeemed by a redemptioner, another redemptioner may, within sixty days after the last redemption, again redeem it from the last redemptioner on paying the sum paid on such last redemption, with a like interest in addition, and the amount of any assessment or taxes which the last redemptioner had paid thereon after the redemption by him, with like interest on such amount, and in addition the amount of any liens held by said last redemptioner prior to his own, with interest; but the judgment on which the property was sold need not be so paid as a lien. The property may be again, and as often as a redemptioner is so disposed, redeemed from any previous redemptioner, within the same time after the last redemption and on the same terms. See also Tax Law, for redemption from tax sales.

Registration of Lands. — A law has been passed permitting registration under the "Torrens System." The method of procedure is outlined in the law.

Replevin. — Personal property may be replevied at the time the summons is issued, or at any time before answer, upon plaintiff, or some one in his behalf, making an affidavit stating that the plaintiff is the owner of the property (describing it), or is lawfully entitled to the possession thereof by virtue of a special property therein; that it is wrongfully detained; the alleged cause of detention according to his best knowledge or information and belief; and that it has not been taken for a tax, assessment, or fine pursuant to a statute, or seized under execution or attachment against the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is exempt from such seizure, and also stating the actual value of the property. An undertaking approved by the sheriff must be given in double the value of the property, executed by one or more sufficient sureties, resident of the State, and the sureties to justify the same as in undertakings in action of arrest. At any time before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff, the defendant may require the return thereof, upon giving security in double the value of the property.

Reports, Judicial. — Dakota Territorial Reports, six volumes; North Dakota, thirty-five.

Revision. — The entire laws of the State were compiled under the direction of the secretary of state, under act of legislative assembly of 1905, and are embraced entirely within the Political Code, the Civil Code, the Code of Civil Procedure, the Probate Code, the Jusjustice's Code, the Penal Code, and the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State. Latest edition of Revised Statutes is "Revised Codes, 1905;" under act of legislative assembly of 1913 laws were compiled and published as "Compiled Laws of North Dakota, 1913," and same was made valid in courts, by act of legislative assembly of 1915; latest session laws, 1917.

Sales. — Uniform Sales Act was passed in 1917.

Service of Summons. — See Actions.

Stay of Execution. — There are no stay laws except as to judgments in justices' court; but an execution may be stayed by order of the court, for reasonable time to move for new trial or perfect appeal or by bond on appeal.

Supplementary Proceedings. — When an execution has been returned unsatisfied, plaintiff is entitled to an order for the appearance and examination of debtor; or it may be obtained at any time after the issuing of execution, upon proof, by the affidavit of plaintiff or otherwise, that any judgment debtor has property which he unjustly refuses to apply towards the satisfaction of the judgment. If any property is thus discovered, it may be levied upon, and if property of the debtor is in the hands of others, the court may order it delivered up and applied towards the satisfaction of the judgment, and may also appoint a receiver of debtor's property, forbid the transfer or other disposition of the same, and may order equitable interests in real estate to be sold.

Tax Law. — For Inheritance Tax see under that caption. All taxable property shall be listed and assessed each year at its actual cash value at the place of listing on the first day of April. The taxes on personal property become due and payable on the first day of December and delinquent on the first day of March, when a penalty of five per cent. attaches, and one per cent. interest per month thereafter on the original amount of the tax. The taxes on real property become due and payable on the first day of December, and become delinquent on the first day of March following. A penalty of three per cent. is added to taxes on real property when they become delinquent, and also, if unpaid, an additional penalty of three per cent. on the first day of April following, and an additional penalty of three per cent. on the first day of June following, and a further penalty of five per cent. on the first day of November following. No deed of real estate can be recorded until all taxes on it are paid.

All real estate is sold for non-payment of taxes on the first Tuesday of December each year. Redemption from tax sale may be made within three years with interest at the rate bid by purchaser and a penalty of five per cent., together with all subsequent taxes that may have been paid by purchaser up to the time of redemption, with interest at two per cent. per month on such subsequent taxes. Taxes are a perpetual lien upon real estate after they become due. A tax deed is conclusive evidence of the truth of all the facts therein recited, and prima facie evidence of the regularity of all the proceedings, from the valuation of the land by the assessor up to the execution of the deed.

All taxes, as between vendor and purchaser, become a lien upon real property on and after the first day of December each year.

Real estate is sold to person who bids the lowest rate of interest, which in no case can exceed twenty-four per cent. per annum.

Testimony or Evidence. — A party to an action is a competent witness, both in his own behalf and at the instance of the adverse party. A husband or wife cannot be examined for or against the other without his or her consent; nor can either, during the marriage or afterwards, be, without the consent of the other, examined as to any communication made by one to the other during the marriage; but this section does not apply to a civil action or proceeding by one against the other, nor to a criminal action or proceeding for a crime committed by one against the other. In civil actions or proceedings by or against executors, administrators, heirs at law, or next of kin, in which judgment may be rendered, or order entered, for or against them, neither party shall be allowed to testify against the other as to any transaction whatever with, or statement by, the testator, or intestate, unless called to testify thereto by the opposite party.

Trust Deeds. — Trust deeds are not in general use in this State.

Trusts. — Express trusts may be created by written instrument for any of the following purposes: To sell real property and apply or dispose of the proceeds in accordance with the instrument creating the trust; to mortgage or lease real property for the benefit of annuitants or other legatees, or for the purpose of satisfying any charge thereon; to receive the rents and profits of real property, and pay them to or apply them to the use of any person, whether ascertained at the time of the creation of the trust or not, for himself or for his family, during the life of such person, or for any shorter term, subject to the rules of chapter 26 of the Civil Code; or to receive the rents and profits of real property, and to accumulate the same for the purposes and within the limits prescribed by the same title.

Wills. — Every person over the age of eighteen years, of sound mind, may, by last will, dispose of all his estate, real and personal. An olographic will is one entirely written, dated, and signed by the hand of the testator himself. It is subject to no other form, and may be made in or out of this State, and need not be witnessed. Every will other than a nuncupative will must be in writing. The words "writing" and "written" include "printing" and "printed," except in the case of signatures, and where the words are used by way of contrast to printing. Writing may be made in any manner, except that when a person entitled to require the execution of a writing demands that it be made in ink, it must be made so. This applies to all instruments and papers. Every will, other than an olographic will and a nuncupative will, must be executed and attested as follows: It must be subscribed at the end thereof by the testator himself, or some person in his presence and by his direction must subscribe his name thereto; the subscription must be made in the presence of the attesting witness, or be acknowledged by the testator to them to have been made by him or by his authority; the testator must, at the time of subscribing or acknowledging the same, declare to the attesting witnesses that the instrument is his will; and there must be two attesting witnesses, each of whom must sign his name as a witness at the end of the will, at the testator's request and in his presence.

A witness to a written will must write, with his name, his place of residence, and a person who subscribes the testator's name, by his direction, must write his own name as a witness to the will. But a violation of this provision does not affect the validity of the will.

A will of real or personal property, or both, or a revocation thereof, made out of this State by a person not having his domicile in this State, is as valid, when executed according to the law of the place in which the same was made, or in which the testator was at the time domiciled, as if it were made in this State and according to the provisions of this chapter.

No provisions made for proof of wills made out of this State different from those made within.

Wills must be probated within six years from death of testator, or if not, made known within one year from the discovery.

A married woman may dispose of all her separate estate by will, without the consent of her husband, and may alter or revoke the will in like manner as if she were single. Her will must be executed and proved in like manner as other wills. A will executed by an unmarried woman is revoked by her subsequent marriage, and is not revived by the death of her husband.

A foreign will may be admitted to probate upon the production of a copy of the same, and the probate thereof duly authenticated with a petition for letters, and ancillary letters may thereupon be issued to the executor, or any other person interested in the will, by the county judge, and the same proceedings must be had for the settlement of the estate as in the probate of a domestic will.

Wills are recorded in the office of the county judge.

If after making a will the testator marries and the wife survives him, the will is revoked, unless provision has been made for her by marriage contract, or in the will, or it is apparent therefrom that it was not his intention to make provision for her. If a child be born to the testator after making of his will, and is not mentioned in his will or provided for therein or by any settlement, or if the testator omits to provide for any of his children, or for the issue of any deceased child, unless it appears that such omission was intentional, such child or the issue of such child succeeds to the same portion of the testator's property that he would have succeeded to if the testator had died intestate. When property is directed by the will to be sold, or authority is given in the will to sell property, the executor may sell any property of the estate without the order of the county court, and at either public or private sale, and with or without notice, as the executor may determine; but the executor must make return of such sales as in other cases; and if directions are given in the will as to the mode of selling, or the particular property to be sold, such directions must be observed. In either case no title passes unless the sale is confirmed by the court.

Subject to the foregoing conditions, testator may will his property away from his family and disinherit children.

OHIO LAWS.

Messrs. Harmon, Colston, Goldsmith & Hoadly, of Cincinnati.

The next regular session of the legislature convenes January, 1919.

Acknowledgments. — See Deeds.

Actions. — There is but one form of action, which is known as a civil action. (G. C. § 11238.)

The action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except that an executor, administrator, guardian, trustee of an express trust, a person with whom or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another, or a person expressly authorized by statute, may bring an action without joining with him the person for whose benefit it is prosecuted. (G. C. § 11244.)

Administration of Decedents' Estates. — See Claims against Estates of Deceased Persons.

Affidavits — May be made in or out of this State before any person authorized to take depositions, and must be authenticated in the same way as depositions (G. C. § 11523), except that to affidavits verifying pleadings the certificate of the officer, signed officially by him, shall be evidence that the affidavit was duly made, that the name of the officer was written by himself, and that he was such officer. (G. C. § 11356.) See Depositions.

Aliens — Can hold, possess, and enjoy real estate as fully and completely as any citizen of the United States or of this State can do, subject to the same laws and regulations, and not otherwise.

No person who is capable of inheriting shall be deprived of the inheritance by reason of any of his or her ancestors having been aliens. (G. C. § 8589.)

Appeals. — An appeal will lie from any justice of the peace to the court of common pleas of the same county, in all civil cases where either the plaintiff or defendant claims more than twenty dollars. But if neither demands a greater sum than twenty dollars, and the case is tried by a jury, there shall be no appeal. (G. C. §§ 10354, 10396.)

From the court of common pleas to the court of appeals of the same county an appeal will lie upon the same pleadings, unless amended by leave or order of court, from a judgment or final order, rendered by the court of common pleas in a chancery case. (G. C. § 11379.) Appeal from the court of common pleas to the court of appeals also lies from an interlocutory order dissolving an injunction in a case of which that court had original jurisdiction. (G. C. § 12224.) A party desiring to appeal to the court of appeals from the common pleas shall, within thirty days after the judgment or order is entered by the trial judge, give an undertaking, with sufficient sureties approved by the clerk or a judge of said court of common pleas, in a penal sum provided by law for different cases, conditioned to the effect that the party appealing shall abide and perform the order and judgment of the appellate court, and will pay all money, costs, and damages that may be required of or awarded against him by such court. (G. C. §§ 12226 et seq.)

Appeals also lie from the probate court to the court of common pleas in certain cases. (G. C. §§ 11206 et seq.)

To perfect appeal from a justice of the peace, the party desiring to appeal must, within ten days from the rendition of the judgment, enter into an undertaking to the adverse party, with surety to be approved by the justice, in a sum not less in any case than fifty dollars, nor less than double the amount of the judgment and costs. The condition of this undertaking is: 1. That the party appealing will prosecute his appeal to effect and without unnecessary delay; and, 2. That if judgment be rendered against him on appeal, he will satisfy such judgment and costs. A transcript of the proceedings before the justice of the peace, together with all original papers, must be filed with the clerk of the court of common pleas on or before the thirtieth day from the rendition of the judgment. The case then proceeds in the court of common pleas as if originally begun there. (G. C. §§ 10382-10398.)

Arrest. — Arrest in civil actions before judgment is provided for. (G. C. §§ 11789-11818.) This practice is practically obsolete. For arrest after judgment, see Executions.

Assignments. — See Insolvent Debtors.

Attachment. — The plaintiff in a civil action in the court of common pleas, or in the superior court of Cincinnati, for the recovery of money, may, at or after the commencement thereof, have an attachment against the property of the defendant upon the following grounds: 1. When the defendant, or one of several defendants, is a foreign corporation (see, however, Corporations); or, 2. A non-resident of the State; or, 3. Has absconded with intent to defraud his creditors; or, 4. Has left the county of his residence to avoid the service of a summons; or, 5. So conceals himself that a summons cannot be served upon him; or, 6. Is about to remove his property, or a part thereof, out of the jurisdiction of the court, with the intent to defraud his creditors; or, 7. Is about to convert his property, or a part thereof, into money for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors; or, 8. Has property or rights in action which he conceals; or, 9. Has assigned, removed, or disposed of, or is about to dispose of, his property, or a part thereof, with the intent to defraud his creditors; or, 10. Fraudulently or criminally contracted the debt or incurred the obligation for which suit is about to be or has been brought. The supreme court of this State has construed the word "obligation" as coextensive with liability, so that under the ninth head an attachment may issue upon a liability incurred in a case of tort as well as in cases of contract. 11. That the claim is for work or labor, or for necessities. See Exemptions, particularly if claim be for necessities.

But an attachment shall not be granted on the ground that the defendant is a foreign corporation or not a resident of this State, for any claim other than a debt or demand arising upon contract, judgment, or decree, or for causing death or a personal injury by a negligent or wrongful act. (G. C. § 11819.)

An order of attachment is made by the clerk of the court in which the action is brought, when there is filed in his office an affidavit of the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, showing: 1st. The nature of the plaintiff's claim; 2d. That it is just; 3d. The amount which the affiant believes the plaintiff ought to recover; and 4th. The existence of any one of the foregoing grounds for an attachment. (G. C. § 11820.)

When the ground of the attachment is that defendant is a foreign corporation, or a non-resident of the State, the order may issue without a bond. In all other cases the order of attachment cannot be issued by the clerk until there has been executed in his office, by sufficient surety of the plaintiff, to be approved by the clerk, a bond in a sum equal to double the amount of the plaintiff's claim, to the effect that the plaintiff will pay the defendant all damages which he may sustain by reason of the attachment, if the order be wrongfully obtained. As to the number of sureties required in order to obtain an attachment, the law of this State simply requires sufficient surety to be approved by the clerk of the court issuing the attachment. In practice, however, such clerks usually require either a surety company authorized to do business in the State or two sureties, residents of the county, owners of real estate equal to double the amount of the plaintiff's claim, over and above any incumbrance that may be upon the same. (G. C. § 11821.)

In a civil action before a justice of the peace an order of attachment may be issued upon the same grounds and in a similar manner as in the common pleas court, except that the non-residence of the defendant need be of the county only, and a corporation having no officer upon whom a summons can be served, or place of business in the county, is liable to attachment. The affidavit in attachment before a justice of the peace must state that the property sought to be attached is not exempt from execution. And if the personal earnings of the defendant are sought to be attached, the affidavit must show that the defendant is not the head or support of a family, and is not in good faith the maintenance and support of a widowed mother wholly dependent upon him for support, or that such earnings are not for services rendered within three months before the commencement of the action, or that, being earned within that time, said earnings amount to more than one hundred and fifty dollars, and that only the excess over that amount is sought to be attached, or that the claim is for work or labor, or for necessities. If the claim is for necessities the creditor must, not less than three nor more than thirty days before bringing suit, demand in writing payment to him of that part of the wages not exempt. (G. C. § 10272; 101 O. L. 293.) See Exemptions, particularly if claim be for necessities. But no proceedings shall be had to garnishee the salary or wages of the employee of a railroad company by reason of his non-residence, except before a justice in, and on account of his being a non-resident of the county in which his liability was incurred. (G. C. § 10253.)

Where a debtor has sold, conveyed, or otherwise disposed of his property with the fraudulent intent to cheat or defraud his creditors, or to hinder or delay them in the collection of their debts; or is about to make such sale, conveyance, or disposition of his property with such fraudulent intent; or is about to remove his property, or a material part thereof, with the intent or to the effect of cheating or defrauding his creditors, or of hindering or delaying them in the collection of their debts, a creditor may bring an action on his claim before it is due, and have an attachment against the property of the debtor. But such attachment can be granted only by the court in which the action is brought or by a judge thereof, and before such attachment can be granted, the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall make an oath in writing showing the nature and amount of the plaintiff's claim, that it is just, when it will become due, and the existence of any one of the grounds for attachment hereinbefore enumerated. The court or judge granting the attachment shall specify the amount for which it is allowed, not exceeding a sum sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim and the probable costs of the action. The order of attachment shall not be issued until there is executed in the clerk's office an undertaking as in cases of attachment upon obligations for liabilities already due. The plaintiff shall not have judgment on his claim until it is matured. (G. C. §§ 11868 et seq.)

When the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall make oath, in writing, that he has good reason to and does believe that any person or corporation in the affidavit named has property of the defendant in his possession, describing the same, if the officer cannot get possession of such property, he shall leave with such garnishee a copy of the order of attachment, with a written notice that he appear in court and answer under oath all questions put to him touching the property, of every description, and credits of the defendant in his possession or under his control. If the garnishee does not reside in the county in which the order of attachment is issued, the process may be served by the proper officer of the county in which the garnishee resides or may be personally served. (G. C. § 11828.) If the garnishee is a person, the copy of the order and notice shall be served upon him personally, or left at his usual place of residence; if a partnership, garnisheed by its company name, they shall be left at its usual place of doing business; and if a corporation, they shall be left with the president or other principal officer, or the secretary, or cashier, or managing agent thereof; and if such corporation is a railroad company, they may be left with any regular ticket or freight agent thereof in any county in which the railroad is located. (G. C. § 11833.) If the garnishee appears and discloses the property in his hands or the true amount owing by him, and delivers or pays the same according to the order of the court, he will be allowed his costs, and also be discharged from liability therefor to the defendant. If he does not appear, the court may proceed against him by attachment as for a contempt. (G. C. § 11849.) And see Insolvent Debtors.

Attachments are levied in the order of their receipt by the officer, and the lien thereof ranks according to the time of levy. (G. C. §§ 11825, 11837.) When two or more orders of attachment are received by the officer at the same time they must be levied at the same time, and operate as pro rata liens.

There is no joint liability on the respective bonds of one for the acts of any other.

Chattel Mortgages. — Chattel mortgages or a true copy thereof must be deposited with the county recorder of the county where the mortgagor resides at the time of the execution of the mortgage; if he is not a resident of the State, with the recorder of the county in which the property was then situated, and before such filing the mortgagee, his agent or attorney, must enter thereon a verified statement in dollars and cents of the amount of his claim, and that it is just and unpaid, if given to secure the payment of a sum of money only; if given to indemnify the mortgagee as surety for the mortgagor, such sworn statement shall set forth the liability, and that the instrument was taken in good faith to indemnify against loss therefrom. It is the duty of the recorder, upon such mortgage being filed, to indorse thereon the time of receiving it and its consecutive number, and to enter in an alphabetical index the names of all parties thereto, the number, date, date of filing, amount, and if refiled or canceled, the date of such refiling or cancellation, and to keep it in his office for the inspection of all persons interested; also, if requested, to record the mortgage, at the expense of the person depositing it, in a book to be provided for that purpose. (G. C. §§ 8560-8564.)

As against creditors of the mortgagor, and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith, every mortgage on personal property which remains in the possession of the mortgagor is absolutely void unless filed as above stated; and is also void after the expiration of three years from the filing thereof, unless within the thirty days next preceding the expiration of the three years a true copy of such mortgage, together with a statement, verified as above, exhibiting the interest of the mortgagee in the property at the time of such refiling, claimed by virtue of such mortgage, is again filed in the office where the original was filed (G. C. § 8565); but mortgages made prior to April 28, 1908, should be refiled each year.

A mortgage, though filed as above, on personal property left in the possession of the mortgagor with power to sell for his own benefit, is void as against creditors of the mortgagor acquiring a lien thereon. But a mortgage of a stock of goods, with the stipulation made in good faith in the mortgage that the mortgagor sell the goods in the usual retail way and pay over proceeds to the mortgagee, is good. (20 Ohio St. 110.)

A chattel mortgage cannot be made to cover after-acquired property unless such property is actually delivered to the mortgagee. (4 O. S. 481.)

Claims against Estates. — See Proof of Claims.

Conditional Sales. — Where personal property is sold to any person to be paid for in installments, or is hired, rented, or delivered to any person upon condition that title shall pass on payment in full, and until such payment title shall remain in the vendor, such condition shall be void as to all subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith and creditors unless the same is executed, verified, and filed as required for chattel mortgages. (G. C. § 8568.)

The vendor cannot take possession of such property except machinery, equipment and supplies for railroads and contractors, for manufacturing brick, cement and tiling, and for quarrying and mining purposes without tendering or paying to the purchaser all sums paid on account of such purchase, after deducting a reasonable compensation for the use of the property, not exceeding fifty per cent. of the sums so paid, and also deducting a reasonable compensation for any damage or breakage of the property; no tender is required unless it exceeds twenty-five per cent. of the contract price of the property. (G. C. § 8570.)

Consignments. — A carrier, warehouseman, factor, storage, forwarding, or commission merchant or manufacturer, or his clerk, agent, or employee, who, with intent to defraud sells or in any way disposes of, or converts to his own use, any bill of lading, custom-house permit, or warehouse-keeper's receipt intrusted to or possessed by him, or any property intrusted or consigned to him, or the proceeds of the sale of any such property, or converts any such property, or the profits, product, or result thereof, to his own use, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than four years nor less than one year. (G. C. § 12470.)

Corporations — Are formed under general laws. Each stockholder is liable on his stock for any amount unpaid thereon except that stockholders in corporations authorized to receive deposits are also liable for a further amount equal to the par value of the stock held by them. But by G. C. §§ 8638, 8639, a corporation may provide that each stockholder shall have but one vote, in which case he shall not hold or own stock in excess of one thousand dollars face value.

Corporations may be formed for any purpose for which individuals may lawfully associate themselves together, except carrying on professional business. Private corporations, under the laws of Ohio, are classed as corporations for profit and corporations not for profit. If for profit they must have a capital stock. A corporation for profit is formed by any number of persons, not less than five, a majority of whom are required to be citizens of Ohio, subscribing and acknowledging, before an officer authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds, articles of incorporation, which must contain, first, the name of the corporation (which shall begin with the word "the" and end with the word "company," unless the organization is not for profit); second, the place where it is to be located, or where its principal business is to be transacted; third, the purpose for which it is formed; fourth, the amount of capital stock, and the number of shares into which the stock is divided. Where the object of the organization is to construct an improvement not located at a single place, the articles of incorporation must show the kind of improvement intended, the termini of the improvement, and the counties in or through which it or its branches shall pass. The articles of association aforesaid are required to be filed with the secretary of state, who is required to record them, and copies thereof duly certified are prima facie evidence of the existence of the corporation. A fee of one tenth of one per cent. of the authorized capital, but not less than ten dollars, must be paid to the secretary of state at the time of filing the certificate. The filing of said articles of incorporation constitutes the persons therein named, by the name and style therein mentioned, a body corporate with the usual corporate powers. An installment of ten per cent. on each share of stock is payable at the time of making the subscription, and the residue thereof shall be paid in such installments and at such times and places as may be required by the directors. As soon as ten per cent. of the capital stock is subscribed, the subscribers of the articles of incorporation shall so certify to the secretary of state in writing. They shall call a meeting of the stockholders for the election of a board of directors, giving thirty days' notice thereof in a newspaper published or generally circulated in the county or counties where the books of subscription are to be opened. The number of directors shall be not less than five nor more than fifteen, who shall continue in office until the time fixed for the annual election and until their successors are chosen and qualified; but notice of such meeting for election of directors may be waived in writing in case all the subscribers are present in person or by proxy. The incorporators are made liable for any deficiency in the actual payment of the above amount of ten per cent. A majority of the board of directors are required to be citizens of the State, and all directors and all executive officers must be holders of stock in an amount fixed by the by-laws. Vacancies in the office of the board of directors are filled by the board unless the by-laws otherwise provide. Every corporation has power to adopt a code of regulations for its government not inconsistent with law, and the board of directors may adopt a code of by-laws for their government not inconsistent with law or the regulations of the corporation.

The foregoing applies to the formation of all classes of private corporations for profit in Ohio, and the present statutes controlling the subjects are General Code, Part II; Title IX, Division I.

Foreign corporations, other than banks, insurance and railroad companies, which are provided for by other legislation, are forbidden to do business in the State until they have procured from the secretary of state a certificate that they have complied with all the requirements of law to authorize them to do business in the State, and that their business is such as may be lawfully carried on by a corporation or corporations incorporated under the laws of the State for such business, and until such corporations (other than insurance, banking savings, and building companies, and investment companies which have made certain deposits with the state treasurer, or express, telegraph, telephone, railroad sleeping car transportation, or other companies engaged in interstate commerce, or foreign corporations doing business solely by correspondence or traveling salesmen) shall have caused the proportion of their capital stock employed within the State to be determined by the secretary of state and shall have paid to him a fee of one tenth of one per cent. upon such amount, and obtained his certificate of such payment. The secretary of state is required to deliver such certificate to every corporation which complies with the law. No such corporation doing business in the State can maintain any action upon any contract made by it in the State until it has procured such certificate. Before such certificate can be obtained, the corporation must file in the office of the secretary of state a sworn copy of its charter or certificate of incorporation, and a statement, under its seal, of the amount of its stock, the nature of its business which it carries on or which it proposes to carry on in the State, and a place within the State which is to be its principal place of business, and designating a person upon whom process against such corporation may be served within the State. The person so designated must have an office at the place where the corporation is to have its principal place of business within the State. Such designation shall continue in force until revoked by instrument of writing designating some other person upon whom process may be served within the State. In case of death or removal of the person so designated, the corporation must within thirty days designate another person upon whom process may be served, and in case it fails to do so the secretary of state shall revoke its authority to do business. After such death or removal, and before such additional designation, process may be served upon the secretary of state. Corporations which comply with these requirements are exempt from attachment on the ground that they are foreign corporations. (G. C. §§ 178-191.) Foreign corporations may hold title to land proper for their corporate uses. See Taxes.

Courts, Jurisdiction and Terms of. — See Court Calendar for Ohio.

Deeds, Mortgages, Leases, etc. — A deed, mortgage, lease, or other instrument for the conveyance or incumbrance of any estate or interest in real property shall be signed by the grantor, mortgagor, or lessor, and such signing shall be acknowledged by the grantor, mortgagor, or lessor in the presence of two witnesses, who shall attest the signing and subscribe their names to the attestation, and such signing shall also be acknowledged by the grantor, mortgagor, or lessor before a judge of a court of record in this State, or a clerk thereof, a county auditor, county surveyor, notary public, mayor, or justice of the peace, who shall certify the acknowledgment on the same sheet on which the instrument is written or printed, and subscribe his name thereto, and affix his official seal if he have one. A notary public is required to have a seal. The acknowledgment must be written or printed on the same sheet with the deed or instrument to be acknowledged, and not on a separate piece of paper to be pasted on or attached to it. (G. C. § 8510.) A lease for a term not exceeding three years need not be acknowledged or attested, and if for one year or less need not be in writing.

A deed, mortgage, or lease of any estate or interest of a married person in real property shall be signed, attested, acknowledged, and certified in the manner prescribed in the preceding section.

A power of attorney for the conveyance, mortgage, or lease of any estate or interest in real property shall be signed, attested, acknowledged, and certified in the same manner as deeds, mortgages, and leases. (G. C. § 8512.)

No separate examination of the wife is required, but husband or wife should join in a deed to release dower.

Deeds, leases, and instruments of writing for the conveyance or incumbrance of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments must be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the premises are situated, and until so recorded or filed for record the same shall be deemed fraudulent so far as relates to a subsequent bona fide purchaser having at the time of purchase no knowledge of the existence of such former deed or instrument. (G. C. § 8543.) Leases for a term not exceeding three years need not be recorded.

Mortgages of real estate take effect from the time and in the order in which they are delivered to the county recorder, though the mortgagee have notice of a prior unrecorded mortgage.

Instruments in writing for the conveyance or incumbrance of land, including powers of attorney, may be executed, acknowledged, or proven out of the State in accordance with the laws of the place where executed, or in accordance with the laws of this State. If executed in any foreign port or country, such execution may be acknowledged before a commissioner for Ohio, or before any consul-general, consul, vice-consul, or consular agent of the United States, who must certify to the acknowledgment in the same manner as officers taking acknowledgments within the State. The grantor must personally acknowledge before the officer, but the officer need not certify that the grantor is personally known to him. No proof of the official character of the officer taking an acknowledgment is required to entitle a deed to record, unless it be for record without the State, when the clerk of the court of common pleas will certify the official capacity of notaries and justices of the peace.

A widow or widower is endowed of an estate for life in one third of all the real property of which the deceased consort was seized as an estate of inheritance at any time during the marriage, or of which he or she held the fee-simple in reversion or remainder, and also held by article, bond, or other evidence of claim; and the widow or widower may remain in the mansion house of the deceased consort free of charge for one year if dower is not sooner assigned. (G. C. §§ 8606 et seq.)

The estate by the curtesy is abolished.

There is no particular form for acknowledgment by a corporation. The officer who signs the instrument and affixes the corporate seal makes the usual acknowledgment in behalf of the company.

All private seals were abolished by 80 O. L. 79, and 81 O. L. 198. The act, however, does not affect corporate seals.

An act has been passed approved May 13, 1913, to establish the "Torrens" system of registration of land titles. (103 O. L. 914-960.)

Depositions. — The deposition of a witness may be used only in the following cases: 1. When the witness does not reside in, or is absent from, the county where the action or proceeding is pending, or by change of venue is sent for trial. 2. When the witness is dead, or from age, infirmity, or imprisonment is unable to attend court. 3. When the testimony is required upon a motion, or when the oral examination of the witness is not required. (G. C. § 11525.)

Either party may commence taking testimony by depositions at any time after service of summons upon the defendant. (G. C. § 11526.)

Depositions may be taken out of the State before a judge, justice, or chancellor of any court of record, a justice of the peace, notary public, mayor or chief magistrate of any city or town corporate, a commissioner appointed by the governor of this State to take depositions, or any person authorized by a special commission from this State. (G. C. § 11531.)

The officer before whom depositions are taken must not be a relative or attorney of either party, or otherwise interested in the event of the action or proceeding. (G. C. § 11532.)

Written notice of the intention to take a deposition must be given to the adverse party, specifying the action or proceeding, the name of the court or tribunal in which it is to be used, and the time and place where it will be taken; and in case the deposition of a party to the suit is taken, the same cannot be used in his own behalf unless the notice shall also specify that his deposition will be taken. The notice must be served upon the adverse party, his agent or attorney, in time to allow the adverse party sufficient time (exclusive of Sundays, the day of service, and one day for preparation) to travel by the usual routes and modes of conveyance to the place named in the notice; and the examination may, if so stated in the notice, be adjourned from day to day. But an adjournment from Saturday to Monday is good. If the deposition is taken under special commission, such notice is not required. (G. C. § 11534.) The deposition shall be written in the presence of the officer before whom it is taken either by the officer, the witness, or some disinterested person, and subscribed by the witness. (G. C. § 11537.) It is usual to take this in shorthand.

Depositions thus taken by any judicial or other officer authorized as above to take depositions, having a seal of office, must be admitted in evidence upon the certificate and signature of such officer, under the seal of the court of which he is an officer, or his official seal, and no other or further act of authentication is required. If the officer taking the same have no official seal, the deposition, if not taken in this State, must be certified and signed by such officer, and be further authenticated, either by parol proof adduced in court or by the certificate and seal of any secretary or other officer of state keeping the great seal thereof, or of the clerk or prothonotary of any court of the State having a seal, attesting that such officer was, at the time of taking the same, authorized within the meaning of the law as above given to take the same. A deposition taken within the State by an officer not having a seal, or within or without the State under a special commission, shall be sufficiently authenticated by the official signature of the officer. (G. C. § 11541.) The deposition must be filed at least one day before the day of trial.

Forms and Instructions. — The following forms may be used: —

"Depositions of witnesses taken before me, a (here insert title of officer) within and for the county of State of in a cause pending in the court of (here name the court in which the suit is pending), wherein is plaintiff, and defendant, and for said plaintiff (or defendant, as the case may be), in pursuance of the notice hereto attached." (Here state which of the parties was present in person or by attorney.)

"A. B. of lawful age, being first duly sworn (or affirmed) by me, as hereinafter certified, deposes and says." (Here insert the deposition, either by stating the facts in a narrative form, or in the form of answers to questions first written down.)

If more than one witness, the next deposition may be commenced immediately below the preceding, as follows: —

"Also C. D. of of lawful age, being," etc. (same as in first deposition).

At the end of the whole the certificate of the officer must be annexed and may be as follows: —

"I, E. F. (naming the official character of the officer), do hereby certify that the above named (naming all the witnesses) were by me first severally sworn (or affirmed) to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth in the above entitled cause, and that the foregoing depositions by them respectively subscribed were reduced to writing by me (or if by any other person, here insert his name, and state that he was a disinterested person, and that they were written in the presence of the officer and the witness), and were subscribed by the said witnesses respectively, in my presence; that said depositions were taken at the time and place in the inclosed notice specified; and that I am not counsel, attorney, or relative of either party, or otherwise interested in the event of this suit. In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand (if the officer have a seal add [and official seal]) this day of A. D. 19 ." (Sign, stating official character.)

If there are adjournments, instead of the words "were taken at the time and place in the inclosed notice specified," insert "were commenced at the time and place in the notice specified, and continued by adjournment from day to day, at the same place, and between the same hours, as in the notice specified, and for the reasons above stated."

Each adjournment should be noted by the officer over his signature, with official character.

The sealed package containing the deposition should be addressed to "The clerk of the court of (naming the court in which suit is pending), at Ohio." Across the seals write, "Depositions in the case of A. B. v. C. D., taken, sealed up, addressed, and transmitted by me." (Signed, with official character.) If known, state number of case on envelope.

If the suit is pending before a justice, the address should be "To justice of the peace, within and for township, county, Ohio."

Fees for taking Depositions within the State. — For swearing each witness, four cents; for each subpoena, attachment, or order of commitment, fifty cents; for each hundred words contained in a deposition and certificate, ten cents, and the officer taking same may retain the deposition until such fees are paid; the officer shall tax the costs of the officer who serves the process aforesaid, and the fees of witnesses; and he may, if directed by a person entitled thereto, retain such depositions until his fees are paid. (G. C. § 11545.)

Fees of Commissioners without the State. — Swearing each witness, twenty-five cents; for each one hundred words contained in any deposition and certificate, or in any affidavit taken before him, ten cents; for authenticating, sealing up, and directing each deposition, one dollar; for authenticating each affidavit sworn to before him, one dollar; for taking the acknowledgment and proof of each deed or other conveyance, lease, contract, letter, or power of attorney, or other written instrument, two dollars. (G. C. § 135.)

No greater fees than the above are allowed, and any commissioner who charges or receives any fee or reward for an act or service done or rendered by him greater than the amount before limited, or who dishonestly or unfaithfully discharges any duty as such commissioner, shall be removed from office by the governor. (G. C. § 136.)

Descent. — The real estate of any deceased intestate which shall have come by descent or devise, or deed of gift from any ancestor, is distributed to his or her kindred in the following course: 1. To the children or their legal representatives. 2. If no children or their legal representatives, then to the husband or wife, during his or her natural life. 3. If no husband or wife, then to the brothers and sisters of the blood of the ancestor from whom the estate came, or their legal representatives, whether such brothers and sisters be of the whole or half blood of the intestate. 4. If no such brothers and sisters or their legal representatives, then ascend to the ancestor, if living, from whom the estate came by deed or gift. 5. If the ancestor be deceased, then to the children of such ancestor or their legal representatives, etc.; if there are no children of the ancestor from whom the estate came or their legal representatives, the estate shall pass to and vest in the husband or wife relict of such ancestor, if a parent of the decedent, during the life of such relict; and on the death of such husband or wife, or if there is no such husband or wife, the estate shall pass to and vest in the brothers and sisters of such ancestors or their legal representatives; and for want of such brothers and sisters or their legal representatives, to the brothers and sisters of the half blood of the intestate, or their legal representatives though such brothers and sisters are not of the blood of the ancestor from whom the estate came. 6. If there are no such half brothers and sisters of the intestate, or their legal representatives, the estate shall pass to the next of kin to the intestate of the blood of the ancestors from whom the estate came, or their legal representatives. (G. C. § 8573.)

When a husband or wife shall die intestate, or without issue, possessed of any real or personal property which came to said intestate from any former deceased husband or wife by deed of gift, by devise, or bequest, or which came to said former deceased husband or wife, otherwise than by descent, devise, or deed of gift, then such estate, real and personal, shall be distributed to the children of such former deceased husband or wife (not the intestate) or the legal representatives of such children. If there are no children or their legal representatives living, then such estate, real and personal, shall be distributed, one half to the brothers and sisters of such intestate or their legal representatives, and one half to the brothers and sisters of such former deceased husband or wife from which such personal or real estate came, or their personal representatives. (G. C. § 8577.)

If the real estate came not by descent, devise, or deed of gift, it is distributed as follows: 1. To the children or their legal representatives. 2. If no children, then to the husband or wife. 3. If no husband or wife, then to the brothers and sisters of the whole blood and their legal representatives. 4. If none of the latter or their legal representatives, then to the brothers and sisters of the half blood and their legal representatives. 5. If none of these, then to the father if living, if not, then to the mother. 6. If father and mother be dead, then to the next of kin and their legal representatives, to and of the blood of the intestate. (G. C. § 8574.)

The personal property of a deceased intestate shall be distributed agreeably to the course prescribed as to real estate which came not by descent, devise, or deed of gift, saving, however, such right as the widow or widower may have in any portion of the personal estate, provided that any fund in the hands of any administrator, guardian, assignee, or other trustee which has arisen from the sale of real estate after the death of the intestate, which came to such intestate by descent, devise, or deed of gift from an ancestor, shall descend as ancestral real estate. If there is no person living to inherit the same as above, such personal property vests in the State. When the intestate leaves no child, the widow is entitled to all the personal estate as next of kin, which shall be subject to distribution on settlement of the estate; but if there should be such child, she takes one half of any sum not exceeding four hundred dollars, and one third of the residue. (G. C. § 8578.)

A tax is imposed upon property passing by will or the inheritance laws of the State or by any transfer taking effect after the death of the grantor to any person other than the father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant, or adopted child of five per cent. on the excess of the value of the property passing to or in trust for such person over two hundred dollars. (G. C. § 5331; 103 O. L. 463.)

Divorce. — The court of common pleas may grant divorces for the following causes: 1. That either party had a husband or wife living at the time of the marriage from which the divorce is sought. 2. Willful absence of either party from the other for three years. 3. Adultery. 4. Impotency. 5. Extreme cruelty. 6. Fraudulent contract. 7. Any gross neglect of duty. 8. Habitual drunkenness for three years. 9. The imprisonment of either party in a penitentiary under sentence thereto; but the petition for divorce under this clause must be filed during the imprisonment of the adverse party. 10. The procurement of a divorce without the State, by a husband or wife, by virtue of which the party who procured it is released from the obligations of the marriage, while the same remain binding upon the other party. (G. C. § 11979.)

When a divorce is granted by reason of the aggression of the husband, the wife shall, by force of the judgment of divorce, be restored to her real estate not previously disposed of, and the husband shall be barred of dower therein, and, if she so desires, the court shall restore to her any name she had before such marriage; and she shall be allowed such alimony out of her husband's real and personal property as the court shall deem reasonable, having due regard to the property which came to him by marriage, and the value of his estate at the time of the divorce; and if the wife survives her husband she will be entitled to dower in the real estate not allowed to her as alimony, or released by her, of which her husband was seized at any time during coverture. (G. C. § 11990.)

When a divorce is granted by reason of the aggression of the wife, she shall be barred of dower in the lands of which her husband is seized at the time of filing her petition for divorce, and alimony may be granted to either husband or wife, as shall seem just and equitable to the court. (G. C. § 11993.)

The court may grant alimony to either party for his or her sustenance and expense during the suit, and an allowance to her for the support of minor children dependent upon either party for support, and not provided for by such party during the pendency of an action for divorce, or for alimony alone (G. C. § 11994; 103 O. L. 428); and any person or corporation having possession of or claiming an interest in the property of the husband, out of which the wife seeks alimony allowed her, may be made a party defendant to the action; and the court may, if necessary, enjoin the husband from so disposing of or incumbering his property as to defeat the wife in obtaining alimony; and the wife can sell and assign her order for alimony or allowance after the same is made. (G. C. §§ 11995, 11996.)

The plaintiff, except in an action for alimony alone, must have been a resident of the State at least one year before filing the petition; all actions for divorce, or for alimony, must be brought in the county where the plaintiff has, and for at least thirty days immediately prior to filing the petition has had, a bona fide residence, or in the county where the cause of action arose; and the court must hear and determine the same, whether the marriage took place or the cause of divorce occurred within or without the State. (G. C. § 11980; 106 O. L. 339.) When the wife files her petition for a divorce, or for alimony, the residence of her husband shall not be so construed as to preclude her from the provisions of this law. (G. C. § 11982.)

Jurisdiction is acquired, when the defendant is a resident of the State, by service of the summons, together with a copy of the petition, on the defendant in the county in which he resides, at least six weeks before the hearing of the cause. (G. C. § 11983.) But when the defendant is not a resident of the State, or his residence is unknown, notice of the pendency of the action must be given by publication as in other cases; and unless it be made to appear to the court, by affidavit or otherwise, that his residence is unknown to the plaintiff, or could not with reasonable diligence be ascertained, a summons and a copy of the petition must forthwith be deposited in the post-office, directed to the defendant at his place of residence. (G. C. § 11984.)

If the defendant, being a subject of a foreign nation, is not a resident of the county where the suit is brought, that fact, with time and place of marriage, must be stated in the petition, and on its filing the clerk must mail a copy of the petition to the nearest consular officer, within the State, of defendant's nationality. (G. C. § 11979-2; 106 O. L. 343.)

The cause may be heard and decided at any time after the expiration of six weeks from the service of summons, or the first publication of notice. (G. C. § 11985.)

Courts have held that the gross neglect of duty must have continued for three years.

Dower. — See Married Women.

Evidence. — See Testimony.

Executions. — Land levied upon must be appraised at its real value in money, by the oath of three disinterested freeholders, residents of the county, called by the sheriff, and sworn by him impartially to appraise such land upon actual view. (G. C. § 11672.) And no tract of land can be sold for less than two thirds this appraisement, except that on foreclosure of a junior lien the property may be sold for not less than two thirds of the difference between the appraisement and the amount of the prior lien if it is sold subject to such prior lien, except in the sale of certain land by the State (G. C. §§ 11675, 11676, 11677), and the property of certain county officers, levied on for any money by them received or collected in their official capacity. (G. C. § 11680.) Lands cannot be sold until the officer cause public notice of the time and place of sale to be given for at least thirty days before the day of sale, by advertisement in some newspaper printed and of general circulation in the county, or, in case no paper be printed in the county, in some newspaper of general circulation therein, and posting advertisements in certain places. The sale of lands must be held at the court-house in the county where such lands are situated, unless ordered by the court to be sold on the premises. (G. C. §§ 11681, 11682, 11696.) Executions for judgments in the common pleas court may be issued at any time on demand and may be directed to different counties at the same time. They must be returned by the sheriff within sixty days from the date thereof. There is no redemption of lands after sale; and no stay of execution is allowed, except where the case is taken up to a higher court on petition in error or on appeal, and except in cases before a justice of the peace.

In cases before a justice of the peace it is his duty, if the case be not appealed, taken up on error, docketed in the common pleas, or bail be not given for the stay of execution at the expiration of ten days from the entry of the judgment, to issue execution without a demand, and proceed to collect the judgment, unless otherwise directed by the judgment creditor. (G. C. § 10400.)

The debtor against whom any judgment for the payment of money has been rendered may be arrested upon execution and committed to the jail of the county until he pays the judgment, or is discharged according to law, in the following cases: 1. When he has removed or begun to remove any of his property out of the jurisdiction of the court, with the intent to prevent the collection of the money due on the judgment. 2. When he has property, rights in action, evidences of debt, or interest or stock in a corporation or company which he fraudulently conceals with like intent. 3. When he has assigned or disposed of all or part of his property or rights in action, or has converted the same into money with intent to defraud his creditors or with the intent to prevent such property from being taken in execution. 4. When he fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation upon which the judgment was rendered. 5. When the judgment was rendered for money or other valuable thing lost by playing at any game or by means of any bet or wager. 6. When he was arrested on an order before judgment and has not been discharged as an insolvent debtor, or the order has not been set aside as improperly made. An execution to arrest a debtor for the causes aforesaid can be issued, with certain exceptions, only when allowed by the supreme court, the district court, the court of common pleas, or the probate court, or any judge of either, upon being satisfied, by the affidavit of the judgment creditor or his attorney, and such other evidence as may be presented, of the existence of one or more of the particulars mentioned above. (G. C. §§ 11744, 11745, 11746.)

A justice of the peace may issue an execution against the person of a judgment debtor by being satisfied of the existence of one or more of the above particulars by like affidavit and evidence. (G. C. § 11747.)

Females are exempt from arrest under this law for any debt, claim, or demand arising on contract. Sundry other persons are likewise exempt by reason of occupying certain public positions, or by reason of certain occasions. (G. C. § 11754.)

Exemptions. — Every unmarried woman may hold the following property exempt from execution, attachment, or sale, to satisfy any judgment, decree, or debt, to wit: 1. Wearing apparel, not exceeding one hundred dollars in value. 2. One sewing-machine. 3. One knitting-machine. 4. Bible, etc., and other books not exceeding in value twenty-five dollars. (G. C. § 11721.)

Every person who has a family, and every widow, can hold exempt from execution, attachment, or sale for any debt, damages, fine, or amercement: 1. Wearing apparel of such person or family, necessary beds, etc., two stoves, and fuel for sixty days. 2. Certain domestic animals and their feed for sixty days, or, in lieu of such as the debtor has not, household furniture of equal value, amounting, in the aggregate, to sixty-five dollars. 3. Family books and pictures. 4. Provisions to the amount of fifty dollars, and other necessary household furniture to the amount of fifty dollars. 5. One sewing-machine, one knitting-machine, the tools and implements of debtor necessary for carrying on his or her trade or business, whether mechanical or agricultural, to the amount of one hundred dollars. 6. The personal earnings of debtor or minor child for three months previous to the issuing of the attachment or rendition of judgment, when necessary for support of debtor or his or her family, but only ninety per cent. of the debtor's earnings are exempt against claims for necessities furnished the family. 7. All animal, vegetable, or mineral specimens of natural history or science not kept for pecuniary gain. (G. C. § 11725.)

In addition to the above, the debtor, if a drayman, can hold one horse, harness, and dray; if a farmer, one horse or one yoke of cattle, with necessary gearing for same, and one wagon; if a physician, one horse, one saddle and bridle, and professional books, medicine and instruments, not exceeding one hundred dollars in value. (G. C. § 11726.)

Where the lands of a decedent are sought to be sold on the petition of his executors or administrators to pay debts, and such decedent has left a widow, or a minor child unmarried, and composing part of the decedent's family at his death, the appraisers shall proceed to set apart a homestead by metes and bounds, not exceeding one thousand dollars in value, which shall remain exempt from sale on execution and exempt from sale under any order of the court so long as the widow, if she remain unmarried, or any unmarried minor child, resides thereon. (G. C. § 11732.)

Husband and wife living together, a widow or widower living with an unmarried daughter or unmarried minor son, may hold exempt a family homestead not exceeding one thousand dollars in value. When the homestead is of a greater value, and will not, in the opinion of the appraisers, bear division, the plaintiff in execution is entitled to the annual rental value over one hundred dollars until the debt, costs, and interest are paid. (G. C. §§ 11730, 11734, 11735.)

There shall be no homestead or other exemption against any lien under the provisions of the mechanics' lien law. (G. C. § 8314.)

Husband and wife living together, a widower living with an unmarried daughter or minor son, every widow, and every unmarried female having in good faith the care, maintenance and custody of any minor child or children of a deceased relation, residents of Ohio, and not the owner of a homestead, may hold other real or personal property to be selected by such person, his agent or attorney, not exceeding five hundred dollars in value, in addition to the amount of chattel property otherwise by law exempted, provided that such selection shall not be made as to wages due to the extent of more than ninety per cent. of such wages as against claims for necessities, and further that no personal property is exempt from execution for a judgment rendered for the price. (G. C. § 11738.)

The exemption of a homestead of the value of one thousand dollars, above provided for, also the exemption of five hundred dollars in lieu of such homestead, do not extend to a judgment rendered on a mortgage executed by debtor and his wife, nor to a claim for manual work and labor less than one hundred dollars, nor to impair a lien by mortgage or otherwise of a vendor for the purchase-money of the premises in question, nor the lien of a mechanic or other person under any statute of this State, for materials furnished or labor performed in the erection of the dwelling-house thereon, nor for the payment of taxes due thereon. (G. C. § 11729.)

Garnishment. — See Attachment.

Inheritance Taxes. — All property within the jurisdiction of this State, and any interest therein, whether belonging to an inhabitant of this State or not, and whether tangible or intangible, which passes by law or by the intestate laws of this State, or by deed, grant, sale, or gift, made or intended to take effect, possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor, in trust or otherwise, other than to or for the use of the father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant, or adopted child, shall be liable to a tax of five per cent. on the value of the property passing to or in trust for such person, on the excess of the value of such property over five hundred dollars. Bequests to certain charities and public institutions within the State of Ohio are also exempt.

The portion of the estate subject to such tax and the appraisement thereof are required to be ascertained in the inventory of the estate and furnished by the probate judge to the county auditor within ten days after the filing of the inventory. The auditor is to certify the same to the county treasurer who collects the tax. The State, through the prosecuting attorney, may apply to the probate court to appoint appraisers to appraise the property.

The tax on real estate is a lien upon such real estate until paid.

All questions with respect to the amount of such tax or liability thereto are to be determined by the probate court, subject to review as in other cases, and in such proceedings the prosecuting attorney of the county represents the State. (G. C. §§ 5331-5348.)

Insolvent Debtors. — Except as affected by the National Bankruptcy Act of 1898, the following statute respecting assignments is in force.

When any person, partnership, association, or corporation makes an assignment to a trustee of any property, money, rights, or credits, in trust for the benefit of creditors, such assignee must, within ten days after the delivery of the assignment to him, and before disposing of any property so assigned, appear before the probate judge of the county in which the assignor resided at the time of executing the assignment, cause the original assignment, or a copy thereof, to be filed in the probate court, and enter into an undertaking, payable to the State of Ohio, in such sum and with such sureties as shall be approved by the judge, conditioned for the faithful performance, by said assignee, of his duties, according to law; any such assignment will take effect only from the time of its delivery to the probate judge; and it may be delivered by the assignor to the probate judge either before or after its delivery to the assignee. If the assignee fails to qualify, or, with the consent of the court, resigns his trust, or dies, or is removed by the court for cause, the court must appoint trustee in his place, who must give a bond in the same manner as the assignee. (G. C. §§ 11092, 11093, 11094, 11095.)

Whenever creditors, who own not less than one thousand dollars of debts against the assignor, petition the court for permission to elect a trustee, the court must fix a time for holding the meeting and cause notice to be sent to the creditors; and if creditors representing fifty per centum or more of the indebtedness are present at such meeting they may proceed to elect such trustee, a majority in value of the debts so represented being necessary to a choice; and if the court approves the choice, and the person elected appears within ten days and gives bond, the court must appoint him the trustee, and remove the preceding assignee or trustee. (G. C. §§ 11096, 11097.)

Every such assignee or trustee must, within thirty days after giving bond, cause notice to be given in some newspaper, of general circulation within the county, of his appointment as such assignee or trustee, and, unless for good cause shown, the court shall grant a longer time, make and file in the court an inventory, verified by his oath, of all the property, etc., included in the assignment, which shall have come to his possession or knowledge, together with an appraisement thereof, under their oath, by three suitable, disinterested persons, appointed such appraisers by the court; and must also, at the same time, file a schedule of all the debts and liabilities of the assignor within his knowledge, which schedule must contain the post-office address of each of such alleged creditors, as far as the same can be given. The assignee or trustee must proceed at once to convert all the property received by him into money, under certain specified restrictions and limitations, and, in some particulars, under the order and sanction of the probate judge. (G. C. §§ 11108, 11109, 11115.)

Creditors must present their claims, within six months after the publication of the notice provided for as above stated, to the assignee or trustee for allowance, and the assignee or trustee must indorse his allowance or rejection thereon. See, also, Proof of Claims. If rejected, suit to enforce the claim must be brought against the assignee or trustee within thirty days. Immediately after the expiration of the six months, the assignee or trustee must make a detailed statement to the court of all claims presented, specifying what have been allowed or rejected, including the post-office address of each creditor presenting his claim. (G. C. §§ 11134, 11135.)

No assignment is to be construed to include or cover any property exempt from levy or sale on execution, or from being by any legal process applied to the payment of debts, unless in the assignment the exemption is expressly waived. (G. C. § 11111.) All taxes assessed on personal property, and wages, not exceeding three hundred dollars, due and earned within twelve months preceding the assignment, are preferred claims. These preferences shall not affect securities given or liens obtained in good faith for value, but judgments by confession on warrant of attorney rendered within two months prior to such assignment, or securities given within such time to create a preference among creditors or to secure a preëxisting debt other than upon real estate for the purchase-money thereof, shall be of no force as against such claims for labor to the extent above provided. (G. C. §§ 11138, 11139.) See, also, Mechanics' and other Liens.

The probate judge has full power to examine the assignor as to all matters concerning his property and estate; also the assignee, as to all matters pertaining to the estate and administration of the trust; and to make and enforce all orders necessary for the protection of the estate and the interests of the creditors.

Dividends are payable at the expiration of eight months from the appointment and qualification of the assignee, and as often afterwards as may be deemed proper by the probate judge. Notice of such dividend must be given by advertisement in a newspaper. (G. C. § 11140.)

The debtor can make no assignment which will, under the State laws, thereby release him or entitle him to a discharge from his liabilities; nor will proving claim or accepting dividend by creditor operate of itself as a discharge of the debtor, but such dividend will be payment on account. Preferences in a general assignment are not allowed, nor are preferences in contemplation of insolvency. (G. C. § 11104.) A bona fide attachment issued and levied prior to an assignment will not be affected by a subsequent assignment of the debtor under the assignment laws of this State.

Interest. — The legal rate of interest is six per cent. Parties may, however, contract in writing for eight per cent. No penalty is attached to the violation of the law. If a contract is made for a higher rate than eight per cent., the contract as to interest is void, and the recovery is limited to the principal sum and six per cent.

Interest is computed upon judgments and decrees at the rate specified in the instrument upon which such judgment or decree is rendered. Open accounts draw interest at six per cent. from the time payment thereof could be demanded. (G. C. §§ 8303, 8304, 8305.)

A ten per cent. law was in force from May 1, 1850, to April 1, 1859. The present eight per cent. law took effect October 1, 1869, and is continued by G. C. §§ 8303-8307.

Judgments. — The lands and tenements of the debtor, within the county where the judgment is entered, are bound for the satisfaction thereof, from the first day of the term at which judgment is rendered; but judgments by confession, and judgments rendered at the same term at which the action is commenced, bind the lands only from the day on which such judgments are rendered. All other lands, as well as goods and chattels of the debtor, are bound from the time they are seized in execution. (G. C. § 11656.) A judgment loses its preference as against any other bona fide judgment creditor if execution be not issued and levied within one year. (G. C. § 11708.) If no execution be sued out within five years from the date of any judgment, or if five years intervene between the date of the last execution issued and the time of suing out another thereon, such judgment becomes dormant, and ceases to operate as a lien on the estate of the judgment debtor. (G. C. § 11663.) Actions to revive a dormant judgment can only be brought within twenty-one years after it became dormant; except that persons under the age of twenty-one, insane, or imprisoned at the time the judgment became dormant, must bring the action within fifteen years after such disability has ceased. (G. C. §§ 11647, 11648.) Foreign judgments are proved under laws of Congress.

The party in whose favor a judgment has been rendered by a justice of the peace, if such judgment has not been appealed or stayed within ten days, may, at any time thereafter, file a transcript of such judgment in the office of the clerk of the court of common pleas of the same county, and thus acquire a lien on the real estate of the judgment debtor. (G. C. § 11659.)

Judgments by default may be taken in the common pleas court, during its session, on the Monday following the answer day (see Service), which cannot be less than thirty days after the filing of the petition; and before justices of the peace on the day named in the summons, which must be served at least three days before the time of appearance.

Judgments recovered at same term of court stand on equal footing, except in cases where the judgment is recovered at the same term of court at which the suit is begun; in which latter case the judgment binds lands from the day on which the judgment is rendered. So that judgments rendered on different days of the same term of court at which the actions were begun in which they are rendered have priority in the order of time in which they are rendered.

Judgment Notes. — A warrant of attorney may be attached to a promissory note, authorizing any attorney of any court of record to appear for the makers of the note in any court of record in the State of Ohio, and waive the issuing and service of process against them, and to confess judgment for the amount of said note.

Judicial Reports. — See Reports.

Licenses. — No license is required of commercial travelers.

Limitations. — Actions for the recovery of the title or possession of real property can only be brought within twenty-one years after the cause of such action accrues (G. C. § 11219), and actions for the forcible entry and detention, or forcible detention only, of real property, within two years after the cause of such action shall have accrued. (G. C. § 10448.)

Actions other than for the recovery of real property can only be brought within the following periods after the cause of action accrues. Within fifteen years: An action upon a specialty, or an agreement, contract, or promise in writing. Within six years: Action upon a contract not in writing, either express or implied; and actions upon a liability created by statute, other than a forfeiture or penalty. Within four years: Actions for trespass upon real property; actions for the recovery of personal property, or for taking, detaining, or injuring the same; actions for an injury to the rights of the plaintiff, not arising on contract; and actions for relief on the ground of fraud, in which case the cause of action shall not be deemed to have accrued until discovery of fraud. Within one year: Actions for libel, slander, assault, battery, malicious prosecution, false imprisonment, or for malpractice; and actions upon a statute for a penalty or forfeiture, unless otherwise provided by the statute giving such action. And within ten years: Actions upon the bond or undertaking of an officer, assignee, trustee, executor, administrator or guardian, or upon the bond or undertaking given in pursuance of a statute; and actions for relief not herein enumerated. (G. C. §§ 11221, 11222, 11224, 11225, 11226, 11227.) In case a bank has paid a forged or raised check drawn in the name of a depositor, it is discharged from liability by reason of such payment, unless it be notified, within one year after actual written notice to the depositor, that vouchers for the period including such payment are ready for delivery, or, in case such notice be not given, within one year after the return to the depositor of the forged or raised check, of the fact that such check was raised or forged. (102 O. L. 441; G. C. § 11225-1.)

Persons within the age of minority, of unsound mind, or imprisoned, can bring such action within the time limited above after such disability is removed, except for a penalty or forfeiture. In actions for the recovery of title or possession of real estate, such persons may, after the expiration of twenty-one years from the accrual of the cause of action, bring such action within ten years after the removal of such disability. (G. C. §§ 11219, 11229.)

If when a cause of action accrues the debtor be out of the State, or have absconded, or conceals himself, the period limited for the commencement of the action does not begin to run until he comes into the State, or while he is absconded or concealed; and if after the cause of action accrues he departs from the State, or absconds or conceals himself, the time of such absence or concealment is not to be computed as a part of the time within which the action is to be brought. (G. C. § 11228.)

If the laws of the state or country where the cause of action arose limit the time for suit to a less number of years than those of Ohio the action is barred in Ohio at the end of the smaller number of years. (G. C. § 11234; 101 O. L. 226.)

When payment has been made upon any demand founded on contract or a written acknowledgment thereof, or promise to pay the same has been made and signed by the party to be charged, an action may be brought thereon within the time above limited after such payment, acknowledgment, or promise. (G. C. § 11223.)

Where claims presented to an administrator or executor of a decedent for allowance against, or payment out of, the estate of such decedent, have been rejected by such administrator or executor, suit must be brought thereon within six months after such rejection if the claim or any part thereof be then due, or within six months after the same shall become due. (G. C. § 10722.)

A proceeding to reverse, vacate, or modify a judgment or final order shall be commenced within seventy days after the rendition of the judgment or the making of the final order complained of. Saving of seventy days is made in favor of infants, persons of unsound mind, and persons imprisoned, after such disability is removed. (G. C. § 12270; 103 O. L. 835.) See Insolvent Debtors. As to a proceeding to revive a dormant judgment, see Judgments.

Married Women. — Neither husband nor wife has any interest in the property of the other except that the husband must support his wife, and they have dower in each other's property. See above section referring to dower under head of Deeds, Mortgages, etc.

The husband or wife may enter into any engagement or transaction with the other or with any other person which either might, if unmarried, subject in transactions between themselves to the general rules which control the actions of persons occupying confidential relations to each other; and may take, hold, and dispose of property, real or personal, the same as if unmarried. (G. C. §§ 7998, 7999, 8000, 8001.)

See provision as to dower under head of Deeds, Mortgages, etc.

A married woman may sue and be sued as if she were unmarried, and her husband may be joined with her only when the cause of action is in favor of or against both her and her husband. (G. C. § 11245.)

When a husband and wife are sued together, she may defend in her own right, and if the husband neglects to defend she may also defend in his right. (G. C. § 11246.)

When a married woman sues or is sued, like proceedings shall be had, and judgment rendered and enforced as if she were unmarried, and her property and estate shall be liable for the judgment against her, but she shall be entitled to the benefits of all exemptions to heads of families. (81 O. L. 65.) A woman, whether married or not, becomes of age at eighteen. (G. C. § 8023.)

Mechanics' and other Liens. — Every person who does work or labor or furnishes material, machinery, or fuel for constructing, altering, or repairing a boat, vessel, or other water craft, or for erecting, altering, repairing, or removing a house, mill, manufactory, or any furnace or furnace material therein, or other building, appurtenance, fixture, bridge, or other structure, or for digging, drilling, boring, operating, completing, or repairing any gas well, oil well, or other well, or for altering, repairing, or constructing any oil derrick, oil tank, oil or gas pipe-line, or furnishes tile for the drainage of any lot or land, by virtue of a contract, express or implied, with the owner, part owner, or lessee of any interest in real estate, or his agent, or who performs labor or furnishes machinery, material, or fuel for the construction, alteration, or repair of any street, turnpike, road, sidewalk, way, drain, ditch, or sewer, by virtue of private contract between him and the owner, part owner, or lessee of lands upon which the same may be constructed, altered, or repaired, or of lands abutting thereon; and every person who shall, as sub-contractor, laborer, or material-man, perform any labor, or furnish machinery, materials, or fuel to the original or principal contractor or to any sub-contractor in doing such work, shall have a lien to secure payment thereof upon such boat, house, mine, etc., and upon the interest, leasehold or otherwise, of the owner, part owner, or lessee, in the lot or land upon which they may stand or to which they may be removed, to the extent of the interest which such owner, etc., had at the time of beginning work, or may thereafter acquire. (G. C. §§ 8310, 8311; 103 O. L. 369, 370.)

The original contractor, in order to obtain any payments from the owner, must deliver to the owner, if he or his agent can be found in the county, a sworn statement showing the name of every laborer who has not been paid in full and of every sub-contractor in his employ, and of every person furnishing machinery, material, or fuel, with the amount due or to become due to such person, which statement must be accompanied by a certificate signed by every person furnishing material, machinery, or fuel, showing the amount due or to become due, and also a similar statement of every sub-contractor and of every person furnishing machinery material or fuel; the owner is entitled to retain all amounts due sub-contractors, laborers, or material-men as shown by such statements; and until the statements are furnished, the contractor has no right of action against the owner. (G. C. § 8312; 103 O. L. 370, 371; 106 O. L. 522-28.)

Any person furnishing machinery, material, or fuel, or performing labor, as aforesaid, may within thirty days after beginning to furnish machinery, etc., or to perform labor, serve on the owner or his agent a notice of his claim, due or to become due; and the owner must retain from any payment to the original contractor amount sufficient to pay all demands owing or unpaid to any sub-contractor, material-man, or laborer who has served such notice. (G. C. § 8313; 103 O. L. 372; 106 O. L. 528-30.)

The owner, etc., shall not be liable to any sub-contractor, material-man, or laborer for any greater amount than he contracted to pay the original contractor, and he is entitled to set off any damages which he may sustain by reason of any failure or omission in the performance of the principal contract. No payment to the principal contractor, after receipt of the notice referred to in the last paragraph, before the time for filing mechanic's lien has expired, relieves the owner from liability to sub-contractor, material-man, or laborer. (G. C. § 8313; 103 O. L. 373; 106 O. L. 528-30.)

Every person, whether contractor, sub-contractor, material-man, or laborer, must, in order to obtain the lien provided for in the statute, file with the recorder of the county or counties where the labor was performed or the machinery, material, or fuel furnished, an affidavit showing the amount due over and above all legal offsets, a description of the property to be charged with the lien, the name of the person for whom such machinery, materials, or fuel were furnished and labor performed, and of the owner, part owner, or lessee, if known. Such affidavit must be filed within sixty days following the time the person filing the same finished furnishing material or performing the labor. There is no homestead or other exemption against the lien. (G. C. § 8314; 103 O. L. 373; 106 O. L. 528-30.)

Every person filing such an affidavit must within thirty days after the filing thereof serve on the owner, part owner, or lessee of the premises, or his agent, if such owner, etc., can be found within the county, a copy of such affidavit; if such person cannot be found within the county, then such copy must be posted in some conspicuous place on the premises within ten days after the expiration of such thirty days. (G. C. § 8315; 103 O. L. 374; 106 O. L. 528-30.)

When a married woman is owner of any property hereinbefore mentioned on which any work is done by virtue of a contract with her husband, and she has knowledge of such work and does not expressly object thereto, the husband shall be held to be the duly authorized agent of his wife. (G. C. § 8318; 103 O. L. 375.)

The owner of any property upon which a lien has been taken may notify the holder of the lien, or his agent or attorney, to begin suit thereon. If suit is not brought within sixty days after such notice is served the lien is void, but the indebtedness, if any, may be collected by the usual legal process. (G. C. § 8319; 103 O. L. 375.)

The liens provided for take effect from the date the first labor was performed or the first machinery, materials, or fuel was furnished by the contractor under the original contract, and continue for six years, to take priority as follows: 1. Liens filed by persons performing manual labor to the extent of the labor performed during the thirty days immediately preceding the date of the performance of the last labor. 2. The liens of laborers, mechanics, or persons furnishing machinery, material or fuel to a contractor or sub-contractor, are superior to any lien taken or to be taken by such contractor or sub-contractor indebted to them in respect to such labor, machinery, etc. 3. The lien of a sub-contractor is superior to any lien to be taken by the principal contractor with respect to the same labor, machinery, material, or fuel. With these exceptions, if several liens be obtained by several persons on the same job, they have no priority among themselves. (G. C. §§ 8321, 8322; 103 O. L. 376.)

Executors and administrators of deceased owners have the same rights and are subject to the same liabilities that the owners would enjoy and be subject to if alive. (G. C. §§ 8323-8325; 103 O. L. 378.)

This applies to all contracts made since August 6, 1913. For law applicable to prior contracts see 1913 issue.

Any person or corporation contracting for the construction of a railroad, depot buildings, water-tanks, or any part thereof, shall be liable to and shall pay to each person performing labor or furnishing materials stipulated for in the contract of construction with the owner of the railroad for the whole or any part of work done or materials furnished under a contract with the original contractor or any sub-contractor; and the railroad company shall provide, in its contract with its contractor, that payments under it shall be made, first, to persons performing labor or furnishing material, or boarding, on the order of any contractor or sub-contractor, to persons employed by them on said work, without preference; second, to the sub-contractor any balance due under his contract, after paying his liabilities to persons performing labor, or furnishing materials, or boarding, under his contract; third, the contractors intervening between the company and the sub-contractor, in the order of such intervention from sub-contractor upward, any balance due after payment of amounts due in above order of priority. Persons entitled to the above priorities have a lien for payment of the same upon the railroad for one year from the date of filing same, in the manner provided in the statute, below cited. Such lien to have precedence over any lien taken or to be taken. The above provisions also apply to persons furnishing grain, hay, merchandise, tools, or implements, or who repair the latter, on order of any contractor or sub-contractor, for use on said work. (G. C. §§ 8343-8351.)

Employees of persons or corporations, where the employment is in agriculture, mining, manufacture, or other manual labor, have a lien upon the real property of employers for wages, superior to the lien of attachment thereon during the existence of such unpaid labor claim; to liens of mortgage given at a time of actual insolvency of the debtor, or given to prefer creditors, or to secure a preëxisting debt, and superior to claims for homestead or other exemptions, except personal property to heads of families and widows. And where property of an employer is placed in the hands of an assignee, receiver, or trustee, claims for labor performed within three months prior to appointment of such assignee, etc., shall be paid next after claims for taxes and costs of administration. To acquire such a lien it is necessary to file, within thirty days from the expiration of said three months, with the recorder of the county, an itemized statement of the claim. When the lien has been thus secured, it will continue valid for one year from such filing, and to the end of any action begun within that time to enforce such lien. (G. C. §§ 8339, 8340.)

Any person performing common or mechanical labor upon or furnishing supplies to any railroad, street railroad or railroad operated wholly or in part by electric motor power, turnpike, plank-road, canal, or on any public structure, whether the labor is performed for, or the supplies or material is furnished to any company, corporation, contractor, or sub-contractor, construction company, or an individual, shall have a first, immediate, and absolute lien on the whole of the property on which said work is done, or to which said supplies have been contributed, and shall hold the railroad, street railroad, etc., or so much thereof as may have been in whole or in part created by said labor or supplies, to the exclusion of any railroad, canal, etc., as to operation, occupation, or use until the claim for such labor or supplies is properly adjusted or paid in full. The lien is obtained by filing a sworn itemized statement, within thirty days after said work was performed or materials furnished, of the amount of work done or materials furnished, showing the balance due and claimed for labor or material furnished, with the recorder of the county or counties within which said work was done or materials furnished. Several liens obtained by several persons on the same job in this manner shall share pro rata. Any construction company, contractor, mechanic, laborer, or person contributing supplies or material to any railroad, canal, etc., shall at the time of filing the sworn statement of account above provided file a good and sufficient bond of indemnity for a sum equal to the amount claimed, which bond shall be approved by the probate judge, and shall be so conditioned as to save and protect the defendant, and shall then be entitled to a decree of the common pleas court enjoining the operation, use, or occupancy of the property created in whole or in part by the party asking for the injunction, and said injunction shall not be dissolved until the court is satisfied that the claim has been adjusted and paid in full. (G. C. §§ 8376, 8377, 8378, 8379, 8380.)

Mortgages — Are executed in the same manner as deeds. The mortgage first presented must be first recorded, and the first recorded has preference. Husband should unite with wife in all mortgages of her separate real estate to bar his dower.

A mortgage, given to secure the means to pay off prior incumbrances or to improve property, which contains the correct name and address of the mortgagee and a covenant authorizing the mortgagee to do the various things required to be done by the act, is entitled to priority over all mechanics' liens subsequently filed, to the extent that the proceeds are used for the purposes above stated and in compliance with the provisions of the statute. The provisions are as follows: The mortgagee must not pay out any part of the mortgage fund for fifteen days after the mortgage is filed for record; at the end of that time he is entitled to refuse to make the loan upon delivering to the mortgagor or to the county recorder for record a release of the mortgage, but if he then chooses to complete the loan he must distribute the money in the following order: 1. To the holders of prior incumbrances. 2. He may retain sufficient funds to complete the improvement according to the original plans, specifications, and contracts, and within the contract price. 3. He may, on the owner's order, pay out to contractors or sub-contractors, or to the owner himself, if he is acting as his own contractor, such sums as the owner may certify to be necessary to meet and pay labor pay-rolls for the improvement. 4. He should pay, on the order of the owner, the accounts of such material-men and laborers as may have filed with him a written notice of their claims, and he is required to retain out of the mortgage fund such money thereafter to become due as it may be shown will become due by notices served upon him by such material-men and laborers, and he shall pay the amounts on the order of the owner as they may respectively become due, if he has sufficient funds in his hands. If he has not sufficient funds to complete the improvement and to pay the claimants, he shall retain enough to complete the improvement and distribute the balance pro rata among the claimants. 5. If the owner refuses to give orders to pay the amount of such notices, the mortgagee must retain a sufficient amount to cover these claims until the proper amount has been agreed upon or judicially determined. 6. The mortgagee shall pay out, on the owner's order, directly to material-men or laborers that have performed labor or furnished material for the improvement. 7. The mortgagee shall pay the balance, if any, to the owner or according to his directions. If the mortgagee complies with this statute he is subject to no further liability to any one. The mortgagee is not required to determine the priorities or validity of the claims of contractors, sub-contractors, laborers, or material-men, nor is he responsible for any mistakes of the owner in determining such priorities. The mortgagee is required at any time, on the written demand of any contractor, sub-contractor, laborer, or material-man, to furnish the person making such demand with a statement of the exact balance of the mortgage fund remaining in his hands and of the total amount included in notices filed with him. (G. C. § 8821-1; 106 O. L. 531.)

Mortgages of real estate are not good against subsequent lien-holders or purchasers, unless delivered to the recorder of the proper county for record, and then only from that time, even though such purchaser or lien-holder have actual notice of the existence of said mortgage. But between the parties it is good though not recorded.

When the debt secured by a mortgage is paid, the mortgagor may release the mortgage by entering satisfaction or a receipt for the same, either on the mortgage or on the record of the mortgage. No acknowledgment, witness, or seal is required of the release. When the release is on the mortgage, it should then be entered by the recorder on the records.

The following form may be used on the mortgage: —

"The indebtedness secured by the within mortgage has been paid in full; and this said mortgage is thereby satisfied and the same is hereby released." A mortgage may also be released by deed.

See also Married Women; Deeds.

Mortgages are foreclosed by suit commenced for that purpose in the court of common pleas; and in such suit a sale of the mortgaged property must in all cases be ordered. The sale is conducted the same as of lands levied upon by execution. See Executions.

The indebtedness secured by a mortgage is generally evidenced by a note rather than by a bond.

Notaries Public. — Notaries public are appointed by the governor for a term of three years and have power to act only within the county in which they reside. All certificates of acknowledgment of conveyances made by notaries public must be attested by a notarial seal; all affidavits and other notarial acts should be attested by the notarial seal. (G. C. §§ 119-131.) The clerk of the court of common pleas will when needed certify under the seal of that court to the official character of notaries within his county.

Notes and Bills of Exchange. — An instrument to be negotiable must be in writing signed by the maker or drawer, contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money, be payable on demand or at a fixed or determinable future day, be payable to order or bearer, and if addressed to a drawee he must be named or otherwise indicated with reasonable certainty in the instrument (G. C. § 8106); and such negotiable instruments are payable at the time fixed therein without grace. When the day of maturity is Sunday or a holiday the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day. If the instrument falls due on Saturday it is to be presented for payment on the next succeeding business day, except that the holder may in his option present instruments payable on demand before twelve o'clock noon of any Saturday the whole of which is not a holiday. (G. C. § 8190.)

Demand of payment from the maker or drawee on the day of payment as above stated, and notice of non-payment thereof to the indorser of the note, bill, or check, and the drawer of any such bill or check on the following day if the indorser or drawer live in the same place as the holder, or deposited in the mail in time to go on the following day if they live in different places, shall be adjudged such due diligence as to enable any indorsee in his own name to institute and maintain an action on such note or bill of exchange for the recovery of the money due thereon, against the maker, drawer, or obligor, or against the indorser, unless the indorsement shall express in writing other conditions. (G. C. §§ 8208, 8209.)

The following are legal holidays in Ohio: The first day of January, 22d of February, 30th of May, 4th of July, any day appointed by the governor of the State or the president of the United States as a day of fast or thanksgiving, and the 25th of December, and the first Monday in September, 12th of October and Saturday in each week after twelve o'clock noon; and such legal holidays shall, for all purposes whatsoever of presentment for payment or acceptance and the protesting or the giving of notice of non-acceptance or of non-payment of all such instruments, be considered as the first day of the week. Instruments falling due on Saturday shall be presented at or before twelve o'clock noon of that day and if not paid then may again be presented and protested or notice given on the next business day. But if a legal holiday fall on the first day of the week, the succeeding Monday shall for such purposes be considered as the first day of the week. (G. C. §§ 8301, 5978; 101 O. L. 34.)

One or more of the persons severally liable on an instrument may be included in the same action thereon. (G. C. § 11258.) When two or more persons are indebted on any joint contract, or upon a judgment founded upon any such contract, and either of them die, his estate is liable therefor, as if the contract had been joint and several, or as if the judgment had been against himself alone, except as to the rights of a surety, when certified as such in a judgment rendered jointly against him and his principal. See also Judgments; Married Women.

Partnerships. — Every firm doing business in Ohio under a fictitious name or one which does not show the names of the partners must (unless it be a commercial or banking partnership established outside the United States) file with the clerk of the court of common pleas of the county where its principal office in Ohio is situated a certificate in a form prescribed by law showing the full names of the parties. Such certificates must be renewed at every change of membership of such firm; except that in the case of joint stock, commercial, or banking partnerships which issue certificates of stock representing the interests of the members and have a board of directors, such certificates need be filed only once a year, on or before the second Monday in April. No such partnership can maintain any suit in the courts of Ohio until such certificate is filed. (G. C. §§ 8099 et seq.)

receives from the seller a written list of the names and addresses of the creditors of the seller with the amount of the indebtedness due or owing to each, certified by the seller under oath to be a full list of his creditors and of his indebtedness, and unless the purchaser shall, at least five days before taking possession of or paying for such merchandise or merchandise and fixtures, notify personally or by registered mail every creditor whose name and address appears in such list or of which he has knowledge, of the proposed sale and of the terms and conditions thereof. If any purchaser does not conform with the provisions of the act, he may, upon application made within ninety days after the sale by any creditor of the seller to be declared to be a trustee of any property which he may have received by virtue of such sale. This does not apply to sales by orders of court or by executors, administrators, guardians, receivers, trustees in bankruptcy, or by any public officer under judicial process. (G. C. §§ 11102, 11103-1; 103 O. L. 462.)

Service. — When the petition is filed upon the written request of the plaintiff's attorney a summons is issued by the clerk, under the seal of the court, directed to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to notify the defendant that he has been sued and must answer at a time stated therein or the petition will be taken as true and judgment rendered accordingly; and when the action is for the recovery of money only, there must be indorsed on the writ the amount for which, with interest, judgment will be taken if the defendant fail to answer. (G. C. §§ 11279 et seq.) Service of the summons is made by delivering a copy, with the indorsements thereon, to the defendant personally, or by leaving a copy at his usual place of residence at any time before the return day. (G. C. § 11286.) The summons is returnable on the second Monday after its date (G. C. § 11283), and the answer or demurrer by the defendant must be filed on or before the third Saturday after the return day. (G. C. § 11346.) Service in certain cases may be made by publication, and the courts have been empowered to provide by rule for service by mail. (107 O. L. 653.)

Statutes. — The statutes of Ohio now in force are contained in the General Code (cited herein as G. C.), which took effect February 15, 1910, the acts of the session of 1910, cited as 101 O. L., the acts of the session of 1911, cited as 102 O. L., the acts of the session of 1913, cited as 103 O. L., the acts of the session of 1914, cited as 104 O. L., the acts of the special session of 1914 entitled 105 O. L., the acts of the session of 1915 entitled 106 O. L., and the acts of the session of 1917 entitled 107 O. L.

Stay of Execution. — No stay of execution is allowed except on judgments rendered by a justice of the peace, and except where cases are taken up on appeal or petition in error from a lower to a higher court.

Executions may be stayed by any person against whom judgment may be rendered by a justice, with certain exceptions, by entering into an undertaking to the adverse party, within ten days after the rendition of such judgment, with good and sufficient surety, resident of the county, as the justice may approve, conditioned for the payment of the amount of such judgment, interest, and costs, and costs that may accrue; which undertaking must be entered on the docket of the justice, and be signed by the surety. The stay thus obtained is graduated as follows: On any judgment for five dollars and under, sixty days; on any judgment exceeding five dollars and under twenty dollars, ninety days; on any judgment for twenty dollars and under fifty dollars, one hundred and fifty days; and on any judgment for fifty dollars or upwards, two hundred and forty days. (G. C. §§ 10401, 10402, 10403.) See Executions.

Supplementary Proceedings — Are unknown by that name, but we have an equivalent proceeding known as proceedings in aid of execution. (G. C. §§ 10436 et seq., 11760 et seq.)
